BERLIN NOW READY TO ACCEPT PLAN OF EXPERTS

Rapid Change of Attitude Within the Reich Brought About by Favorable Reception Abroad of Report—Even Reactionary Wave Receding.

OPTIMISM HIGH IN ALL QUARTERS

Scheme Regarded by Government as Not So Formidable as It Seemed—Will Try to Get Best Terms, but Will Accept Any.

BERLIN, April 12.—A startling change within the Reich has been brought by the reception abroad of the report of the committee of experts and the invitation of the reparations commission to Germany, to participate in the negotiations determining her fate.

Not only is acceptance certain. Overnight it would seem the Government has been convinced that the difficulties in the way of rushing through acceptance of the report are vanishing. Even at this early stage it is manifest that the reactionary wave is receding. Stresemann has forgotten his Hanover monarchist speech and has reverted more strongly than ever to his former attitude of peace at any price with France. Optimism has never run so high.

Stresemann doesn't expect to have any serious difficulty at the meeting Monday of the cabinet and the Premiers of the various states, although he realizes he may have to use his suavest oratory for the representatives of Bavaria, Mecklenberg and Thuringia.

After assembling all the flaws that could be found in the report, the Government has come to the conclusion it isn't so formidable as it seemed at first. Even reactionaries who are not bitter-enders are taking the viewpoint that if the annual reparations payments are too high the "buck can be passed" to the finance commissioner, who will see himself that Germany can't pay 2,500,000,000 marks annually. This ingenious argument disposes at once of two objections—the size of the payments and the idea of internal control by foreign Powers.

Germany's representatives, of course, will seek the best possible terms but they are prepared to accept what they can get. It is possible that Bergman and Fischer will represent the Reich before the reparations committee.

The industrial league, though stressing the fact that Director George of the Krupp Company does not express its viewpoint when he proposes acceptance of the report practically without reservations, has promised the Government complete support in its negotiations.

President of Reichs Bank Approves Report.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 12.—Next Monday's Cabinet meeting with the Premiers of the German Federal States will decide whether the reply to the Reparation Commission on the experts' report shall be made in writing or orally through a special delegate to Paris. The majority of the Premiers appear to favor a written reply.

Dr. Hjalmir Schacht, president of the Reichs Bank and Federal Commissioner of Currency, declared today that he viewed the experts' report as forming a satisfactory basis for reparation settlement negotiations.

"The experts' report to the Reparation Commission is essentially an American document," said Dr. Schact, who frequently was called into consultation by Gen. Dawes and his fellow experts in the investigation leading up to the report.

"It is direct and business like and shows the great influence Messrs. Dawes, Young and Robinson exerted," he continued. "In my opinion it is a satisfactory basis for negotiations looking to a settlement of the reparation problem.

ZEPLIAK, LED OUT OF RUSSIA IN RAGS, STARTS FOR ROME

Archbishop, Roman Catholic Head in Soviet Land, Penniless and Emaciated on Arrival at Riga.

By the Associated Press.

RIGA, Latvia, April 12.—Archbishop Zepliak, head of the Roman Catholic Church in Russia, who arrived here yesterday from soviet Russia, left today for Warsaw and later will proceed to Rome, where he will present a report to Pope Pius on the treatment of the Catholic clergy in Russia.

The venerable prelate was penniless, ragged and emaciated when he arrived at Riga, the soviet authorities having failed to provide him with any food, money or proper clothing for th trip. Catholic officials here who had known him previously were shocked at his changed appearance and failed to recognize him. His hair and beard had grown long and white and he appeared broken and haggard.

Although Archbishop Zepliak knew that he had previously been condemned to death, he was wholly unaware of the Pope's efforts to obtain his release. When he was told by his guards to leave jail, he thought that a harsher fate was in store for him, the soviets having given him no intimation of his destination.

Realized He Was Free.

He realized he was at last free from his 15 months' bondage only when he arrived at the Latvian frontier, where the two guards who had accompanied him from Moscow ordered him to quit the country.

The aged ecclestiac was overcome with emotion and wept and seemed dazed at the joyful news. Lettish sympathizers who recognized him furnished him with enough money to get to Riga.

After the Catholic clergy at Riga had provided him with food, clothing and church vestments, he said a mass in the cathedral in which he expressed the most fervent thanks for his deliverance.

Although he had undergone keen mental anguish and physical suffering while in prison, he spoke with singular indulgence and moderation of the soviet authorities.

In Solitary Confinement.

He said he had been kept in solitary confinement, but allowed to see his faithful servant once a week and to receive occasional letters. Among them were many from friends in the United States, urging him not to abandon hope.

He was unable to say how many Catholic priests were still interned in Russia, or what would be their probable fate. He asked the correspondent to express his gratitude to all American and foreign sympathizers who had sustained his courage and spirit while he was in prison by their confidence in his ultimate release.

PREMIER MACDONALD AND DAUGHTER TO BE GUESTS OF THE KING AND QUEEN

(Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Pub. Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, April 12.—WHEN Premier MacDonald goes to Windsor Castle during Easter Week he will be received not as minister in attendance on the King, but as personal guest of the latter and Queen Mary, the Post-Dispatch and New York World were informed tonight.

MacDonald and his eldest daughter, Miss Isabel, mistress of Downing Street, who is accompanying him, will leave London next Saturday and will spend the day and night at the Castle.

LEVIATHAN ON SEAS AGAIN

Liner Leaves New York on First Trip Since December.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Five thousand visitors inspected the steamship Leviathan today before she sailed amidst a din of saluting harbor craft on her first voyage since she grounded in the harbor here last December, and was tied up for repairs and a general overhauling.

Thomas H. Ross Bottom, general manager of the United States lines, declared that although the Leviathan's engines now probably were faster than ever, she would go in for service records rather than speed records this season.

The long passenger list carried the names of John Barton Payne, former Secretary of the Interior and now chairman of the American Red Cross, who goes to Paris to preside at an international session of the League of Red Cross Societies.

50C WOULD HAVE SAVED LAD

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 12.—Kenneth Crum, 6-year-old fan, fell from a signboard where he was watching an exhibition game here this afternoon between the Louisville Colonels and the Pittsburg Nationals, and struck a long splinter, which entered his side and pierced his heart. He died within 15 minutes.

'DAUGHTERS' ALL NEED MONEY; MAN PUZZLED

Hazel, Missing for Years, Appears in Different Places and Always Wants Funds.

George Johnson of 2911 Dickson street, is a very much perplexed man. He has been searching for his long lost daughter, Hazel, for more than a year. Some months ago he found a young woman in Washington, D. C., who said she was his daughter. But police there thought differently. And so did Johnson, after she had wired asking for money.

Now Johnson has discovered another young woman who says she is his daughter. The circumstances of the discovery seemed convincing, but this "daughter" also has telegraphed for money. Johnson and his wife are uncertain.

Johnson got in touch with the second "daughter" through one of numerous letters written by sympathetic persons all over the United States, who, having read his story, were willing to offer suggestions. This letter came from a relative of Mrs. J. C. Ward of Lulu, Fla., and informed Johnson that Mrs. Ward had adopted the girl.

Facts Coincided.

The information fits in perfectly with the facts of Hazel's disappearance. Twenty-three years ago Hazel, then 6 years old, was taken to Florida by her grandfather, Reuben Lisenby. Hazel's mother had died and Johnson permitted the Lisenbys to look after her. He lost track of Hazel several years later and never heard of her again until about a year ago when "Hazels" began to announce themselves. But Lulu, Fla., had been the town to which the Lisenbys had gone and so Johnson wrote to Mrs. J. C. Ward there.

Mrs. Ward replied that she had adopted Hazel after the death of her grandfather, Reuben Lisenby. Hazel had grown up, married, and now was living in Tampa. So Johnson wrote to the address in Tampa.

He received this telegram March 26:

"Dear Father: Received your letter and was pleased to hear from you. Will write tomorrow and explain everything. I would be glad to see you. Answer this by wire and let me know so I can write. Your daughter, Hazel Johnson."

Money Again.

The letter from "Hazel" followed. It told how glad she was to find her parent and how she was a widow with two sons, 8 and 9 years old.

Then April 3 this telegram was delivered to Johnson:

"Send $30. Sick in bed. Wire it at once. Daughter Hazel."

And Johnson, remembering the "daughter" in Washington, decided not to send any money just yet. He is deliberating on the next step.

Mrs. Johnson, Hazel's stepmother and the mother of two small children, is as anxious as her husband to solve the mystery. Johnson is a painter.

Gen. Dawes and Mussolini Confer.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, April 12.—Brigadier General Charles G. Dawes, who arrived here today from Paris, was received tonight by Premier Mussolini, their conversation lasting almost an hour. The General seemed pleased with the interview on his return to his hotel.

GOV. SMALL AGAIN FREES ROBBER AS 'REBUKE' TO FOES

"Big Gus" Zeidler, Who Became Campaign Issue After Cooking Way Out of Prison, Now Pardoned.

POLITICAL FUSS GREW OUT OF PAROLE

Demand for Burglary Insurance Takes Leap With News Convict Plans to Locate in Edwardsville.

Some time tomorrow or the next day—the special messenger with the papers is hurrying—Augustus ("Big Gus") Zeidler, Gov. Len Small's friend, will depart from Southern Illinois Penitentiary at Chester. He is no ordinary bank robber. A few of the ordinary ones are in prison still. "Big Gus" is accomplished above the rabble. He is a good cook. More than that, he is, or was until a few days ago, a campaign issue. And, above all, Gov. Small likes him.

Unlike most campaign issues, "Big Gus" did not evaporate after the election. The election was won by Gov. Small. Critics of the Governor, who thought he had been too free with the pardoning and parole power used Zeidler as a case in point. You see yesterday was not the first time "Big Gus" had been let out of prison by the Governor. It was the Governor's "second offense."

Cooked His Way Out First Time.

The first time Zeidler was serving an indeterminate sentence at Chester on conviction of having participated in the Tri-City Bank robbery at Madison, Ill., in 1918. His culinary talent took him from the prison shop to the Warden's kitchen. "By George," said the Warden, after he had eaten one of Gus' beefsteaks smothered, "That man deserves a parole at least." Soon Zeidler was paroled and became the Governor's cook.

Prosecuting Attorney Streuber of Madison County took this as a personal affront. He believed he had put Gus away for a long time. Studying over the matter, the Prosecuting Attorney recalled that in robbing the bank Zeidler and his associates had left a cashier to die in a locked vault. An indictment was voted and Gus was brought back to Edwardsville to stand trial on a charge of attempted murder. (The cashier was released just in time.)

Both Gus and the Governor looked upon this as an unwarranted interruption of their pleasant associations. The Governor had a good cook and Gus had a good job. Members of the Board of Pardons and Paroles, all appointed by the Governor, said yesterday that they thought Gus' second conviction a mean trick. They said it had been done by the Governor's political enemies.

Found Him Guilty Again.

A Madison County jury found Gus guilty and sent him back to Chester on a sentence of from 1 to 14 years. While the noted bank robber and cook was in Edwardsville he seemed a very genial fellow. Clubby with everyone. On leaving he said h liked Edwardsville first rate and as soon as he got out of the penitentiary again he planned to marry a Springfield girl and come back to Madison County. "I'll show you what a real restaurant looks like," he promised.

That was last December. Soon afterward Gus' friend, the Governor, entered the race for renomination on the Republican ticket. Gus became a political issue. Speakers told the citizenry of Illinois that while Gus was undoubtedly a good cook he was also a good bank robber and should be kept in prison. And they hinted that the only way to keep Gus in prison was to defeat Gov. Small as a warning that Governors should not allow their appetites to defeat justice. But Gov. Small won out and Gus won out, too.

The Board of Pardons and Paroles at Springfield yesterday, in absence of any statement from the executive mansion or from Gus, said that they recommended his release "as a rebuke to the Governor's enemies."

Demand for Burglary Insurance.

Madison County believes that it can do without an extra restaurant at Edwardsville. The Prosecuting Attorney, seeming to sense the political strength of Gov. Small in elections, last autumn had another indictment voted against Gus. He is charged with perjury in testimony given at his second trial. The Prosecuting Attorney plans to

ST. LOUIS DOCTORS CALLED TO AID OF UNUSUAL FAMILY

Two Sisters Wed Two Brothers and Daughters Are Born to Each.

St. Louis physicians were called to the aid of Madison County physicians yesterday to help prevent the possible breaking up through death of a remarkable family association at St. Jacob, in the eastern part of the Illinois county.

John and Frank Wise, brothers, engaged in farming on the same farm, decided to get married. They chose sisters, Misses Ella and Rose Essenpries, members of an old family of the vicinity. The double weding took place a year ago.

Last week the stork visited both homes within four days, and left a daughter at each, the mother's being in adjoining beds in the same room.

John and Ella Wise named their daughter Dolores Marie.

Frank and Rose Wise named their daughter Dorothy Marie.

Dolores arrived on Wednesday, and last Sunday Dolores made happines complete in the mutual home.

Trouble appeared a few days later. Mrs. John Wise attempted to "mother" both her daughter and her niece. She insisted upon sitting up to attend the sister's child as well as her own. Bloodpoisoning developed and today Mrs. John Wise is in precarious condition. Calls were sent to St. Louis for specialists, and last night it was stated that there was a chance for her recovery.

65,000 SOFT COAL MINERS NOW JOBLESS, SAYS LEWIS

Union Head, in Capital, Claims Wage War Will Put 10,000 More Out of Work.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Refusal by soft coal operators outside the central competitive field to accept the wage scale negotiated for the field last winter at Jacksonville, Fla., has resulted in the unemployment of 65,000 miners, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, stated today.

Lewis was at the White House, discussing with President Coolidge the successor to Judge Anderson of the Federal District Court at Indianapolis, who will be elevated to the Court of Appeals when he completes some important cases. Because their headquarters are in Indianapolis and litigation affecting the union usually originates there, the miners are interested deeply in Judge Anderson's successor.

Ten thousand additional miners will be out of work when an armistice in the Southeastern Kentucky field expires April 15, Lewis said. He grouped the 65,000 now jobless as follows: 40,000 in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas; 5000 in Southeastern Kentucky and Tennessee; 10,000 in Southern West Virginia and 10,000 in the Canadian fields.

Lewis made no statement on the boom his friends are developing for him for the Republican nomination for the vice-presidency.

NEGRO YOUTH SENTENCED TO DEATH FOR SECOND TIME

Convicted of Murder at 13, He Again Hears Himself Ordered to Pay Extreme Penalty.

By the Associated Press.

PRYOR, Ok., April 12.—Elias Ridge, negro, the youngest person ever sentenced to death in Oklahome, today heard himself ordered for the second time to pay the supreme penalty for murder.

Ridge was convicted more than a year ago of the killing of Mrs. George Adair, wife of a white farmer living near Pensacola, Ok. He was sentenced to die. His attorneys appealed, declaring that he was only 13 years old, and alleging errors by the State. The Criminal Court of Appeals remanded the case for a new trial, and yesterday a jury again found him guilty.

Sentence was passed both times by District Judge A. C. Brewster.

While Ridge was in jail at Vinita, where he had been taken for protection from possible violence here, a mob stormed the Vinita jail and he barely escaped in custody of Sam Ridenous, then Sheriff, who disguised him and led him through the throng.

3 FLYERS DIE AS PLANE, AFIRE, CRASHES TO EARTH

Lieutenant, Corporal and Private Are Killed When Trying to Land in Oklahoma.

By the Associated Press.

LEON, Ok., April 12.—First Lieutenant Solomon B. Ebert, Corp. Emmett A. Reese, pilot, and Private Emmitt W. Marsh, all of the Forty-fourth Observation Squadron, Post Field, Fort Sill, Ok., were killed late today when their plane caught fire and crashed to earth near here.

The plane was flying at an altitude of 200 feet when it fell, catching fire. It had risen to this altitude after failing in an attempt to land on a plowed field. The bodies of the flyers were burned almost beyond recognition.

HENEY EMPLOYMENT A MOVE TO HURT PRESIDENT OVER PROHIBITION, WATSON SAYS

GRIESEDIECK AND PRATHER INDICTED IN 'PROTECTED BEER' SCANDAL

Brewery Company Also Is Named in Findings of Federal Grand Jury in Report to Judge Faris.

INDICTMENT ALLEGES DRY ACT CONSPIRACY

Charges Money Was Paid to Former State Official to Prevent Interference With Sale of Beer.

Some of the results of an inquiry by the special intelligence unit, Department of Internal Revenue, into the graft ring of the "protected" beer industry in St. Louis became evident yesterday when the Federal grand jury reported indictment of:

Charles S. Prather, of Advance, widely known Republican politician, who resigned as State Pure Food and Drug Commissioner on Sunday, March 9, after Raymond B. Griesedieck, vice president and manager of the Griesedieck Brothers' Brewery, had confessed he had paid about $15,000 to Prather for "protection."

Raymond B. Griesedieck, who told Federal officials investigating the reported beer "graft ring" that he had paid $1 a case to Prather for about 15,000 cases of "real" beer manufactured and sent out of his brewery in 14 weeks.

Griesedieck Brothers Brewery Co., 1900 Shenandoah avenue, which Raymond Griesedieck said had sold "real" beer at $4 a case, having collected in the 14 weeks in question about $60,000 from the sale of 15,000 cases, of which one-fourth went for "protection." This brewery is an old offender, having paid about $17,000 in penalties in 1922 for manufacturing and selling illegal beer.

Conspiracy Alleged.

The three are charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law, known as the Volstead act, as was told exclusively in the home edition of yesterday's Post-Dispatch.

Together with "divers other persons to the grand jury unknown" they conspired, it is charged, to enable the brewery to manufacture, transport and sell beer of higher alcoholic content than the one and one-half per cent permitted. To that end it was agreed, the indictment charges, that Prather, in return for certain sums of money, would afford to the brewery and its employes and agents, freedom from interference, detection and arrest by Federal agents while making beer and likewise would protect its property from search and seizure.

In carrying out the conspiracy Raymond Griesedieck paid to Prather $1038 on May 14, 1923, and on the next day the brewery made, transported and sold "real" beer, the indictment asserts, another payment of $1050 having been made by Raymond Griesedieck to Prather on Feb. 15, 1924, the brewery having made and sold illegal beer on the same day.

Other Indictments Returned.

The grand jury has more work to do, but for reasons not given, has taken a recess subject to recall when the time for resuming its activities shall have arrived. Its partial report to Federal Judge Faris contained a number of other indictments the nature of which was not disclosed.

The beer investigation began early in January. For months it had been whispered in informed circles in St. Louis and Jefferson City that a few Republican politicians were finding rich picking

WEATHER FAVORS HOP-OFF OF WORLD FLYERS TODAY

Clearing Skies and Calm Follow Storm That Strained Ships and Tried Men To Utmost.

By the Associated Press.

SITKA, Alaska, April 12.—Weather conditions here were more favorable today for continuation tomorrow of the world flight by the four United States Army planes.

If the hop-off is made, the flyers will proceed to Seward, Alaska, 610 miles north of here, eliminating a stop at Cordova, Maj. Frederick L. Martin, commander, announced tonight.

The courage and tireless efforts of the flyers and their aids yesterday prevented the cruisers Chicago and New Orleans from being dashed to pieces on the shore in a windstorm. In their eight-hour battle with the elements to save the ships, the army men won the praise of residents and seamen here who watched them. The weather today was calm and the skies clearing.

INDIANAN IN FIERY DEBATE PUTS BLAME ON PINCHOT

Opposing Any Investigation of Dry Agents, Senator Declares "We All Know Law Can't Be Enforced Now."

DEMOCRATS ASSAIL MESSAGE ON MELLON

Reed Moves That Communication Be Expunged—Walsh Says Executive Is Striking at All Inquiries.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Senator Watson of Indiana essayed the role of administration spokesman today and turned the Senate into a tempest of debate that raged for four fervid hours.

Watson explained that President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon aimed their caustic messages of yesterday, not at the investigations in general, not at the Democrats in particular, but at Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who was seeking to make political capital for himself by waging his dry warfare through the medium of Senator Couzens' committee, which is investigating the Internal Revenue Bureau. Hence the President and Mellon rebelled when they found Pinchot was the man behind the hiring of the special committee sleuth, Francis J. Meney. Hence the messages to the Senate.

"Everybody knows," Watson explained, "that the prohibition law could not be enforced for five or 10 years. If we begin a wholesale investigation of the prohibition unit there would be no end of it. Everybody knows that with Pinchot back of it, it would never end until the night before election. There is no use dragging all the gossip and scandal out and having a saturnalia of vituperation and aspersion, unequaled hitherto in the political annals of America."

Big Chiefs Calls to Powwow.

Watson could hardly have produced a profounder sensation. By the time the satirists had finished with the Watson exposition of what the President was about, the Republican side of the chamber, heartened as it had been by the strong words from the White House, sat subdued and silent. A caucus was called for Monday, ostensibly to discuss taxes and bonus, but admittedly to gather in some of the loose ends left from the day's verbal storm.

Senator Caraway (Dem., Arkansas) predicted that within a week Coolidge would repudiate Watson as he has Pepper of Pennsylvania, following the Pepper "keynoting" in Maine.

Reed of Missouri put in a resolution to expunge the Coolidge-Mellon "insult to the Senate" from the records. Walsh (Dem.) Montana, sarcastically compared the Watson explanation with the President's broad and inclusive language.

Walsh charged the President with trying to stop and discredit all the scandal investigations. He read newspaper interpretations of the significance of the Coolidge-Mellon messages to disprove the Watson theory. McKellar (Dem) Tennessee, seized upon the occasion to renew his personal assault on Mellon and to fill the record with statistics and reports of non-enforcement of the dry laws.

That Watson had so candidly admitted the breakdown of prohibition enforcement and appealed for a letup in investigation into it because of the political effects struck the Senate with amusement. Norris (Rep.) Nebraska, insisted the inquiry should go on by all means if conditions were so sad. Throughout the day the Watson interpretation was assailed as an unblushing

JEFFERSON DAY DINERS WARNED OF MENACE OF FEDERAL TYRANNY

States Facing Colossal Struggle to Defend Rights Against Encroachments of Centralized Power, Gov. Ritchie of Maryland Declares.

'AMENDMENTS STRIKE AT HEART OF NATION'

Sovereignty of States Broken Down and Substituted by Incompetent Control of National Legislators, He Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 12.—The American people are on the threshold of a great struggle of the states to regain their lost rights and to retain their present ones against the increasingly insistent encroachment of centralized Federal power, at variance with American polity, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, declared tonight before the Jefferson day banquet of the National Democratic Club.

The struggle to keep American ideals and to preserve American institutions against latter-day misuses and misinterpretations overshadowed all other issues, he said, since "no high purpose either at home or abroad ever has been or can be accomplished" by America, except through those ideals and institutions.

Gov. Ritchie was one of the principal speakers at the club's banquet which is held annually on the anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson, which this year will be tomorrow. Other speakers who addressed the diners in the Hotel Commodore were Gov. George S. Silzer of New Jersey, John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain, and J. Bruce Kramer, National Committeeman from Montana. Many Democratic members of both houses of Congress were present.

Gov. Ritchie, emphasizing the strength of the institutions conceived in the eighteenth century by the American founders, pointed out that throughout the nineteenth century, which saw the United States attain ascendancy in manifold aspects of its national life, during which the country developed into the greatest nation in the world, no amendment was made to the Constitution save the three which followed the Civil War.

"Best Governed Are Least Governed."

From 1804 until 1913, he said, Americans retained the beliefs that "that nation is best governed which is least governed," and that "national unity and national harmony were only possible so long as the nation kept within the limits of its domain and left the states free within the limits of theirs."

Later, the Governor went on, laws were enacted and constitutional amendments adopted, "which one by one are eating into the very heart of the American nation, because they are breaking down the sovereignty of the American state, and substituting for that sacred thing an incompetent, extravagant un-American control radiating from Washington."

The situation has arisen, he continued, partially because it was possible for majorities in the legislatures of 36 states to impose their will on the nation. The vote of 3316 member of these bodies, he said, could write into the Constitution any amendment they chose to ratify without any appeal to the people, for that action.

And these legislators with rare exception, he said, were "harassed by the threats and blandishments of organized minorities until their will and their sense of right crumple and fall helpless to the ground."

"If I had my way, there is only constitutional amendment which should be adopted, and none other should be considered until that became part of our organic law. It is an amendment which would provide that no further amendments to the Constitution should be made unless each State is given the right to a referendum to the people upon the action of its Legislature in ratifying any proposed amendment."

Invasion of Pocketbooks.

The Federal Government, he maintained, had usurped powers rightfully belonging to the States and susceptible to better, more efficient and more economical administration by them, and had invaded the pocketbooks of the taxpayers.

Gov. Ritchie deplored the centralization of vast millions in Washington, and the handling of these sums and of the rendering by Government clerks and subordinate employes of momentous decisions affecting vitally the people of the states; he deplored, too, the control and supervision thus given the Federal Government over matters which he said concerned the States alone.

"[illegible]," he said, "the everlasting annoyance of Federal inspectors and investigators, often irresponsible and incompetent, prying into business which ought to be personal, and exercising supervision and demanding reports and audits of almost every conceivable kind."

The issue before the American people in the November election, regardless of how many separate questions may be involved is the question of confidence or no confidence in those who are now seeking to administer the Government, and the vote of the people will be content or not content, former Ambassador Davis declared.

"Do not the signs multiply," he asked, "that the country, wearied and disgusted with the existing order, is ready to turn again to the party of Jefferson and put upon its shoulders the burden of public responsibility?"

No Scandal Under Wilson Regime.

During the eight years of President Wilson's administration, he declared, the party revised, rewrote and administered the laws in the interest of no person, class or section; it successfully conducted the great war and no hint of scandal, bribery or corruption attached to any of those who held official place.

During the four years of Republican control, Davis said, "the boasts of party discipline and efficiency have disappeared in a leaderless, disorderly and discordant chaos unsurpassed in the history of the American Congress."

"This responsibility," he said, "none of those concerned must be permitted to escape, nor can their misdeeds be wiped from the party record on which the country is to pass its judgment. What is the whole sordid story after all but the fruit of the tree of special privilege?"

A message of regret was received from Franklin R. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for the vice presidency at the last election.

Telegraphing from Long Key, Fla., he assured the club, "I have not seen nor associated with Messrs. Daugherty, Slemp or Ned McLean, but have confined my social visits to William Jennings Bryan and William H. Kelly and Norman Mack."

Since the Civil War, said Roosevelt's message, the Democratic administrations had been untouched by governmental scandal, while the Republican ones of Johnson, Grant, Hayes, Arthur, McKinley and Taft had been so marred.

Tax Reduction and House Cleaning.

In an address bristling with references to the recent disclosures at Washington, Gov. Silzer of New Jersey called the G. O. P. the party of "Graft, Oil and Politics."

He said the thinking citizens of the nation had their minds fixed on two things—tax reduction and a house cleaning—and that they were ready to discard a government by "best minds" for a government by "honest minds."

Democracy, he asserted, must dedicate itself to "the task of restoring government to the hands of the honest people of this country, for it is clear that those who are profiting at the expense of others, who are enjoying special privileges, who are being overprotected, who are grafting upon the country, are perfectly content with the present administratiton."

"No one objects to big business and lots of it," said Gov. Silzer. "We do, however, object to crooked business which reaches its crooked hands into almost every department of the national Government.

"It could not be otherwise when crooked business makes its large campaign contributions to the party in power and seeks reimbursement in this way. It could not be different so long as crooked business and crooked politics are in partnership. It could not be different so long as those who seek special privileges are able to place a party in a privilege position.

Management, Not Party, to Blame.

"It is not a grand old party made up of millions of honest folk that is the subject of criticism. It is the management of that party, beyond the control of these millions, which has made the 'G. O. P.' read: 'Graft, Oil and Politics.'

"There are those who say that the investigations should be stopped. It is sad to note that these same men are not saying that the scandals should be stopped. They say that this is a time to get down to business. There can be no more important business than the exposure of graft, corruption and incompetence in high places, in order that honest government may be restored. We must, by drastic means if necessary, eliminate the corruption in order that our republic may live.

"If we Democrats meet our obligations squarely success will be assured—not that we seek mere success as a party, but that we seek to be the instrument by which we must eliminate the distressing conditions in Washington, and again start the Government on the way of the founders."

"We have the issues; the people are ready to hand us the mission. The opportunity for service is here. In such a crisis, the Democratic party has never failed in its duty."

Says Nation Looks to Democrats.

J. Bruce Kramer, Democratic National Committeeman from Montana, attacked the Republican party as the party of privilege and corruption and asserted the country was turning to the Democrats for a constructive and clean administration.

"When the Democratic party is returned to power," he said, "it will repeal the Fordney-McCumber law and substitute a tariff which will reduce the cost of living; it will reduce the internal revenue taxes to the lowest possible limit compatible with efficient and economical demand; it will cause the Federal reserve system to be operated in the interest of the public; it will restore foreign markets for the surplus products of the American farmer; it will enact a just measure for the veterans of the World War; it will rid Washington of corruption and restore the Government to the people; it will establish a foreign policy based on a world peace and will awaken the conscience of the nation with a revival of the idealism of the great Wilson."

SMITH, WITH MORE VOTES THAN McADOO, LEADS IN THE DEMOCRATIC RACE

With 190 Delegates in Hand, Candidacy of New York's Governor Is Making Surprising Headway, Survey Indicates.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The formidable character of Gov. Al. Smith's candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination is becoming increasingly evident. He would be a rash prophet, indeed, who at this stage would forecast the nomination of the New Yorker, but it is quite certain that the movement for Smith is gaining headway and that a great effort will be made to drive him through for the nomination in the New York convention.

"Give us Smith and win with the East and the South," is the plea of the Smith boosters, who assert that for every vote he would lose on account of his religion he would gain a compensation vote.

The Smith movement has got to be seriously reckoned with. With 190 delegates actually in hand, including those of New York, Wisconsin and Illinois (for the Illinois votes belong to Boss Brennan and will be swung to Smith whenever the latter's manager wants them), Smith has today more votes than McAdoo. McAdoo will go into the convention with a larger total than Smith will have, probably with 350 to 400 votes—but at this moment, despite all the campaigning that McAdoo has done, Smith is in the lead. That fact alone indicates that the Smith candidacy cannot be regarded as a hopeless adventure.

Eastern States Behind Him.

Nor has Smith reached the end of his string. He will have all or part of the delegates from Massachusetts, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Connecticut, in addition to some from Pennsylvania and Maryland—an impressive total when added to those that he has already corralled.

It has been the fashion among Western Democrats to dismiss the Smith candidacy as futile because he is a Catholic and a wet. Those who go to the New York convention will soon be disabused of that impression, for it is the present intention of the Smith backers to see that their candidate gets a "try out" early in the proceedings. He will be found to be one of the front line group that will have to be knocked down before the convention can proceed—as it seems likely it will have to proceed—to the nomination of Ralston or some other second-string candidate. If Smith fails, much of his strength will go to John W. Davis of New York and West Virginia, the former Ambassador to Great Britain.

Campaign Funds an Argument.

The Davis candidacy, like that of the New York Governor, is being promoted on the theory that he would carry the East and the South. If either of these two men is nominated, say the wiseacres in politics, the "Big" Eastern Democrats, the moneyed men of the party, will loosen their purse strings and make a real fight for his election. But if the nomination goes to Ralston, Robinson or some other of the twenty-odd men in the background of the fight, they will, so it is said, let nature take its course, as they did with Cox in 1920. Underwood would also appeal to the business interests, but Underwood's chances faded materially in the last couple of weeks. There are few political observers in Washington who believe that he can make the grade. Indeed, his candidacy appears at present to be merely an appendage of the Smith movement.

Division on Sectional Lines.

A significant nature of the Democratic campaign is the division for and against Smith and for and against McAdoo on sharp sectional lines. Save for a few states, such as Missouri and Iowa, where there is doubt as to the complexion of the delegation, McAdoo will go into the convention with the solid support of the territory west of the Mississippi. His strength will lie in this section and in a portion of the South, with virtually nothing in the East. Smith, on the contrary, has drawn his support almost exclusively from the East and to a lesser degree from the Middle West. The West has not been able to see him at all. Kansas recently, for example, instructed its delegation against him.

As the lines are drawn today, the fight for the nomination is a sectional battle between the East and West.

'SIDEWALKS OF NEW YORK' DEMONSTRATION FOR SMITH AT JEFFERSON BANQUET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 12.

THE mention of Gov. Smith's name in connection with the coming Democratic National Convention in New York, by Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, at the Jefferson Day banquet of the National Democratic Club tonight brought the crowd to its feet for round after round of applause. The band struck up "Sidewalks of New York." Tigers and "three cheers for Al" nearly drowned out the famous song. Gov. Smith was not present.

Former Ambassador John W. Davis, another presidential possibility, rose to speak amnd strains of "Kankee Doodle" and applause that rivaled that accorded to the mention of Gov. Smith. Davis' tribute to the late Woodrow Wilson sent the crowd to its feet for fully five minutes' of applause, the most intense of the evening.

M'CORMICK IS ANOTHER CASUALTY OF NEWBERRY CASE

Defeat Marks Him as Eleventh Victim Among Those Who Voted to Keep Michigan Senator in Office.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois who, on the face of the returns from last Tuesday's Illinois primaary, has been defeated for renomination by former Gov. Charles S. Deneen, is the eleventh casualty among the Republican Senators who voted to keep Truman H. Newberry in the Senate two years ago.

The last previous victim among the Newberry Senators was Sterling of South Dakota, who was decisively beaten in the primary of that State on March 25. Sterling's pro-Newberry vote was directly raised against him as an issue in that campaign.

Nearly all the Newberry Senators who have sought re-election have fallen by the wayside. In the list, besides McCormick and Sterling, are Calder of New York, Du Pont of Delaware, France of Maryland, Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, Kellogg of Minnesota, McCumber of North Dakota, New of Indiana, Poindexter of Washington and Townsend of Michigan. They have had better luck in getting jobs from the White House than from the electorate, New having been made Postmaster-General, Poindexter Ambassador to Peru and Kellogg Ambassador to Great Britain.

The list of those repudiated by the voters is likely to be further enlarged this year. Ball of Delaware, Bursum of New Mexico, Edge of New Jersey and Phipps of Colorado are all facing contests. Elkins of West Virginia has announced he will not be a candidate for re-election.

Watson Says Hiring of Heney Is Dry Move to Hurt the President

Declares Gov. Pinchot Suggested Attorney's Employment—"We All Know Prohibition Can't Be Enforced in Five or Ten Years."

confession that the White House was merely playing politics, seeking to keep the insurgent rival, Pinchot, from getting what Caraway termed "even a toe-hold on the nomination."

Administration Senators freely admitted in the corridors that one purpose at least had been to blockade Pinchot and stop his further acquisition of dry support.

Pennsylvania Republican organization leaders said frankly they stood ready to pass the word out to block Pinchot's getting delegates—and knew the organization could do it, but was hesitating for fear of making Pinchot look like a martyr.

No Republican Disputes Him.

No Republicans disputed the Watson interpretation, for Watson told of going to see Mellon and Coolidge. Walsh of Montana insisted it was inconceivable, from the President's own words, that the motive was only political retaliation against Pinchot unless, as Walsh suggested, the President was taking an incidental sideslap at all the investigators at the same time.

It was the first speech Watson has made this session, and a packed gallery watched intently. Watson worked himself into a fervor of oratory, flinging his arms about and roaring vehemently. He wound up with a ringing tribute to Mr. Coolidge, which led Reed to retort that "this nominating speech is premature."

Senator Couzens, who out of his own pocket hired Francis J. Heney and thereby started the whole fireworks, is to undergo a serious gall-bladder operation and was absent today. Watson said Couzens could corroborate the fact that Pinchot had suggested engaging Heney to investigate the Treasury's affairs.

Watson detailed the events leading up to the adoption by the Couzens committee of the resolution permitting Couzens to use Heney—which fact the President and Mellon seized upon to allege the proceeding was unlawful.

"What was back of it," said Watson, "was partisanship, pure and unadulterated. I do not mind partisanship. I play some politics myself.

"I am not at liberty to divulge any conversations, but I have it on indisputable evidence that Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania had injected himself into this controversy and that Gov. Pinchot was the man who had recommended the employment of Francis J. Heney. I knew what that meant, or thought I did, and I at once communicated with the President and the Secretary of the Treasury.

"We all remember reading in the public press of a controversy between Secretary Mellon and Gov. Pinchot. Perhaps it related in the beginning to Pennsylvania politics, a subject so profound that I have no knowledge of it. Perhaps it related to other matters in which the Senate is not interested. But certainly it related to the prohibition unit, which is in the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

The Prohibition Unit.

"That was the thing that stirred Mr. Mellon. Why? Because, if Mr. Pinchot could inspire the selection of Mr. Heney and if Mr. Heney could be selected by Senator Couzens and the two Democrats—Senator Couzens already hostile in purpose and intent to Secretary Mellon—then he had every reason to believe, in fact to know, that from this time on the prohibition unit was to be investigated.

"From this time on, from all parts of the country, all the books could be brought here, all the witnesses could be hauled before this committee; that every one of the activities of the prohibition unit could be brought before this committee, and everybody knows what that would mean.

"Why, Senators, when we voted for prohibition—those of us who did—we knew the law could not be enforced in five or 10 years. As everybody knows, if we begin a wholesale investigation of that bureau there would be no end of it. Everybody knows that with Pinchot back of it and Heney back of it, they never intended to end it until the night before election in 1924."

There was great clamoring to break into the Watson speech, but he declined to yield, with the observation, "I know my friends over there are ready and willing and voluble with a sort of firing squadron. If I yield it would open the flood gates.'

Watson went on to say Mellon had all this in mind when he referred to the threatened impairment of morale in the Treasury if the inquiry went on.

"He knew," said the Indiana spokesman, "that if the committee, inspired by Pinchot and engineered by Heney and sustained by my two Democratic friends on the committee, would start an investigation of the prohibition enforcement unit of the United States there would be no end before election day.

"No Prohibtion Investigation."

"I stand exactly with the Secretary on that proposition, and so far as I am concerned there will be no investigation of that unit. Nobody has expected that prohibtion would be rigidly enforced up to the present hour."

Jones (Dem.), New Mexico, a member of the committee, took exception to Watson's earlier references to a "muck-raking" expedition in the Treasury, saying the suggestion the committee would do that was an unwarranted reflection.

Turning to the interpretation put on the Coolidge message yesterday, Watson said flatly:

"The Senator from Montana (Walsh) formulated his whole speech on the theory that the President was attempting to interfere with all of these investigations. I secured a copy of the message and read it over with some care and I wondered how my friend arrived at that conclusion.

"So far as I can read the text, there is no line or word or a symbol that legitimately can be construed in that way. What was the unwarranted intrusion to which the President referred? Manifestly, the appointment in unwarranted fashion of an attorney by a committee that had no power to appoint an attorney. There is no question about that in the world. That is the thing to which the President referred.

"Why Isn't It Being Enforced?"

Norris, interrupting, said: "So far as the prohibition unit is concerned, the Senator's argument here is the first I have ever heard that it was contemplated to go into that unit. But I wish to say to the Senator that I am perfectly willing definitely to provide in a resolution for an investigation of the prohibition unit.

"I do not agree with the Senator at all that the prohibition unit ought not to be investigated. I believe it ought to be investigated. I think the law ought to be enforced. As the Senator himself says, it is not being enforced properly. That is one reason why the men who are enforcing it ought to be investigated. We should find out why it is not being enforced."

King (Dem.), Utah, chimed in that it was the first he, too, had heard of any designs to probe the prohibition unit. "I never heard the name of Mr. Pinchot mentioned in the matter until now," said King.

"Yes, but I am mentioning upon absolute authority," emphasized Watson, "and it will be substantiated as soon as our friend gets out of the hospital."

King added he would have voted against Heney's retention had he known that was the purpose, considering it beyond the authority of the resolution authorizing the Couzens committee. Jones (Dem.), New Mexico, the other Democratic member, took the same view. Here Watson reverted to how the Republicans had refrained when they came into office from "opening up the floodgates as they never had been opened up before at the close of the last war." Not an investigation was made, said Watson, righteously, while the minority clamored in vain for a chance to get in a retort to that.

"Why, there was not a man here who believed Newton D. Baker was competent," continued Watson with a broadside fired also at William G. McAdoo, and the "saturnalia of wanton waste and wicked expenditure of the people's money."

"But nobody on this side ever at any time rose to propose an investigation," said Watson virtuously.

"Assault on President."

"Senators," wound up Watson, turning again to Pinchot, "in my judgment this whole thing is but an assault on the President. These people do not intend to assault Mr. Mellon for Mellon's sake, but Mellon for Coolidge's sake. Mr. Mellon proposed a tax plan. The bill is under consideration. If in any way they can besmirch him they will weaken to that extent the tax plan which he has proposed and which the President has seen fit to embrace.

"Mr. Mellon is one of the main supports of the President, and, with all due respect to everybody else, the President undoubtedly will be our leader in the next campaign; therefore, whatever militates against him, if it can be brought against him at this time through any kind of an investigation, has a tendency to weaken him if it can reach him.

"The breath of scandal has never touched him. The simplicity of his life, the rigid morality that has always characterized him, still carries him everywhere supreme. He has stood in that fierce light that beats upon the throne and it has found no flaws in his armor, no stain upon his shield.

"These arrows have all been aimed at his breast, and today they lie broken at his feet. This powder has all been burned and has left his name untarnished. The people will continue to believe in that man, and I have no doubt but that any investigation, however troublesome, will not disturb the estimate in which he is held by the people.

"Senators, I do not believe in my heart of hearts that under these conditions this situation should go on."

Reed of Missouri won in the scramble for the floor and unloosened a tirade at the "insulting" message which Coolidge had sent to accompany the Mellon protest. Then followed for the rest of the day the countering to the Watson speech.

Reed read into the language of the President's message a deliberate affront to the Senate. No King had ever dared to address such a communication to the "co-legislative" branch of his Government, he said, and should the Senate send to the White House a resolution couched in such terms, it should expect and should receive it back.

The Reed resolution was not inspired by the minority members, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, said later. Other Democratic Senate chiefs were frank in saying they did not expect it to be adopted or to be pressed as a party strategy measure.

"Biggest Distiller in Country."

McKellar, who followed Reed, charged Mellon with being "the biggest distiller in the United States," and said he was afraid to have the prohibition unit investigated. Reed (Rep.) Pennsylvania, came to Mellon's defense.

The warfare is due for renewal next week, with the virtual certainty that the Jones resolution specifically authorizing the Couzens Committee to engage Heney and thereby meet the President's technical objections will pass.

Caraway remarked that it was all "another Republican family quarrel, after all," but Walsh of Montana and others so resent the seeming application of Coolidge's message to all the investigations and the Democrats as well that the issue looms as the main subject for the calendar ahead.

ANTI-REED MEN FACE DANGER OF SPLIT IN RANKS

Leaders Confronted With Problem of Stopping Dissatisfaction Before Convention Tuesday.

CONFERENCE HERE SEAT OF TROUBLE

Slate-Making by Small Group Resented; Reed Men Keep Their Springfield Plans Secret.

BY CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 12.—Principals among the anti-Reed element of the Democrats are confronted in advance of the State convention Tuesday with a problem of stopping growing dissatisfaction within their own ranks if they are to succeed in putting through their slate of selections for delegates-at-large to the national convention. The anti-Reed majority in the State convention is so big that it is beginning to split into factions, a situation which is threatening to disrupt their organization.

The difficulty arises from the fact that a group of four of the anti-Reed leaders have prepared a program without consulting very many others and within a faction as large as that opposed to Reed there are quite a considerable number who consider themselves leaders and entitled to consideration.

"Self-Constituted Bosses."

Some of them have begun to circulate the report that "self-constituted bosses" have prepared to control the convention and "run it in a high-handed manner. "The Reed following very naturally has encouraged the report, realizing that, if it can break up the opposition, it will have a better chance to control the selection of delegates or at least to obtain a larger share of the delegates.

Up to this time none of the anti-Reed forces threatening revolt has talked for publication. One Democrat of prominence out in the State said he might have something to say tomorrow, but he preferred to wait until he was certain just what the plans for organization were. He said, however, that there were "a good many Democrats who would expect to have a voice in the procedings."

'Any Group Can Frame a Slate.'

"Any group can get together and frame up a slate," this man said, "but it is quite a different matter ot put it through. Votes of delegates will be needed for that, and I am of the opinion that there will be considerable resentment among the rank and file of delegates when they learn they are expected to merely rubber stamp a program already prepared for them."

The dissatisfaction has arisen over the conference in St. Louis a week ago of Breckinridge Long, Charles M. Hay, Charles H. Mayer of St. Joseph and Frank H. Farris of Rolla, chairman of the State committee. From these conferences resulted a slate of Long for the National committeemanship, and Hay, Mayer and Farris for three of the four places allotted to the delegation-at-large. The fourth place it was for a time proposed to leave open and to be filled by the addition of Long's name if by any chance he should be defeated for the National Committee.

It is the expectation, however, that they will decide that former Gov. Gardner should be the fourth. The Reed following has been flirting with Gardner with a tenative offer to throw its support to him for indorsement for the presidency if he would throw his influence to it with the ultimate aim of getting a delegation which Reed could control after it had voted on the first ballot for Gardner. To meet this the anti-Reed forces have virtually decided to put Gardner on the delegate-at-large slate.

There will be a conference of anti-Reed leaders here tomorrow, and while there has been no announcement as to exactly who will participate any known anti-Reed man probably will be admitted in interest of harmony within the ranks.

Chairman Farris has been here all day, and among the arrivals this evening were Long, former Judge Frank A. Thompson, W. A. Lumpkin, William Logan, Mrs. Catherine Halterman and Mrs. Mary B. Eversole, Hay, Arthur V. Lashley of Webster Groves, Allen McReynolds of Carthage, former Lieutenant-Governor Wallace Crossley of Warrensburg, Everett Reeves of Caruthersville, J. W. Head of Palmyra, and Charles H. Mayer of St. Joseph are expected in time for the conference.

Plans of Reed Contingent.

The details of the program of the Reed contingent has not become public and there are some indications that there will be no real fight by the Reed following. None of the Reed men has arrived and there is a report that the number of contesting delegations will be diminished by the time the State Committee meets Monday. It is said that the Reed contesting delegation from Buchanan County ut that any investigation, how- ver troublesome, will not disturb e estimate in which he is held by e people.

"Senators, I do not believe in y heart of hearts that under ese conditions this situation hould go on."

Reed of Missouri won in the cramble for the floor and un- osened a tirade at the "insulting" essage which Coolidge had sent accompany the Mellon protest. hen followed for the rest of the y the countering to the Watson peech.

Reed read into the language of e President's message a deliber- te affront to the Senate. No King ad ever dared to address such a ommunication to the "[illegible] ative" branch of his Government, e said, and should the Senate send the White House a resolution ouched in such terms, it should xpect and should receive it back.

The Reed resolution was not in- pired by the minority members, enator Robinson of Arkansas, emocratic leader, said later. Oth- r Democratic Senate chiefs were rank in saying they did not ex- ect it to be adopted or to be ressed as a party strategy mea- re.

"Biggest Distiller in Country."

McKellar, who followed Reed, harged Mellon with being "the iggest distiller in the United States," and said he was afraid to ave the prohibition unit inves- igated. Reed (Rep.) Pennsylva- ia, came to Mellon's defense.

The warfare is due for renewal ext week, with the virtual cer- ainty that the Jones resolution pecifically authorizing the Couz- ns Committee to engage Heney and thereby meet the President's echnical objections will pass.

Votes of delegates will be needed for that, and I am of the opinion that there will be considerable resentment among the rank and file of delegates when they learn they are expected to merely rubber stamp a program already prepared for them."

The dissatisfaction has arisen over the conference in St. Louis a week ago of Breckinridge Long, Charles M. Hay, Charles H. Mayer of St. Joseph and Frank H. Farris of Rolla, chairman of the State committee. From these conferences resulted a slate of Long for the National committeemanship, and Hay, Mayer and Farris for three of the four places allotted to the delegation-at-large. The fourth place it was for a time proposed to leave open and to be filled by the addition of Long's name if by any chance he should be defeated for the National Committee.

It is the expectation, however, that they will decide that former Gov. Gardner should be the fourth. The Reed following has been flirting with Gardner with a tenative offer to throw its support to him for indorsement for the presidency if he would throw his influence to it with the ultimate aim of getting a delegation which Reed could control after it had voted on the first ballot for Gardner. To meet this the anti-Reed forces have virtually decided to put Gardner on the delegate-at-large slate.

There will be a conference of anti-Reed leaders here tomorrow, and while there has been no announcement as to exactly who will participate any known anti-Reed man probably will be admitted in interest of harmony within the ranks.

Chairman Farris has been here all day, and among the arrivals this evening were Long, former Judge Frank A. Thompson, W. A. Lampkin, William Logan, Mrs. Catherine Halterman and Mrs. Mary B. Eversole, Hay, Arthur V. Lashley of Webster Groves, Allen McReynolds of Carthage, former Lieutenant - Governor Wallace Crossley of Warrensburg, Everett Reeves of Caruthersville, J. W. Head of Palmyra, and Charles H. Mayer of St. Joseph are expected in time for the conference.

Plans of Reed Contingent.

The details of the program of the Reed contingent has not become public and there are some indications that there will be no real fight by the Reed following. None of the Reed men has arrived and there is a report that the number of contesting delegations will be diminished by the time the State Committee meets Monday. It is said that the Reed contesting delegation from Buchanan County will not be here because of the expense and the doubt that it will be seated. However, it could send one or two members with the proxies of all the others and make the fight without much expense.

The State Committee will be in session Monday morning to hear contests and make up the temporary roll of the convention. There are seven contests from wards in St. Louis in the Tenth Congressional District, from two wards in Kansas City and from five counties, more than 150 delegates being involved. The committee is believed to be anti-Reed and it is safe to say that no contesting Reed delegations will be seated unless they make out a case containing no element of doubt.

The convention will convene at noon Tuesday and will be called to order by Farris as chairman of the State Committee. Farris will deliver a short address and will be followed by former Judge Fred L. English of St. Louis, who will be temporary chairman and who will deliver the "keynote" speech of the State campaign.

Vandiver's View of Men to Be Named at Springfield.

W. D. Vandiver of Columbia, in St. Louis yesterday, on his way to the Democratic State convention at Springfield, said that, while he was for Edward F. Goltra of St. Louis for re-election as Democratic national committeeman, he was not disposed to make any fight upon either Breckinridge Long of St. Louis or William T. Kemper of Kansas City, also candidates for the place.

"If, as I hear, the Reed forces in St. Louis are for Goltra," said Vandiver, "and the Reed forces in Kansas City are for Kemper, it looks like the anti-Reed forces cannot do otherwise than be for Long."

Vandiver said that if he had the naming of delegates-at-large, he would look among men such as former Gov. David R. Francis of St. Louis, former Gov. Alexander M. Dockery of Gallatin and former Congressman M. E. Benton of Neosho, and would favor placing Charles M. Hay of St. Louis upon the delegation to insure having an orator upon the Missouri delegation at the national convention.

GIVES HUSBAND TO ANOTHER TO SAVE HIM FROM PRISON

East St. Louis Woman Speeds Divorce Plea to Permit Disabled Veteran to Wed Girl Accuser.

When Lillie Browning was married to Frank Lawler she knew he was a disabled war veteran, receiving $90 a month from the Government so he might attend a school of vocational training. She was willing to take him as her husband, student that he was, and bide her time until his course was completed. She didn't care. And yesterday morning she went to court at East St. Louis and asked for a divorce. So he might marry another woman. And save himself from jail

Later in the day, with the girl who had brought a criminal charge against her husband, and accompanied by the girl's mother, she stood in a Justice of the Peace office at Belleville, and saw her recently divorced husband and the girl married.

A month ago, Lawler, who is 27 years old, was accused by Blanche Wilkins, 15-year-old daughter of Mrs. Maud Isom, of East St. Louis, of criminal assault. Lawler was arrested and was ordered held for the St. Clair County grand jury. He was taken to Belleville and placed in the county jail, where he since has remained.

Pleads for Speedy Divorce.

Yesterday morning Lawler's young wife, fearing the consequences of the grand jury hearing and the subsequent trial, which she feared would follow, went before City Judge William Borders. She asked him for a divorce, charging cruelty and infidelity. And she told the Judge she wanted speedy action, for the grand jury would meet next Tuesday.

After a short hearing, her divorce was granted. She hurried to meet Blanche Wilkins and the girl's mother, and they went to Belleville. They told county officials their story. A Deputy Sheriff took Lawler from his cell, and led him to the County Clerk's office. There he procured a marriage license.

Witness at Hurried Marriage.

Then Lawler, still in the Deputy's charge, crossed the street to the courtroom of Justice of the Peace Martin Sisk. And he and Blanche Wilkins were married, while the former Mrs. Lawler looked on, crying during the ceremony.

After the marriage Lawler was given a few moments with the girl he had just married and the woman who had been his wife until three hours before. He spent all of his five minutes talking to the latter, and trying to quiet her. Then the Deputy tapped him on the shoulder, and led him back to his cell, for Lawler cannot be released until the grand jury acts on his case Tuesday.

As Lawler was returned to jail, his bride, her mother and his former wife departed together.

BERLIN NOW READY TO ACCEPT PLAN OF EXPERTS

growing out of five years of war and five years of post-war wrangling which have resulted in wasting five billion gold marks in occupation costs."

"The most essential section of the report," Dr. Schact added, "is Article 3, page 4, which definitely provides that military occupation of the Ruhr shall cease. That section provides for clearing the atmosphere of politics, sanctions and military penalties, and overshadows all other details in importance."

Dr. Schact said there were many details of the report with which he was not sympathetic. He thought the amount asked from Germany was too heavy and declared it a pity that an actual moratorium was not provided. He expressed the opinion that foreigners were too numerous on the directorate of the new bank of issue provided in the report but declared that all these handicaps could be overcome if Article 3 were literally adhered to.

Asked how long it would require to place the experts' recommendations into actual effect, Dr. Schacht replied that it could be done "in 90 days or even less."

Mortgaging Scheme Approved.

The scheme for mortgaging the German railways, he said, was the best worked out part of the report and could easily be made effective without extensive reorganization.

Addressing a committee meeting of the Economic Council of the Reich today, Dr. Schacht characterized the standpoint of the experts that transfers of reparations abroad should only be made when German exchange would not suffer thereby, as the keynote of the economic side of the problem and as at last establishing an automatic settlement in place of political and military compulsion.

He described the report, despite the heavy burdens it involved, as capable of being discussed under two conditions—first, that Germany should regain her economic freedom, and, second, that in event of fulfillment being impossible, military sanctions should not be applied immediately, but that there should be, instead, a joint consultation between experts on both sides. He asserted that freeing the reparation problem from politics and militarism was viewed by the Germans as an excellent thing and likely to be of great importance in aiding the resumption of economic relations between the nations.

REPLIES ON ISSUES THAT CONCERN U. S.

By ARNO DOSCH FLEUROT,
Paris Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, April 12.—Before negotiations over the plan for rehabilitation of Germany proposed by the committee of experts and under way, I am able to give the following answers to the questions asked editorially by the New York World when the text of the report was first published. It was pointed out in this editorial that if affirmative answers could be given to these four questions, the plan might be accepted by America as sound.

First—Will the loan be a first lien on Germany, taking precedence over all other claims?

The loan will run concurrently with reparations until the reparations commission makes some other ruling. It is anticipated that this ruling will give the loan priority. The report would seem to give payments in kind priority, but all cash collected for the reparation account would be converted into foreign moneys. A decision giving interest on the loan priority is expected.

Second—Is the European investing public prepared to take at least half the loan as proof of their contention that it is sound?

So far as I am able to learn, figuring the loan as $175,000,000, America is expected to take $100,000,000, Britain $50,000,000 and Continental Europe the remainder.

Third—Are the French prepared to agree that if in some future time the plan proves unworkable they will take action only in concert, with all the other creditors of Germany?

The French have taken no official attitude toward the question of united action in the event that the plan proves unworkable, but the phraseology of the report, implying united action, was agreed to by the French experts. Farther than that the question cannot be answered now.

Fourth—Does the plan provide any impartial judge to decide whether in case of default the default has been voluntary or not?

The plan provides no judge or arbitration body, but it authorizes arbitration through the League of Nations over details. The commissioner general and the commissioners will be arbiters, so far as the plan is now developed.

From a reliable source I learn that the third and fourth questions raise points on which the reparations commission will have to get an understanding through the Governments concerned.

WHEELER DEFIES FOES OF SENATE INVESTIGATIONS

Montana Senator Assails "Well Organized Plan" Operating to Undermine Confidence in Inquiries.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 12.—Attacking the "well organized plan" which he said now is operating on "a national scale" to undermine public confidence in the Senate investigations, and to discredit "those who are seeking to re-establish the integrity of government," Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Dem.) of Montana tonight publicly challenged foes of the inquiries "to do their worst."

His address, before the annual banquet of the Iroquois Club, attended by hundreds of Democratic leaders in Illinois, was on the general theme of the present Republican administration. It began with a sketchy outline of "the system by which the President was nominated," dwelt at some length upon the detail of selecting the Cabinet, moved with spirited emphasis through "three years of organized corruption in the very seat of the Federal Government," and terminated with a hurried summary of third party prospects for 1924.

Interspersed were frequent references to corruption and improper use of governmental power to the "cheap back room crowd" surrounding the Ohio powers in the Republican party and an unqualified repudiation of charges of partisan selfishness in the motives of the leaders in the Teapot Dome and Daugherty investigations.

Tribute to Newspaper Men.

Senator Wheeler's first tribute after that paid to the ideals and principles of uncompromising Jeffersonian Democracy, was to "the younger newspaper men of Washington."

"The new bloods there have contributed more in valuable service to both the oil and Daugherty investigations than any other single agency in the capital," he said. "They brought in 'tips' from day to day as the inquiries proceeded; they furnished leads and in many other ways became an important factor in the effort to clean house."

In stating the case against former Attorney-General Daugherty, the Montana Senator told his Democratic audience of "the improper use of high office, improper indictments, obstructionist tactics when the powers of the prosecutor should have been invoked, protection of bootleggers, and the flagrant betrayal of public trust in deliberate failure to prosecute those connected with an effort to foment revolution in Mexico."

Attacks to Attract Attention.

"For attempting to reveal this record, many have suffered attacks on character, public ridicule and official scorn. Everything and everybody is attacked in a wholesale endeavor to divert public attention from the scandalous conditions which have been revealed in Washington—but nothing will suffice. If it is demonstrated that the old parties are not endowed with the manpower to re-establish the integrity of government and restore public confidence in the character of public officers then a new party epual to the task will have birth.

"The conditions which have been revealed in the national capital are not to be corrected by the removal from office, of one, or two, or a dozen individuals. Corruption is at the seat of public affairs so long as political parties must eat their daily bread from the tables of the mighty in business."

Defending the dogged persistence of the investigation, Senator Wheeler declared that they do not constitute "trials" but merely judicial injury into the conduct of public business. As evidence of the lack of political motive, he pointed out that the proceedings were authorized by Republican majorities in Congress, that Republican majorities are members of the committees, and that Republican majorities ordered the inquiries.

"The cry is raised that it is bad for business," he said. "Our answer is that good or bad, they must go on until honesty is again a rule of conduct in every branch of the Government."

LEVIATHAN ON SEAS AGAIN

Liner Leaves New York on First Trip Since December.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Five thousand visitors inspected the steamship Leviathan today before she sailed amidst a din of saluting harbor craft on her first voyage since she grounded in the harbor here last December, and was tied up for repairs and a general overhauling.

Thomas H. Ross Bottom, general manager of the United States lines, declared that although the Leviathan's engines now probably were faster than ever, she would go in for service records rather than speed records this season.

The long passenger list carried the names of John Barton Payne, former Secretary of the Interior and now chairman of the American Red Cross, who goes to Paris to preside at an international session of the League of Red Cross Societies.

WHEELER INQUIRY DENIED EVIDENCE GIVEN GRAND JURY

Borah Committee Informed No Minutes on Indictment Were Taken—Documents Impounded.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Following the legal setback which the Daugherty investigating committee received yesterday at Washington Courthouse, O., the Borah committee, which is to inquire into the indictment of Senator Wheeler, received a message today indicating that it also is going to have difficulty in getting the material that it wants.

In reply to his request for the minutes of the grand jury which indicted Wheeler and the documentary evidence which was placed before the jury, Senator Borah was advised that neither could be furnished. The message stated that no minutes had been taken of the grand jury proceedings and that the documentary evidence had been impounded by the District Attorney.

It is understood that this documentary evidence consists of two letters or telegrams which were sent by Wheeler or some member of his law firm to Gordon Campbell, whom the indictment charges the Senator was to represent before the Department of the Interior. Their exact character will go a long way toward determining the justification for the indictment.

Judge Could Release Evidence.

Although Judge Pray, before whom the indictment was returned, would ordinarily have it in his power to release such impounded document, the message furnished no indication that such a course would be followed. Consequently, Senator Borah will seek the date of the telegraph message and then attempt to obtain a copy of it from the telegraph company. This attempt may fail, however, if the message was sent more than a year ago, as the telegraph company is required by law to retain messages for only 12 months. Copies of any letters that may have been sent probably can be furnished by Senator Wheeler's own law office.

Senator Brookhart returned today from the session at Washington Court House and his committee immediately began to lay plans for further action directed against Harry Daugherty and his brother. Here is what the Brookhart Committee has immediately in prospect:

A request to Attorney-General Stone to represent it in the injunction proceeding which was brought before a probate judge in Ohio to prevent the examination of the books of Mal Daugherty's bank. Inasmuch as the Judge, a former associate of Daugherty's was sitting not in his own court, but the higher court of Common Pleas, when he issued the process, the committee has little doubt that the injunction can be upset.

Two actions directed against Mal Daugherty, one a request to the Senate that he be brought before the bar of that body, and kept in the custody of the seargeant-at-arms until he consents to answer questions, and the other a request on the Senate to start a proceeding similar to that which led to the indictment of Harry F. Sinclair, for refusal to answer questions, are contemplated. While no definite action will be taken until the committee meets in executive session, Senator Brookhart said today he expected that both of these courses would be followed.

A third important result of the examination in Ohio, will be the rejuvenation of the inquiry into the failure to bring any action against the Wright-Martin Aircraft Corporation, in which the testimony taken yesterday was to the effect that Harry Daugherty had 2500 shares of stock in 1921, having increased the amount by 2000 shares since 1920.

Previous testimony before the committee was that overpayments of $5,267,000 had been made to the Wright-Martin people and that there has never been any court attempt to collect this amount. This is the case in which a series of letters read into the committee records showed that Secretary Weeks had been personally appealed to by a director of the corporation.

To Attack Tax Reports.

Although the stock was listed at little more than a nominal price in Daugherty's tax report of 1921, Senator Brookhart said his information was that it had been worth as high as $30 a share. The committee intends to find out exactly what it was quoted at in 1921, when the Daugherty report listed 2500 shares at $2500.

Home Robbed of $500 Cash.

John Modjar, 51 years old, a laborer of 4001 North Broadway, reported to the police that, sometime after 2 p. m. yesterday, someone entered his house and took an envelop containing $500 from where it was secreted in a mantel. Modjar furnished the police with the description of an acquaintance who was said to have been seen loitering in the vicinity.

Griesedieck and Prather Indicted in Beer Scandal

in the mysterious regularity with which beer wit ha "kick" was being brewed here and sold here and elsewhere, the Volstead Act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Attention of Elmer L. Ivey, head of the intelligence unit, was called to the reports and he directed David Nolan, chief at St. Louis of the unit's forces, to investigate. His men, aided by other Federal agents from other sections of the country worked under cover until Feb. 21, when the news of the hunt for the beer "protectors" became known. This happened when general prohibition agents, gathered here with considerable effort at secrecy, saw Gus O. Nations, chief of field forces, prohibition enforcement division, sweep through their lines with several of his men and raid the Griesedieck Bros. Brewery just before they had intended to do so.

Prather Quits After Disclosures.

Nations arrested more than 40 of the officials and employes of the brewery and confiscated several hundred cases of what was said to be illegal beer.

Disclosure exclusively in the Post-Dispatch that Federal investigators had been watching the movements of two unnamed State officials on the theory that they might be links in the "protection" chain, was followed by a statement by Gus Nations, published in the St. Louis Star, in which he declared that his brother, State Labor Commissioner Heber Nations, was one of the two.

A short time later Gov. Hyde, who had hastened back from a vacation because of the report that two of his appointees had been mentioned in connection with the beer ring, summoned Nations and Prather, both of whom were in St. Louis, to Jefferson City.

Prather there resigned on Sunday, March 9, after publication exclusively in the Post-Dispatch that morning of the fact that Griesedieck had confessed to Federal authorities that he had paid $15,000 to a State official for protection. It later was discovered that Prather was the man he named.

Nations refused to resign, issued a statement labelling the investigation as an attack of old guard Republicans upon the Hyde administration, and in an interview in Kansas City caused the Governor to abandon a previous inclination to remove the Labor Commissioner from office.

Griesedieck determined to tell his story after a vista of penitentiary life had been laid before him by Federal agents and after one of the brewery's attorneys had made a trip to Washington. The brewer told how conferences with Prather in St. Louis had been arranged by telephone and how payments were made in hotel rooms.

Judge Faris on March 24 convened the Federal grand jury, which has examined many witnesses. Connections of some of them have indicated probability that they were to be questioned as to beer "protection." Griesedieck was on of these. Harry M. Dengler, special agent, intelligence unit, was another. Several were called from Jefferson City. A number of Gus Nations' men were called.

John C. Dyott, special Assistant United States Attorney-General, presented the case to the grand jury.

Efforts to reach Prather for a statement at Jefferson City, where he went after leaving St. Louis Friday, were unsuccessful, although the Post-Dispatch learned from reliable information that he was still in Jefferson City. His friends insisted he had "left town." It was reported he might be keeping in the background until the size of his bond was known and arrangements could be made to meet it.

U. S. GRAND JURY URGES DEPORTATION OF ALIENS WHO VIOLATE DRY LAWS

DENIAL of citizenship and deportation should be the lot of unnaturalized aliens convicted of prohibition violations, the Federal grand jury declared in a partial report to Judge Faris yesterday.

Evidence brought before the grand jury concerning violations of the Volstead act pointed in a large majority of cases to persons of foreign birth who had made no application for citizenship, or had taken out only first papers, as violators, the report declared. Often such were found to be "repeaters," which was taken as an indication that heavier penalties were needed as a deterrent.

sults of these activities have been cumulative, and it has kept up until the efficiency of the department has been seriously impaired. There is work which is held up because those in charge no do know what action to take pending further developments."

Department Morale Hit.

The morale of the entire Treasury Department has been destroyed by the Senate investigation into the Bureau of Internal Revenue, Mellon said in an address tonight before the Pittsburg Chamber of Commerce. "Unless some end is brought to this unnecessary interference, Government will cease to function," he said.

The Secretary declared that production in the income tax unit, where disputed tax liability cases are determined, had dropped 50 per cent. In the natural resources division, where values are obtained, he continued, work has practically ceased and the time of the division is devoted to furnishing informatoin to the Senate Committee.

Discipline Becomes Hard.

"Employes throughout the bureau," he declared, "are more interested in reading about and discussing the investigation than in work, and adequate supervision can scarcely be maintained. In any close case, a man, because he fears that he, too, may be criticised, refuses to act impartially and automatically decides the question in favor of the Government, leaving the taxpayer to such relief as the courts may ultimately give him. No one knows when a prosecutor, under Government authority and private pay, may haul him before a committee and pillory him on the stand."

Commends Probe Purpose.

Secretary Mellon said that the purpose of the investigation—to recommend improvements in the law and its administration—was laudable, but declared "its real purpose seems to be a personal attack upon me or an effort to develop scandal.

"The committee has made inquiry into every company in which I may have been interested," he declared. "Nowhere has it been shown that a company has been favored because I happened to be a stockholder. I think the investigation has shown that favor through connivance of Government employes is practically impossible, although nearly every discharged employe has rushed to present his suspiciens to Senator Couzens."

MAKES FAT PEOPLE SLIM

New York Physician Perfects Harmless Method of Reducing Weight

The loss of as much as a pound of excess fat a day with no harmful results is the record made by many patients of Dr. R. Newman, a licensed practicing physician of 286 Fifth Avenue, New York, who announces that he has perfected a treatment which has quickly rid fat people of excess weight. What is more remarkable is the Doctor's statement that he has successfully treated thousands of patients for fat reduction without change of diet or unnecessary exercise. It is also said that fat people who suffer from chronic rheumatism, gout, asthma and high blood pressure obtain great relief from the reduction of their superfluous flesh. Realizing that this sounds almost too good to be true, the Doctors has offered to send without charge to anyone who will write him, a free trial treatment to prove his claims, as well as his "Pay-when-reduced" plan. If you want to rid yourself of superfluous fat, write him today, addressing Dr. R. Newman, 286 Fifth Avenue, New York City, Dept. R.

HADLEY HEADS COUNTY SLATE AGAINST WILL

Chancellor Dragged Back Into Politics as Delegate to G. O. P. State Convention.

Former Gov. Hadley, chancellor of Washington University, has been brought back into politics in a minor way, against his wishes. He was elected one of 36 St. Louis County delegates to the Republican State convention at a Central township mass meeting in Clayton courthouse yesterday.

Former Circuit Judge George H. Williams, who also was elected a delegate at the gathering, presided at the meeting. Hadley said last night that Williams had written him, urging him to accept the place, but that he sent word to Williams asking that he be let off. The request was based on the fact that there was "a difference of opinion' in the county and, further, because Hadley is interested in educational pursuits.

Did Not Write Hadley.

Williams declared last night that he had not written Hadley. At the time Williams was questioned it was understood Hadley's reply had been by letter, and Williams said he had not received such a reply.

Hadley's name headed a slate of 19 persons for the 19 places as delegates to be filled in Central Township. At the mass meeting, Williams commented on the "splendid name" heading the list, which elicited applause. Among others on the list were Sheriff Willmann and Circuit Judge Wurdeman.

Last Nomination Withdrawn.

The names on the slate were placed in nomination and some one moved that nominations be closed. Williams ruled that other nominations should be allowed and several others were made. The man who made the motion refused to withdraw it and the motion was carried, with the effect of eliminating the last nomination. Then the slate of 19 was approved. The delegation was not intsructed, but, it is understood, is for Coolidge.

The rest of the county delegates were chosen in four other township meetings.

125 ST. LOUISANS TO ATTEND LONDON CONVENTION IN JULY

Headed by Mayor, Business Men Go to World Session of Ad Clubs.

More than 125 St. Louisans have announced their intention of attending the International Convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, to be held at London, England, July 13 to 18. The St. Louis delegation, which contains many prominent business men, will be headed by Mayor Kiel and Mrs. Kiel, Mr. and Mrs Carl F. G. Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Collins and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Weisenburger. They will leave St. Louis on a special train at midnight, July 2.

The train will go to Montreal where the St. Louis, Detroit and Montreal delegations will embark on the Steamship Montcalm. They will arrive in Liverpool July 12.

Several of the party plan extended tours of Europe at the close of the convention.

STRIKING PAINTERS VOTE COMPROMISE

Agree to Return for $11 a Day —Employers Said to Have Refused.

The striking painters and paperhangers, who quit work March 15 when their demands for an increase from $9 to $12 a day were refused by employers, yesterday voted to return to work if given $11 a day, Charles Eisenring, secretary of the Painters' District Council announced. The employers refused to pay this figure, Eisenring said. They had offered, at the beginning of the strike, to pay $10 a day.

Of the 2300 men who went on strike, 800 have signed up at the $12 figure, with independent concerns, Eisenring estimated.

Several non-union painters have been injured by being hurled from ladders by men who dashed into buildings where the strikebreakers were at work, and coal tar has been smeared over freshly painted buildings. Eisenring declared these acts were not the work of the union and expressed the belief that private detective agencies were responsible for marring the painting jobs so the impression would be created that their services were necessary.

Eisenring also declared the painters' union believed that William Lanham, a member of the union, who was found critically injured in the street near his home April 1, was the victim of an assault and not of an automobile, as police investigation has indicated. Lanham died April 6. The union is conducting a private investigation, Eisenring said. He also declared that he had been threatened by strangers since the strike began.

W. U. GIRL ART STUDENTS TO CLERK AT RUMMAGE SALE

Fund to Be Derived From Three-Day Effort to Aid Worthy Students.

Young women students of the art school of Washington University will act as saleswomen next Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the old Liederkranz building at Thirteenth street and Chouteau avenue, conducting a rummage sale under the auspices of the Art Alliance and for the benefit of a new welfare fund for the general good of their school.

The fund will be used to aid worthy students and for aiding the art school generally. Disused clothing, furniture and other articles will be offered for sale. A fair stock is on hand but more is wanted. Persons desiring to contribute articles are asked to deliver them to the sale building or to notify the Art Alliance, in care of the school at the university.

3 YOUTHS IN STOLEN AUTO

Trio From Columbia, O., Driving to California, Admit Theft When Arrested in Clayton.

Three Columbus, Ohio, youths, driving to California, begged a Valley Park housewife yesterday for a meal, and as a result are in Clayton jail charged with stealing an automobile. The housewife was suspicious and called a Deputy Sheriff, who arrived on the scene with a shotgun as the trio started off. He fired and the car skidded into a ditch.

The youths surrendered and were taken to Clayton, where they admitted stealing the automobile, a touring car, in Columbus. They gave their names as Albert Yuhas, 20 years old; John Paul, 21, and Harry Wynes, 24, foundry workers. Wynes said he had served sentence in Ohio State Prison.

18, HAS NEVER SEEN A "MOVIE," JACK IS OBEDIENT SON

Promised Dad He'd Pass Up Cinema Shows When He Came to College Here.

Those who like motion pictures say to Jack Peterson: "What, you've never seen a picture? Come off. Really? Cross your heart and hope to die? Aw. Never seen Charlie or Doug or Mary? Boy, where was you raised?"

Those who do not like motion pictures say: "H'mph, you haven't missed a thing."

One way or another Jack is a marked young man. A Post-Dispatch reporter happened in at a church dinner the other night and someone said at once, "Take a look at him. He's 18 years old and he's never seen a movie."

So the reporter looked at Jack and fired a few questions and learned that it was indeed true. On leaving home at Rockford, Ill., Jack promised his father to forswear cinema palaces. His parents are devout Evangelicans and are opposed to motion pictures on principle.

Jack's St. Louis friends see pitfalls ahead. Moving picture after moving picture has portrayed the strong man who weakens and cracks. What if Jack should go on a tear? Attend three motion picture theaters in a day? Will he be able to stand it? And then as Jack grows older what will he talk to the girls about? Jack's friends think that it always adds polish to a young man to see how Ramon Navarro and Milton Sills do it.

But Jack says: "I won't attend a movie unless father permits me for I certainly don't want to disappoint him," thus proving that he is indeed a unique young man.

Jack attends Sunday school, church, Bible class suppers and the Missouri College of Optometry. He rooms at 4957 Washington boulevard.

Exclusion, He Says Can Be Accomplished More Effectively by Leaving the Law as It Stands.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The House today passed the Johnson restrictive immigration bill, including the provision excluding Japanese, by a vote of 322 to 71. Put through the House, by the so-called Anglo-Saxon bloc, the measure bases the quota on the 1890 census, which is favorable to the people of Northern Europe and greatly restricts immigration from Southern and Eastern Europe.

An acrimonious debate on the Japanese provision was expected but it did not come. Members went ahead and voted for it without making excuse or argument. The only speech on that paragraph was by Representative Theodore Burton, of Ohio, who uttered a protest.

The cut-and-dried program of the House Committee on Immigration was carried out to the letter. It was evident in the debate that Chairman Johnson, leader of the forces for reducing the flow of immigration to this country, had an overwhelming majority on his side of the controversy. All efforts to break the ranks of this army of restrictionists were futile.

Senate Will Restrict Bill.

The House bill will be rewritten in the Senate. It is generally understood among House members that the Senate will strike out the objectionable anti-Japanese provision and change the quota basis from 1890 to more recent census returns.

An effort to amend the quota provision of the committee bill to base the quota on the average of the admissions of the census of 1890, 1900, 1910, and 1920 failed by a vote of 162 to 89.

The opposition was able to influence the adoption of two amendments but they were offered with the permission of Chairman Johnson. One increased the validity of an immigration certificate from two to four months, which means that, instead of expiring July 1, it expires Sept. 1. In other words, all immigration certificates issued prior to July 1 will be valid until Sept. 1.

The other amendment was that relating to the burden of proof which providing for the striking out of section 23, and in lieu thereof inserting the following:

"Whenever any alien attempts to enter the United States the burden of proof shall be upon such alien to establish that he is not subject to exclusion under any provision of the immigration laws, and in any deportation proceeding against any alien, the burden of proof shall be upon such alien to show that he entered the United States lawfully and the time, place and manner of such entry into the United States, but in presenting such proof he should be entitled to the production of his immigration certificate, if any, or of other documents concerning such entry in the custody of the Department of Labor."

The oppopnents of the Johnson bill never had a gnost of a show to amend it. From the start the majority was organized for a drastic restriction measure. The members from the South Pacific Coast States had thrust party lines aside and joined forces for this particular contest.

"Why, we could not have our amendments put except through the chairman of the House committee," said Representative Nathan D. Perlman (Rep.), New York. "Instructions were to pass the committee bill, and amendments without change, not even the dotting of an i or the crossing of a t and that was carried out."

Burton's Protest.

Representative Burton protested against the Japanese exclusion provision but did not ask for a vote. He felt that a formal show-down would be useless, as the result could be forecast. He thought the end sought in the bill to bar aliens who are not eligible for American citizenship should be left to diplomatic representatives of the Government. He explained that the provision included in the bill should not be adopted as it might tend to endanger the friendly relations between the United States and Japan.

"There are good reasons, perhaps, why we should be averse to any extended Japanese immigration," said Burton. "They have a different form of government and different ideals running back ofr 2000 years. They have a different standard of living, but I must protest this provision for the reason that what is sought to be attained can be accomplished i namore effective way by leaving the law as it nw is. We have at this time an agreement and treaty with Japan that covers this subject. Under an agreement that exists we hve an arrangement with Japan for the exclusion of its nationals from the United States. We are now on friendly terms with Japan. For the future peace of the world it is absolutely essential that we should maintain friendly relations with Japan. We must respect the susceptibilities of the Japanese. This exclusion provision would give serious offense to that people. The Secretary of State has set forth objections to this legislatin. I do not intend to ask for a vote on this prpositin. This matter is pending in the Senate. The Senate has charge f our foreign relations and is in closer touch with the situation. I merely want to register my protest against the legislation for the reason that I have stated."

The Senate at a night session took no action on provisions of the immigration bill and recessed until noon Monday when the measure again will be called up. Republican leaders issued a call for a party conference next Monday at which an effort will be made to agree upon a policy both as to Japanese exclusion and the census quota basis.

The existing law, which expires on next June 30, fixed the quota at 3 per cent on the 1910 census and had no provision relating to Japanese immigration which for years has been regulated by the gentlemen's agreement with Japan. Secretary Hughes has urged that the American Government continue to recognize this agreement and the Japanese be placed on the same quota basis as the Nationals of other countries.

OFFICIAL VIEW OF JAPANESE STAND ON ALIEN ISSUE

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The United States cannot send an army to the Far East to enforce its policies of the open door and equal opportunity for America and Americans. We must have an atmosphere of friendship in the Orient if these policies are to be equately enforced.

This declaration was made today by an administration spokesman in connection with the earnest plea of Ambassador Hanihara that Congress do not pass the pending immigration bill with a provision excluding Japanese.

Administration officials frankly agree with the position taken by the Japanese Ambassador that at most the exclusion provision would keep out only 146 Japanese annually, and that the Tokio Government has kept Japan's side of the gentlemen's agreement.

Obviously, officials take a very serious view of the situation presented by the bill as passed by the House. They state frankly that the interests of the United States can be protected by a reasonable and proper respect for the susceptibilities of other nations much more easily than by assuming an attitude which is extremely detrimental to our own country in its international relations.

Passage of the Japanese exclusion provision by Congress, it was indicated, would create a feeling of resentment against the United States in the Far East, with every possible advantage taken that diplomacy can devise to operate against us.

"Is it worth risking that to keep out 146 people every year?" is the vital question as officials view the matter.

The practical effect of the exclusion provision would be to get rid of the active co-operation of the Japanese Government in preventing her working classes from coming to this country. While officials frankly feel that this would ultimately result in many more Japanese arrivals here via surreptitious routes, the certainty that co-operation of a now friendly Government along many other lines of interest to America in the Far East is regarded as a much more serious phase of the situation.

Furthermore, it is believed President Coolidge will certainly veto the immigration bill if it comes to him with such a provision.

Fire is spectacular—
but this silent enemy does far more damage

CLANGING bells—shrieking siren! Fire apparatus tearing down the street. Destruction by fire is spectacular.

Yet there is a far greater conflagration going on all over the country, "a silent, invisible destruction" that consumes American property.

Its name is R-U-S-T.

Truly, the fire fiend is only a pigmy of destruction compared to the rust fiend. Every year America charges up the staggering loss of $1,500,000,000 to rust.

But the rust robber's depredations are coming to an end. Great industries have found a way. They seal all metal surfaces against rust with a protective film of Barrett Everjet Paint.

Protected by this film, exposed metal work will last almost indefinitely. Iron contracts in cold weather and expands in warm weather—it moves within itself. A film coat of Barrett Everjet Paint is elastic—allows for this movement of iron.

In brief, Barrett Everjet Paint is weatherproof and waterproof—offers a high degree of resistance against steam vapors, acids and alkalies. It retains its elasticity under all temperatures. It never cracks, rubs, peels or scales—wears stubbornly under most severe usage.

Everjet Paint is used extensively in factories and mines, on railroads and bridges. Metal fencing, exposed pipe, farm implements—every metal surface that rusts needs Everjet Paint.

SANITAS
MODERN WALL COVERING

Does not need constant "doing over"

A touch of refinement is given any room whose walls are decorated with Sanitas Modern Wall Covering. Yet Sanitas is not an expensive luxury—it is an investment.

For keeping down the cost of constant re-decorating, nothing can compare with Sanitas. It is made on cloth, painted in durable oil colors, ready to hang. It does not crack, tear, peel, blister or fade, and can be kept fresh and clean merely by wiping occassionally with a damp cloth.

In one home, where it was hung 13 years ago, it is just as good as the day it was put up. In many cases even this record has been surpassed.

Sanitas comes in styles for every room in the house:
Enamel Finish for kitchens and bathrooms.
Flat Finish plain tints that can be hung as they come, or stenciled and frescoed.
Decorative Patterns, floral designs and reproductions of tapestry, grass-cloth, leather and fabrics.

ST. LOUIS COUNTY TO CONTINUE CLEAN ELECTION CRUSADE

League, Which Elected Many Democrats in 1922, Plans to Support Another Non-Partisan Slate.

With the primary election four months off, and the memory of the corrupt primary of 1922 still keen, St. Louis County voters are giving renewed consideration to the selection of suitable men and women as candidates.

The lines of political cleavage have not been sharply defined, but the local issue, it is expected, will be again the People vs. the Machine. The term "reform" will not be popular on either side of the fence; leaders of the people's movement do not fancy the appellation of reformers. National political issues likely will overshadow the local ones, and, these leaders fear, the voters may ignore local affairs in the interest of larger questions.

As a result of Clean Election League activity following the notorious 1922 primary, a number of Democrats were elected to county offices in the league victory, being the first of their party to win there in years. Their election was due to nonpartisan voting in the interest of good government and in the desire to beat Fred Essen, Republican "boss" of the county, which normally is overwhelmingly Republican.

Nonpartisan Slate Planned.

The question now is whether there will be a reaction to partisan voting without regard to the clean-up movement next November. If there is, the machine will be aided. The Clean Election League is preparing to renew its activities in the interest of a nonpartisan slate, and under the theory that party politics should not enter into local government.

The announcement of the candidacy of J. Porter Henry, a leader of the league and former chairman of its Executive Committee, for Prosecuting Attorney, indicates his plan and, inferentially, the plan of the league to make a nonpartisan fight. It also calls attention to repudiation by the league of Adam Henry Jones, who was swept into the prosecutorship by the victory in 1922, and whose conduct of the office, particularly with regard to delay in the election fraud cases, has caused dissatisfaction in various quarters.

Henry's announcement of his candidacy follows:

"The deplorable conditions existing in St. Louis County, which are so notorious as to need no reiteration, have been brought about chiefly by the lack of interest or participation in civic affars on the part of our representatve citizens. They have been content to turn over the reins of county-government to those who make politics a business and who reap a harvest from rake-offs and patronage, the extent and ramifications of which are shocking to those acquainted with the situation.

"This civic apathy has resulted in a partnership between ring politics and profitable law violation. It has caused an increase in lawlessness of a serious and menacing character; it accomplishes miscarriages of justice, inequality and injustice in taxation, fraudulent elections and the wasting of public revenues.

No Favoritism Toward Party.

"The average citizen finds his own business so much more profitable than public office that he is unwilling to make a personal sacrifice for his county's good. This enables the political ring to supply the material for office from its own ranks who will serve the ring's interest first and the county's second.

"The dominant political clique has been adroit in using constantly the old appeal to party loyalty and, because of the large Republican majority, has been successful in keeping the electorate in line. Any thoughtful citizen would realize in a moment's reflection that there are no more party issues involved in county elections. Most of the county municipalities have practically abandoned party politics. If more care were exercised in the selection of candidates than in the preservation of party control, there would be a marked improvement in local government, just as competition and not monopoly tends to improvement of the product.

"In consenting to become a candidate for Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County, I am conscious of the fact that many lawyers living in the county are as well qualified to fill the position as I am, but as I have been repeatedly importuned by many of our citizens to file for the office, I feel it my civic duty to do so, regardless of any personal sacrifices it may involve. If nominated and elected, I shall certainly regard the office as a public trust and discharge its duties in the interest of the public alone, without partiality or favoritism toward party, clique, class or color."

Henry, who is a Democrat and has the support of part of the Democratic County Committee, lives at 309 Oakwood avenue, Webster Groves. He is a member of the law firm of Judson, Green & Henry, with offices in Boatmen's Bank Building. He was graduated from Washington University law school in 1909. His grandfather, John W. Henry, was Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Missouri for 10 years.

Two Republican Candidates.

Prosecuting Attorney Jones, also a Democrat, has not announced whether he would seek the office again, but he is expected to. There are two Republican candidates thus far—Fred Mueller, Jones' predecessor, whose contest of his defeat by Jones is pending, and who was opposed by the league because of his friendship with the Essen faction, and John Nolan of Webster Groves. E. McD. Stevens, a former State Representative, who has been attorney for "Dinty" Colbeck, the political leader of the Egan gang; Tony Foley, gambler and ex-convict, and others of their ilk, may be a Republican candidate also. There are reports that Essen is friendly to the candidacies of Mueller, Nolan and Stevens, in order to cater to various elements of the electorate.

Of equal importance in county law enforcement is the office of Sheriff. Leading candidates, both Republicans, are Chief Deputy Sheriff Al Lill, the active head of the Sheriff's office at present, and former Assessor Al Wilmas, who has the Essen support. The Sheriff cannot succeed himself, but Sheriff Willmann has been said to plan running for Assessor, against the incumbent, George Herpel, and other Republicans.

Friction Among County Judges.

From the administrative standpoint, the three county judgeships are the chief offices. The league elected its candidates last time, but there is dissatisfaction with their work, and Presiding Judge Smiley, whose term runs to 1926, has been at outs with his colleagues. Bad roads cause an important complaint against the judges, who reply that there is not enough money to fix the roads. The two associate judgeships are to be filled.

Other county offices to be filled are: Surveyor (and ex-officio Highway Engineer), five township Constables, Coroner, Public Administrator, County School Superintendent and a number of Justices of the Peace.

The State Senatorship for St. Louis, Franklin and Gasconade counties is to be filled. Senator Ralph is expected to run again, with Essen backing. He is popular in the other counties of the district, which are largely Republican, and a heavy St. Louis County vote would be needed to beat him. Three State Representatives for the county also are to be chosen. One of the incumbents, Mrs. Mellcene Smith, who was elected by the league, was largely responsible for the law giving registration of voters to the county.

Republican League Formed.

A Republican League has been formed in the county, with Oliver Abel of University City as temporary chairman, to work within the party for the nomination of honest and efficient candidates.

Politicians and others are wondering whether the Ku Klux Klan will muster any considerable strength in the county. The klan has some organization there and klansmen think they can cast a deciding vote, particularly for Sheriff, an office in which the klan wants an uncompromising reformer. Machine leaders discount klan strength and clean-up leaders question the advisability of klan co-operation.

The Election Board is considering the advisability of holding the county's second registration before the primary. Only about 33,000 voters out of a possible 50,000 or more registered the first time, last February.

SENATE COMMITTEE APPROVES BONUS BILL

Republican Plan to Give Measure Precedence Over Tax Reduction, Also Reported.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Senator Smoot, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, today reported to the Senate the Mellon tax reduction bill, which, he says, will create a deficit of $50,989,444. Almost in the same breath the Republican members of the Finance Committee approved the insurance bonus bill passed by the House, which will cost the Treasury approximately $135,000,000 for the first year, thereby creating a total deficit, according to Smoot's own estimate, of approximately $185,000,000.

The Democratic minority report on the tax reduction bill will be submitted Monday and Senator Simmons of North Carolina, ranking Democratic member of the committee, gave notice that he would move to amend the bonus bill. It is planned to add to it the Copeland cash bonus bill as an optional feature.

Republicans plan to give the bonus bill the first place in Senate consideration, holding it is impossible to determine to what extent taxes can be reduced until it is first learned how much of a revenue charge is to be made on the Treasury. Opinion among the Democrats is divided as to which should come first.

Object of the Republicans.

In view of the claim made by Senator Smoot that a deficit will result from the tax reduction alone, including the offensive taxes on telephone and telegraph messages, and on radio sets, the apparent Republican purpose is to make the bonus as nearly impossible as they can, by forcing the Democrats to make an open choice between a bonus for all, as included in the tax bill, or a special bonus for the soldiers which will practically nullify general tax reduction by compelling a bond issue to take care of the soldier obligations. The Republican strategy is evidently to defeat the bonus by indirection rather than attack it openly and defeat it in committee as they might have done. The Democratic attitude toward the bonus is leavened by the fact the Democrats as a party are not responsible in the present situation. If the bonus is passed, they will share the credit among the legion men with the Republicans. If it is vetoed and the veto is sustained, they figure the Republicans will carry the entire burden among the same class of voters.

Quotes Democratic Support.

The report made by Smoot is an argument in favor of the Mellon rates, which President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon tried vainly to obtain from Chairman Green of the House Ways and Means Committee. It is the first formal argument presented by a committee in favor of the Mellon rates to the Congress. In his commendation of the bill, and in his discussion of it, Smoot starts with the glaring fact that it creates a deficit. He quotes "the last two Secretaries of the Treasury, Secretary Glass and Secretary Houston, both Democrats, as favoring the same scheme of taxation as advocated by Mr. Mellon."

Chairman Smoot then outlines first—the rate structure of the bill, calls attention to the fact that it includes the 25 per cent reduction on the income taxes for 1923, describes the decision on state and corporation taxes, earned income, board of tax appeals, miscellaneous tax changes, income tax amendments, etc.

GEN. WOOD'S SON RESIGNS COMMISSION IN U. S. ARMY

No Reason for Withdrawal Made Public—Made $800,000 Trading In Wall Street.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Osborne Cutler Wood, son and aide of Governor-General Wood of the Philippines, has resigned from the army in which he held a commission as Second Lieutenant, and the resignation has been accepted by President Coolidge.

Lieut. Wood was granted leave of absence more than two months ago and left Manila for the United States by way of Europe. He is understood to be in this country. He had been military aide to his father since the latter took office in the Philippines.

No reason was made public at the War Department, which stated today that the resignation was effective at once. Lieut. Wood several weeks ago, however, after he had made a fortune estimated at $800,000 by trading in Wall street, said he intended to resign and enter the diplomatic service.

THREE ARE VICTIMS OF AUTO CRASH AT CLINTON, MO.

Machine Carrying Four Persons Runs Off Open End of Bridge and Turns Over.

CLINTON, Mo., April 12. — Three young persons are dead as the result of a Ford automobile running off the open end of a wrecked bridge over a small stream southeast of Clinton. The dead are: Fay Rhodes, living near Deepwater; Fay Peterman and Horace Bartley of Clinton, all about 18 years old. A fourth member of the party, Ernest Gumm of Clinton, was injured, although not seriously. The accident was at a broken-down bridge over Deepwater Creek. The car, a racer, turned over and pinned all the party except Gumm under it.

Special Cars for Democrats.

St. Louis delegates to the Democratic State Convention which opens Tuesday at Springfield have reserved eight special cars which will be moved to Springfield on Frisco Railroad trains today and tomorrow. The special cars will be attached to three trains leaving St. Louis Union Station at 9:20 a. m. and 11 p. m. today and 9:20 a. m. tomorrow. Each car will transport about 50 passengers.

Lecture on Civilization's Ills.

Miss Edith Picton-Turbervill, a social service worker of London, will speak on "Can the Ills of Civilization Be Cured?" at the annual luncheon of the Board of Religious Organizations to be held at Hotel Chase at 12:30 p. m. tomorrow.

HUSBAND DENIES HE HAS MILLIONS

F. J. Stuart Opposes $200 Month Maintenance for Wife Pending Divorce.

There was a difference of $1,000,000 in estimates of the wealth of Frank J. Stuart, made yesterday at a hearing before Circuit Judge McElhinney at Clayton, on Mrs. Stuart's application for maintenance pending trial of the husband's divorce suit.

Mrs. Stuart said her husband is at least a millionaire. Stuart, who is chairman of the board of the Consolidated Steel and Iron Corporation and president of the Plapao Laboratories, Inc., said he wasn't worth anything in a financial way. He later qualified this by saying whatever securities he held were pledged as collateral and that his fortune is in an "incipient" stage, depending upon successful promotion of the Consolidated company.

Mrs. Stuart, who resides at the Fairmount Hotel, testified that she was earning $500 a week as a musical comedy prima donna prior to her marriage to Stuart. She is asking for $200 a month maintenance and for expenses of her litigation. Judge McElhinney took the application under advisement after hearing both parties.

Stuart's attorney commented on the ease with which Mrs. Stuart reeled off figures on stocks, bonds and other items of her husband's wealth. Mrs. Stuart replied: "Mr. Stuart often told me I was a dumbbell, but even a dumbbell could keep those figures in her head when he was forever telling me, morning, noon and night, how almighty rich he was."

On one occasion Stuart, according to his wife, said he intended to become a multimillionaire, and on another he boasted: "I'm foolish like a fox; only God and myself know how rich I am."

"No, I didn't, but his two former wives had to do that to get their alimony," was the reply.

Mrs. Stuart said Stuart had promised to give her $100,000 in stock after their marriage, but had failed to keep his word. She also charged he was niggardly with expenditure, whereas he accuses her of being extravagant.

MARRIED 50 YEARS AND NO DEATHS IN THEIR FAMILY

7 Children and 14 Grandchildren, Including 4 East St. Louisans, Attend Celebration.

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Farthing was celebrated yesterday in the home at Odin, Ill., in which they have resided during their married life of 50 years. No deaths ever have occurred in the family, the seven children and 14 grandchildren all being present at the celebration.

Farthing retired from the practice of law several years ago, having served four terms as State's Attorney of Marion County. His first case was tried before Judge Silas L. Bryan, father of William Jennings Bryan, and he served as a pallbearer at his funeral.

The children present at the celebration were Mrs. Lulu M. Chamberlin, Mineral Wells, Tex.; Dr. Charles H. Farthing, Meeker, Colo.; Miss Nellie M. Farthing, East St. Louis; Mrs. Grace E. Heely, St. Libory, Ill.; Mrs. F. E. Henry, East St. Louis, and Attorneys Paul and Chester Farthing of East St. Louis. Paul Farthing, although blind since the age of 12, is Democratic candidate for Supreme Court Judge in the First Illinois Judicial District.

Mr. Farthing is 77 years old, and Mrs. Farthing is 71. Paul Farthing's birthday also was celebrated yesterday.

This Saloonman's Mighty Glad He Didn't 'Cheat' Law

Andy Schaefer Points Out Value of Clear Conscience in Discussing Move to Padlock All East St. Louis Bars But His.

When prohibition went into effect in 1920 Andy Schaefer, who was then proprietor of a saloon in the stockyards district in East St. Louis, hung out the "nothing doing" card for thirsty customers, moved his somewhat depleted stock of aged whisky from his saloon and continued to operate his business as a soft-drink parlor.

That he has continued to conduct a legitimate business since is shown by the statement Friday of Aissistant District Attorney Walcott to the effect that steps to close every saloon but one in East St. Louis are being taken by the Government.

L. F. Summerall, special representative of the United States Treasury Department, is in East St. Louis with a staff of Washington assistants and padlock injunction proceedings against more than 200 East St. Louis saloons are being prepared. The Federal Court will be asked to padlock the saloons for one year.

Klan Paid Investigators.

Evidence against the East St. Louis saloon keepers has been obtained by paid investigators of the Ku Klux Klan. Bench warrants have been served on approximately 200 St. Clair County saloon keepers and women rooming-house proprietors since the drive started three weeks ago. Federal officials have announced that about 350 bench warrants will be issued as the result of the ylan clean-up compaign. The injunction proceedings will be based on the charges made by the klan investigators.

Schaefer's customary smile changed to a broad grin yesterday when a Post-Dispatch reporter informed him that he had been named by Walcott as the single saloon keeper against whom klansmen have been unable to obtain evidence. He knew he was innocent of any wrongdoing, he said, but he didn't know but what an attempt had been made to "frame" him, he stated.

.. Doubted Law Would Stay.

"When prohibition went into effect I never dreamed it would remain a law as long as it has," Schaefer said yesterday. "However, I was determined not to violate the law, so I moved my liquor stock and sold only soft drinks. My location was not good, so in 1921 I moved to 400 Collinsville avenue. I've been at this location since."

A large crowd of customers was in the saloon and Schaefer accounted for the rushing business by explaining that Saturday is always a fairly busy day. The crowd had also gathered, he said, to watch the score of the Brown-Cardinal ball game.

Schaefer asserted he has had sufficient legitimate business since prohibition to "make a living" but he also stated he hasn't "gotten rich."

"The greatest pleasure I get out of keeping within the law is a clear conscience," Schaefer said. "I'm not always worried, like most saloon keepers, about having sold to a prohibition agent or government informer.

"I am opposed to prohibition as I don't believe it is the sentiment of the people and about all it has done is to drive most of the better class of men out of the saloon business. They have been succeeded by a lower element that has gotten rich through violating th laws of the country.

"It feels mighty good not to have 'cheated' on the Government, but it feels almost as good to get up each morning and start the day with a good drink of whisky. I wouldn't be able to do that if I had 'cheated.'"

19 INDICTMENTS RETURNED IN PUXICO (MO.) BANK CRASH

Stoddard County Grand Jury Returns True Bills in Failure Involving Father and Son.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BLOOMFIELD, Mo.,—April 12.—Nineteen indictments were returned today by the Stoddard County Grand Jury which has been investigating the muddl finances of the Bank of Puxico during the last ten days. Names of those indicted and the nature of the charges were not made public, but it is possible that there is a multiplicity of charges against one or more persons, as was the case after the failure of the Night and Day Bank in St. Louis.

The failure is explained by the oft-repeated story of individual control of a bank, and of heavy purchase of land at inflated values D. F. Walser was president of the Bank of Puxico and his son, J. P. Walser, cashier, and they were the active heads. They are said to have admitted that they, together with the Walser Land & Investment Co. —their company—owe the bank about $80,000, the supposed approximate amount of the shortage found in its accounts. They have declared that there was nothing illegal in their transactions, which involved heavy purchase of land in Southeastern Missouri. The elder Walser is in a hospital at Cape Girardeau, recovering from an operation for gall stones, and his son is said to be working in Detroit.

Closing the day before Christmas last year, the failure of the bank brought gloom and financial stringency to the town of Puxico. It was the larger of two institutions there. About 100 witnesses were heard in the grand jury inquiry, including many former depositors and State Finance Department officials, under the supervision of which the bank operated.

F. C. Kinder of Poplar Bluff is Special Deputy State Finance Commissioner in charge of liquidating the bank. It is believed here that depositors will receive about 20 cents on the dollar. The capital of $50,000 and surplus of $10,000 are said to have been wiped out, the officers having been principal stockholders.

Doug and Mary Start Round World

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford sailed on the Olympic today on their "first vacation in two years," a trip that is to take them back to California by way of the Far East. Doug insisted that Mary was the brighter star in the Fairbanks-Pickford constellation. "Why," he said, "when I get on the other side, they all say, 'Oh, there goes Mr. Pickford.'"

EVELYN NESBIT INTERFERES WITH FREEDOM OF THAW

Divorced Wife of Slayer Judged Insane Says Son, 13, Must Be Protected.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 12.—Unexpected opposition to efforts of Harry K. Thaw to effect his release from the Pennsylvania Hospital for Mental and Nervous Diseases, by a jury trial to determine his sanity, developed today when Evelyn Nesbit, his divorced wife, filed a petition in court here to be permitted to intervene in the proceedings in behalf of her son, Russell William Thaw, 13 years old.

Miss Nesbit's petition states that Russell has an expectant interest in the estate of Harry K. Thaw and an interest in the estate of the latter's father, the late William Thaw, which he takes through Harry K. Thaw. The petition states:

"Your petitioner is informed and believes, and therefore avers, that the said Harry Kendall Thaw has not fully recovered his normal mental condition and is still a lunatic, and that if he should be freed from restraint at the preesnt time and his estate restored to him, would dissipate, and probably wholly destroy, the interest which the said Russell William Thaw has in the estate of Harry Kendall Thaw and the said William Thaw, deceased."

Thaw's application for his freedom from the asylum will come before common pleas court Monday on his own petition to have his sanity determined by a jury. His mother, Mary C. Thaw, joined him in the petition. Trustees for Thaw's estate were given permission to have their own alienists examine Thaw. It was reported that they had not found him to be mentally fit to be released. Five alienists appointed in behalf of Thaw are said to have pronounced him sane after an examination.

CORONER ASKS POLICE TO INVESTIGATE NURSE'S DEATH

She Is Said to Have Died From Poisoning Following Illegal Operation.

The Coroner has asked the police to investigate the circumstances of the death of Miss Mary Elizabeth Spence, 29 years old, at the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium, Thursday night, from poisoning, which followed an alleged illegal operation. Miss Spence, a trained nurse, resided at 4219 Olive street with a sister, Miss Buda Spence.

Drs. J. H. Barto and C. A. Poe, who were called in consultation on the case, reported that Miss Spence told them the operation had been performed by a midwife whose name and address she did not give. When her condition became serious she went to the Williams Hospital, 4206 Lindell boulevard, for treatment, registering under the name of "Mary Brown," and later was removed to the Sanitarium. She gave "Mary Brown" as her name, she explained, to keep the news of her condition from relatives.

The body was taken to Silex, Mo., her home, for burial.

ROBBERS ASK FOR WATER AND THEN TAKE $668 WITH GUNS

"You're the Gentlemen We Want," Is Greeting Victim Gets as He Arrives With Payroll.

Two men who asked for a drink of water in the offices of the garage of the Automobile Gasoline Co., 418 South Theresa avenue, at 12:30 p. m. yesterday, took the drink of water and then drew revolvers and took $668 payroll money.

James Regan, in charge of the office, was alone when the men entered. They had started to search him when Regan's brothers, Frank and William, drove up in a coupe and walked unsuspectingly inside.

"Oh, you're the gentlemen we want," said one of the robbers, and he took the money, which had just been obtained from a downtown bank, from an inside pocket of Frank Regan. The three brothers were forced to line up against a rear wall and the robbers backed out and drove away in the coupe. It was later found abandoned at Virginia avenue and La Salle street.

Fire Destroys City Restaurant.

A fire of undetermined origin destroyed a two-story frame building at the foot of North Market street, operated by the city as a restaurant for city employes working at the municipal docks, at 7:30 p. m. yesterday, causing a loss of about $500. The place had formerly been used as a Government radio station, and some property left there was also destroyed. The damage was covered by insurance.

Tennis Body Names Team For Olympics

Tilden Heads List Although Barred by Player-Writer Rule—Richards, Williams and Washburn Are Others.

DAVIS CUP SQUAD' OF 15 IS SELECTED

Miss Wills, Miss Goss, Mrs. Jessup and Mrs. Wightman Will Form Women's Team in Paris Tourney.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Selection of players who will represent America in international court competition this season was announced today by the Davis Cup Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

The committee picked four men and four women stars for the first organized attempt this country has ever made to lift Olympic laurels and, departing radically from previous custom "named a Davis Cup squad" of 15 ranking stars from whom the defenders of the international team trophy will be drawn.

William T. Tilden II of Philadelphia, national champion, heads both the Olympic team and Davis Cup selections in spite of the prospect that the Olympic player-writer rule bars him from competing at Paris. His Olympic teammates are Vincent Richards of Yonkers, N. Y., who also faces the players-writer barrier; Watson M. Washburn of New York, and R. Norris Williams II of Philadelphia. Williams was named captain and Washburn alternate leader.

Mrs. Wightman Captain.

The women's Olympic team is composed of Miss Helen Wills of Berkeley, Cal., national champion; Miss Eleanor Goss of New York; Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup of Wilmington, Del., and Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman of Boston, who will act as captain.

The Davis Cup Committee explained that it had considered the player-writer rule thoroughly and, while admitting it might bar both Tilden and Richards, pointed out that in inviting them to join the team, it was stipulated they must, if the invitation be accepted, consent to such interpretation of the Olympic Committee rule as shall be made by the Davis Cup Committee.

To meet such emergencies as may arise through this situation or withdrawals for any other reason, the committee held several alternates. For the men, these are Francis T. Hunter, New York; Howard and Robert Kinsey, San Francisco, and Carl Fischer, Philadelphia. For the women: Miss Lillian Scharman, Brooklyn; Miss Leslie Bancroft and Miss Edith Sigourney, Boston.

Ranking 15 Are Named.

In addition to competing in the Olympics the women's team will play a British women's team at London in June for the Wightman trophy, which was won last year by the American stars at Forest Hills, N. Y., in the first competition for it.

The Olymuic tennis tournament is slated for July 13 to 20.

Tennis officials took their first step award preparing to defend the Davis cup when the first 15 American ranking stars were named as eligibles for the international contest. This was done at the suggestion of several former international stars, it was stated, not only so that the player might know well in advance that they were being considered but also to give the committee a more practical basis on which to conduct its selections.

The committee also urged that these players form doubles teams among themselves to play continuously throughout the season, thus developing a higher standard of doubles play than has existed heretofore. In recent years doubles combinations have been the chief problem of Davis cup selections committees.

Meeting to Be Held in June.

The Davis Cup squad is composed to Tilden, Williams, Fischer and Wallace Johnson of Philadelphia; William M. Johnson, Robert and Howard Kinsey, and Clarence Griffin of San Francisco; Richards, Hunter and Washburn.

French Promoter Drops Dundee-Criqui Match Negotiations

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 12.—Johnny Dundee's demand for a guarantee of $50,000, with training expenses and three round-trip tickets between New York and Paris, has caused Dave Solal, the French boxing promoter, to abandon the idea of a match between Dundee, world's featherweight champion, and Eugene Criqui, the former title holder, at the Velodrome.

This was announced today by Solal, who has been negotiating with the idea of bringing off the match at the Velodrome on June 1.

Thorndale, Derby Candidate, Wins Feature at Bowie

Rama Overcomes Early Interference to Finish Second in Prince George Handicap.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, April 12.—Thorndale, a 3-year-old son of Sir Martin and Maud B. L. which has engagements in the Preakness and the Kentucky Derby, won his second race of the Bowie meeting today, beating just about the best field that has gone to the post at that track in the Prince George Handicap of $5000 added at one mile and a sixteenth.

Thorndale was much the best of the seven that went to the post. Marinelli rated him off the early pace of Reparation until the field reached the back stretch. There Thorndale moved up and taking a lead of three lengths held it easily to the end. Rama overcame some early interference and closed with a rush on the inside, beating Reparation, which tired under top weight of 126 pounds, by five lengths.

Reparation was a well-played favorite. Thorndale paid $7.80 straight, $4.50 place and $2.90 show. The time was 1:49.

A crowd that packed the grand stand to capacity came out to Prince George Park for the last Saturday's racing of the meeting and saw some good sport. Favorites were kinder to their backers than on Friday.

Lord Granite ran back to his race on the opening day of the meeting and beat J. S. Cosden's Good Times in the Dome Handicap at six furlongs, which was second in interest to the race Thorndale won. Good Times showed a high turn of early speed which Lord Granite was cleverly raeed off the pace until straightened out in the stretch. There he made his bid and catching the tiring Good Times in the last furlong, won by four lengths. James F. O'Hara was third.

COUNTRY DAY NINE DEFEATS KIRKWOOD 7-4 IN 7-INNING GAME

Country Day School defeated Kirkwood High School yesterday morning, 7 to 4, in a seven-inning game at Country Day Field. Maschoff and Huernen hurled for Kirkwood and struck out 10 Country Day batters. But they allowed nine hits and these, with four errors charged to Kirkwood, enabled Country Day to win.

Bauchens, on the mound for Country Day, allowed but four safe hits and in addition he led his team in batting with a double and a triple in three times at bat. Short, Country Day's catcher, drove in four of his team's seven runs with two singles.

Wals hand Bopp were the only Kirkwood batters to hit Bauchens safely, each of them getting two hits.

SUTTNER SETS MABK FOR 400-METER RUN

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 12.—Melvin Suttner, former Syracuse University middle-distance star, established a new American indoor record for the 400-meter run here today, running the distance in 49 4-5 seconds. The former record of 50 2-5 seconds was made by Jake Driscoll of Boston.

Pikers Win In Triangular Track Meet

Rider's Team Rolls Up 101 Points Against McKendree and Rolla—Blanchard and Anderwert Star.

Washington University's track team found little competition in the Missouri School of Mines (Rolla) and McKendree College athletes, and as a result the Pikers literally ran away with first honors in the triangular meet at Francis Field yesterday. Coach George Rider's outfit won first place in 14 of the 16 events and piled up a total of 101 points. McKendree was second with 23½ points and Rolla third with 10½.

With the exception of the javelin and discus throw, which were won by McKendree, the Pikers won every event without having to extend themselves.

Only two events, the broad jump and the javelin throw, were productive of good marks. Blanchard of Washington captured the running broad jump with a leap of 22½ feet. The javelin throw was won by Goode of McKendree with a heave of 181 feet and 4 inches. Goode, who is a freshman, last year won the national interscholastic title and is rated among the country's best performers in this branch of competition.

Blanchard Scores 15 Points.

Ralph Blanchard was the ace of the Piker squad and took individual honors for the day. In addition to winning the broad jump, Blanchard captured first place in both the high and low hurdles and ran on the winning half-mile relay team. He scored 15 points.

Goode led the McKendree scorers and pressed Blanchard closely for individual honors. Beside winning the javelin throw, he took first place with the discus and placed second in the shot-put for a total of 13 points.

Anderwert, Washington's dash star, also figured prominently in the scoring. He won both the 100 and 220-yard dashes and ran a fast lap for the half-mile relay quartet.

Isom of McKendree scored six points, placing in four events. He won second place in the shot-put and placed third in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and in the high jump.

The Pikers' next competition will be at the University of Kansas relays this week. The Pikers will be represented by Anderwert in the dashes, Capt. Bier, conference champion, in the 440, Blanchard in the hurdles and broad jump, Mitchell in the pole vault and Hageman in the high jump. The half-mile relay team, composed of Anderwert, Blanchard, Threlkeld and Bier, will also be entered.

The summaries:

100-YARD DASH — ANDERWERT, Washington, won; Schrorer, Washington, second; Isom, McKendree, third. Time, 10 1-10 seconds.

MILE RUN—SCHWARZ, WASHINGTON, won; Rehmus, McKendree, second; Ravenstein, McKendree, third. Time, 5:00 2-5.

SHOT PUT—FISK, WASHINGTON, WON; Goode, McKendree, second; Gabler, Rolla, third. Distance 36 feet, 3½ inches.

220-YARD DASH — ANDERWERT, Washington, won; Isom, McKendree, second; Hancock, Washington, third. Time, 23 4-10 seconds.

120-YARD HIGH HURDLES—BLANCHARD, Washington, won; Hutson, Washington, second; Burg, Rolla, third. Time, 16 seconds.

POLE VAULT—MITCHELL, WASHINGTON, won; Fisher, McKendree, second. Height 10 feet.

JAVELIN — GOODE, McKENDREE, won; Fisk, Washington, second; McClauchlan, Rolla, third. Distance 181 feet 4 inches.

440-YARD RUN—CARROLL, WASHINGTON, won; Bier, Washington, second; Frey, McKendree, third. Time 54 7-10 seconds.

880-YARD RUN—WILLMANN, WASHINGTON, won; Grubbs, Washington, second; Runge, Rolla, third. Time, 2m. 1 6-10s.

HIGH JUMP—HAGEMAN AND CANTWELL, Washington, tied for first; Williams, Rolla and Isom, McKendree, tied for third. Height 5 feet 6 inches.

Looks Like the Smile That Won't Come Off

GEORGE SISLER

Sisler Batted .500 and Fielded Perfectly in First Game of Series

GEORGE SISLER batted .500 and fielded perfectly in the game with the Cardinals yesterday afternoon. A detailed account of what Sisler did at bat follows:

First Inning: The first two pitches were balls. Sherdel put the next one over and Sisler fouled it. The fourth pitch was a ball. Sisler fouled the next one down the left field line and Lavan narrowly missed making a good catch. The next pitch was a high fast ball and Sisler swung and missed.

Fourth Inning: George worked the call to three balls and two strikes, and then swung at a fast ball, and lined a triple into the crowd banked against the fence in right center. The drive would have been good for three bases on a clear field, with Sisler doing the running, so the ground rules did not aid him.

Fifth Inning: Sisler picked on a slow ball and grounded to Freigau, who threw him out at first base.

Eighth Inning: Sherdel again offered Sisler a slow ball. George timed it perfectly and lined a single to right. He then tried to steal second, but Holm's perfect throw to Bell cut him down.

Sisler turned several fine plays at first base, two of them standing out as particularly brilliant.

In the second inning Bottomley hit to Gerber, who made a low and wide throw to first. Sisler stretched far out to his right and picked the ball out of the dust with his gloved hand.

In the sixth inning, with Douthit on first base and one out, Bottomley flied to Tobin. Douthit thought the hit was safe and took too large a lead off first. Tobin threw to first and Sisler scooped the ball out of the dust on a short hop to complete a double play.

COLLINS TO MANAGE AMERICAN OLYMPIC GAMES SOCCER TEAM

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 12.—Peter J. Peel, president of the United States Football Association, declared in a statement issued today that the removal of T. W. Cahill from the office of secretary of the soccer organization was due to inefficiency and insubordination in office and violent and abusive conduct toward officials.

Cahill took up the affairs of the association without consulting proper officials and exceeded the authority of his office in transacting important business, Peel said.

He announced that Lieut.-Col. G. R. Manning of New York has accepted the position vacated by Cahill on the Olympic committee of the association and on the American Olympic Committee, and that George M. Collins of Boston has accepted the position of manager of the American soccer team for the Olympic games.

$2000 OFFERED FOR MATCH BETWEEN HOPPE AND RALPH GREENLEAF

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 12.—An offer of $2000 for a three-game match at three-cushion billiards between Willie Hoppe, world's 18.2 balkline champion, and Ralph Greenleaf, world's title holder at pocket billiards, was made here today by L. A. Bensinger, chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Championship Three-Cushion Billiard League.

Chicago would be the scene of the match, the offer for which would bring to an issue the claim of Hoppe that he is as good at three cushions as at balkline.

PRE-SEASON STATEMENTS BUNK, SAYS LANDIS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 12.—K. M. Landis, who gets $50,000 a year as the supreme dictator of baseball, tonight issued one of the shortest statements on the opening of the season ever made by any executive connected with the game. He said: "I have nothing to say. These pre-season statements are the bunk. Good-bye."

Coibions Win Women's Pin Title

Score of 2535 First in Handicap Tourney—Angelicas Second.

The Coibion Recreation five won the team championship in the women's city handicap tenpin tournament with a score of 2535 The teams finished play at the Washington alleys yesterday. The winners receive five gold medals in addition to a cash prize. The Coibions also rolled the best scratch score of the tournament, 2427. Members of the team are: Mrs. W. R. Smith, Mrs. E. Gassner, Mrs. J. W. Martin, Mrs. E. Drozda and Mrs. O. C. Berghaus

In the doubles event, which has not been concluded, one team composed of Miss M. Wehrenbrecht and Miss K. King and another of Mrs. J. Tschudy and Mrs. A. Meyers rolled 1066 last night tied for second place. Mrs. A. Gadtreich and Mrs. E. J. Geagan are leading in this event with a score of 1083.

Miss C. Mosier rolled 566, the best score in the singles yesterday, which gives her sixth place. Mrs. J. Schulte is leading the individuals with a score of 641.

The prize list for the teams follows: Coibion Recreation No. 1, $30 and five gold medals; Angelicas, $30; Schlesinger Five, $25; Kelly's Five, $20; Washingtons, $15; Hahns, $12; Falstaffs, $11; Petersons, $10; Weicks, $9; Missouri Pacific Statistical Dept., $8; Mississippi Valleys, $7; Edrus, $7; Deweys, $6; Missouri Pacific Tie & Timber, $6; Fashion Plates, $5; Mercantiles, $5.

M'GRAW AND COMISKEY DISCUSS PLANS FOR TOUR

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 12.—John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, today discussed with President Comiskey of the White Sox, in the hospital, where the "Old Roman" is recovering from an operation, the plans for another European tour of the two clubs next fall.

McGraw said he was especially pleased that the Sox had obtained Frank Chance as manager and predicted that the old interest and rivalry of the New York and Chicago clubs, when Chance was the "Peerless Leader" of the Cubs, would be transferred to the Sox and Yankees.

Williams and Hornsby Hit Homers; Crowd of 22,000 Sees Contest

Pruett and Shocker Hold Rickeymen to Six Hits—Brownies Pound Sherdel for Eight Safeties, Five of Them for Extra Bases.

By J. Roy Stockton,

Twenty-two thousand persons gathered at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon for the spring exhibition game between the Browns and Cardinals. It was a critical crowd. It wanted to see for itself whether there was any truth in the reports from the South that George Sisler was rapidly regaining the skill that made him the greatest ball player of them all in 1922. It was a friendly crowd, but critical.

It showed its friendly feeling by cheering Sisler when he first ran out of the Brownie dughout with the other players, to participate in batting practice. It cheered when he batted in practice. It cheered whenever he did anything. But there was a reserve about the cheering during the preliminaries.

When fielding practice started and Jimmy Austin began to chop grounders to the infield the crowd sat in silence. The 22,000 waited silently for Jimmie to get around to Sisler. And when Sisler took the first grounder cleanly and pegged it to Marty McManus at second base and then gracefully returned to first in time to take McManus' return throw there was a ripple of joy along with the hand clapping. The reserve was wearing off, but it was still there, for the crowd was still critical.

Why sholdn't it be? The same fans had heard last April that George wold be all right in May and then in June and then in July. And month in and month out the fans saw the Browns plub along without Sisler. And yesterday the fans remembered. They were critical. They wanted to see for themselves. They were not to be hmbgged.

Sisler Strikes Out.

When Sisler came to bat the first time in the ball game, the applause was thunderous. And when George fouled off several and missed a swing at a high fast ball for a third strike, the crowd was still friendly, but critical and reserved. It had not been shown yet that Sisler had come back.

Sisler came to bat next in the fourth inning, being the first Brownie batter that inning. The stands were silent this time, as profoundly silent as the audience at a thrilling drama. The crowd had cheered George, for what he has been and what he now was—a game man trying to come back. But it wanted to be convinced. This was a new season. Let George do his stuff.

George offered at no bad balls, fouled off two and then worked the call to two strikes and three balls. Sherdel had fooled George on a fast one before he tried it again. The ball sailed toward the plate and was about to cut the inside corner when Sisler swung. His bat met the ball solidly and the ball traveled on a line to right-center, crashing into the overflow crowd banked against the fence.

At last the crowd surrendered. The critical stands threw aside all reserve and a tumultous roar that would have done credit to a home run winning a world's championship, arose from grand stand and bleachers. At last the crowd was satisfied. George' work afield already had satisfied the spectators, but a player must hit the ball to be a great baseball player and Sisler had crashed out a line drive that would have been good for three bases in any man's ball park, and had hit the triple off a smart major league left-hander. And for the rest of the afternoon the 22,000 feasted their eyes on this remarkable young man who in the face of a discouraging vision impairment had gamely beaten back until he once more was a baseball hero

Brownies Win, 4 to 1.

This was supposed to be a contest between the Browns and Cardinals and viewed in that light it eventuated that the Browns defeated the National League team, 4 to 1.

It was a highly pleasing afternoon all around. There was a tremendous home run by Rogers Hornsby to please the National League rooters and for the American League partisans who worship at the shrine of the hefty wallop there was a four-base blow by Kenneth Williams, the young man from Grant's Pass, Ore., who swings a mighty bludgeon.

Then there was brilliant pitching by Hubert Pruett, who held the Cardinals to four hits in six innings and displayed an assortment of curve sufficiently puzzling to warrant the belief that the little left-hander from Missouri Univer-

The Cardinals will be the "at home" club today and they will wear their white uniforms and use the dugout behind third base. The Cardinals will open the season at home Tuesday against the Chicago Cubs, while the Browns will journey to Chicago to inaugurate the American League season against the White Sox Tuesday.

CASSIN TAKES LEAD IN ALL EVENTS OF CITY PIN TOURNEY

F. J. Cassin went into first place in the all-events in the city handicap bowling tournament on the Washington alleys last night with a total of 1813 for the nine games. He totaled 618 in the five-man, 635 in doubles and 560 in the singles.

In the doubles competition, Rankert and Metcalf were high with 1243, which included a handicap of 138 pins. Welu and Cassin counted 1238 and Deen and Martin 1214, for the only other 1200 counts.

C. Dombach paced the singles with 666, which included a donation of 72 pins. Other 600 totals were registered by Harris with 644, Krieg 634, and Metcalf 622.

If the Browns Could Raise the Rent, They Might Raze That Old Grandstand and Build a New One

Six American League Teams to Inaugurate 1924 Campaign With Practically Veteran Line-Ups

Athletics and Red Sox Only Clubs to Make Any Sweeping Changes—Cleveland Will Have Eight Men of .300 Caliber in Batting Order—Yanks a Standpat Team.

By Herman Wecke,

With the exception of two clubs—the Athletics and Red Sox—teams in the American League will open the season Tuesday with veteran lineups. Of course, the greatest interest comes right here in St. Louis, where George Sisler will make his debut as a manager and, resume his first place play after a season's idleness. However both the Mackmen and Boston have made important changes.

Connie Mack has added two heavy hitting outfielders, Strand and Simmons, and has a new second-sacker in Bishop. The Red Sox have made even more changes. Harris, Wamby and Lee will be newcomers in the infield; Veach and Boone in the outfield and O'Neill, late of Cleveland, will do the bulk of the catching.

Except for these two clubs, newcomers will have a hard task breaking in as regulars.

The usual number of new pitchers have been added to the rosters of the various teams, but time alone will tell what they will be able to accomplish.

A resume of the various teams, not including the Browns, follows:

The Yankees.

ONLY three newcomers will be with the world's champion Yankees this season, and but one of this number—Combs, the $50,000 beauty from Louisville—has a chance to break in as a regular. Combs, who has loomed up as a real star since joining the team, may force Whitey Witt out of the regular outfield lineup.

The others to make good with the team are Gaston, a young pitcher, and Gehrig, the slugging first sacker.

However, Huggins will rely on his veterans and his "Big Five" pitching staff, Jones, Hoyt, Shawkey, Bush and Pennock. In fact, Huggins recently asserted that he expected the quintet to win more games this season than in 1923.

The Yankee roster:

PITCHERS—Bush, Shawkey, Jones, Hoyt, Pennock, Roettger, Pipgras and Gaston.

CATCHERS — Schang, Hofmann and Bengough.

INFIELDERS—Pipp, Ward, Scott, Dugan, McNally, Johnson and Gehrig.

OUTFIELDERS — Meusel, Ruth, Witt, Combs, Haines, Hendricks.

The Indians.

WHEN Tris Speaker turns loose his band of athletes this summer, spectators will probably think that "Murderers' Row," made famous by the Yankees has been turned loose. For Speaker has a club, which from present indications will have eight regulars, all .300 hitters. There will be one new face, Burns, at first base, and he will be an improvement over Guisto and Brower, who played the position a year ago.

There is no question about the hitting and fielding ability of Speaker's gang. But the pitchers are no such certainty.

George Uhle is expected to come through with another winning year. Coveleskie, in spring games, has done well. According to Speaker, Morton is set for a big year. He has been with the club several years. Shaute, Edwards and Metevier, with the club in 1923, as recruits, are figured to be regulars. Except for pitchers no youngsters will have a chance to break in as regulars.

Indian roster:

PITCHERS—Uhle, Coveleskie, Morton, Smith, Shaute, Edwards, Metevier, Lindsey and Edmondson.

CATCHERS—Myatt, Sewell and Walters.

INFIELDERS—Burns, Stephenson, Sewell, Lutzke, Gardner, Fewster.

OUTFIELDERS—Speaker, Jamieson, Summa, Brower and McNulty.

The Athletics.

A TRIO of high-priced minor leaguers have been added to the Athletic roster by Connie Mack. The athletes are Strand, Simmons and Bishop. Each one swatted better than .300 in the minors last year and is expected to add to the "punch" of the Mackmen. Strand topped the Pacific Coast League in hitting and set several records; Simmons hit better than .300 in both the Texas and A. A. and Bishop was a star with Jack Dunn at Baltimore.

All have won regular jobs. Strand will be in center field; Simmons, who is not yet 21 years of age, in left and Bishop at second.

Other positions with the Mackmen will be manned by veterans. Hauser will be at first, Galloway at short and Hale at third. This is quite an infield. Mack has two fine substitutes in Dykes and Riconda. Miller will be the third outfielder with Welch in reserve. The catching will be taken care of by Perkins and Bruggy.

Whether Connie will get pitching is unknown. He has Rommel, Harris, Hasty, Naylor and Heimach as veterans. Ogden, a former collegian, should improve. Of the newcomers Burns, Gray and Meeker have impressed.

Connie's players:

PITCHERS—Rommel, Harris, Hasty, Naylor, Burns, Gray, Meeker, Ogden and Walberg.

CATCHERS—Perkins, Bruggy and Gibson.

INFIELDERS—Hauser, Bishop, Galloway, Hale, Dykes and Riconda.

OUTFIELDERS—Miller, Simmons, Strand and Welch.

The Tigers.

TY COBB, manager of the Tigers, has new worries this spring. In past seasons it has been his pitching staff. Now it is the infield. Topper Rigney has been ailing and it is not at all certain that he will be able to play at his best, although he has again rejoined the club. If Rigney goes wrong, Cobb will have to rely on Kerr or Burke.

The veteran Del Pratt seems to have won the second base job. Blue will be at first and Jones at third. Manush will be in the outfield with Cobb and Heilmann, although Wingo and Fothergill are real sluggers.

Cobb expects to have a real pitching staff with Dauss, Cole, Johnson and Pillette as regulars. Holloway, with the team last year, has improved. Whitehill, Stoner, Good, Ludolph and Clark are youngsters who have shown ability and some of them will be retained.

The Tiger roster:

Pitchers—Dauss, Cole, Johnson, Pillette, Holloway, Whitehill, Stoner, Good, Ludolph and Clark.

Catchers—Bassler, Manion and Woodall.

Infielders—Blue, Pratt, Rigney, Jones, Burke and Kerr.

Outfielders—Cobb, Heilmann, Manush, Wingo and Fothergill.

The Red Sox.

WHEN the Red Sox take the field in the opening game of the season, under the leadership of Lee Fohl, the team will without a doubt show more changes than any aggregation in the big tent. Only one veteran of 1923 will be in the infield; the same is true of the outfield, while the club's ace catcher will be a newcomer.

Last season, the Sox were doormats in the American League. Trades and purchases, however, have brought many good players to the Boston team and they are expected to make a good showing. Dudley Lee, new shortstop, at one time with the Browns, is regarded as a sensation.

Ike Boone has won a regular berth in the outfield. He hit better than .400 in the Texas last season. Phil Todt, a St. Louis boy, is another who has made good. He plays the outfield or first base.

Fohl's work with the Red Sox will be watched with interest this season. He is known as a "builder" and there's no telling what he will accomplish.

The players Fohl will work with:

PITCHERS — Ehmke, Quinn, Fullerton, Ferguson, Murray, Fuhr, Howe, Ruffing and Ulrich.

CATCHERS — O'Neill, Picinich, Heving and Stokes.

INFIELDERS — Harris, Lee, Wambsganss, McMillan, Shanks, Todt, Herman, Clark and Geygan.

OUTFIELDERS — Flagstead, Veach, Boone, Collins, Connolly, and Williams.

The Nationals.

IF the Nationals make a better showing in the coming A. L. pennant race it will be due to the work of "Buck" Harris, new manager of the aggregation, and the pitching of the new additions to the hurling staff. Except for flingers it does not look as though any new athletes would be able to gain regular berths.

There is one uncertainty on the National infield. This is at third base. Bluege, the regular, has a bad knee, and chances are that Prothro will replace him for the opening game. The club seems to have picked up some good hurling prospects to help the veteran, Walter Johnson. Chief among these are McGrew, Marberry, Martina, Wingfield and Speece. Johnson has been flinging sensationally in spring games and is ready for the start.

The Washington roster:

PITCHERS — Johnson, Mogridge, Russell, Zachary, McGrew, Marberry, Zahniser, Martina, Wingfield and Speece.

CATCHERS—Ruel, Hargrave and Tate.

INFIELDERS—Judge, Harris, Peckinpaugh, Bluege, Prothro and Gagnon.

OUTFIELDERS—Rice, Goslin, Leibold, Fisher, Richbourg and Smith.

The White Sox.

FRANK CHANCE, former Peerless leader of the Cubs, if he ever reports to the White Sox (the day is now set for opening date) will probably face as tough a job as he ever tackled in his baseball career. Reports of discension in the Sox camp this spring have been numerous. Two outfield regulars, Hooper and Mostil, were holdouts and reported only recently.

From all indications, the Sox will start with practically a veteran lineup. The infield will be the same. Maurice Archdeacon, the St. Louis boy, who reported last fall, seems to have won a regular berth in the outfield. Schalk will again do the catching. Steengrafe is the only new pitcher who has been drawing praise for his work.

Unless Chance proves a real "miracle man" the Sox are destined for a berth far down the rung this season.

The Sox roster:

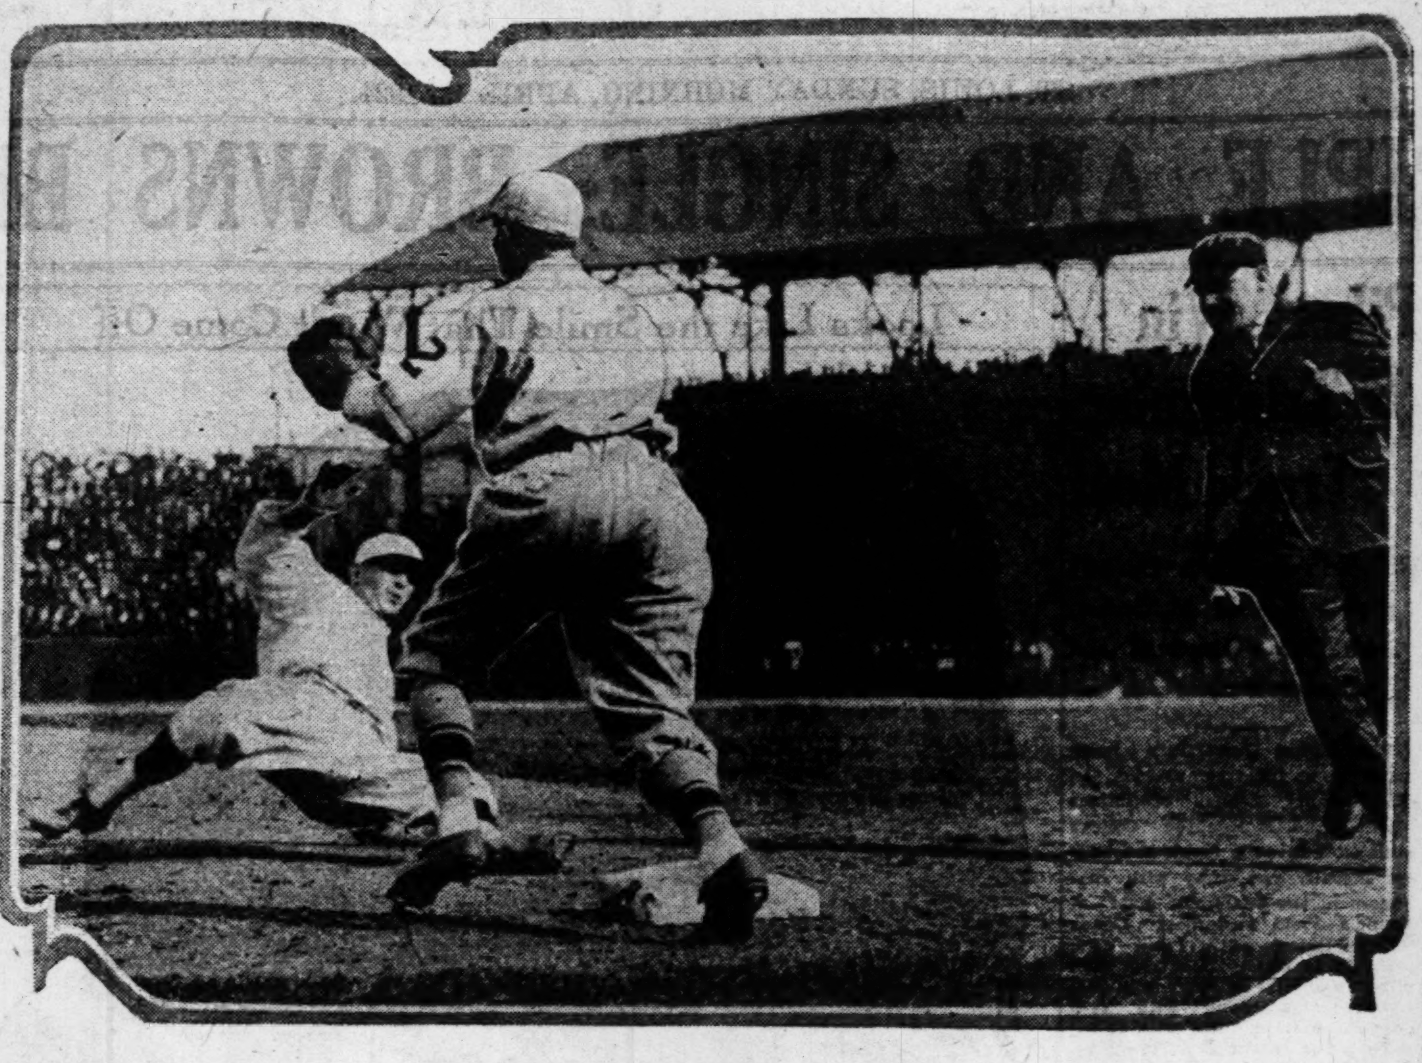
Pitchers: Faber, Davenport, Blankenship, Robertson, Leverette, Cvengros, Thurston, McWeeny, Lyons, Steengrafe, Moore and Conally.

Catchers: Schalk, Crouse and Burns.

Infielders: Sheely, Collins, McClellan, Kamm, Happenny, Martin and Barrett.

Outfielders: Hooper, Falk, Mostil, Archdeacon, Strunk and Elsh.

Marty McManus Triples to Center



The Brownies' great second baseman nursed a sore ankle all la st week, but he forgot about his injury when he tripled to center in the fourth inning yesterday. Soldan High Team Wins Track Meet Defeats E. St. Louis 54 to 37—Captures 8 Firsts in 12 Events.

Soldan High School defeated the track team of East St. Louis High School in a meet at the Soldan campus yesterday afternoon, 54 to 37. Soldan took first place in eight events against four first for East St. Louis.

Coach Flagg's charges captured first and third honors in the 100-yard dash and the miles run, took first place in both the high and the low hurdles events, the shot-put, pole vault, running broad jump and the relay race.

In the 880-yard run, Soldan failed to land a place. In the field events Soldan took every event except the high jump.

The meet opened the unofficial season for the Soldan team and disclosed that it has some good material which should enable it to rank high in the annual field meet to be held at Washington University the latter part of next month.

Soldan will oppose several of the local and county high school teams before the preliminaries of the final meet.

'It Was Not Dempsey's Fault That He Was Helped Back Into the Ring,' Asserts Firpo

World's Champion Did Not Commit Any Intentional Foul in Title Bout at Polo Grounds, Says Luis Angel.

By Luis Angel Firpo.
As Told to Alfred Mayer.
(Copyright, 1924.)

IN the fourth article of his "Experiences in America," Luis Angel Firpo, the South American heavyweight champion, tells of his bout with Jack Dempsey. He says "that men forget a lot about the rules in the heat of battle, and that he probably would have done just as Dempsey did had he knocked the title holder down seven times in one round." The article also gives some interesting facts concerning the Pampas Bull's earnings.

CHAPTER IV.

FIRPO'S critics may say that his training methods for Dempsey were all wrong. Possibly they were. They certainly were unique, but it is doubtful whether any other methods would have suited him as well as those he employed in conditioning himself. That he was strong there is no doubt. No one but a man in perfect physical condition could have gone down seven times in one round, then get up and knock the champion clear through the ropes of the ring.

It was decided by Firpo and his immediate friends in America and Argentina that his camp would be an all-Argentine affair. If Firpo won the championship then Argentina was to get the full credit. Felix Bunge, a millionaire of Buenos Aires, and an intimate friend of Firpo's undertook to guide him.

Firpo has explicit confidence in Bunge and whatever he says is law. Bunge first taught Firpo how to use his hands, and the South American never forgets a friend of that kind who made it possible for him to make a fortune. Bunge, therefore, sent a friend of his and of Firpo's to America—Horatio Lavalle.

Lavalle, also a wealthy young man who had boxed as an amateur for the love of the game, before his departure worked out with Bunge a plan of campaign that included everything. This plan was photographed and a copy was given to Lavalle while Bunge retained the other.

Advice Comes by Cable.

EVERY day Lavalle cabled to Bunge and told him everything that had occurred during the day's training. Bunge replied and gave additional advice. A small fortune was spent in cable tolls. Bunge actually cabled Lavalle how many rounds Firpo should box, how many miles he should do on the road, at what hour he should go to bed and at what hour he should arise.

These instructions were practically followed to the letter by Firpo. Every day a doctor took Firpo's pulse, breathing, heart action—in fact, everything that should be axamined in the vast mechanism of man. All this information was cabled to Bunge. Had it been possible, I have no doubt that instructions would have been cabled to the ringside during the progress of the battle.

It must be remembered that Lavalle didn't speak a word of English. Therefore, anything that he wished to protest about during the progress of the fight would have to be done through an interpreter. In view of the shortness of rest between rounds the impossibility of this situation will be realized.

Firpo took a cottage at Atlantic City which was a bit of Argentina transplanted in America. He had his own chef, a Uruguayan, who had been loaned to him by the Consul for Uruguay in New York. No English was spoken at all in the little white cottage-by-the-sea. Firpo majestically departed from his cottage to the training quarters in his automobile, accompanied by 'aficianades' (fans). His sparring partners were Jeff Clark (The Joplin Ghost); Young Bob Fitzsimmons, Joe McCann, Frank Koeble and Natalio Pera, the latter a native of Argentina. He boxed one round with each of these men, then did a little shadow boxing, and work was over for the day.

Suffered From Rheumatism.

IN the morning after the roadwork (if there was any), Firpo held court. Hundreds of newspapermen came to visit him. Photographers came to take pictures; Firpo was in his element. This lasted three weeks and at the end of that time he was pronounced fit by his trainers, Lavalle and Bunge.

Firpo did suffer from rheumatism in his left arm. This was a great source of worry to the two trainers, but despite electric massages the pain continued and Firpo undoubtedly suffered great pain in his left arm on the day of the fight.

Firpo's training methods, as we have said, have been condemned, but Firpo was perfectly pleased during his training and if he hadn't suffered that pain in his left arm I am sure he would have been very confident of winning. As it was, he expressed doubts long before the day of the match. He feared 'un fracas' (defeat) and repeated this almost until it was time for him to depart for the Polo Grounds. He was still obsessed with the idea that he shouldn't have fought Dempsey until next year.

Motion Pictures Tremendous Success in South America as Fans Never Tire of Seeing Jack Fly Through Ropes.

The Dempsey-Firpo fight is history now, though spectators will never agree on the details. Firpo insisted before the bout that no claim of fouls should be made in his behalf and under no circumstances were his seconds to throw in the towel. "If I lose I must be counted out in the ring by the referee," he declared.

This is how Firpo talked of the fight afterward:

Would Have Done Same.

DEMPSEY committed many fouls during our bout, but I doubt whether I wouldn't have done the same thing he did, had I knocked him down seven times in one round. He naturally was frightfully excited, the same as I was, and under those circumstances men forget a lot about the rules. I am satisfied that Dempsey didn't commit any intentional foul. The newspaper men had no business to help Dempsey back in the ring, but again that wasn't Dempsey's fault that they did and he took advantage of it the same as I would have done had I been knocked out of the ring and helped back."

Firpo's defeat was a terrific blow to South America. Funeral processions were held in many cities, but there is a silver lining to every cloud. This silver lining was found in the moving pictures. In South America they never get tired of seeing Dempsey flying through the ropes ,and the pictures have been a tremendous success.

At this time a brief review of Firpo's earnings and the length of time it took him to fight for the championship of the world is interesting. Firpo arrived in America on his first visit in January, 1922, and remained six months. During that time his earnings were as follows:

Sailor Maxted	$ 125
Joe McCann	1000
Italian Jack Herman	1500
	$2625

Firpo returned to the United States in February, 1923. He stayed six months and earned the following:

Brennan	$ 10,000
McAuliffe	15,000
Willard	79,000
Dempsey	100,000
Tour	30,000
Havana and Mexico	12,000
Exhibitions	15,000
Moving pictures	75,000
	$336,000

Add to this amount $58,000 for his fight with Tracy in South America and $2625 earned during his first visit and you have the neat total of nearly $400,000. Besides this amount, Firpo refused a 26 weeks' vaudeville engagement paying him $6000 a week. All this was accomplished in a little less than a year.

(The fifth article of the Firpo series will be published in next Sunday's Post-Dispatch.)

Woodring Injured, Will Not Compete In Olympic Tryout

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, April 12.

ALLAN H. WOODRING, former Syracuse University athlete and present Olympic 200-meter champion, has pulled a tendon in training for the Olympic tryouts, it was learned today.

Woodring was working out at Columbia University with Tommy Campbell, former Yale star, under the direction of Mel Shappard, former Irish-American middle distance star and Olympic winner, in a 500-yard trial when the accident occurred. The extent of the injury could not be determined today but it is expected that it will keep him out of Olympic competition.

Municipal Teams Play Title Game

Schumachers Oppose St. Malachy Soccer Eleven at Fairground Today.

The second game of the championship series of the Municipal Soccer League, involving the Schumacher team of Carondelet Park and the St. Malachy team of Forest Park, will be played this afternoon at Ground Two, Fairground Park.

The Schumachers will be declared municipal champions if they win today, but if the St. Malachys are victorious a third and deciding game will be played Wednesday. The champion team will play two exhibition games at Kansas City next Saturday and Sunday.

Because of superior team play, the Schumachers are expected to win. They established a marked superiority last Sunday in winning the first game of the series, three goals to one. The South Side team has been playing together for four years, with few changes, and some degree of co-ordination has been established. The St. Malachys are comparatively younger and less experienced.

The game will start at 2:30 p. m. An admission charge of 25 cents will be made to defray expenses of the Kansas City trip.

CHANCE SEES WHITE SOX DEFEAT GIANTS 2 TO 1 AND EVEN SERIES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 12. — Manager Frank Chance of the Chicago White Sox, wrapped up in a big overcoat, today saw his club even up the series with the New York Giants, National League pennant winners, 2 to 1, in 10 innings. The series now stands five-all with one game tied.

After the game, Chance expressed himself as well satisfied with the team, which has been in charge of Johnny Evers since the spring training started.

Recruit First Baseman Terry paved the way for the White Sox victory. After Mostil had opened the tenth inning with a double, Hooper sent a bunt to Terry who, in trying to nail Mostil at third, threw wild and Mostil scored.

NEW BICYCLE TRACK WILL BE CONSTRUCTED IN SHERMAN PARK

Plans for the bicycle race track which is to be constructed at Sherman Park have been completed. City officials and a committee from the various cycling clubs in St. Louis met last week and plans discussed. City officials have agreed to bank the turns, remove posts which are now in the way, and surface the track with a layer of clay.

The necessity for coating the track with clay and banking the turns is due to the fact that it is the old C. B. C. running track, which is flat and covered with cinders.

The new track will eliminate the dangers formerly encountered at the Fairgrounds, and cyclists are pleased at obtaining such a favorable spot to hold their races.

The principal thing that meets with the cyclists' disapproval are the two baseball diamonds in the center of the track. The fields are so situated that the catcher's box is on the inner edge of the track. This makes it almost impossible to make any bank at this point, or to run a race when a game is in progress. The city officals consented to make a slight bank at these points.

Work will be started immediately and the track will be ready for races which will be held the second Sunday in May.

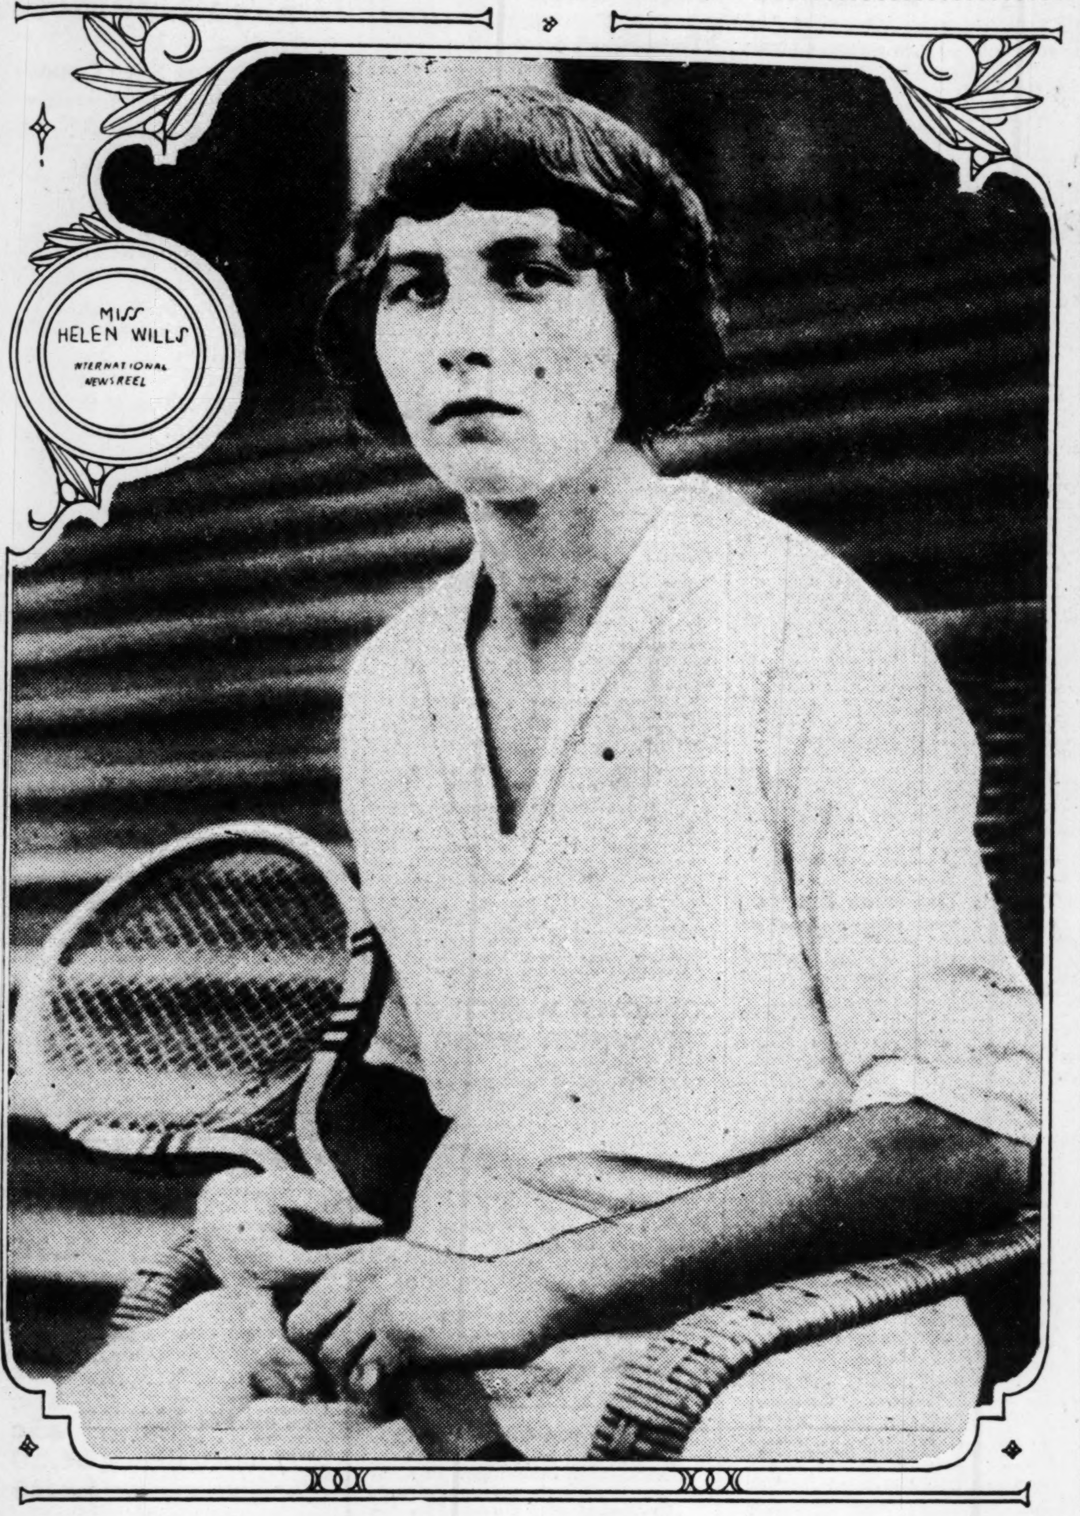
America's Hope in the Olympic Tennis Championship



Pikers Win Over Alumni, 8 to 3

Levy, Schlingman and Thym Hurl Good Ball—Marquard Is Pounded.

The Piker ball players, who battled the Alumni to a 9—9 tie last week, settled the dispute by handing the veterans an 8—3 trimming yesterday afternoon at Francis Field. Although the Alumni outbatted the Varsity 8 to 7, the feature of the game was the work of the Piker hurlers, who pitched airtight ball under pressure. Charley Levy, who pitched the first five innings for the Pikers, struck out eight batters and allowed only five hits. Schlingman and Thym, who finished the game for the undergraduates, were also effective.

The Pikers gained all their runs at the expense of Al Marquard, who started hurling for the Old Timers. Poge Lewis relieved him at the beginning of the sixth inning and held the youngsters scoreless.

The Pikers scored three runs in the first inning. Roberts walked, advanced to second on Mudd's single and scored when Levy was safe on an error. Gragg's long sacrifice fly scored Mudd and Levy. In the second, Thym tripled and scored when Marquard fumbled Cheatham's roller. Thyn's walk and Cheatham's homer scored two runs in the fourth, and the Pikers added another pair of markers on an error, an infield out and triples by Mudd and Gragg.

The Alumni scored two runs in the third when O'Brien smashed out a home run, scoring DeBolt ahead of him. An error on Edgar's roller, and singles by Lewis and Thompson gave the Alumni their final marker in the fourth.

The Pikers will open their Conference schedule with a two-game series against Iowa State College here Friday and Saturday.

High Schools Are Ready for Opening

Interscholastic League Campaign Is Scheduled to Start Next Saturday.

The high school baseball squads are rounding into condition and have shown up well in several practice tilts in preparation for the opening of the Interscholastic League season next Saturday.

Yeatman High, present champion, is apparently due to repeat last year's feat. The return of a good number of veterans together with the addition of several likely looking candidates, gives Coach Hill the best outlook for the four teams that comprise this season's schedule.

Cleveland, thought to have the poorest prospects, has found some good men in the raw material with which Coach Fenenga had to build up the 1924 machine. Hobbs, a pitcher, is the biggest find. He struck out nine successive batters in an early practice game. Quite a few others have shown unexpected ability.

Coach White of Soldan, who has been chiefly concerned with the third base and shortstop positions, has discovered two men to fill these berths satisfactorily. They are Gough and Christenson. Both have shown exceptional hitting and fielding abaility. These players and Capt. Lloyd Robertson greatly reduce White's infield worries.

McKinley High has done fairly well in the practice games played thus far. Coach Carlson has a good man in Heil, a pitcher.

Because of Central High's withdrawal from the baseball race, all teams will play next Saturday.

Putt Short if Greens Are Fast, Sarazen Writes

Strength of Putt Depends Upon Speed of the Turf.

By Gene Sarazen,
American Professional Champion.
(Copyright, 1924.)

A golf enthusiast, who evidently had been experiencing difficulty on fast greens put this question to me the other day: "Do you always make sure to be past the cup on your approach putts, Sarazen?"

Now that was a good question and showed the man had been doing some tall thinking about his game. "That depends," I said to him, "on the kind of greens on which I am putting."

"Never up, never in," is a very good motto to follow generally in putting. But there are exceptions to every rule and fast greens call more for delicate putting than they do for the bold stuff.

This matter of approach putting is one which must be mastered more by experience than by any teaching or instruction. If a player will put in enough practice he will in time learn to judge pace, which is the secret of laying approaches dead.

How Barnes Won the Open.

And so I say that whether you should putt boldly or delicately depends largely on the nature of the greens. If the grass is rather heavy and the greens are slow it pays to hit the back of the cup for you will sink more long putts by this method than you would were you endeavoring to just get up.

But if the greens are unusually fast then by all means temper your boldness and putt to be dead rather than to be in. By that I mean take no chances on going way past in your anxiety to get down.

Jim Barnes walked away from the field in the National Open Championship at the Columbia Country Club in Washington in 1921 because he had the good sense to putt wisely instead of boldly or normally.

The greens of the Columbia Club were very fast during that tournament. Many of the players were taking three putts regularly from a distance as short as five and six feet. With that kind of putt they naturally went for the cup. If they missed they were as far from the hole as they were at the start. Generally they missed coming back and this, of course, was no kind of an aid towards inspiring them to greater deeds. What happened, of course was, that in their anxiety to make amends for the three putts on the previous green they were striving to hole out from a longer distance on the following one with similar results.

Barnes, on the other hand, sized up the situation beautifully on the day before the opening round. He saw that greens were dangerously fast and that one could take three putts without half trying. On the first round when he was playing great golf up to the greens he was content to play safe in putting and to get up to the hole dead.

Get Past Cup on Chip's.

The result was he dropped several long putts and on only one green, if I remember rightly, did he take more than two putts. He followed the same tactics on the succeeding rounds while the others were struggling fiercely and hopelessly against the odds, and, gradually drew away from the field—winning from Hagen and McLeod, who finished in second place, by nine strokes.

In the matter of chip shots, however, I think it pays to be up to the cup every time regardless of the condition on the greens. If a player in making an approach from, say, fifty yards away from the green, was determined he would be beyond the flag he would get dead to the cup nine times out of ten. Most golfers are generally short on this kind of shot because they are fearful of going too far past the pin.

But I am sure that a determination to be past the cup on the approach would be a greater mental aid in making this stroke and would enable the player to get dead oftener than he would were he to make the shot without that determination.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

sity is going to do much to help the Browns in their struggle for honors in the American League race.

There was a great throw by Johnnie Tobin the idol of the right-field bleachers, the throw being part of a double play in which George Sisler also played a prominent and brilliant part.

Freigau Impresses Favorably.

There was some great infielding by Howard Freigau, the new third baseman of the Cardinals, who was the hero of many of the spring exhibition games won by the Rickeymen. Then, too, there was a fine display of throwing and backstopping by Catcher Holm of the Cardinals. Sisler tested Holm's arm and George was caught stealing second by five feet.

Hornsby's home run gave the National Leaguers their only run. Pruett's control was excellent. He did not give a base on balls and in four of the six innings he worked the Cardinals went hitless. Freigau got two of the four hits off the little left-hander, the other two being Hornsby's homer and a single to left by Holm.

Shocker pitched the last three innings and two hits were made off the Brownie spitball ace. Holm got two bases on his fly to right when Tobin turned a somersault as he trapped the ball one-handed. The other hit off Shocker was a single by Jack Smith, with one down in the eighth inning. Shocker struck out Douthit for the second out and then walked Hornsby. The Cardinal rooters yelled for Bottomley to tie the score by knocking the ball over the fence, but Shocker was too good for Sunny Jim, who missed a swing at a fast low ball for a third strike.

Extra Base Hits Beat Sherdel.

Extra base hits produced the Brownie runs. Severeid tripled to start the third inning and scored when Ellerbe's pop fly fell safe in center for a double, the infielders leaving second unprotected long enough to permit Ellerbe to steal an extra base.

Sisler's triple started the fourth inning, George scoring on Kenny Williams' grounder to Hornsby. McManus tripled in the same inning and scored on Jacobson's sacrifice fly to Douthit. Williams hit his homer into Grand boulevard in the sixth inning to produce the Browns' fourth run.

Sherdel pitched an excellent game, going the eight innings and holding the Browns to eight hits and turning them back in order in the first, second and seventh. His tantalizing slow ball had the Browns swinging foolishly, though as the game progressed they were meeting it more solidly. The trouble with that slow ball is that the batter either pops up or gets a toe hold and if he times his swing he is liable to knock the ball out of the park.

A Pleasing Ball Game.

Both ball clubs played in a manner to please their followers. The Browns looked better than at any time in the south, bearing out Sisler's statement that the club needed stern opposition to bring out its best performance. The Cardinals' play was more spotty. There was a lack of teamwork on two foul flies near the plate which either of two men could have caught if there had been an understanding. However, the players involved are youngsters and time will improve them.

But the ball game and all the other players were only incidental with the spectators. They had gone out there to see whether George Sisler had come back. Many would have been delighted had they seen a Sisler half as good as the Sisler of 1922. And so it was no wonder the home-going spectators wore such happy smiles. They had seen a Sisler as good as ever. They had been critical at the start and they had their doubts when George swung wildly at that high fast one. But when the game was over the retrospective picture was of a Sisler as great as ever, a Sisler who could hit and field and throw and do it all with consummate grace. No wonder everybody was happy.

"Sisler as Good as Ever; Club Has Fine Chance at Flag," Ban Johnson Says

"I WAS delighted with the wonderful performance of George Sisler this afternoon," said Ban Johnson, president of the American League, who was a spectator at the Cardinal-Browns game yesterday. "He was out there with all the vim and skill of his best days and I was most agreeably surprised. He certainly looked as great as ever.

"The Browns have a great ball club and with Sisler in such wonderful condition the team is sure to be a powerful contender for the American League pennant."

Johnson came to St. Louis to speak Friday night at the annual baseball dinner at the Racquet Club and stayed over because of his great interest in George Sisler. He returned to Chicago last night.

NORTHWESTERN AND NAVY PADDLERS STAR

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 12.—Swimmers of Northwestern University and the Naval Academy qualified the greatest number of entries for the general Olympic tryouts to take place at Indianapolis June 2, 3 and 4, as a result of the final events of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, contested at the Naval Academy today, each getting three. Princeton qualified two men. Breyer and Howell of Northwestern were the outstanding stars of the meet, each winning first in two events.

All three men in each event qualified for the Olympic tryouts except the fancy diving, which was not included.

Summaries:

Captain Johnson and Kinsey Will Be Main Reliances in California Meet.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

URBANA, Ill., April 12.—Coach Harry Gill and 24 University of Illinois track stars and Manager Bob Ayres departed this afternoon for California where they meet the University of California in a dual track and field meet April 19.

The men making the trip were: Evans, Ayres, Johnson, Capt. Kinsey, Rohm, Fessenden, Koonz, Carter, Hall, Meiher, Makeever, Marzulo, Graham, Ponzer, Schildhauer, Angier, Sweeney, Wallace, Flint, Wright, Brownell, McHose and Hunsley.

The Illini team will stop off at Des Moines on the return trip to compete in the Drake relays on April 25 and 26.

Dan Kinsey, premier hurdler of the team, began his athletic career at McKinley High School, St. Louis, which Jimmy Conzelman, Loren Murchison, John P. Nicholson and other well-known athletes attended in their time.

Kinsey was a consistent winner and his hurdle mark in the St. Louis city interscholastic championships still stands. He won the high hurdles in the St. Louis municipal championships for four successive years and copped the low hurdle race on two occasions. He is the record holder in both events.

Searching for new fields to conquer he entered the A. A. U. junior championships in Chicago last summer and won the high hurdles.

The Mound City youth got his first taste of college competition when he won the low hurdles in the Illinois-Notre Dame indoor meet this year. He showed his real stuff in the Illinois carnival by equalling the world record of :09 2-5 over the 75-yard high sticks. At Iowa and again at the indoor conference he won over the 60-yard course, tieing the conference record of :07 3-5 in both efforts.

Capt. Johnson of Illinois also hails from McKinley high where he was teammate of Kinsey's. "Pitch" had a big year in 1923 when he tied the American record over the 75-yard route and copped the 120-yard race in the outdoor conference meet.

St. James Looks Like Champion As 3-Year-Old

Preakness and Kentucky Derby Candidate Will Be Brought Along Slowly.

WON FUTURITY IN 1923

Captured Two Other Races as Two-Year-Old — Joyner Follows English Methods.

By G. F. T. Ryall,
Of the New York World Sport Staff

NEW YORK, April 12.—If St. James runs as well as he has wintered no horse is going to catch him. This on the word of Jack Joyner, who knows he has a good horse and is proud of it.

Too many trainers' geese are swans this time of year, but Joyner, slowest of all to praise his own horses, has not underestimated this one.

A wind swept across Belmont Park, but the sun shone. Spring was in the air and scores of horses were out on the training track when the writer went down to the Long Island course to look at last year's Futurity winner.

Out on the track St. James was just cryin' to run, as the saying goes, fairly pulling the boy out of the saddle as he was breezed a nice half-mile.

Beauty Grows on One.

Standing and looking at St. James, he grows on one like a fine piece of sculpture. A colt of heroic proportions last year, he has developed into one of the most impressive looking 3-year-olds seen in many seasons.

Wise Counsellor should be as big a horse as St. James, while Sarazen is a faultless exponent of another type. Should the three meet in the Kentucky Derby that race will be worth going miles to see.

St. James is a bay with black points, he stands 16 hands and weighs about 1100 pounds. He is a typical Englishman in conformation, as would be expected from his blood lines—his sire, Ambassador 4th, is by Dark Ronald—Excellenza and his dam, Bobolink 2d, is by Willonyx—Chelandry, by Goldfinch.

There isn't a 3-year-old in these parts that has the quarters of St. James, or the girth, but big as he is he is perfectly balanced. His neck is good and his head bloodlike.

Looks Ready to Run.

St. James has just begun serious preparation for the races that are to come, but already his winter coat carries a polish and he shows muscles which are only seen on horses in active work.

Jack Joyner, who has trained at Newmarket, believes in following the English method of developing good horses—that is, going slowly. St. James did not come to the races until Saratoga Springs meeting and started only six times as a two-year-old. He won three of his races and most of the time ran under big weights — incidentally he won the Futurity under 130 pounds, an impost carried by only two other winners of the classic, His Highness and Domino. After he won the blue ribbon for juveniles he was retired for the season.

He will not be hurried this year, either. No one knows better than Joyner that to slip horses along at this time of year is taking an undue risk. Patience is one of the virtues all trainers should have, and those who do not possess this quality usually pay the penalty.

Being Pointed for Preakness.

St. James is being pointed for the Preakness, the first of the $50,000 spring classics for three-year-olds, but it is probable that New York racegoers will see him in action in a race at Jamaica that will wind him up to concert pitch for his first big test. At present he is doing nothing more than jog around the training track and breeze a few furlongs, but later he will be permitted to step along.

HARRY WILLS OFFERED CONTEST WITH FULTON

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 12.—Jack Reddy, St. Paul promoter, today wired an offer of $10,000 to Paddy Mullins, manager of Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, to have Wills meet Fred Fulton in a 10-round contest here May 6.

Reddy, who also is manager of Fulton, believes a victory for the Minnesota plasterer-pugilist over Wills would entitle his fighter to a match with Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion.

Fulton, since coming under Reddy's management recently, has been staging a successful comeback in his campaign for heavyweight honors. He has scored four successive knockouts, including those against Tiny Herman of Omaha and Italian Jack Herman of New York. Fulton knocked out the latter in less than one minute at Minneapolis last night.

Fulton and Wills met in 1920 in an Eastern arena. The negro won by a knockout in the third round.

SOLDAN NINE WINNER OVER ALUMNI, 10 TO 3

The Soldan High School baseball team defeated the Alumni at High School Field yesterday, 10-3. Coach White's team had no trouble in checking the Alumni and hammered the veterans' pitchers hard on several occasions.

Hempker and Miller formed Soldan's battery, while Anderson, Berkely and Jones worked for the Alumni.

23 COLLEGES TO ENTER INTERCOLLEGIATE GAME

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 12.—Twenty-three colleges have signified their intention of entering the forty-eighth annual track and field mett under the auspices of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America at the Harvard Stadium, May 30 and 31, said an announcement today by A. C. Bickford, of Harvard, manager of the meet.

No official word has been received thus far from 15 members of the association. It is known that the University of Michigan will not enter as the Western Conference meet will be held on the same dates, but Fielding H. Yost, the Michigan athletic director, said while in Boston recently that it is expected that six or more Michigan athletes will be sent East for the final Olympic trials at the Stadium June 13 and 14.

The colleges that have said they will send entries to the stadium for the I. C. A. A. A. A. games are Amherst, Bates, Boston College, Bowdoin, Colby, Colgate, Columbia, Dartmouth, Georgetown, Harvard, Holy Cross, Johns Hopkins, LaFayette, University of Maine, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, New York University, Penn State, University of Pennsylvania, Pittsburg, Princeton, Syracuse, Williams and Yale.

NAVY GYMNASTS WIN SOUTH ATLANTIC TITLE

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 12.—Naval Academy gymnasts, who recently won the inter-collegiate championships, easily captured the South Atlantic championships contested in the academy gymnasium tonight.

The Middies rolled up 53 points and the only other team to score was Baltimore Y. M. C. A., 1 point.

Besides Navy and Baltimore Y. M. C. A., Vorwaerts of Philadelphia had entries. Featuring the meet were the performances of Durham and Wheelock, Navy, in the 20-foot rope climb, both of whom broke the world's record, by 8-10 and 2-10 seconds, respectively. Durham's time was 5:3 and Wheelock's 5:4.

Browns Will Be A Wild Deuce in A. L. Flag Race

How Far Team Will Go in Pennant Struggle Depends on Sisler, Foster Writes.

By John B. Foster.
(Copyright, 1924.)

NEW YORK, April 12.—The American League race of 1924 should prove one of the most successful and one of the closest in the history of the circuit. Out of it the New York Yankees have a good chance of emerging once more champions. But it isn't by any means certain that they will. Cleveland, Detroit and possibly St. Louis must be reckoned with.

Revivification of the second division clubs of the league is the element that promises most for a close race. Never has the American League's second division shaped up so well as this spring. It is far from impossible that some of the teams now rated in the lower half will have changed places with some of the first-division clubs before the season ends. All depends upon the ability of players to go through the season without injury. And players are taking better care of themselves these days.

The two most improved teams in the league, comparing their spring form of 1923 and 1924, are Washington and Boston. That doesn't mean that either is a championship possibility. But both of them are vastly better than in 1923.

Prothro Good Third Sacker.

Walter Johnson, the veteran pitching star of Washington, apparently is as good as he ever was. His arm never has worked easier or with more success. And that isn't all. Prothro is a better third baseman than he was expected to be, and as a result the infield is better. The kid pitchers are in form and the outfield can hit more than it could, with three promising youngsters to fill in. The club's worst weakness is base running.

Boston has an infield far better than that of 1923, and perhaps the outfield is entitled to the same rating. Behind the bat it is stronger and steadier. The steadiness is more important than the strength, for steadiness should help a pitching staff that needs coaching. The Boston club should finish with a .450 rating if the Bostons of 1923 could make .400.

The next most improved club is the Athletics. But the Athletics went at a pretty fast clip part of the time in 1923, so they may not be considered to have shown quite as much improvement as Washington and Boston. The Athletics seem to have picked up more in batting than any other way. In other words, the manager has acquired part of the big fist for which he was looking. The Athletic infield will be fast, especially around second base.

Browns the Roving Deuce.

The roving deuce in the American League will be the St. Louis Browns. If Sisler goes, they will go—and how far will depend on Sisler. If he proves unsuccessful as a player and batter, it will take a terrific stimulant to make St. Louis keep the pace. There is, too, much of the kitchen cabinet about his team.

The Lake Erie bob-cats, Cleveland and Detroit, are the fighting combination of the circuit. Their games promise the grandest old fights that the American League has known in years, perhaps in all time. Off hand, it looks as if Cleveland had the batters and Detroit the pitchers. You wonder how that can be possible when Detroit has Heilmann, Cobb and Manush in the outfield. But Cleveland has Speaker, Summa and Jamieson. When these six club swingers begin to swing, splinters of ash will fly.

If the Cleveland pitching staff comes through, what a muss Detroit and Cleveland may make for New York! Of course when they play against each other, one must lose, to the advantage of the other. Unless they break even all year, one or the other of them should be treading on the Yankees' toes all season.

Yankees Should Win Out.

The White Sox appear to be the weather vane of the circuit. They will twist and turn more with the varying winds than any other nine. They have had hard luck, with the manager absent all through the training season, and with an old ball players' quarrel among them.

Without any question the Yanks, as they left New Orleans, were as fit to go into the next race as a team could be. But that doesn't mean they will win it. They have the spirit and the incentive. The big question is one of endurance. If they don't become over-confident, and if they don't have one or more stars hurt, they should win out.

CONDOVER WINNER IN NEWMARKET SPRING CUP

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 12.—Mrs. A. Bender's 5-year-old bay colt, Condover, by Radium out of Moonfleet, starting favorite at odds of 5 to 1 against, was an easy winner from a field of 18 in the Newbury spring cup this afternoon. T. A. Edge's 6-year-old Crubenmore finished second and Mrs. Fred Harvey's 4-year-old bay colt, third. Crubenmore and Scullion were quoted at 20 to 1 against.

The Newbury spring cup, a handicap plate of 1500 sovereigns, is over the cup course of one mile. Condover has an engagement for the Ascot gold cup.

Washington Crew Wins

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., April 12.—The University of Washington defeated the University of California by 8½ lengths here today in their annual boat race, retaining the Coast championship. The distance was four miles

MICHIGAN TEAM WINS 2-MILE RELAY RACE

By the Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., April 12.—Eight thousand tonight saw althletes from Yale, Princeton, Notre Dame, Michigan, Oberlin and Ohio State universities participate in the most pretentious indoor athletic card ever held in this city. No records were broken in the college events.

Michigan won the two-mile relay; Ames second, and Notre Dame third. Time: 8 minutes and 1 2-5 seconds.

Hammerly of Ames won the half-mile invitation race; Cox, Notre Dame second; Conger, Princeton, third. Time: 1:59 4-5.

One mile relay was won by Yale; Notre Dame second; Ohio State third. Time: 3 minutes 32 4-5 seconds.

Mile relay race, Oberlin won; Ohio Weslayan second. Time: 3 minutes 35 1-5 seconds.

Clark Is Named Coach.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., April 12.—William J. "Bill" Clark, coach of the Princeton University baseball team, has been engaged as instructor in baseball at the University of Michigan summer school, Fielding H. Yost announced today. Prof. Yost recently made a trip through the East and it was then that he engaged Clark. Clark formerly caught for the New York Giants. He will replace Ray Fisher, Wolverine baseball coach, who has been granted leave of absence.

Star Jumpers in Drake Relay Meet

Hubbard to Meet Keen Opposition — Entries for Games Close Next Thursday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 12.—A wonderful field of contestants will compete in the broad jump at the fifteenth annual Drake University relay meet, April 25-26, entries received up to today indicate.

The chief contender for first place is generally conceded to be DeHart Hubbard, dusky Michigan star. Those who have watched the development of the Wolverine work declare that Hubbard is the greatest broad jumper in the world today, and that he should better the world's amateur record of 25 feet 3 inches in this event, established by Gourdin of Harvard, in 1921, before the season closes.

Hubbard will have plenty of competition in the Western track and field classic. A perusal of the entry list indicates that Waddell, Simpson and Keeble of Missouri, Snider of Ohio, Belding, Jones, Roberts, Nesler and Lambert of Iowa; Sweeney and Wallace of Illinois; Hyde, Campbell and Towler of Minnesota; Orebaugh of Drake; Blanchard of Washington; Jones of De Pauw; Brady, Livergood and Johnson of Notre Dame; McGiveran, McAndrews and Hammann of Wisconsin; Wier, Rhodes, Bloodgood and Hatch of Nebraska, and Allen of Ames all will compete.

Hubbard, national senior champion in the hop-step-and-jump, will also compete in this event at the Drake meet. He will be pitted against Max Keeble of Missouri, national junior champion, and other formidable rivals.

Entries for the carnival will close April 17. Director Wilson predicted that approximately 1500 athletes, representing more than hundred leading universities, colleges and high schools from the Alleghenies to the Pacific coast, will compete here this year.

Mr. Mutt and Altawood Go Fast Mile in Trial for Kentucky Derby

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 12.—Mr. Mutt and Altawood, Kentucky Derby candidates, today ran a mile in 1m 43 2-5s, the fastest trial for the distance of the spring training season at Louisville race tracks. Mr. Mutt is in the Bud Fisher string and Altawood is in the C. Bruce H stable. Altagood, word from the track said, finished without showing any sign of distress.

OKLAHOMA DEFEATS KANSAS AGGIES FOR 4TH STRAIGHT VICTORY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NORMAN, Ok., April 12.—Pounding the offerings of Cunningham all over the lot, Oklahoma won its fourth straight Missouri Valley Conference victory yesterday by walloping the Kansas Aggies, 10 to 1.

While the Sooners were pounding out 16 hits, Jess Reaves allowed the Aggies but five hits. A remarkable feature of the contest was the fact that every run was earned. But two errors marred the afternoon's play and but one free pass was issued.

Paul Lindsey, first year baseman with the Sooners, starred with two triples, one coming with the bases full. Phillips hit two singles and a triple, while Ernst got two doubles and a single.

Score by innings:
Oklahoma ... 100 200 70*—10
Kansas Aggies 000 000 001—1

ER ASKS FOR RECEIVER FOR PARTNERSHIP COMPANY

R. Motherwell Alleges Partner Broke Firm Contract by Investments.

A suit for receiver for a partner- ip firm, consisting of Lee R. therwell, C. H. Wallis and Walter H. Dyer, was filed yesterday by Motherwell.

The firm was organized in 1921 as a sales agency dealing in electrical supplies, but Wallis, who had charge of the cash and records, has invested the profits in bonds instead of dividing them among the partners, Motherwell alleges. He also avers that Wallis organized the C. H. Wallis & Co., to which he transferred assets of the partnership without consent of his partners.

Besides a receiver Motherwell asks that Wallis render an accounting and be enjoined from risposing of property of the firm.

SIMON G. NIPPER, CANDIDATE FOR APPEALS COURT BENCH

Present Commissioner Seeks Republican Nomination to Succeed W. H. Allen.

Simon G. Nipper, 5017 Cates avenue, a commissioner of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, yesterday sent a declaration to the Secretary of State as a candidate for the Republican nomination to succeed Judge William H. Allen, whose term expires in January. Judge Allen, a Democrat, has not yet announced whether he again will be a candidate. He is the presiding Judge of the court, consisting of three judges and four commissioners.

The term of a Judge of the Appellate Court is 12 years and the salary $6000 a year. Judge Nipper has been on the commission since June 19, 1919, and before coming to this city practiced law at Potosi, Mo., and was strongly indorsed by bench and bar to succeed Judge D. Reynolds after the latter's death three years ago. Judge Reynolds was presiding Judge of the court.

The Court of Appeals district embraces St. Louis and 23 counties. The court handles a large amount of litigation. Nipper was born in Washington County, Missouri, and is 42 years old. He is the first in the field.

2 GIRLS STRUCK BY AUTO

Miss Catherine Bauer, 18 years old, 2609 Madison street, and Miss Cecelia Glover, 17, of 2611A Madison avenue, were knocked down by an automobile while crossing Grand boulevard at Easton avenue last night.

At City Hospital Miss Bauer was treated for a lacerated scalp and Miss Glover for abrasions of the left arm. The driver was arrested on a charge of careless driving.

A position for a Big Sales Executive is open now

A production program of two million dollars for this year is under way, and is completely financed. A sales force of ten men will have to be built up to twenty or thirty. The sales force and the sales policy will be completely up to this man—with the whole-hearted support of a well-seasoned production organization and backed by an adequate advertising campaign. The unit of sales runs into the thousands of dollars.

The man required is not a job hunter, but is probably now in a good position that he has outgrown, and has the knowledge, the experience and the confidence to deliver on a ten to twenty thousand dollar salary.

REPLIES MUST BE IN WRITING

No personal interviews granted at this time. Replies must be in writing, and will be held in strict confidence, and must tell enough about yourself and your experience to justify a later personal interview with the principal, who is a client of ours.

The AMPICO

"The supreme development of the reproducing piano."
—The Purchasers' Guide to the Music Industries
[1923, PAGE 99]

Imitation is sincerest flattery, but misrepresentation is untruthful.

The astounding success of The AMPICO, a mechanism contained in certain pianos which re-enacts the playing of pianists, has brought upon the market a variety of mechanical player-pianos which masquerade under the name of Reproducing Pianos and are so further camouflaged by the endorsement of has-been musicians and would-be critics that the unsuspecting buyer is occasionally deceived.

For the protection of the public, we hereby invite all local dealers of self-styled reproducing pianos to a competitive test of their instruments versus The AMPICO, said test to be held within sixty days, in a suitable auditorium and open to the public.

In the event an instrument competing against The AMPICO reproduces the playing of any pianist with exactitude, the undersigned will donate one thousand dollars to any organized charity and defray all expenses in connection with the test.

This contest is to be conducted by one or more engineers familiar with The AMPICO mechanism and its host of followers.

SHARP ADVANCE IN COTTON PRICE FEATURES WEEK

Stock Market Reflects Selling of Professional Character — Dawes Report Is Comprehensical.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 12.—The Evening Post, in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"Market behavior during the past week has been most irregular, embracing a reaction in stocks, and a sharp rise in cotton. Having rallied during the previous week and thus weakening its technical position, the stock market gave way before renewed short selling. The professional character of the market was perfectly apparent. The bears conducted their operations with energy and skill. Comparatively little liquidation was, however, induced, while the technical position was materially strengthened.

"In the cotton market the situation has offered a sharp contrast. The shorts, many of whom appear to have been operating in stocks, have been severely punished. Having oversold a thoroughly liquidated market, they have had trade buying, both foreign and domestic, diminish the volume of available contracts. In their efforts to cover they have lifted the price of the commodity nearly 5½ cents above the low of about two weeks ago. The market now shows a disposition to settle down into a trading position.

The Dawes Report.

"The Dawes report has turned out to be an exceedingly comprehensive document. It opens up a large part of the whole reparations question. In doing so it makes necessary more far-reaching decisions than would have been the case had it dealt merely with the balancing of Germany's budget and providing that country with a stable currency. More time must, accordingly, be allowed for its results to be estimated. On the other hand, its comprehensiveness carries possibilities for a much larger service. The first reactions to it seem favorable and the prospects are good that it will provide a working basis for an agreement which will lead to an equitable settlement of the whole reparations dispute.

"The course of values in the stock market today was significant of nothing further than that the market is paying little attention to the Dawes plan for settlement of Europe's ills and that the bearish element still is the more active one. At the start values were firmer, largely due to a continuation of the short covering movement of the previous day. News that the German Government looked with favor on the Dawes plan stimulated an early runup in copper shares, but buying did not become general and trading was rather sluggish. At the beginning of the last hour, however, the bears resumed their short selling tactics, singling out Studebaker and other motors for special attention. Heavy offerings brought losses of from 1 to 3 points or more in this group. Other groups were affected but declines were mostly small. Bonds were only moderately active and held rather steady.

Exchange Firm and Quiet.

"Foreign exchanges both at London and in the local market were firm, but business was transacted in rather small volume. Interest there was centered in French francs and with only occasional purchases, the quotation advanced early 7 points to a new high for the year at 6.08 cents. Later, however, 3 points were given up. While the favorable reception of the Dawes plan had a good sentimental effect on francs, it is likely that a good sized short interest still exists. Sterling was ⅝ of a cent higher at $4.33½ and other principal European currencies were steady, although Danish crowns were weak, partly due, perhaps, to the news of a labor victory at yesterday's election.

"An increase of $2,500,000 in surplus reserve is shown by the weekly statement of the Clearing House, although there was still a deficit of $1,500,000. Loans and discounts fell off $19,400,000 and demand deposits also showed a decrease of approximately $21,000,000."

"Intimations that Germany would accept the reparations report were at the bottom of a sharp upward movement in the cotton market during the early trading. Futures were bid up over 60 points, but when the May future had touched 31.59 cents speculators began to look to their profits and liquidation from this source brought a sizeable reaction. At a late price of 31.15 cents, however, the May option was still 18 points higher on the day.

Technical Position of Securities Good.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, April 12—The trade outlook is hopelessly obscure. If the reparation deadlock continues, trade cannot revive much, while if the deadlock is broken and a settlement arranged, British trade might benefit most by increased European purchases or suffer from excessive German and other competition.

The technical position of securities keeps good, hence there is a tendency for prices to rally after each temporary relapse.

There still is a marked disposition to discourage all foreign corporation loans here if unconnected with the whole or partial expenditure of the proceeds in England.

Youngstown Production Schedule.

By the Associated Press.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 12.—There will be another decrease in production of iron and steel next week in the Youngstown district, according to operation schedules today.

Thirty of the 51 independent open-hearth furnaces will be operating, as against 34 this week. The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. will blow out another blast furnace and the Carnegie Steel Co. will bank a blast furnace for repairs.

Eighty-four sheet mills will run, as against 96 this week. Corporation tin-plate plants have curtailed operations to five days a week.

The independent industry as a whole in this district will operate at about 70 per cent of capacity and the corporations plants at about 85 per cent.

New York Bank Clearings.

NEW YORK, April 12.—New York bank clearings $830,000,000; New York bank balances $81,000,000; New York Federal Reserve bank credits $68,000,000.

PRICES ARE HIGHER ON COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, April 12.—The cotton market recovered a good part of yesterday's losses at the opening today, owing to relatively firm Liverpool cables, reports of rains in Eastern and Central sections of the belt, higher foreign exchange and reports that the German Government had accepted the Dawes plan for reparations. Renewed covering by old crop shorts sent May to 31.59c or 62 points net higher. A better demand for new crop positions also carried the price of October to 25.95c, a net advance of 38 points. First prices were 25 to 37 points net higher and the general lists showed net advances of 37 to 64 points during the early trading.

With the early advance checked by realizing, the market reacted later when sentiment was unsettled by weakness in the stock market. May sold off to 31.10 and October to 25.60, with the market closing steady at net advances of 8 to 19 points.

According to estimates heard here on the early advance, the stock of unsold cotton in the warehouses here has been reduced to about 40,000 bales.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Cotton spot quiet; middling 31.50c.

New York Cottonseed Oil.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Cotton seed oil advanced 9 to 15 points through week-end covering and a little Southern buying inspired by the firmness in crude oil and lard and better tone of foreign news. Selling by local bears checked the advance, final bids being 8 to 9 points net higher for active months. Sales, 3800 barrels. Prime crude, $8.70@9; prime summer yellow spot, $10@10.40; May $10.25; July, $10.62; September, $10.83, and October, $10.20, all bid.

Liverpool Cotton Easier.

LIVERPOOL, April 12.—Cotton spot fair demand; prices easier. Good middling 19.87; fully middling 19.42; middling 18.92; low middling 18.07; good ordinary 17.07; ordinary 16.57. Sales 6000 bales, including 3200 American. Receipts 2000 bales, all American. Futures closed steady: April 18.72; May 18.47; July 17.78; October 15.31; December 14.83; January 14.66; March 14.52.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 12.—The bear partly showed today that it was still in control of the market situation. When prices failed to continue the rally of Friday afternoon despite the report that Germany had agreed to the proposals for a reparations settlement operators for the decline, returned to the attack. They began with Studebaker and other of the motor shares, paid particular attention to the sugars and then broadened their activities so as to include pretty much the entire list.

The only group which paid any attention to the foreign news was the copper and smelting shares. The outlook for a European settlement has, it was argued, a peculiar meaning for them.

The Bond Market.

Strength in the foreign list was the feature of the two hours' trading in bonds today. The improvement which began late Friday when it became known that the Reparations Commission had accepted the Dawes commission report was continued.

French bonds were actively bought, especially the municipal and provincial issues. Department of the Seine 7s, and French Cities 6s, the Bordeaux, Lyons and Marseilles bonds made new highs for the year. French 8s and French 7½s sold at the high of the year or fractionally above.

The improvement was shared to a less degree by Belgian bonds, the 8s and the 7½s. There was not so much activity in the mid-European issues, but all of them were firm. The same was true of the bonds of the Northern Europe neutrals.

New offerings for the week totaled over $104,000,000, the largest single issue being the $45,000,000 State of New York bonus bonds.

Receivers for Copper Company.

NEW YORK, April 12. — Federal Judge Learned Hand today appointed receivers for the Seneca Copper Corporation in an equity action brought by the Portage Lake Hardware Co., Ltd. The receivers named were Guy W. Carrier and William J. Uren.

Steel Prices.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Steel prices unchanged.

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Cotton goods market held barely steady in the gray goods division today, moderate trading continuing and most of the business being for deliveries in April and May. Buying was steady in finished goods lines, but in small lots. Yarns were in better call, with prices in trading centers below what spinners ask. Heavy weaves for suiting purposes appeared among the broad silks. New fall prints are being prepared as they seem to hold favor. The wool goods market ruled quiet, men's-wear orders of late having been better than those for women's wear. Linens were quiet and burlaps a little firmer.

Boston Wool Market.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, April 12.—The improved buying by mills which has been noticed in the past week caused a firm tone in the wool market today, although quotations showed no appreciable change. Some activity was reported in new western sections where shearing is now under way with the medium weights in most demand.

PRICES ARE HIGHER ON COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, April 12.—The cotton market recovered a good part of yesterday's losses at the opening today, owing to relatively firm Liverpool cables, reports of rains in Eastern and Central sections of the belt, higher foreign exchange and reports that the German Government had accepted the Dawes plan for reparations. Renewed covering by old crop shorts sent May to 31.59c or 62 points net higher. A better demand for new crop months also carried the price of October to 25.95c, a net advance of 38 points. Early prices were 25 to 37 points net higher and the general lists showed net advances of 37 to 64 points during the early trading.

With the early advance checked by renewed realizing, the market reacted later and sentiment was unsettled by weakness in the stock market. May sold off to 31.10 and October to 25.60, with the market closing steady at net advances of [illegible] to 19 points.

According to estimates heard here on the early advance, the stock of unsold cotton in the warehouses here has been reduced to about 40,000 bales.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Cotton spot quiet; middling 31.50c.

New York Cottonseed Oil.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Cotton seed oil advanced 9 to 15 points through week-end covering and a little Southern buying inspired by the firmness in crude oil and lard and better tone of foreign news. Selling by local bears checked the advance, final bids being 8 to 9 points net higher for active months. Sales, 3900 barrels. Prime crude, $8.70@9; prime summer yellow spot, $10@10.40; May, $10.25; July, $10.62; September, $10.83, and October, $10.20, all bid.

Liverpool Cotton Easier.

LIVERPOOL, April 12.—Cotton spot fair demand; prices easier. Good middling 19.87; fully middling 19.42; middling 18.92; low middling 18.07; good ordinary 17.07; ordinary 16.57. Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 12.—The bear partly showed today that it was still in control of the market situation. When prices failed to continue the rally of Friday afternoon despite the report that Germany had agreed to the proposals for a reparations settlement operators for the decline, returned to the attack. They began with Studebaker and other of the motor shares, paid particular attention to the sugars and then broadened their activities so as to include pretty much the entire list.

The only group which paid any attention to the foreign news was the copper and smelting shares. The outlook for a European settlement has, it was argued, a peculiar meaning for them.

The Bond Market.

Strength in the foreign list was the feature of the two hours' trading in bonds today. The improvement which began late Friday when it became known that the Reparations Commission had accepted the Dawes commission report was continued.

French bonds were actively bought, especially the municipal and provincial issues. Department of the Seine 7s, and French Cities 6s, the Bordeaux, Lyons and Marseilles bonds made new highs for the year. French 8s and French 7½s sold at the high of the year or fractionally above.

The improvement was shared to a less degree by Belgian bonds, the 6s and the 7½s. There was not so much activity in the mid-European issues, but all of them were firm. The same was true of the bonds of the Northern Europe neutrals.

New offerings for the week totaled over $104,000,000, the largest single issue being the $45,000,000 State of New York bonus bonds.

Receivers for Copper Company.

NEW YORK, April 12. — Federal Judge Learned Hand today appointed receivers for the Seneca Copper Corporation in an equity action brought by the Portage Lake Hardware Co., Ltd. The receivers named were Guy W. Carrier and William J. Uren.

Steel Prices.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Steel prices unchanged.

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Cotton goods market held barely steady in the gray goods division today, moderate trading continuing and most of the business being for deliveries in April and May. Buying was steady in finished goods lines, but in small lots. Yarns were in better call, with prices in trading centers below what spinners ask. Heavy weaves for suiting purposes appeared among the broad silks. New fall prints are being prepared as they seem to hold favor. The wool goods markets ruled quiet, men's-wear orders of late having been better than those for women's wear. Linens were quiet and burlaps a little firmer.

Boston Wool Market.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, April 12.—The improved buying by mills which has been noticed this week has caused a firm tone in the wool market today, although quotations showed no appreciable change. Some activity was reported in the western sections where shearing now is under way with the medium wools in most demand.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 12.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange review, says:

"The market for European exchanges during the week was one of wide fluctuations in rates, with only a small volume of actual business transacted. At the start there was a sharp decline, when many documents sold at the lowest levels of the week, the movement reflecting a lack of satisfaction over the preliminary statements in regard to the Dawes plan, but the movements were reversed on the two following days, French exchange approaching its previous high level for the year and substantial gains were made in many other continental rates, some giving to new highs for the year. After the publication of the Dawes plan in full, another reaction occurred, but yesterday there was another demonstration of strength immediately after the announcement that the Reparations Commission had formally approved the plan, and it was generally assumed that this action was a further important step toward the restoration of industrial tranquillity on the Continent.

"During the first five days French exchange ranged from a low of 5.77 to 6.06 cents, with a reaction to 5.85, following this advance. This decline in turn was followed by another sharp rally. Sterling, after selling at $4.32⅞, moved up more than 2 cents, but lost part of this gain on the following days. Swiss exchange moved up to 17.63 cents, a new high for the year, and Sweden also made a new high for the year, advancing to 26.48 cents. Dutch exchange was strong for a time, but lost its gain in the last half of the week. The situation in Spanish exchange became distinctly easier, supply appearing from several sources causing a reaction to below 13.40 cents. There was a strong tone in Canadian exchange, which moved up to its previous high for the year. South American exchanges were irregular, Argentine selling below 33 cents.

"Foreign exchanges both at London and in the local market were firm Saturday, but business was transacted in rather small volume. Interest here was centered in French francs and with only occasional purchases, the quotation advanced early 7 points to a new high for the year of 6.08 cents. Later, however, 3 points were given up. While the favorable reception of the Dawes plan had a good sentimental effect on francs, it is likely that a good sized short interest still exists. Sterling was ⅝ of a cent higher at $4.33½ and other principal European currencies were steady, although Danish crowns were weak, partly due, perhaps, to the news of a labor victory at yesterday's election.

"An increase of $2,500,000 in surplus reserve is shown by the weekly statement of the Clearing House, although there was still a deficit of $8,500,000. Loans and discounts fell off $19,400,000 and demand deposits also showed a decrease of approximately $21,000,000."

CHANGES ARE HIGHER ON GRAIN MARKET

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, April 12.—Grain futures closed higher on the local market under the combined influence of better cable, rumors of favorable attitude toward Dawes report by Germany and weather.

In the local cash grain market wheat was generally steady in case of both soft and hard. There was somewhat better demand. Corn was steady to 1½c higher. Demand was good. Oats were ¼c up to 1¼c off. Demand was fair.

Following a slight upturn at outset, wheat futures settled back to about previous close. Corn was unchanged to shade better. Liverpool wheat closed ⅛ to ¼d higher. There was some evening up business.

May wheat opened at $1.01⅞, July wheat $1.02⅝, September wheat $1.03⅝, May corn, 78¼c, July corn 79⅝c and September corn 78½c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 40,300 bushels, compared with 41,600 a week ago and 43,200 last year, included 28 cars local and 3 through. Corn receipts, were 127,400 bushels, compared with 72,800 a week ago and 67,600 last year, included 70 cars local and 21 through. May oats receipts, which were 78,000 bushels, compared with 76,000 a week ago and 70,000 last year, included 21 cars local and 18 through. May receipts were 41 cars local and 18 through.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators were 1,025,185 bushels of wheat; 654,591 bushels of corn; 170,398 bushels of oats. Grain stocks comprised 84,418 bushels of No. 1 red winter wheat, 194,930 bushels of No. 2 red winter wheat, 80,381 bushels of No. 1 hard winter wheat, 340,034 bushels of No. 2 hard winter wheat, 108,259 bushels of No. 2 corn, 61,058 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn, 27,076 bushels of No. 2 white corn, 4856 bushels of No. 2 oats, 113,230 bushels of No. 2 white oats, 5686 bushels of No. 3 white oats, 10,285 bushels of No. 2 rye.

Primary shipments of wheat were heavier than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 427,000 bushels. SELLING ON CURB RESUMED WHEN BIG BOARD DECLINES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 12.—The report that Germany had accepted the Dawes Committee proposals did not appear to have an important influence upon operations in today's brief session on the Curb Exchange. It did, however, check operations for a short time at the start, but selling was resumed later when weakness broke out on the big board.

Oil shares, after early improvement, were under slight pressure, especially Standard of Indiana, and Ohio Oil. Red Bank was an exception, getting up 2½ points to 21. South American Oils which were taken up in the late trading Friday, were in demand again against recent top prices.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Trading on the Curb Exchange the past week was influenced more by developments in other trading groups than by any changes in connection with the various issues traded in on that market. The sharp declines on the Stock Exchange compelling liquidation of some accounts, had a natural influence in causing liquidation in the curb issues and generally lower prices were established.

Standard Oil issues suffered to the greater extent from this liquidation, as selling of those stocks was followed by pressure from the professional traders. Prairie Oil had the widest range, falling from 242 to 232. Solar Refining was strong for a time, advancing 11 points, but lost most of its gain on a reaction in the last few days. Vacuum Oil, after holding steady in the first part of the week, moved with the rest of the list and declined more than 2 points. Magnolia yielded 5 points and a loss of more than 7 points was sustained in Swan & Finch. Several of the pipe line stocks yielded about 5 points. Standard Oil of Nebraska, after moving up to 251, also had a sharp reaction. Indiana shares were heavily traded in and after yielding about 2 points rallied later.

Trading in industrial issues were irregular. Some showed gains at times, but joined in a downward movement in the last half of the week. Dubilier was one of the strong features, moving up again to above 33, followed by a moderate reaction.

Public utility issues were exceptionally strong. Canadian Power and Light gained 9 points and National Power 6 points. Lehigh Power made a gain of 4 points, which was reduced later in the week. Durant Motor yielded some 3 points, selling below 18.

WHEAT SHOWS A STUBBORN TONE ON CHICAGO MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 12.—Wheat exhibited a more stubborn tone. Local bears sold after an opening bulge, but after a momentary decline they were run into cover by the commission house buying that developed on the dip. The rumor that Germany had accepted the Dawes plan of reparations payment caused the early buying. The belief that there will be a liberal reduction in the visible supply Monday owing to the light receipts this week and increased milling demand in the Southwest prompted some of the bears to reduce their commitments. Some of the trade anticipates a heavy reduction in local stocks as soon as navigation opens because Buffalo stocks are not heavy enough to run mills long in that part. There is little evidence of any heavy chartering of wheat room for the opening, however, and vessel men generally claim to be doing nothing. They say the big movement of grain will be from the Northwest. Milling demand overnight was light. Seaboard reported export sales of 300,000 bushels. Shipping sales were 5000 bushels. Market closed ½@⅝c higher, May $1.02¼@1.02⅛, July $1.04@1.03⅞, September, $1.04⅞.

Little interest was exhibited in corn, but prices held well. Commission houses bought enough corn to take the slack out of the market. Cash corn started at an unchanged basis, but the market weakened later. Shipping demand was poor. Receipts were of fair volume. Shipping sales were 11,000 bushels. Market closed ⅛@½c higher, May 77½c, July, 78⅝@78⅞c, September, 78⅝@78½c.

Oats acted strong and the feature was the buying by the reputed leading longs. Minneapolis reported sales of 750,000 bu. of oats for shipments so far this week and that this leaves only 500,000 bushels of their stocks unsold. Local shippers reported demand dull. Shipping sales were 14,000 bushels of May, 47c; July, 44@44¼c; September, 45¼c.

Provisions were firm. Packers' brokers bought and there was buying by investors in anticipation of German buying. Lard closed 5@10c higher, and bellies, 12½c higher.

Slump in Tin Prices.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 12.—The slump of £15 a ton in the price of tin, bringing the level to £241 per ton, represents a decline of nearly £56 from the highest point touched in the recent spectacular upward movement. It is attributed by metal interests to the fact that the bulls were realizing and the bears came into the market, which thereby lost much of its support.

In the opinion of observers there is little stability about the market for the moment, as American advices have been against higher prices, despite the fact that better delivery figures are expected for this month than last.

Lead, Zinc and Copper

Lead last quoted at $8 per 100 pounds in St. Louis.

Slab zinc last quoted at $6.25 per 100 pounds in St. Louis.

NEW YORK, April 12.—The failure of bullish statistics for March to stimulate demand was a disappointment to sellers of copper, and declines in London have been accompanied by price shading in the local market. Electrolytic was said to be available at 13⅝c delivered today, although some producers are asking 13½c for forward delivery. Iron easier.

HOG PRICES HIGHER IN TRADE FOR WEEK

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last wk.	Prev. wk.	Yr. ago.

Horses and mules	931	702	1,635
Totals	108,353	112,270	117,907

Average livestock prices were slightly higher at the close of the week at the St. Louis National Stock Yards. Combined receipts were of moderate volume, figuring slightly over 100,000 head. The offering of cattle and calves for the six-day period totaled 17,787 head. Markets ruled steady to strong throughout the period and closed with average prices steady to 25c higher. Beef steers, light steers and heifers and butcher cows finished about 15c to 25c higher, while bulls, canner and cutter cows and stocker stuff reflected no pronounced change compared with a week ago. The bulk of native beef steers cashed at $7.65 to $9.60 per cwt. The common end graduated down to $6 and top consignments scored up to $11, $11.35, $11.50 and $11.80. The latter figure, awarded for a choice drove of 1717-lb. beeves, constituted the year's best price. Texas contributed a dozen cars of grass steers Thursday that sold at $5.40 to $6.80 and seven better load from that country the following day brought $8.15 and $8.10, the highest prices received for Texas quarantine steers here since 1920. Light steers and heifers on the native side of the market varied from around $5 and $6 or under for the plain end to $7 $8 and up to $9.50 for more attractive kinds. Butcher cows registered a low end of $4 and the top late in the week was quotable up to $8. The bulk of sales during the period was $4.50 to $6.50. Cutter cows were valued at $2.25 to $3 in the late trade and cutters at $3 to $3.75. Bologna bulls sold in a wide range of $4 to $5, while good weight beef offerings scored most generally in the $5 column. Stocker and feeder steers maintained a steady level during the period under modest receipts and demand. Steers were included in a range of $5 to $7.75. Veal calves suffered declines every day in the week except Tuesday and finish $1 lower. The bulk during the period brought $10.25 to $11 and closing quotations were at $10 to $10.25.

Hog Prices Irregular.

Although most of the week's trading featured declines in swine prices, the latter part of the six-day period marked a comeback and closing sales show a gain over the previous week's finish. Receipts for the six days show a moderate total of 86,441 head, slightly under the previous week's offering of 89,823 and 4083 less than was received during the corresponding period a year ago. Quality was good the past week, with a generous proportion of the well finished swine here from Northern Illinois and Iowa. Compared with the previous week's close, butcher hogs averaging from 190 to 250 pounds show an advance of 5c to 10c, sales ranging from $7.65 to $7.70 largely. The lighter hogs and shipping weights from 160 to 180 pounds in weight are also higher, sales of this class looking mostly 10c above the previous week's closing quotations. Sales of these weights ranged largely from $7.60 to $7.75, the latter figure the high point for the week. Pigs are sharply lower for the week, the better weight offerings showing the severest decline. Compared with the previous week's close sales of the weights from 130 to 150 pounds show a loss of 50c, offerings of these weights clearing generally in a spread of $6.50 to $7 with some of the choicest kinds higher. For the medium weight kinds from 110 to 130 pounds prices are 25c to 50c lower at $6 to $6.50 with the light pigs and peewees from 110 pounds and down weak to 25c lower at $5.50 to $6 generally. Packer sows are 5c to 10c lower for the week with closing sales at $6.50 largely. No material change is shown by stags, this class selling from $4.50 to $5.50, according to weight and quality. The week's close finds the different classes of swine selling at the following prices: Butchers, 190 to 250 pounds, at $7.65 to $7.75; light hogs and shippers, 160 to 180 pounds, at $7.60 to $7.75; strong weight pigs, 130 to 150 pounds, at $6.50 to $7.25, medium weight pigs from 110 to 130 pounds, at $6 to $6.50 and light pigs and peewees from 110 pounds and down at $5.50 to $6, generally depending on the weight and quality displayed; packer sows closed for the week at $6.50 mostly, stags at $4.50 to $5.50.

Sheep Supply Fair.

Only a fair supply of sheep and lambs found their way to this market during the past six days. The total receipts showed a modest offering of 3194 head, compared with [illegible] and 4156 [illegible] year ago. [illegible] lambs, too, established a new top for the season several offerings selling up to $14.75. There was a shipment of yearling Mexcian wethers received the past week that sold at $15; strong to 25c higher than the previous week. Culls close quotable at $11 to $14 with skins at $5 to $10 largely. Most of the aged classes closed steady with a week ago, but some kinds show a sharp advance over the previous week's final session. Mutton ewes compared with the previous week's close finished 25 to 50c higher. Good to choice mutton ewes are quotable at $10.50 to $12, medium to good kinds from $9.50 to $10.50 and the plain to medium grades at $7.25 to $9.50, according to the weight and quality displayed by the offerings. Choppers and bucks compared with a week ago closed about steady with sales of these classes ranging from $5 to $8 mostly. Canners too, sold about steady with the previous week at $3 to $5, according to weight and quality.

Horses and Mules.

Horse and mule receipts aggregated 1000 head in the various departments and the market ruled fairly active at steady to strong prices. Arrivals included about 125 horses and 300 mules on commission. Demand was equal to this supply, and a satisfactory clearance was made.

The outlet included chunks, work horses and Southerners. The principal demand for mules was for harnessed marked kinds, 14.3 and up. There was also a trade in miners.

BOY WINS $500 VERDICT AFTER AUTO BREAKS ARM

Injury Received While Cranking Car Is Preventable, Says Circuit Court Jury.

John Maloney, 16 years old, 2417 Fall street, was injured March 16, 1923, while trying to crank an automobile belonging to the Star Dyeing and Cleaning Co. The engine "kicked," breaking his arm.

He sued for damages on the ground that he should have been warned it was a dangerous undertaking and a jury in Circuit Judge Landwehr's court yesterday agreed and awarded a verdict of $500.

Maloney was employed by the company but was not the driver of the truck.

4 why Cahokia 6% IS SO SAFE FOR SAVINGS

MANAGEMENT can make an investment good or bad. Management which makes an investment good is management which serves customers well and cheaply and pays profits to shareholders.

There are definite evidences of good management:

1. Volume of business done per dollar of capital required.

2. Operating costs, as reflecting economy or waste.

3. Price for service.

4. Return to shareholders.

The management behind Cahokia is Union Electric Light and Power Co. whose record is easily read.

1. Union Electric has required much less capital per dollar of business done than have most of the companies serving the large cities of the United States.

2. Operating costs—the many items of expense—are as low or lower than in any other company in the country whose record is published.

3. Price for service. Eight times in the last twelve years Union Electric has reduced rates in St. Louis voluntarily until now average rates here are the lowest among the fifteen large cities of the country.

4. Return to shareholders. Union Electric has paid dividends to shareholders uninterruptedly for 17 years.

Low rates for customers, economical operation and hence dividends for shareholders.

More than 1500 St. Louisans already are both customers and shareholders in Cahokia. They have joined 10,000 other St. Louisans in entrusting their savings to the management of Union Electric.

Where are your dollars? Why not in Cahokia, where there is security of principal and 6 per cent in dividends?

Chancellor Hadley Traces Our 3-Billion National Crime Bill To Our Criminal Law System

Lawlessness Aided and Encouraged by Present Procedure; Revision and Restatement Urged by Washington U. Head.

AN ANNUAL loss of billions of dollars, and an even greater loss in public confidence in government, are traced by Chancellor Herbert S. Hadley, of Washington University, to the lawlessness aided and encouraged by the present American system of criminal law and procedure.

In his inquiry, as chairman of a special committee of the American Law institute, Chancellor Hadley has developed a careful analysis of the defects of American criminal procedure, which afford avenues of escape to many criminals. The principal points of this analysis were printed in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch.

He has concluded, after a long study of the subject and a recent intensive inquiry among judges and prosecutors, that criminal law and procedure should be revised and restated, the initiative to be taken by the American Law Institute. In setting forth the need for such a restatement, he recites the cost of crime to the nation.

"Any substantial improvement of present conditions," he says, "would mean a financial gain to the country many times greater than the expense necessary to secure it. Crime, like war, is costly, almost beyond comprehension. Considered from the low standard of dollars and cents, we find that in 1920 the value of property taken from transportation lines alone, in this country, equaled $120,000,000.

"According to an estimate made by representatives of the United States Custom House and the New York Police Department, credit associations and the National Surety Co., the national crime bill, for offenses against property, amounts to more than $3,000,000,000 each year. The president of the New York Exchange places the annual loss from sales of stock in fraudulent corporations at $1,000,000,000. Fraudulent bankruptcies were estimated by the secretary of the National Association of Credit Men to result in an annual loss of $400,000,000. Other major items in this loss account are burglary and larceny, $250,000,000, and embezzlement $100,000,000, the last two items being vouched for by the National Surety Co.

Influence of Money.

"The economic loss, which is not the greatest loss we suffer from our poor condition of law enforcement, can be measured each year only in the billions. The social and political dissatisfaction and discontent are of even more serious consequence. Society requires the restraining influence of the law and the police. But the latter mean nothing to the criminal class, except as conviction and punishment follow arrest. To the law-abiding, and to juvenile offenders, the restraining influence of the police and the power of arrest without reference to results is of consequence. But with the criminal class, the peace officers of society mean little or nothing, except as conviction and punishment follow apprehension.

"Aside from the greater security of life and property that better law enforcement would bring, there is the decrease in social and political discontent that would come from an equal and effective enforcement of the law. The feeling of satisfaction and pride in government, and respect for law, would be immeasurably increased if everyone could feel that equal and exact justice would be awarded to high and low, rich and poor. The contrary feeling now obtains.

"It is the general belief, based on results, that money and influence can defeat the ends of justice; can in effect buy the decisions of courts and juries. I do not believe the general opinion is that our officials or our juries are bought with money, but that our system of law enforcement is so ineffective, the opportunities through knowledge and skill of experienced lawyers to delay its operation so many, that even with honesty and fair ability in the office of Judge and juror and prosecutor, justice can often be defeated and crime go unpunished.

"Thus, through real or supposed influence in the courts, the political boss in the large cities is able to build up and to maintain his machine through the support of the criminal and semicriminal classes. And thus efforts for good government are defeated, and thus is sown the seed of social and political discontent.

"Every expenditure of public funds, and every effort of official and professional agencies for the correction of this situation, are more than warranted by the seriousness of the situation that now confronts us."

EIGHT REASONS FOR THE EXCESS OF CRIME IN U. S. OVER CRIME IN ENGLAND

EIGHT reasons are assigned by Chancellor Hadley of Washington University for greater prevalence of major crimes in the United States than in England and other countries. His conclusions are based on a wide inquiry among prosecutors, judges and law enforcement officials. The reasons are:

(1) Ineffective police methods, including registration, identification and apprehension of criminals, and securing and preserving of evidence.

(2) Ineffective systems and practices of examining magistrates and prosecutors in developing and preserving evidence exacting bonds and conducting preliminary hearings.

(3) Mistaken theories and method of punishment, pardon and parole by executives and judges.

(4) Personal faults and weaknesses of police, examining magistrates, prosecutors, judges and others with the right to grant pardons and paroles; and disregard for professional ethics on the part of attorneys for defendants in criminal cases.

(5) Inadequate number of courts and judges; inefficient organization of courts for holding preliminary hearings and trials.

(6) Inability to secure presence or testimony of non-resident witnesses.

(7) Archaic and inadequate forms and rules of criminal procedure (described in detail in article printed last Sunday).

(8) Indefiniteness and uncertainty in criminal law and procedure, resulting in mistrials, reversals, conflicts in decisions, different tests of criminality in different jurisdictions, and a resultant critical attitude on part of appellate courts in examining records of conviction.

Major Crime Meant

In his discussion of the prevalence of crime, Chancellor Hadley refers only to major crimes, such as homicide, robbery, burglary and larceny, "the kind of crimes," he explains, "that are known as malum in se (evil in itself.) The offenses that are simply made punishable by legislative acts, including the great number of our sumptuary and regulatory laws,

Robinson of Arkansas, His Life, Work and His Chances for Presidential Nomination

"The Moral and Intellectual Leader of Democrats in Senate"

Democratic Leader Wields the Rod Which Scourges Evil Doers in High Places—A Consistent Supporter of the Foreign Policies of President Wilson, He Continues to Be a Believer in the League of Nations—He Is "Dry," a Distinguished Parliamentarian, and His Democracy Is Undiluted.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 9.

SO eminent a political soothsayer as Col. George Harvey, former Ambassador to Great Britain has predicted that the lightning of the Democratic presidential nomination will strike Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, the minority leader of the Senate. Worse guesses have been made as to the outcome of the scramble for that nomination. And the lightning might go farther and do worse.

Through the recent action of its State Legislature in endorsing Robinson, Arkansas has put him in the running as its "favorite son." Considering the consistent manner in which Arkansas has heaped offices on the Senator, that was to be expected. For office holding he has the speed record of the United States and probably of the world. Within the space of 14 days he was a member of the House from Arkansas, Governor of the State and its Senator-elect.

Robinson came to Congress in 1903, when he was 31 years old. In 1912, after an unbroken period of service in the House, he ran for Governor and was elected. He resigned as Congressman on Jan. 14, 1913, in order to qualify as Governor on the 16th. On the 28th of that same month the State Legislature, on its first joint ballot, elected him to the United States Senate for the term beginning March 4. He then resigned as Governor to become Senator and in 1918 he was chosen for another term.

He is now a candidate for re-election next fall, with the prospect of a victory without substantial opposition.

President Wilson Regarded Robinson as "Real Moral and Intellectual Leader Of the Democrats in the Senate"

Washington, D. C., April 8.

FORMER PRESIDENT WILSON wrote to Senator Robinson under date March 14, 1922:

"My Dear Senator:

"My attention has happily been drawn to the very generous reference you made to me the other day in the Senate, and I want you to know how deeply I value your confidence and good opinion.

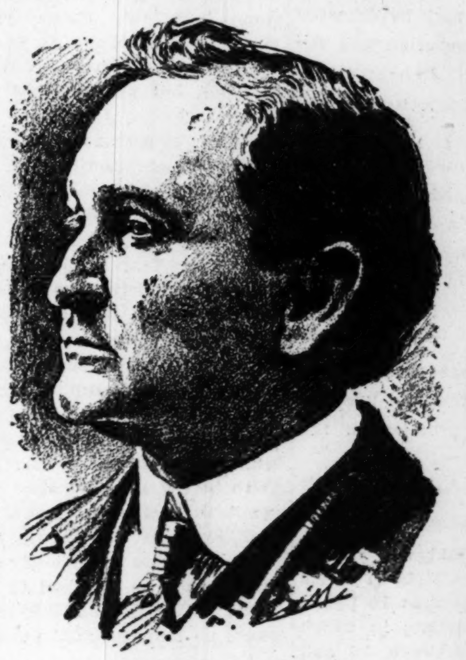
"I am going to venture to take this occasion to say that both by association with you and by observation of your public service I have come to feel for you a genuinely affectionate regard.

"I hope that our association with one another may grow closer and more intimate in the fortunate days now at hand when the principles and policies we believe in shall be once again in the ascendant.

"With warm regards,

"Cordially and faithfully your friend,

"WOODROW WILSON."



SENATOR ROBINSON

On the same day, the former President in transmitting to Robinson a letter he had received from a correspondent, wrote the Senator as follows:

"My Dear Senator:

"Please do not be alarmed that I am sending you the enclosed letter. It does not mean that I am going to unload my correspondence on this subject on you. It merely means that I regard you as the real moral and intellectual leader of the Democrats in the Senate and would fain submit to you occasionally such sincere expressions of opinion and suggestions of argument as Mr.—— letter contains.

"But explanations are not necessary. I know that you will understand; you always do.

"With warmest regards."

"Faithfully yours,

"WOODROW WILSON."

Has the Good Will of His Colleagues

"Joe" Robinson has the good will of almost all his colleagues. When Senator Underwood announced a year ago last September that he wished to retire as the minority leader it quickly became evident that Robinson would be his successor. He looked over the leadership at the opening of the present session, being the unanimous choice of the Democratic caucus. Under him the Democrats in the Senate are showing a spirit of co-operation that is noticeably lacking on the other side. This is due in part, of course, to the fact they are a militant minority, with a wealth of ammunition to hurl at their friends, the enemy on the other side, but in part it is due to the aggressive leadership of Robinson and the respect in which he is generally held.

Robinson is a big-framed, personable man with a rugged, ruddy countenance—the product, perhaps, of his early life on an Arkansas farm. He is clean-shaven and blue-eyed, with dark hair turning to gray. He has a big resonant voice that booms through the chamber—and out into the corridors—when he lets it go at its full, as he often does in the heat of debate.

Where his colleague, Caraway, picks off his opponents by the sharpshooter method with stinging, sarcastic invective, Robinson goes at the mass of them with heavy artillery. Both are agile-minded men, redoubtable in debate.

One of the secrets of Robinson's success as a leader is his knowledge of procedure, exemplified on numerous occasions, which has won him the reputation of being one of the best parliamentarians in either branch of Congress. Another is the fact that as leader he has not tried to monopolize the limelight.

Organized His Senate Team

He has with him an able lot of orators, men like Caraway, Harrison and Reed, and he is quite willing that they should have a full share in leading the charge. Indeed, Robinson counts himself as singularly fortunate—as he is—in having on the Democratic side at least half a dozen warriors who are able to tie almost any one of the regular Republican contingent in a knot.

"We have a good organization—a better organization than I dared hope for at the beginning of the session," said Robinson. "And it continues to gain in strength and unity. I deeply appreciate the co-operation I am getting."

What does the Senator from Arkansas think about the political issues of the day? That, in view of the possibility of his becoming the Democratic nominee for the presidency, was the most pertinent question that could be put to him in an interview.

"The future proceedings in Congress may influence the issues in the approaching campaign," he said. "Speaking as one who recognizes his humble position in the party council, it seems probable that the issues will include clean and honest government, and the reduction of living costs through substantial changes in the tariff, particularly as this affects the prices of commodities generally consumed.

"The subject of tax reduction may be carried over, but I hope it may receive action during the present session. Democrats stand unanimously for reducing taxes as low as possible, and we do not favor making taxes on inheritances or estates confiscatory, or so high as to discourage the accumulation of property by citizens.

"The subject of transportation, particularly as it involves moderate and reasonable reductions in freight rates, will be an issue. Democrats in the Senate do not desire unjustly to impair railway earnings, but the majority of us feel that substantial reductions in rates, which will encourage and revive business, can be accomplished without doing this.

"We Have No Foreign Policy"

"The depressed and unprofitable condition of agriculture appears to be due to the fact that farmers sell their products in competition with each other, and buy the commodities they consume in markets where the price control prevails. It follows that legislation, to be effective for relief, must authorize arrangements by which farmers may regulate more effectively the markets for the things they sell.

"The policy of isolation in foreign, and particularly in European, affairs pursued by this country has had much to do with the unfortunate condition of agriculture. It has driven people from industrial centers of Europe, decreasing the supply of foreign goods available for our markets and thereby increasing the price of the things which the farmer buys. At the same time, the foreign markets have been almost closed to farm products from this country, and the acreage of agricultural cultivation in Europe has been increased by the labor of former industrial workers—which, of course, means that the market for American farm products will not expand until conditions abroad have materially changed.

"We must adopt a foreign policy. At present this Government has none. We can enter the League of Nations and participate in its conferences for the reduction of armament, for the settlement of economic problems and for the maintenance of peace, with the distinct understanding that no European influence or power is entitled to any voice in determining whether or when we shall employ military or other force. If this is fully understood, only far-fetched objections can be made to our co-operation, through the league and other agencies, to work out European conditions so as to restore foreign markets for our products and at the same time show a helpful spirit toward the distressed people of Europe."

It should be interpolated here that Senator Robinson was an unfailing supporter of the foreign policies of the late President Wilson in the Senate. He was one of the outstanding men in the fight for the League of Nations. He is still, as he points out, in favor of our entrance into the league, subject to the condition laid down—a condition which squares with the interpretation given the league by its member states.

Notwithstanding their differences on the league issue, Robinson spoke for Senator Reed in the campaign of 1922, taking the position that Reed was fundamentally a good Democrat and could give valuable aid to the party in the then pending battles over the tariff, taxes and other issues. Personally, he and Reed are good friends, and on all except the issue of international co-operation are likely to be together. But he regards the isolationist views of the Missouri Senator as utterly untenable.

Robinson came prominently to the front as the leader of the battle against the ratification of the four-power pacific pact, negotiated at the Washington arms conference. In several forceful speeches he developed the thought that the treaty was only a modification of the Anglo-Japanese treaty with the effect of adding the United States as an ally of Japan, and that this policy was retrogressive and "in conflict with the more enlightened proposal to co-operate with all friendly nations on equal terms and without discrim-

Nationalism, Issue in Three Elections, Shows How Europe Is Thinking, Says Lloyd George

Socialists Beaten by Fascismo in Italy—Changed Spirit Is Evident in Germany and France.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE, O. M., M. P.
(Former British Prime Minister.)

LONDON, April 12 (by Cable.)

THERE are three fateful general elections in Europe which may well settle the fate of that continent. Two are in progress—one is settled. The Italian elections are over—the German and French are yet to be fought.

Politicians are always apt to exaggerate the effect which will be produced by the results of elections in which they are personally engaged. There is no other justification for the prodigious national effort concentrated for weeks on an attempt to achieve the desired results. Judging from past elections, we now realize these efforts are too often a violent bombardment in order to explode some atom, and when it is exploded, nothing happens but much smoke and a little dust.

But now and again elections decide events. The fate of American union and of slavery in that vast territory was once upon a time decided by an election. By the way, it was a three-cornered fight. It is not yet clear that the last election in Britain will not have consequences of a far-reaching character. The gods have not yet revealed their hand.

David Lloyd George

But although we cannot judge calmly the effect of the electoral contests in which we are combatants, we can form a cool, if not accurate, estimate of what is going on in foreign elections which only indirectly concern us. Our information may be faulty, but our judgment is not clouded by excited and interested partisanship.

Nationalism the Issue.

The Italian, French and German elections have one issue in common—nationalism. Nationalism against any and every appeal — Socialism, communism, Liberalism, pacifism. The Nationalist appeal is not intentionally reactionary. It is only so in effect. What has happened to France during the last few days illustrates what I mean. The domestic policy of Poincare is thoroughly unpopular with the French masses. His aggressive foreign policy, on the other hand, finds favor with them. Up to his defeat in the chamber, he relied largely upon the reactionary Right for support. His electoral policy thus bore a decided Conservative tinge. He has now swung definitely to the Left. He has not changed or modified his foreign policy in a single particular.

He has only given a more radical direction to his domestic program. From a Nationalist Tory, he has become a Nationalist radical. The Royalists are sulky and the radicals not pleased. But neither the sulks of the one nor the displeasure of the other will prevent France from voting for the Ruhr policy. The French people are convinced that Germany is shamming insolvency and they are whole-heartedly for tightening the thumbscrews.

Where that is consistent with radicalism, they will vote that ticket. Where it is not, they will elect candidates of another color. The political color does not concern them as long as it is red, white and blue. That explains Loucheur's somersault on the eve of the elections. He is the most astute, most supple of opportunists. Those who expect a more conciliatory temper to come out of the French general elections are therefore likely to be disappointed. France means to drive the hardest bargain, without regard to the effect it may have on European appeasement. That is the French outlook as it appears to all trained foreign observers whom I come in contact with, either in print or in presence.

The Change in Germany.

What about the German elections? A wave of reviving Nationalism is sweeping over Germany. It was inevitable, sooner or later. Moderation and wisdom on the part of the victors would have delayed its advent. There was deep anger and resentment in German hearts against the militarist system that was responsible for plunging their country into such depths of humiliation and disaster. The Germans were as indignant with the empire of the Hohenzollerns as the French were with the Napoleonic empire that led them into defeat and discredit in 1870.

For a generation they might have been depended upon to eschew militarism and all its ways. Germany had her advocates of revenge, just as France had her Derouledes—but the nation as a whole, in both cases, treated them with derision. The invasion of the Ruhr, with its deportations, imprisonments and intrigues; the Palatinate, with its outrages on German national rights; the ill-timed proposal set on foot by British susceptibilities, have stirred up the embers of German pride.

The Ludendorff trial in Bavaria and the remarkable demonstrations in Berlin in connection with the funeral of a young German who died in a French prison are symptoms of the new spirit which has arisen in Germany during the last year, and affords proofs of the fact that it is not a mere local or provincial outbreak. Prussian and Bavarian are once more united in fierce hostility to France. A flood of passion has inundated Germany.

In this deluge, all pacific elements are completely submerged. The sanest leaders can only obtain a hearing by pretending to pander to this new, dangerous temper. The dam built by force and fear is crumbling away, the pent-up wrath of years is breaking through and new members will be carried to the Reichstag on the wave of the swelling torrent.

The spectacle is likely to react on the French elections, which will take place a few days after the German poll. These two new Parliaments, surging with rival patriotisms, will be called upon, before there is time for the waters to subside, to deal with the report of the interallied experts. Not a hopeful prospect.

Nationalist Victory in Italy.

The Italian elections are a triumph for Nationalism. Facismo arose out of a contest with Socialism and in its method it is antidemocratic, but its real inspiration is not derived from its antipathy to the economic doctrines of socialism, nor from its attachment to the idea of autocracy. It is true that Italy suffered more than any other allied country from the tidal wave of Socialistic impulse which followed the great earthquake which shook Europe. Her industries were at one time nearly swamped by it. Everywhere it brought confusion and disorganization.

The Northwestern Upheaval.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE series on political revolt in the Northwest, recently appearing in the Post-Dispatch, were an illuminating piece of edited news feature which should have made the voters think. The Republican party certainly is not deserving of halos for the heads of its archons. It is a party of business and, therefore, of prosperity for the United States, which proclivity led it in some instances to reactionism; but let us see who are its critics and enemies, particularly in Congress. Are the radical Senators, who pride themselves for not being outright bolsheviks, the real champions of peoples' rights? What have they done for the people? There is not a single real constructive piece of legislation the writer can think of that had ever come through their efforts, but there is not a single important effort at legislation which would not have been blocked by some of the blockheads and their followers.

One of the chief assets of these filibusters seems to be their lashing tongue. They criticise categorically and consistently everything advanced by their opponents with marked disregard for truth, and where facts will not do, fabrications will serve them as well. The ardentness of their feelings exceeds their rationality. To them the peak of success seems to be division, and their element is discontent.

They hate wealth for the wealth's sake, yet they propose to officially recognize soviets, allegedly because of business. Look close to their permanent constituency, look up their war record, bordering on treason, and see if the only capital they approve of is not that of the German brewers in Milwaukee and elsewhere—in spite of their cowardly vote for prohibition.

Most of these Senators were elected after the war, not for their own qualifications, but because of the disqualification of others—to serve as the whip upon their own party. And right here lies the explanation to their political careers which resemble the life of the pond-lily, the sleek ugly plant with only the beautiful blossom of poisonous fragrance showing, whose roots thrive on mire and which dies when the mud dires.

Thus also, I venture to predict, will wither the careers of these men after the process of purging the Republican party is completed, after the upheavals of the decade settle, and after the people have had opportunity to know them. The economical condition of the United States is best of any, and so is the mentality of Americans. We as a nation are too sound and conservative for experiments upon our own body by a lot of fiery proponents of the bloody idea in its various hues, and essentially too prosperous to believe the lamentations of these apostles of misery. The worst they can accomplish is much trouble.

Bible Reading in Schools.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SHOULD the Bible be read in the public schools? I say no. In the Post-Dispatch of April 5 I note an article by Nell Seibins, in which she thinks it ought to be read in all public schools. One of her reasons is that when a President takes the oath of office he kisses the Bible. There is no warrant in law for such an act. That has come down to us from custom. God is not mentioned in the oath that the Constitution prescribes the President-elect shall take. In order to perpetuate our public school system, it is absolutely necessary to keep sectarianism out of all public schools. This is a secular government and in order to keep it so church and state must be kept separate.

If anyone wants their children to know what is in the Bible let them read it at home, or in some theological school.

J. F. MAYO.

To Bob or Not to Bob?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NOT meaning to appear as a crank or any such thing, but why do some of these women who were foolish enough to "bob" their hair, for looks or otherwise, insist and talk others who have beautiful hair into having it cut? Does misery love company in this case, or is it just downright meanness on their part? If I am fool enough to cut my finger off, is that a reason why the other person should? In two years bobbed hair beauties will be out of date. Why not be a sport and leave others alone? Bobbed hair, paint, powder and girlish clothes has a tendency to keep young men from marrying, for at heart a man loves to see his wife with beautiful, long hair. Middle-aged women, who try to gain youth by bobbing their hair only are a laughing stock to the average person. Bobbed hair is all right in its place. Why not practice shaving and growing a beard, and smoke big, black cigars? It is just as becoming to women.

ANNABELLE, 16 YEARS OLD.

SIGNS OF PROMISE.

The unequivocal acceptance of the Dawes Commission's report on reparations by the Reparations Commission means, of course, the acceptance of the plan by the allies.

Putting the plan into operation, therefore, depends upon German acceptance, and there are favorable signs in that quarter. The comment of ministers and the press, although guarded, is distinctly favorable. There are, of course, reservations regarding the total amount to be paid, and protests against the burden laid upon Germany, which are natural, but the general attitude indicates a movement towards acceptance.

It is significant that Dr. Curt Sorge, Director of Krupps and Chairman of the Association of German Industrialists, says that the proposals must be accepted, providing that German economic sovereignty is restored, which is recommended by the experts, and that the loan is raised. After Stinnes, there is no authority more competent to speak for the industrial magnates than Dr. Sorge, and the approval of the magnates is as important as the approval of the political leaders, and is a potent influence in favor of government approval.

It may be a good thing, as has been suggested, that the total amount of reparations was not touched by the Dawes Commission, because it would have been a bone of contention which might have interfered with the acceptance of the plan. The final settlement of that question may be deferred until the plan has been put in operation and the capacity of Germany ascertained. Rehabilitation and the return of activity and prosperity are the first things to be accomplished.

It is impossible to see how Germany can refuse to accept the plan. It imposes heavy burdens, but it opens the way to Germany's resumption of economic control of her resources, and to the revival of industry and commerce. On the other side, the road leads to continued bondage to France and ultimate ruin.

The plan, put into operation, has potent influences which make for peace, and renewed prosperity. There are strong signs of promise on the European horizon.

RURAL SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

The fact, as State Superintendent Lee shows, that there are 799 rural school districts in which the average daily attendance is less than 10 pupils and that there are 1559 such districts in which the average daily attendance is between 10 and 15 pupils, indicates the great need of school consolidation, such as has so greatly improved school conditions in Iowa and other states. It is, of course, impossible to obtain and keep good teachers in schools where the attendance is so discouraging as in those districts cited by Supt. Lee. And it is also true, as he says, that people will move out of districts with such poor educational facilities.

Consolidated schools mean the use of busses to take children to and from school daily. And the daily use of such busses is very difficult, if not impossible, without good roads. Too many of our roads during winter, when the schools are open, are almost impassable. So good schools depend on good roads. And, because people will not stay in districts where there are not good schools, good roads depend on good schools. With good roads and good schools, Missouri's educational standard will be safe. Either factor being lacking, the other will languish. The moral is evident.

THE SABBATARIAN CRUSADE.

New Jersey is at present the center of the battle for strict enforcement of the Sunday closing and other "blue" laws. The March grand jury refused to return indictments on some 7000 violations of the so-called Vice and Immorality Act, which is the Sabbath closing law adopted in that State in 1798, under which it was unlawful to engage in "any worldly business or employment, or of any interludes, plays for gain, dancing, singing, fiddling, or other music for the sake of merriment." The only "worldly business or employment" permitted under the law was the purveying of milk and the distribution of newspapers. And the only lawful amusements were walking, riding and driving.

The grand jury, in refusing to indict, argued that to enforce blue laws would clog the courts with cases of no importance. But Judge Minturn, who issued the indictments at the instance of the Lord's Day Alliance, said that all laws should look alike to juries, Judges and enforcement officers, and will insist that the April grand jury take up the cases for consideration.

Missouri's Sunday law prohibits labor other than works of necessity or charity, horse racing or cock fighting, the exposing for sale of any goods, wares or merchandise, or the keeping open of "any ale or porter house, grocery or tippling shop." Hunting game or shooting on Sunday is also prohibited. The fine in each case is $50.

Having encountered almost universal failure in trying to enforce sweeping blue laws, the reformers who want to suppress Sunday theaters, baseball and all sports or entertainments to which admission is charged, are said to be adopting the tactics of the Antisaloon League and introducing special bills simply covering these subjects. Attempts to enforce, however, are met by a demand for the revival and enforcement of the existing Sunday laws, most of which are as unreasonable as the old New Jersey statute.

Out of the contest may evolve reasonable Sunday regulations, in the interest of all who need a day of rest, rather than for the enforcement of religious tenets upon which there are differences of opinion.

SAVE THE WILD FLOWERS.

With the advance of automobile civilization, wild flowers, if they are not to be exterminated, must be increasingly protected. A Wisconsin botanist calls attention to the fact that the trailing arbutus, lovely, fragrant spring blossom, "wild and untamable as a hawk," is fast disappearing under the rude invasion of flivver naturalism.

Laws similar to game laws are a suggested remedy. If laws will save the wild flowers, laws there should be. It goes without saying that their enforcement would depend on public co-operation. Publicity for the laws would be a first aid, and education beginning with the youngest children in school would be the final reliance.

Time was when American wild land was so limitless and so hard to reach from the cities that the picking of wild flowers, unmissed in a sea of vegetation, was a natural and harmless impulse. Those times are gone forever. A new impulse and the fact that flowers are most beautiful in their natural setting must be taught and become a rule of respectability.

MR. COOLIDGE'S MISPLACED ANGER.

In so far as President Coolidge's protest is directed against the private employment of attorneys to help the Senate nose out departments looking for scandal and against "fishing excursions" to harass, embarrass and cast suspicion on public officials, it is well taken.

The country will find some ground of approval in the President's rebuke to the Senate and will then smile at the heat which Mr. Coolidge has suddenly displayed. For three months Mr. Coolidge has retained an icy calm. He has seen one Cabinet officer prove corrupt, another driven from office as incompetent, a third forced out as unfit. He has hardly batted an eye. Against corruption, incompetence and degradation in the public service for which he is responsible he has had no word of rebuke. Through the utterances of Senator Pepper he has confessed himself satisfied that a Cabinet 30 per cent corrupt or incompetent is not so bad. And then, suddenly Mr. Coolidge becomes indignant. Suddenly, after three months of majestic silence, he finds something scandalous enough to arouse him. It is something indefensible in itself, but as compared with the performances of Fall, Denby, Daugherty and Forbes it was as a gnat is to a camel. For the employment of Mr. Heney is bad practice and, as the President says, in conflict of a statute; but the employment of Mr. Fall by Mr. Sinclair was downright crookedness. The pursuit of Mr. Mellon may be unwarranted, and may be malicious; but the associations of Mr. Daugherty were a disgrace.

Mr. Coolidge should, therefore, either have kept his temper while protesting against the abuse of power by Senator Couzens or lost his temper sooner at the graft and stupidity in his own Cabinet. The utter disproportion between the Couzens rebuke and the gentility of the Denby and Daugherty resignation letters is too startling. It is so startling as to betray the fact that Mr. Coolidge seized an excellent pretext to throw as much discredit as possible on all the Senate investigations.

Mr. Coolidge is furiously angry at Senator Couzens because he has had to bottle up his anger at Senators Walsh and Wheeler. And evidently he wants no more scandal uncovered.

NO SENATOR, SAYS BABLER.

Mr. Jacob L. Babler, Republican national committeeman from Missouri, feels it would be a grave mistake to select a Senator to deliver the keynote speech at Cleveland. As a strict constructionist, he condemns the Senate unreservedly for squandering time in riotous investigation which, the Constitution directs, should be devoted to legislation. In Mr. Babler's judgment the Senate is now at perigee in public esteem. It were a blunder, then, to confer upon that body the distinction of recounting the achievements of the current administration and forecasting the glamorous things to be done in the next four years if "the only party fit to govern" shall be returned to power.

It may be remarked, too, that the present unseemly deportment of the Senate is not its first offense of this kind. Yielding to an inordinate curiosity and forgetful of its constitutional functions the Senate in 1920 conducted an inquiry into campaign funds which possibly changed the course of history and certainly embarrassed Mr. Babler and the beneficiaries of the Lowden fund.

A political fundamentalist who insists upon the strict letter of the organic law, Mr. Babler apparently holds that Senate investigations have no proper place in our constitutional form of government. His sentiment is shared, we feel sure, by all members in good standing of the Anti-Housecleaners' Union.

THE ROAD REFERENDUM.

A question has arisen as to the proper procedure for presenting the initiative measures to speed up the road program. Three plans are to be submitted: (1) A 50-per-cent increase in automobile licenses; (2) a 2-cent tax on gasoline; (3) the sale of the remainder of the bonds at the rate of $15,000,000 a year.

The question is whether the three plans may be offered as one proposal or must be submitted as separate propositions on three petitions. The language of the constitutional amendment leaves the point debatable. To quote only the pertinent phrases, "the people reserve to themselves power to propose laws and amendments to the Constitution and to enact or reject the same at the polls * * * and every such petition shall include the full text of the measure so proposed."

The latter stipulation apparently requires a petition for every proposal; but if the design of the amendment is considered another construction seems permissible. The objective of this amendment, obviously, was to enable the people to enact necessary laws at the polls when the administration failed to do so. As a matter of plain common sense there was no intent to pile up technical difficulties on this task, which, at best, is laborious.

Moreover, the three proposals in this instance are all directed towards the same end. They are integral parts of a whole. As such it does seem as if they might properly be grouped and submitted on one petition, thereby substantially reducing the cost and work.

It is to be hoped that Attorney-General Barrett, whose opinion has been solicited, will so hold. But whatever his ruling, the proposals, it is understood, will be presented. The fact that Gov. Hyde is in favor of omitting the proposed increase in automobile licenses from the initiative and letting the 1925 Legislature deal with that measure ought not to influence the Highway Commission. As an obstructionist to the road program Mr. Hyde has already made a sufficiently elaborate record.

SPRING SONG.

APRIL in the meadows,
And Winter turned to Spring!
Isn't it a wonderful
And truly thrilling thing?
Out of death and into life
Burgeoning?

Yesterday a thrasher
Ushered in the morn,
As if in an ecstasy
Beauty were reborn—
Beauty all the sad gray earth
To adorn.

So it is the spirit
Sheds its weight of woe,
Kindred to the tender morn
And golden afterglow—
Recreating what was dead
An hour ago.

April in the meadows,
And like a playful dare
Lo, the first frail blooming things
Come or whatsoe'er!
Ah, how soon we had forgot
Earth is fair!

If the people who are opposed to giving Muscle Shoals to Mr. Ford understand his offer, then the people who are for it must not understand it. Certainly there could not otherwise be such disagreement among them. We suspect that this will turn out to be the prototype in our material civilization of the famous riddle of the Sphinx. If you recall, the Sphinx asked: "What is it that has only one voice, and goes first on four feet, then on two and lastly on three?" Everybody missed this until Oedipus, who was the sort of young man Mr. Edison is looking for, came along. He thought the question over a bit, and then answered that it was a man, who crawls as an infant, walks on two feet in his prime and supports himself on a stick in his old age. At this the Sphinx, who was a woman and could not therefore stand being found out as the Republican leaders at Washington seem to me, threw herself from a rock and perished. Mr. Ford hardly cares about having Muscle Shoals. He has more now than he knows what to do with. He does, however, enjoy putting us in the hole we are in, and no doubt like the Sphinx, he will hurl himself from a Ford when someone turns up with the answer. It is the way of all superhumans.

The publisher of the Sikeston (Mo.) Standard, whose name is Blanton, has decided to take the characteristically American view of this sort of thing and rejoice in all Blantons who get there. He says this week: "It looks as though some of the Blantons are about to get to the top of the ladder. From Jesup, Ga., a telegram says Jim Blanton has been arrested at that place for engineering the stealing of $200,000 worth of diamonds from the Provident Loan Association of Los Angeles. We are not acquainted with Jim, but he seems to have been enterprising."

The recent cold weather throughout the Ozarks has been a great benefit to the fruit crop, which is now getting to the danger point. Last year peaches were killed in the spring, but there are no fears now for the fruit which has been held back by the cold. The trees are full of buds and owing to the fact that the trees had a rest last year, there has been good wood growth to support a heavy crop, and develop large fancy fruit.

Yellowed, drawn and lined with care;
Her sparse unkempt and streaked hair,
The hooked nose of her race.
Her body ugly, bent with pain
Of child bearing. Her thin lips,
Her bony fingers to their tips,
Spoke of her will for gain.
Hawk-like eyes, swift and bright,
Eager for getting, burn with desire
For quiet after life's fire
Of feverish toil and persistent fight.
Of loveliness there was no trace,
No happiness with youth to mate;
Only an ill-hewn tool of fate
To mother and mold a race.

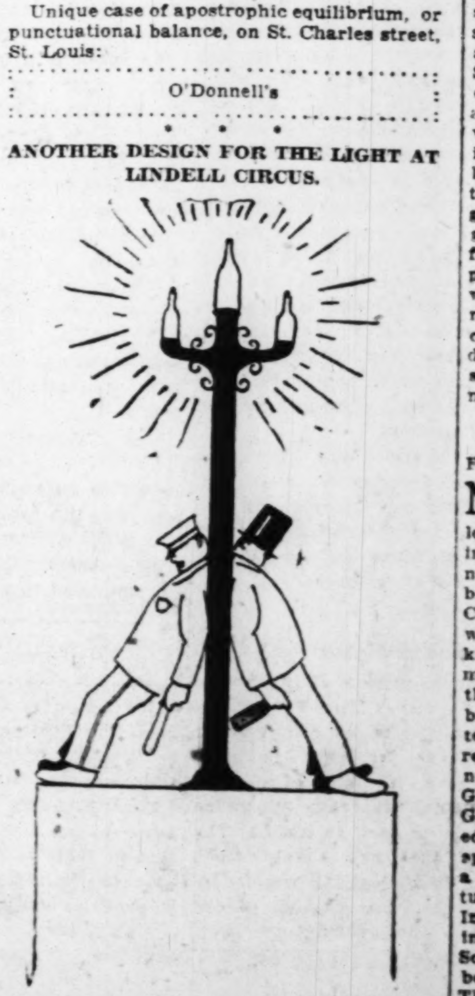
ANOTHER DESIGN FOR THE LIGHT AT LINDELL CIRCUS.



The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

THE OREGON SCHOOL QUESTION.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

HOW significant the parochial school issue is in the minds of the world's thinkers may be intimated in a passage from Hilaire Belloc's article in the April Century:

> It has already been proposed, and may at any time become law in certain parts of the United States that a parent should be forbidden to send his child to any but one particular type of school agreeable to the State, and shall be compelled to send his child to that school. The State here affirms the doctrine and practice that a certain religious atmosphere is or should be universal to the human race, or, at any rate, to all its citizens, which religious atmosphere is other than the Catholic. Such a law no Catholic would obey.

Mr. Belloc is, of course, a Roman Catholic himself and as good a representative as could be found of what he calls the Catholic culture of England and of the Continent; a Balliol Oxford man, father French, mother English, a historian of authority, a keen observer of race development. He apparently looks for a new religion on Puritan lines, a massing of Puritan forces in America, and declares: "Should such a transformation come, then the conflict with Catholicism of which I have spoken must arise immediately and in its severest form." It is a thought not unpleasant to American minds that the United States courts may become the protectors of individual liberty against state invasion and specifically that they may delay or prevent the Belloc "conflict." Innovations by initiative are most perilous. In deliberative bodies conditions are scanned carefully and the wording of legislation is carefully guarded. The initiative as it exists in Oregon lets the initiators, the enthusiasts, frame terminology and only permits the people to vote "yes" or vote "no." Those whose rights are taken away by such a majority ballot ought to have their day in court, and the finality of a Supreme Court decision in Washington may be a wholesome check on contemplated exhibitions of narrowness and bigotry.

MARY WILL PEP IT UP.

From the Detroit News.

MARY GARDEN has announced that she intends to create the role of Charlotte in "Werther" next season. "I'm going to pep her up," says Mary. "There's no need to stalk around like a specter just because you're good." Attagirl, Mary! Charlotte had long flaxen braids, and Mary will do her in bobbed hair. When Werther killed himself because the married and moral Charlotte could not return his love, the lady merely went on cutting bread and butter; but the modern, peppy Charlotte interpreted by Miss Garden would probably reflect, "Oh, I'm in no mood for work now that my sweetie's bumped himself off. Guess I'll go over to the bridge club." Miss Garden has long been one of our most noted philosophers; and her denial of the spectral nature of goodness shows her still a follower of truth. Nothing has made virtue so unpopular as the idea that it is dull. Indeed, the moment virtue and dullness coincide, one should begin to suspect virtue. Some of the best women of history have been the peppiest. Think of Joan of Arc! Think of Carrie Nation.

Hadley Traces Our National Crime Bill

ent an entirely different problem, to be considered on a different basis."

In dealing with major crimes, he believes, a great improvement on present conditions may be obtained. In setting forth this belief he alludes to the glamour which has attached to such figures as Robin Hood and his men in Sherwood Forest and the James boys in Missouri.

"The English people today," he says, "have traditions of law enforcement, instincts for order and system and obedience to law. There is hope for us Americans in the fact that the English were not always thus.

"There was a time when they glorified their criminals and highwaymen, as, in the lifetime of men now living, we have been disposed to glorify our train robbers and murderers."

Without advising the use of "treat 'em rough" methods in the handling of prisoners, Gov. Hadley makes this criticism of the way criminals are treated at present:

"The disposition in this country to make punishment easy, the rose-water system of treating criminals both before and after conviction, which has obtained at different times in several states, has certainly not had the effect of reducing crime.

"There has been in many states an emotional and sentimental system of dealing with criminals, which has found expression in the disposition of judges, executives and pardon boards to grant pardons and paroles to those not entitled to receive such clemency.

"Executive clemency is an important and necessary factor in any effective system of criminal justice, but the frequent abuse of this right in this country has been an important evil and weakness in the proper punishment of criminals. The English have probably erred on the side of too little leniency, and there has been, unquestionably, a harshness or severity about their prison system, until very recently, that has caused ours to seem far more in harmony with the teachings and standards of modern civilization.

Humane Imprisonment.

"While the disposition to make the life of a prisoner interesting and attractive has some things to be said in its favor, yet it should stop short of pampering the criminal. As the proposition has been worked out in most of the states, imprisonment is humane, and in some states there is given to a majority of the prisoners better conditions of life than they have enjoyed outside the prison walls.

"The opinion is warranted that the system of punishment in England has had a deterrent influence upon crime, while our system of punishment probably has not figured as a very important factor to increase or decrease the number of offenders.

"Had the changes in our system of law enforcement incidental to the establishment of juvenile, widows' and industrial relations courts, together with the enlarged use of the power of pardon and parole, been associated with intelligent and effective measures to make more certain the conviction of the guilty, the result would have been much different. But such was not the case, and so the general effect was a weakening in the enforcement of the criminal laws.

Procedure in England.

"In England, the changes during the past 20 years proceeded along different lines. Penalties were reduced until generally they were much less severe than in this country, and the changes in procedure were directed to making the conviction of the guilty more certain. We express our disapproval of crime by fixing a severe penalty while we maintain a system of procedure that leaves many opportunities for the defendants to avoid any punishment at all."

The number of convictions reversed on appeal has a very serious effect on the whole course of justice, Chancellor Hadley believes.

"In cases in which the judgment is set aside and a new trial is ordered," he says, as the result of his observations, "the second trial will result in conviction in less than one-half of the cases tried. The result of such trials can generally be expected to be an acquittal, a compromise on a plea of guilty, or a conviction for some lower offense.

"The conduct of a trial in the English courts is influenced but little, if at all, by a fear on the part of the prosecutor and trial Judge as to the result when the case comes before the Appellate Court. In this country, the danger of reversal hangs as a 'sword of Damocles' over the heads of Judges and prosecutors.

Trial Judge Over-Cautious.

"It makes the trial Judge hesitant and over-cautious in passing on objections by defendants, and disposed to resolve all doubts in their favor. And the jurors, noting that the Court rules generally in favor of the defendant, often get the impression that the Judge is for the defendant, or that the prosecutor is trying to introduce illegal evidence, and thus the jury is prejudiced in the defendant's favor.

"The prosecutor, knowing by experience that from 30 to 40 per cent of the convictions which are appealed are reversed, is disposed to save himself a lot of hard work by accepting a plea of guilty to some minor offense. This demoralizing influence in the administration of criminal justice in this country has not been given the weight and importance that it really has, in its effect upon the conduct of criminal trials, in addition to its effect upon the actual cases in which the judgments are reversed, or reversed and remanded.

"Our archaic forms of procedure, and the uncertainty of the substantive and procedural law, are important causes of the large number of reversals, though the influence of controlling importance is the mental attitude of the appellate judges, in seeking for error instead of investigating as to whether the defendant has been accorded substantial justice.

"The difference in the part that the trial judge takes in the conduct of a case in England and in this country, in the state courts, is marked and important. There, the judge conducts the trial as an investigation to ascertain the truth in an important issue affecting the life and liberty of a citizen. With us, the judge is too often a mere moderator and umpire, without authority to do anything except rule on questions of law presented to him for decision.

Selection of Juries.

"There is probably no one feature of our criminal procedure that more completely disgusts the general public, and works more to defeat the proper administration of justice, than the long, tedious procedure incident to the selection of juries, usually resulting in the choosing of those who represent a minimum of intelligence and force of character.

"In England, a juror must be a freeholder, or must pay rent on a house of certain value. The absence of sensational and extended discussion of crime in the papers removes what is in this country one of the difficulties incident to the selection of jurors, and it is a rare occurrence to encounter any delay in the selection of a jury. Further, there are no jurisdictional difficulties in England in securing the presence of witnesses, and the evil of 'straw' bonds, on which defendants are, in this country, allowed their liberty and often to entirely avoid trial, is non-existent there."

Tracing the causes of the "archaic, unfair and ineffective" system of procedure here, and of the faulty conditions of law enforcement, Chancellor Hadley cites the revulsion of the colonists from the unduly severe criminal laws of England. In the revolutionary period, "the protest against authority abroad easily transferred itself to a protest against authority here." A strong individualistic and independent feeling was favored by the conditions of pioneer life, and protest against regulation and restraint seemed natural and proper.

"The insistence was always on protecting the rights of the citizen rather than the rights of society. It was not a sympathy with wrongdoing or crime, for against the criminal the pioneer American could be swift and terrible in his punishment. But in ordinary affairs and times, the feeling was one of easy-going tolerance as to crimes of violence. James Bronson Reynolds, president of the Institute of Criminal Laws and Criminology, tells of the California pioneer who told his Eastern friend, 'Out here we do as we please, and most of us as we damned please.'

Capital and the Unions.

"Another influence in the development of a spirit of lawlessness and desire to be free from restraint is found in the growth of large combinations of capital, the development of our great natural resources and the organization of labor unions. The promoters of the railroads, in their period of development, felt that the ends they sought and the good they believed the roads would bring, justified any means necessary to their realization, from bribing a Legislature to waging open war with another railroad company for a right-of-way or a pass through a mountainous country. Industrial combinations committed almost every crime, from murder to petit larceny, to crush competitors or to accomplish their business ends.

"Labor unions, influenced by the disregard of law by their employers, came to feel that the same methods were warranted to enable them to accomplish their ends, and thus conditions approximating civil war because the usual experience in industrial controversies. And the point of importance is that public sentiment did not strongly condemn these practices, except when the situation became serious, and condemnation was then usually shortlived.

"There was no such sustained condemnation of conventional methods of law evasion or law violation as to accomplish effectively their punishment or restraint. Laws would be enacted by the Legislature, making the objectionable practice a crime, but prosecutions were infrequent and results unsatisfactory.

Money and Influence.

"The slow, cumbersome, unequal system of procedure directly contributed to the increase of crime and its infrequent punishment. While, in the prosecution of offenses committed by those without money or influence, reasonably satisfactory results were secured, it was possible for a defendant with money and influence to delay the trial of a criminal charge, and justice delayed, in criminal as well as civil cases, is often justice defeated.

"Judge Amidon, an able, high-minded member of the Federal judiciary, who took much interest in questions of reform of criminal procedure, stated in an address some years ago that the chances of acquittal of anyone guilty of crime were at least 50 per cent, if he was financially able to employ a capable lawyer.

"Under the conditions thus existing, the trial of important criminal cases very largely lost the form and atmosphere of an investigation to ascertain the truth, and became far more of a contest between able lawyers, in which the interest of the public was chiefly as to which lawyer would win. With delay an inevitable result, witnesses for the State disappeared or their memories became uncertain, and the defendants, through skillful manipulations, could build up a defense through witnesses sympathetically mistaken or brazenly dishonest, and a public sentiment in their favor after the inital feeling of indignation over the offense had died down.

"This is not a fanciful picture; it is a condition that every observer of such matters has witnessed time after time. During this time, the Legislatures of the different states were regularly used by lawyers interested in the defense of criminal cases to devise new safeguards for their clients and new obstacles for the prosecution. Legislatures usually followed the lead of the lawyer members in such matters, and the laws would be passed with little examination as to their ultimate effect.

"While the Legislatures were thus enacting into laws new safeguards for defendants, the courts of appeal were also busy in their interests. The search for error on the part of the Appellate Courts, which resulted in so many unfair and almost grotesque decisions in favor of defendants was to a certain extent an expression of the easy-going, tolerant attitude of the public toward violators of the law.

Judges' Attitude.

"But whatever the cause, the Appellate Court Judges have generally been found in opposition to changes in our criminal law and law of procedure. It is difficult to get those who administer a system to see its faults. In England, when Romilly was seeking to reform the criminal law by freeing it from its complexities and cruelties, the judges were arrayed in almost solid phalanx against him. Some threatened to resign if the reform bills passed, but they did not carry out their threats.

"When I proposed, before the American Law Institute, that we try to do something to improve the administration of justice by improving the law, my suggestion was vigorously opposed by three or four Appellate Court Judges, who claimed that the only trouble was the failure of the police, the prosecutors and the juries to do their duty. One Chief Justice of a state Supreme Court felt so strongly on the subject that he made an address which he circulated throughout the country, contending that I was wrong in my declaration that guilty men were escaping conviction, when the trouble was that too many innocent men were convicted. He extolled the great service of the Appellate Courts in saving innocent men from punishment. It was of interest to note that there were in his state more unlawful homicides than in any other state in the Union except one."

CHANCELLOR HADLEY TRACES OUR 3-BILLION NATIONAL CRIME BILL

NATIONALISM ISSUE IN THREE ELECTIONS, SAYS LLOYD GEORGE

governments were intimidated by Socialist agitators. All classes in the peninsula were therefore ready to welcome any movement, however unconstitutional or autocratic it might be, which put an end to the reign of these industrial bullies. This is what the Fascists accomplished. All the same, their movement was in essence patriotic, not economic. It has gathered into its fold Conservatives, Liberalists, capitalists, Socialists, Catholics, freethinkers, Protestants.

It represents a rally to the flag—insulted grossly by Socialists and inadequately defended by a succession of weak governments. The most striking Fascist appeal to electors consisted of highly colored pictures, representing attacks by Socialist mobs on the Italian flag, or outrages perpetrated by them on Italian soldiers who fought in the Great War. One significant cartoon purported to show the contrast between the contemptuous treatment accorded Italy's representatives at the European conferences in pre-Fascist days and the deference paid her in the glorious reign of Mussolini.

The three elections therefore indicate that there is a revival in the spirit of aggressive nationalism throughout Western and Central Europe. The European nations are standing on guard for their menaced rights.

ROBINSON OF ARKANSAS, HIS LIFE AND WORK

ination against any." It will be recalled that several of the so-called "Wilson" Senators took this view and declined to vote for ratification.

In reference to the contest over the four-Power treaty, former President Wilson, in a letter to Robinson, called him the "real moral and intellectual leader" of the Democrats in the Senate. Though Wilson probably did not like Robinson's effort for Reed in the 1922 campaign, the long-standing friendly relationship between the two appears to have continued throughout the remainder of the late President's life.

Robinson, though expressing doubt as to the practical value of the naval limitation treaty, a doubt which, he contends, has been vindicated by events, did not make a fight on this or any of the other pacts growing out of the arms conference.

In keeping with the prevailing sentiment of his State, Robinson is "dry," though it is recalled that during the war, at the request of President Wilson, he sought to exempt light wines and beer from the operation of the first wartime prohibition bill. The proposed amendment was adopted in the Senate, but beaten in the House.

Near the opening of the present session, Robinson said that the tax bill should carry a maximum surtax rate of not to exceed 40 per cent, which should be applicable to income beginning at $200,000 and that all incomes below this should receive a material reduction in the current rates. A bill substantially of the character that he then favored and forecast, Robinson said today, would be the eventual outcome of the inevitable compromising which is still going on.

From the point of view of candidatorial publicity, the Senator from Arkansas overlooked a bet when he didn't state in his autobiography in the congressional directory that he was born on a farm. He might truthfully have done so. He was born Aug. 26, 1872, on a farm in Lonoke County, Ark., the son of early homesteaders in that State. His father was a physician, who later became a Baptist minister. The son recalls with a chuckle that the Rev. Mr. Robinson was stout enough of muscle and heart to engage in a fist fight after he was 70 years old. Joe Robinson, one of the 10 children, grew up on the farm, doing a man's work from the time he was 12 years old. He got his early education in country schools and from books studied by the light of a candle on the farm. Without ever having gone to a high school, he obtained a certificate and taught school. When he was able to support himself he studied at the University of Arkansas and later took a law course at the University of Virginia. He returned to Arkansas and practiced law at Lonoke. There he lived till he was elected Governor in 1912. His present home is at Little Rock, where he is a member of a law firm.

Robinson became known to Democrats throughout the country through serving as permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention of 1920, where his powerful voice, as well as his parliamentary skill, stood him in good stead. He made, indeed, a first-class chairman and a success as a "keynote speaker."

Robinson is an outdoor man, fond of golf, fishing and duck hunting. He is married, but has no children.

On the face of his record, which is that of a regular Democrat with an open mind toward new ideas, Robinson is "available" as a candidate. George Harvey, at least, doesn't think that the fact of an Arkansas residence debars him from consideration. What the Democratic national convention will think about it is problematical. Reasoning from the apparent strength of the Underwood candidacy, it would seem that this is no year to count a man out of the race merely because he happens to be from the South. Robinson, like Underwood, is a man of parts. He has, I believe, a chance to get the nomination, and he is deserving of the chance.

Vandervoort's Presents an Economical

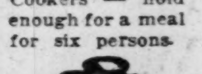
Electric Cooker

That Prepares the Entire Meal!

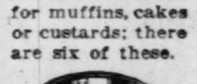
This is the broiler, or toaster—juicy tender steaks or chops broiled while the rest of the meal is cooking.

This is the self-basting Roaster, also serves as a steamer. Holds a chicken or good-sized roast.

Three vegetable Cookers — hold enough for a meal for six persons.



Individual Pans for muffins, cakes or custards; there are six of these.



Pan for frying, or for biscuits or cake.

Combination angel food cake Pan and open baking Pan. Bakes a perfect cake or loaf of bread.

Pie Pan. Just the right size for a generous pie that the Universal Cooker will bake to perfection.

Made by

THE TRADE MARK KNOWN IN EVERY HOME UNIVERSAL LANDERS, FRARY & CLARK, NEW BRITAIN, CONN.

An Assurance of Value

This celebrated manufacturer has developed a remarkably compact household necessity—a complete cooking outfit that prepares a delicious meal in its entirety at a cost of a few cents for fuel. We invite your inspection during the cooking demonstration, any day this week.

Attaches to Your Lamp Socket

Screw the plug in any socket, prepare your vegetables, meat and dessert, place them in the Universal Electric Cooker, and turn on the current. Not a steam or a pressure cooker, but a convenient Electrical Cooker that boils, broils, bakes and roasts, all at the same time.

These Aluminum Cooking Utensils All Included

Really, a complete outfit for preparing most any kind of a meal—the finest of aluminum cooking utensils are included—and all are ingeniously fitted, so as to afford maximum capacity.

SAYS ENGLISH WOMEN VOTE MUCH LIKE MEN

Miss Christabel Pankhurst, Here, Finds Suffrage to Date a Disappointment.

The name of Pankhurst is inevitably associated, in England at least, with "Votes for Women." Mrs. Emmaline Pankhurst and her daughter, Christabel, founded the Woman's Party over there and waged a long and militant battle for equal suffrage with men. Now that women have the ballot, what do they do with it?

Miss Christabel Pankhurst, a visitor in St. Louis, says the English women vote much like English men vote. As a result the great improvements that were to come with woman's suffrage have not materialized. Speaking only for her country, and not for the United States, she says woman's suffrage is a disappointment to date.

Neither do the politicians measure up to advance promises, she continued. Destiny or something makes them all seek world dominance. Napoleon is dead, but his disciples continue to think in terms of empires and battlefields. The world is in a terrible fix and Europe especially so.

Puts Faith in Bible.

Miss Pankhuurst, seated in Hotel Warwick yesterday, said these things calmly. She can afford to be calm, for she has a remedy for the world's ills. It is: "Put your faith in Christ and the Bible." Politicians, she intimated, deserve little confidence.

That Miss Pankhurst is a sort of spiritual evangelist today is due to the Bible. She relates that Providence led her one day after the war into a book store where her eyes fell upon a Bible. Searching the Scriptures she discovered that "God has plainly foretold the career of the human race, and what He will do to make the crooked things straight and the rough things smooth; what He will do to end war and bring in an era of righteousness and universal peace."

Miss Pankhurst looks more the evangelist than the militant suffrage leader who once was obliged to flee from England after an especially militant period. A lawyer by profession, she is a rosy-cheeked Englishwoman in her middle 30s.

Americans Popular in England.

Yesterday she was dressed in sedate black satin with an expansive bonnet to match. She excused herself from being photographed, or discussing prohibition or flappers. Of politics in England she had little to say other than the Labor party, besides being in the minority, is not always united. Americans, she said, are very popular in England and our international policies are held in high regard there.

At 4:30 this afternoon Miss Pankhurst will address a mass meeting in the large gymnasium at the Y. W. C. A., 1411 Locust street. Tomorrow at 1 p. m. she will speak at a luncheon in Hotel Statler and tomorrow at 8 o'clock she will be featured at an "at home" meeting at the Y. W. C. A. Men and women, members and friends, are invited to attend. Another lecture, to which ministers and laymen are invited, will be delivered at the Methodist ministers' meeting at Centenary Church Monday morning at 11:15. Miss Pankhurst will depart Tuesday for Los Angeles.

FILM GUILD PHOTOPLAY A LOCAL ATTRACTION

"Grit," by Scott Fitzgerald, Has Glenn Hunter and Clara Bow in Leading Roles.

A motion picture offering of interest this week is the showing at the Rivoli of the first production of the newly organized Film Guild to be exhibited in the West. The picture is "Grit," with Glenn Hunter and Clara Bow in the leading roles. It is based on a story by F. Scott Fitzgerald.

The Film Guild has for its object the encouragement of serious effort in photoplay production and the presentation of pictures not primarily for revenue but for the improvement of the art. "Grit" is described as an underworld story with highly romantic touches.

SERVICES FOR HOLY WEEK

Bishop Harris to Speak at Christ Church Cathedral.

Bishop Robert Le Roy Harris of Marquette, Mich., will be the Holy Week speaker at the noonday services of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in Christ Church Cathedral, beginning tomorrow.

On Good Friday, the three-hour service, beginning at noon, will be conducted in the Cathedral and in most of the Episcopal churches of the city. At the Cathedral, the bells will toll 33, the number of the years of Jesus' life on earth. Friday night, "The Seven Last Words" will be sung at the Cathedral; Stainer's "Crucifixion" will be sung at St. Peter's Church, Lindell boulevard and Spring avenue, and Maunder's "Olivet to Calvary" will be sung at the Church of the Ascension, Cates and Goodfellow avenues.

Mayor Kiel has requested the heads of city departments to grant their employes leave from duty between noon and 3 p. m., on Good Friday, April 18, so they may attend religious service, should they wish to do so.

$500 A FOOT FOR STREET WIDENING CAUSES COMMENT

Assessment for Olive Project on Property at Twelfth Highest Ever Levied for Purpose.

FIXED BY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS

Total Benefits From Twelfth to Channing $2,349,507 — City's Share $492,884.

The news that $500 a front foot, the highest benefit assessment ever fixed in St. Louis for street opening and widening, had been placed against the Twelfth street frontage on properties at the southeast, southwest and northwest corners of Twelfth and Olive streets, as told in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, caused much discussion in real estate circles and among owners of property in the assessed district.

The assessment was placed by commissioners appointed to assess the benefits incident to the widening of Olive street, between Twelfth and Channing avenue, from 60 to 100 feet. The northeast corner, which is that occupied by the Post-Dispatch building, was assessed at $400 for 80 feet of its Twelfth street frontage, and at $250 for the remaining 47 feet.

The improvement contemplates taking 40 feet off the south side of Olive thoroughout the entire 22 blocks of the widening. The Commissioners, whose report will be filed with the Crcuit Court in two or three weeks, dependng upon the rapidity with which the necessary clerical work can be done, have fixed the aggregate benefits at $2,349,507, of which the city's share will be $492,884 and that of owners of benefited property, $1,856,623.

Where District Extends.

Assessments against individual properties range from $4 a front foot in the extreme downtown section to the $500 peak at Twelfth and Olive. The downtown benefit district extends from the west line of Twelfth street to the east line of Third street and from the south line of Chestnut street to the north line of Locust street. It then extends westward along both sides of Olive to Taylor avenue, and west on Lindell boulevard from Olive to Kingshighway and west to McPherson avenue to Taylor.

The May-Stern Furniture Co. site at the southeast corner of Twelfth and Olive, which has a Twelfth street frontage of 123 feet, is held in the name of Henrietta Ewald and Theodosia Wallace estate. It was assessed at $500 a front foot, or a total of $61,500, because after Olive is widened the May-Stern building will cut out into the vision of persons moving eastward on Olve west of Twelfth. This is a decided benefit, in the view of the commissoners.

Because they will be at the mouth of the broad traffic artery, the southwest and northwest corners were given the same assessment. The former, with 76 feet of front on Twelfth and an assessment of $38,300, is held by the Essex Investment Co. The latter, occupied by the St. Louis Star, has 79 feet frontage on Twelfth and is assessed at a total of $39,500. This property is in the names of Charles H. Ledlic, Vilray P. Blair, and Thomas G. Rutledge, trustees.

Post-Dispatch Property.

The Post-Dispatch property on the northeast corner, with 127 feet on Twelfth, is charged with total benefits of $43,750, the 80 feet adjoining Olive at $400 a foot and the remaining 47 feet at $250.

The ground is in the name of Daniel K. and Theron E. Catlin and Irene Catlin Allen.

The city's share of the improvement money will come from the city-wide bond issue. In addition to the expense of building alteration, the widening will necessitate construction of paving in the 40-foot strip which is to be added to the street.

The Board of Aldermen has passed an ordinance creating a revolving fund of $2,000,000 to be constituted from the proceeds of bonds to be sold this month, to expedite the opening and widening of streets. Where disputes as to the reports of commissioners arise, money from this fund may be used until other funds become available, when the revolving fund would be reimbursed.

How much time will be required for final approval of report of the three commissioners on Olive street, Joseph Hannauer, real estate man; Harry O. Hirsch, contractor, and Emmett T. Carter, attorney, will depend somewhat upon the number of exceptions filed by property owners who may object to the assessments against them.

When Your Joints Are Sore, Stiff or Creaky—Joint-Ease

Even Chronic Rheumatic Swellings in Ankle, Knee, Elbow, Shoulder or Finger Joints Yield to the Mighty Powerful Influence of JOINT-EASE.

It's here, right in town, and every live druggist is selling it like hot cakes.

It's a low-price remedy, to be sure, but that doesn't stop it from taking the kinks, lameness or tortures out of your troubled joints.

Joint-Ease is the name, so called because it is compounded solely for the purpose of relieving all joint ailments.

Just rub it on the tormented, lame joints and in just a few seconds it will penetrate to the bone and tendons and blessed comfort comes.

It absorbs instantly and is so clean that you can rub it on often and get thereby results much more quickly, when the joint is inflamed and the agony intense.

Being such a powerful counter irritant, it cannot help bringing speedy and helpful results in congestion, sore throat, chest colds, lumbago and neuralgia much quicker than almost any other remedy.

But you must remember that it is for joint afflictions that it is mostly dispensed and its helpfulness will astonish you after all ordinary liniments and other treatments have failed. 60 cents a tube at Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington, or any live druggist.

Health Questions Answered

By Dr. Lewis Baker

An Advertisment Telling How and When to Use Trustworthy Products and Reproducing Extracts of Patrons' Letters Relating to Cadomene, Balmwort, Sulpherb, Arbolone, Su-thol, Mentho-Laxene, Minyol, Hypo-Nuclane, Vilane, Etc.

A. R. asks: "Will you please describe the condition called anemia?"

Answer: Anemia means "a deficiency of blood or of the important constitutents of the blood, commonly termed impoverished blood or a weak, rundown condition of the system."

This condition is easily recognized by the victim when the severe or chronic stage is reached; but not so in the earlier stages, when treatment is most likely to be quickly effective. Thousands are "anemic" and do not suspect it.

Tiring easily, extreme weakness, mental sluggishness, nervousness, irritability, sleeplessness, a worn-out, tired feeling when arising, with little or no appetite, are early symptoms of anemia. Later, the skin may become pale or waxy white in the blonde, or in the brunette the skin may become darker, or sallow with great dark circles about the eyes. The lips appear pale or bluish. The hands may become moist and clammy; the pulse weak; the heart may palpitate; shortness of breath occurs; usually indigestion and constipation; sometimes nausea occurs after eating.

To enrich the blood, steady the nerves and build up the system generally, I have never found any medicine so reliable as Cadomene tablets. Where constipation exists I advise Sulpherb tablets be taken in conjunction. This simple treatment is effective, judging by the grateful letters I receive from those benefited.

S. E. asks: "I have tried to cure dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair with numerous tonics, etc., but in vain. What do you recommend?"

Answer: I have been recommending plain yellow Minyol for the past 12 years, and my patients are delighted with the quick, pleasant action of the remedy in stopping itching, falling hair, dandruff, etc. It gives the hair health, luster and vigor as nothing else does.

M. K. writes: "Please prescribe medicine which will relieve me of such distressing symptoms of kidney and bladder, as the following: Pains in small of back, soreness in region of bladder, puffing of limbs, etc."

Answer: Those seeking relief from kidney and bladder disorders should begin taking Balmwort tablets, a very successful formula, in sealed tubes with full directions.

Mrs. O. M. writes: "Lately I was cured of a bad case of bronchitis by using your prescription containing Mentho-Laxene, and have been very grateful and confident of getting good advice. I wish to know of a good, safe medicine to reduce my abnormal weight about 30 pounds."

Answer: I advise that five-grain Arbolone Tablets is the reliable obesity medicine which I always prescribe. In sealed tubes with directions. Druggists can supply you.

B. G. R. asks: "For about a year I have not been feeling well. My skin is pimpled, my tongue is coated, have headache, am sleepless, nervous and bothered with chronic constipation. Please help me."

Answer: You need a laxative, blood-cleansing treatment in the form of three-grain Sulpherb tablets (not sulphur). Overcome the tendency to constipation and gradually your good health, pure blood and clear skin will return.

Miss Betsy writes: "I should like to be advised of a remedy for the severe pains of rheumatism."

Answer: There are several such, but I have found 5-grain Su-thol tablets best of all.

Mrs. R. M. C. writes: "Have had a bronchial cough for two years and would be grateful for advice how to cure it."

Answer: Use the following: Obtain 2¼ oz. bottle of essence Mentho-Laxene. Use as directed on bottle. You should get prompt relief and then continue taking until your system is freed of the inflammation.

F. F. writes: "My trouble is that my food don't digest and it causes distress after meals. Can you help me?"

Answer: Procure Triopeptine tablets and take as per directions. Also regulate your diet by eating temperately. Take regular exercise.

M. M. C. writes: "I suffer from catarrh of nose and ordinary treatments do not correct this condition. Please prescribe."

Answer: Success in your case of stubborn catarrh can only be accomplished by regular treatment. Obtain 2 ozs. of Vilane Powder. Directions for use on bottle should be followed. Also use triple strength Mentho-Laxene Salve. Apply in nostrils two to three times daily. If constipated, take 3-grain Sulpherb tablets, to assist local treatment.

L. D. J. writes: "I am extremely under weight for my height. I am so very thin. Have tried special diet, but do not gain."

Answer: In my opinion, certain elements are lacking in your system which causes a diminished process in nutrition. For such very thin persons I advise Hypo-Nuclane tablets which should be taken with meals regularly. In a few weeks gains in weight occur daily.

NOTE: For many years Dr. Lewis Baker, Medical Director of The Blackburn Products Co., 312 College Bldg., Dayton, Ohio, has been recommending trustworthy medicines to millions of people through the medium of the newspapers, and doubtless has helped in relieving the ailments and minor infirmities of the public more than any single individual in the world's history; and, by an inexpensive method.

The medicines mentioned by him are pure and free from habit-forming narcotics. They represent the combined wisdom and experience of physician and chemist.

Progressive druggists can supply them. Dr. Baker cannot individually answer letters. By reading his answers to others you should find a case similar to your own.

Thousands have written him expressions of gratitude and confidence similar to the following:

LETTERS TO DOCTOR BAKER

Mrs. Maude Smith, 33 Sidney st., Buffalo, N. Y., writes: "For six years I have had a bronchial cough every fall and spring. I had doctored with some of the best doctors and got a little relief, but I got so weak and lost appetite. My breath was short and thought I was getting asthma. One day I saw your advice to others for bronchial cough. It was to get Mentho-Laxene. It was wonderful the quick relief I got. I have not coughed for five weeks. I am also using Balmwort tablets for bladder trouble and it is surely doing me a great good. I thank you, Dr. Baker, for your wonderful advice and kindness and you have my consent to publish my letter."

Christian Correia, 11 Bradford [illegible], Lowell, Mass. writes: "I am going to tell you briefly what your wonderful Cadomene tablets did for me. I was all run down; I was weak; I couldn't do my work as usual; I could not sleep well; I had to force myself to eat; I became a terrible physical wreck. I started buying so-called guaranteed patent medicines. They did no more good than water running down a sink. Then I began to despair of ever being well. One day I read your advice about Cadomene tablets. I got two tubes. After using for one week I found the color coming to my pale cheeks. Then I knew I was getting real red blood in my body. I continued and soon found that I had regained my health and strength."

Joseph N. Kenney, 18 Hillsdale St., Medford Hillside, Mass., writes: "I was in a very nervous run-down state. Could only sleep with the use of opiates. My hands and legs were numb and [illegible] treatments did not help me. I was obliged to give up my work for six weeks. I could not eat with a desire and had terrible night sweats. I have taken one and a half boxes of Cadomene tablets and find myself feeling 100 per cent better than I have for the past three years. I feel it my duty to express my appreciation for a medicine which can work such wonders in so short a time, etc."

Hiram E. Moore, National Home, Wisconsin, writes: "A few lines to let you know I am taking Balmwort tablets for kidney and bladder trouble. They work like a charm and are all you recommend them to be and more. I had taken all kinds of medicine without relief. [illegible] let others know the good qualities of Balmwort tablets. You have my unqualified consent to publish my letter, etc."

• • •

Mrs. W. L. Stigers, St. Joseph, [illegible], writes: "I am writing to express my thanks to you for your Health and Beauty book and letters of advice, but most of all, for the benefit I have received from the use of Arbolone Tablets. I have reduced 13 pounds in six weeks. Then I quit taking them two weeks to see if I would regain. I did not gain an ounce, and am taking them again as I wish to reduce 10 pounds more. I have gained absolute faith in your advice, etc."

• • •

Mrs. P. Durand, 932 Brook St., [illegible], O., writes: "Our baby had a severe cold and a terrible continuous cough and it worried both my husband and myself almost to distraction as baby is only [illegible] months old. I then thought of triple strength Mentho-Laxene Salve, rubbed his chest, put him to bed and that night he never coughed again till morning, it was loose, and he is better all the time. This Salve can't be beat. Thanking you, etc."

DELMAR CROSSING NOT AFFECTED BY RULING

Counsel Says Decision by Higher Court Does Not Restrain Commission.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 12.—Powers of the State Public Service Commission to order elimination of dangerous grade crossings are not restrained by a United States Supreme Court decision last week, holding that states cannot compel interstate railroads to join in construction of a union station, counsel for the commission stated today after examination of the opinion handed down by Chief Justice Taft.

As related in the Post-Dispatch on April 10, the commission had taken the position that its contentions, and those of the city of St. Louis in a case now pending before the Missouri Supreme Court, to compel the Wabash Railroad to depress its tracks at the Delmar boulevard grade crossing in St. Louis, were not affected by the Federal decision.

Rules Against California.

The United States Supreme Court ruled against efforts of the California Railroad Commission to compel three interstate railroads to join in building a union station in Los Angeles. Elimination of several grade crossings was included in the commission order, as incidental to building the station.

"Reading of the opinion by Chief Justice Taft discloses that the Federal Supreme Court did not hold that state public service commissions are deprived of jurisdiction to make orders relative to grade crossings, by the transportation act of 1920," Frank E. Atwood, assistant general counsel of the Missouri Public Service Commission, said. "In fact, the Supreme Court expressly refrained from doing so."

The California Railroad Commission, in presenting its case, offered the argument that in view of its finding that the union station proposed was an indispensable element in getting rid of the grade crossing, it had the right to order construction of the station.

Findings Modified.

Findings of the California Commssion were modified by the Supreme Court "insofar as they sought to tie the validity of its order establishing a union station, to its unquestioned police power to regulate grade crossings in the interest of the public safety."

Chief Justice Taft's opinion clearly states, Atwood says, that the United States Supreme Court does not modify its opinion in the Erie Railroad case in which the court declared the right of a State to keep its highways safe, is one of the most obvious cases of the police power" and "a fundamental right of the sovereign of the soil."

The Delmar crossing case growing out of a controversy of more than 12 years' duration between the City of St. Louis and the Wabash Railroad, is set for argument on April 21 before Division No. 1 of the State Supreme Court. The city's plan for depressing the tracks, approved by the Public Service Commission, was reversed upon review of the commission's order by the Cole County Circuit Court and was appealed by the city to the Supreme Court.

EMBARGO ON U. S. CATTLE LIFTED BY GREAT BRITAIN

Canada to Take Similar Action Soon, It Is Announced.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, April 12.—Notification was received today by the Federal Department of Agriculture of the lifting of the embargo on the shipment from the United States for slaughter in Great Britain of cattle originating east of the western boundaries of Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico.

The announcement was made by Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, who made public a cable he received from London.

Dr. Grisdale declared the Canadian Department of Agriculture was contemplating lifting the dominion's embargo on American cattle in so far as it related to animals originating in the territory stipulated in today's cable from London. An official announcement on the subject would be made soon, it was stated.

The Canadian embargo was put into effect after the foot and mouth disease was declared to have broken out among cattle in far Western States of the United States.

Princeton Scholarships Endowed.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., April 12.—Princeton University is given $100,000 for the endowment of eight equal scholarships, four for Michigan and four for Maryland students, under the will of the late John G. Armstrong, which has been filed for probate. The will directs that in choosing the holders of the scholarships "the general mental, moral and physical characteristics be taken into consideration rather than any specialized excellence in any one field."

Gov. Small Pardons Ten.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 10.—Pardons were granted William F. Quesse and nine others, convicted of conspiracy in the Chicago flat janitors' strike of 1922, by Gov. Small today, on the ground they were not given a fair and impartial trial. They had been given penitentiary sentences.

Carroll's "Vanities," With Peggy Joyce and Joe Cook, at American

First Edition of Lavish New Revue Serial Opens Tomorrow Night—Ethel Barrymore, Irene Bordoni and Alice Brady to Play Here.

SMART, lovely and intoxicatingly rapid is said to be the new musical revue, Earl Carroll's "Vanities of 1923," which begins its first St. Louis visit at the American tomorrow evening. It has been added that the show is thoroughly stripped for action. The stars are Peggy Joyce, a slender young blonde who has done more than anyone else to make the chorus worth while; and Joe Cook, known as the "one-man vaudeville show," who has been seen here previously only in the varieties.

The "Vanities" will have the week t oitself, as the Shubert-Jefferson is compelled again to lapse into a week of idleness. The Winter Garden revue, "Innocent Eyes," with Mistinguet, which was to have been offered tonight at the Twelfth boulevard playhouse, was suddenly summoned to New York. The Woodward Players, at the Empress, are undertaking the Potash and Perlmutter comedy, "Partners Again."

Next Sunday night the American will present Irene Bordoni, French comedienne, in her new play, "Little Miss Bluebeard," which will be followed by Alice Brady in "Zander the Great." For next week the Shubert-Jefferson promises Louis Mann and George Sidney, in "Give and Take," after which Ethel Barrymore is to visit the city in Sir Alfred Sutro's "The Laughing Lady."

The Grand Opera House bill includes Danny Graham and four dancing girls, Billy Zeck and Gladys Randolph, Harry Tyler and Gladys Crolius, the Paramount Four, Rose O'Hara, Jim and Flo Bogard, the Manilla brothers, and Leon's ponies.

Was Produced Last July.

COMPOSER, librettist and director, Earl Carroll brought his "Vanities" into being in July of last summer at the Earl Carroll Theater in New York. The new creation at once challenged place with the leading older revues, and it enjoyed a lengthy run in the metropolis. On deciding to tour with his production, Carroll announced that the original cast and equipment would be preserved intact. There are two acts of 25 scenes, and a company of 110, including a chorus of 60 girls described as eminently personable. Willie Collier had an active hand in the comedy episodes.

Among those in the cast are Don Barclay, Harry Burns, Irene Ricardo, Margaret Davies, Ruth Oswald, Renoff and Renova, Dorothy Knapp, Charles Alexander, Charles Senna, L. Barton Evans, John Byam J. Frank Leslie, Amy Frank, Betty Fitch, Vera King, Amy Biveve, Flo Gillingham, Lotta Cheeks, Charles Callahan, Elsie Neal, Carlena Diamond, Claire Elgin and Cardinal Peairs.

Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr appeared in "Partners Again" at the Shubert-Jefferson during last October. In this opus the hilarious partners of Montague Glass are engaged in the automobile business, and worry through three acts of their customary squabbles and near-disasters. Mawruss will be played by Alexis Luce, and Abe by Raymond Brown.

Bill at the Orpheum.

THE Orpheum has three featured acts—Ole Olesen and Chic Johnson, Swedish cut-ups; Benson's Victor Orchestra, and Olesen and Johnson's "Surprise Party." Other turns on the bill are those of Powers' elephants, formerly of the New York Hippodrome; Thelma and Marjorie White; Eddie Nelson, comedian, with Dolly and Patrick Rafferty; Jack Hanley, comedy juggler; and the Melvin Brothers. Elliott Dexter, movie actor, will be headliner on the Orpheum's Easter week bill, when the annual National Vaudeville Artists' benefit celebration will be held at this theater.

Beginning next Sunday, the Fox-Liberty Theater, shortening its name to the Liberty Theater, will change its policy from motion pictures to musical comedy and vaudeville, under the direction of Curt Jones. A stock company of 40 has been organized, including, it is said, a chorus of St. Louis girls. In addition to the musical comedy feature, there will be several acts of vaudeville and a film. Popular prices will prevail. There will be three performances daily except Saturdays and Sundays, when there will be four. The show will run continuously from 2 to 11 p. m.

Johnny Burke, in "Drafted," leads the Rialto offering for the first part of the week. Others include Bert Baker in "Prevarication;" Ballew, Atkin, Ambrose and May, in "The Four of Us;" Jack de Bell and Jean Water, and the Waites. On the program opening Thursday will be Walter Rosemont's orchestra, Jimmy Kemper, Eleanor Pierce and others.

Columbia and Grand.

A RURAL musical comedy, "Lonesometown," with Toby Wilson, Olive Finney and others, is the chief announcement at the Columbia. Its film feature is "Blow Your Own Horn," adapted from a play by Owen Davis. On the bill also are Lyle and Virginia, Achilles, Danny Simmons, the Tiller Sisters, and the Trennell Trio.

O'Neill Makes Botch of "The Ancient Mariner"

By HEYWOOD BROUN,
Drama Critic of the New York World.

NEW YORK, April 12.

THE waning theatrical season has reached the experimental stage. By now managers are putting on plays, not because they think they will be successful, but only because they hope so. The odds against any given experiment are high, and yet out of this venturesome period there is always the long chance that something magnificent may emerge.

The Provincetown Playhouse is avowedly an experimental theater, and so it is not unreasonable that it should occasionally bring forth base metal. Abject failure must inevitably be a potentiality of high endeavor. It seems to me that "The Ancient Mariner—A Dramatic Arrangement of Coleridge's Poem," by Eugene O'Neill, is a cracked test tube in the Provincetown laboratory.

The first night audience applauded a great deal, but to me the amalgamation of Coleridge and O'Neill was terrifically dreary. O'Neill's part in the proceedings is not extensive. He has contributed directions for a number of off-stage noises and indicated a few pauses to show the passing of light effects.

Visualizing Figures of Speech.

HOWEVER, he has done enough to botch the ballad. The swiftness of the tale is gone now, its simplicity and most of its imagination. A recitation with gestures and magic lantern slides would rise to approximately the same esthetic level. Indeed, that is about what O'Neill's arrangement amounts to. When the Mariner falls into a swound the actor accommodatingly reclines on the stage to show what the poet meant to convey.

But less harm is done in illustrating the obvious than in reducing the intangible into something definite for the physical eye. The pictures which Coleridge suggested defy the most adroit and venturesome of producers. The mental eye can beat even Robert Edmond Jones a little, and so the vast and imaginative effects which are implicit in the poem are minified into the merely explicit.

I feel sure that the bloody sun at noon was rather more than a rose red light cast upon a concrete dome. When I am told that the very deep did rot I can do a picture to myself much more impressive than a wavering green spot. Mr. O'Neill and his associates have taken art and made it arty.

Lloyd Hamilton and Sally Long in "His Darker Self"—Kings.

Two scenes for "The White Moth," which Maurice Tourneour has just finished at the United Studios, used more than 600 people each. In the audience of the Follies Royale, a Parisian theater, there were seated more than that number of members of Los Angeles' large French colony. In addition there were nearly 100 stage hands, members of the orchestra, ushers, and other theater employes. At the bal des artistes practically the same crowd turned out in extravagant costumes and makeup. Tourneur allowed them to dance and improvise their own merry-making, for most of them had attended similar affairs in Paris.

John Bowers will be seen in his first leading role for Vitagraph in "The Range Boss," from the novel by Charles Alden Seltzer. It is a story of ranch life. Alice Calhoun plays the feminine lead.

Dorothy Dalton in "The Moral Sinner"—Missouri.

What They Are Doing In the Movie Studios

Elmer Harris, author of many celebrated Broadway musical comedies, including "So Long Letty" and "Canary Cottage," is now at the head of a new motion picture producing company, the productions of which will be released through Hodkinson. His latest play, "The Wise Virgin," will be the first subject to be placed under production, with Patsy Ruth Miller and Matt Moore jointly featured. Present plans call for the pictures to be made in San Francisco.

Production on the first of the Al Christies special features to be distributed by Hodkinson is well under way on the West Coast. "Hold Your Breath" is the title of this first special, which promises many thrilling episodes as well as fast comedy. Dorothy Devore, Walter Hiers and Tully Marshall are featured. Scott Sidney is the director.

Margaret Livingston, who is featured in "Wandering Husbands," the James Kirkwood-Lila Lee costarring production distributed by Hodkinson, has been ill for several weeks. She is reported much improved and will soon be ready to begin work on a picture that is expected to be her first starring vehicle.

George Nash has been chosen to play George Washington, Mabel Taliaferro will be Betty Schuyler and Allen Conner Hamilton in "Alexander Hamilton," one of the "Chronicles of America" pictures now being produced by Yale University Press. The picture shows the inauguration of George Washington as first President of the United States and traces the fearless manner in which the new nation handled the problems of taxation under the financial direction of Hamilton. The tax on whisky, since it provoked resistance, provided the real test for the Government to show its courage and power. This incident, which has become known as the "Whisky Rebellion" of 1794, is graphically depicted in the new Yale Press film.

Somewhere in New York, in a quiet little studio far above the maddening throb of the traffic, Richard Walton Tully is busily preparing the continuity for the screen version of his celebrated international stage success, "The Bird of Paradise," which he is to produce in Hawaii this summer. And, between spells, he is devoting a great deal of thought to the selection of the actress who will portray the title role in this great romance of the islands. He has not yet made this momentous decision, and in a communication received this week, states he has, after a process of elimination, decided that there are only 12 girls in America fitted for the role. He does not state who the 12 are, thereby doubtless saying them many sleepless nights.

Official confirmation of the size and stature of George Washington was obtained by David Wark Griffith, when the producer of "America" visited Valley 2Forge as the guest of Rev. W. Herbert Burk, president of the Valley Forge Memorial Association. Many historians contended that Washington was more than six feet tall and of corpulent form. Griffith's research workers, seeking authentic data for "America," with which photoplay the Daughters of the American Revolution planned to celebrate the sesquicentennial of the freedom of this country, learned from Washington's own letters to his London tailor that he was exactly six feet tall and medium girth.

In Hollywood at the Fairbanks-Pickford Studio, Frank Woods, whose production, "What Shall I Do?" starring Dorothy Mackaill, will be distributed by Hodkinson, staged a baby show in order to get three prize infants to appear in the picture. Fifteen hundred mothers with their hopefuls responded, and infant screen "flappers," "vamps" and "ingenues" literally swamped the lot.

The idea of showing a picture to several highly critical audiences before the negative leaves the studio lot was tried out with fine results on the Lila Lee-James Kirkwood production, "Wandering Husbands," soon to be released through Hodkinson. As soon as the print was completed at the Thomas H. Ince Studio, in Los Angeles, a triple audience test was instituted well in advance of its ..ew York showing. The reactions of the blase

Clara Kimball Young and John Bowers in "The Woman of Bronze"—Delmonte.

"His Darker Self," "The Moral Sinner" Are Film Features

Other Offerings on Local Programs Are "The Woman of Bronze" and a Popular-Price Showing of "Ashes of Vengeance"—Liberty Closed for the Week.

AT the Kings this week Lloyd "Ham" Hamilton heads the bill with his first feature length comedy "His Darker Self." He has the part of Claude Sappinton, an amateur sleuth who disguises himself as a darkey to catch a murderer. The murderer is caught and Hamilton has a jolly time in burnt cork and negro habiliments. The picture is said to be full of action and funny situations, with just enough pathos to serve as a foil for the humor. Tom O'Malley as Uncle Eph and Lucille La Verne as Aunt Lacy have character parts. Sally Long plays the role of Sappinton's sweetheart. The picture is based upon an original story called "Mammy's Boy." Sharing honors on the same program are Bryant Washburn and Billie Dove in "Try and Get It," adapted from "The Ringtailed Galliwampus" a magazine story. In the cast are: Lionel Belmore, Edward Horton, Joseph Kilgour and Hazel Deane. Joe Merril, bill collector for Larry Donovan, owner of a printing business, complains that he has no opportunity to show what he can do. Donovan gives Joe a seven-year old bill against Tim Perrin and tells him that if he doesn't collect it within a week, he's through. Donovan also tells Glenn Collins, his star salesman—who always "almost" gets the business—that if he doesn't get Perrin's account within a week, he's through too. The riot starts when Glenn and Joe approach Perrin at his cement yard. A novelty reel showing Mary Pickford at work and play and an Aesop's Fables complete the film numbers, while on the stage the Terrace Garden Orchestra of Chicago will be heard in a program of dance numbers.

Marjorie White—Orpheum.

Dorothy Dalton returns to the screen in "The Moral Sinner," a Paramount picture, directed by Ralph Ince, which is the week's feature at the Missouri Theater. It is a picturization of the stage play "Leah Kleschna," in which Mrs. Fiske scored a stage success. The story concerns the daughter of a notorious crook. Her father endeavors to make her marry a good-for-nothing son of a French nobleman. She refuses. Later she meets a young journalist and they fall in love. Her father robs her lover's house and while trying to restore the loot she is caught. The evidence is overwhelming against her, but she is allowed to escape punishment. She leaves Paris and goes into the country to renounce her life of crime and forget. Her father later confesses and her innocence is established. The lovers are united and the ending is happy for all concerned. James Dennie is cast as the lover of Leah.

On the Missouri bill also will be a Larry Semon comedy, Mills and Kimball, harmony singers, and Johnny Maher, a St. Louis tenor.

Clara Kimball Young is the star in "The Woman of Bronze," featured this week at the Delmonte Theater. There is also an "Our Gang" comedy and the vaudeville end of the program is supplied by the Georgia Quartette in old and new songs.

"The Woman of Bronze" was made into a screen play from the drama of the same name which served Margaret Anglin so well for several seasons. It was originally produced in France and tells the story of a sculptor who is at work on a great war memorial. As a model he picks a young woman to pose for the woman he is to make in bronze. The two work together for many days and gradually the sculptor sees less and less of his wife who is battling to keep his love and, at the same time, help him in his great work. The bronze woman is finished and, apparently, so is the sculptor's love for his wife while his infatuation for the woman who posed for him has increased. Gradually, however, he finds that while his statue is a work of beauty it has no soul and no inspiration and at last, almost too late, he discovers that the inspiration could have come from his wife. Miss Young plays the part of the wife. Lloyd Whitlock is the husband and Katherine McGuire plays the part of the model.

"Ashes of Vengeance," Norma Talmadge's pretentious production laid in the time of Charles IX of France, goes into the Grand Central, West End Lyric and Capitol Theaters this week. The production originally was shown for advanced prices at the Pershing Theater, but like other attractions which played there, it is now presented at regular prices.

In addition to Miss Talmadge the cast includes Conway Tearle, Wallace Berry, Courtenay, Betty Francisco and Claire McDowell. The story, written by H. B. Somerville, deals with the massacre in France of the Huguenots, but the plot concerns chiefly an old feud between the house of de Vricac and the house of de la Roche.

"Thundergate" will be shown Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the West End Lyric. Its cast includes Owen Moore, Tully Marshall, Virginia Browne Faire, Robert McKim and Sylvia Breamer.

The Liberty Theater is dark this week. It is scheduled to reopen next week under new management and with a new policy, with musical comedy and vaudeville acts predominating.

"NAUGHTY MARIETTA" PUT IN OPERA CYCLE

Victor Herbert's Romance Is Substituted for "The Blue Paradise" During July.

The substitution of "Naughty Marietta" for "The Blue Paradise" in this summer's Municipal Opera repertory, was announced yesterday by the Municipal Theater Association.

"Naughty Marietta" is a romantic comic opera with score by Victor Herbert and book and lyrics by Rida Johnson Young. It was presented as the opening week attraction last summer at the Municipal Theater, but there was inclement weather on four of the seven nights of its run.

Season's Repertory.

The complete repertory for the 1924 al fresco cycle as now planned, follows:

May 26—"Princess Chic," an operetta in three acts; music by Julian Edwards, libretto by La Shelle.

June 2—"Firefly," an operetta in three acts; music by Rudolf Friml, libretto by Otto Hauerbach.

June 9—"Folodora," an operetta in two acts; music by Leslie Stuart, libretto by Owen Hall.

June 16—"Chinese Honeymoon," operetta in two acts; music by Howard Talbot, libretto by George Dance.

June 23—"Bohemian Girl," an opera in four acts. Score by Michael William Balfe.

June 30—"Prince of Pilsen," an operetta in two acts; score by Gustav Luders, libretto by Frank Pixley.

July 7—"The Fortune Teller," an operetta in three acts; score by Victor Herbert, libretto by Harry B. Smith.

July 14—"Lilac Domino," an operetta in three acts; score by Charles Cuviller, libretto by Emerich von Gatti and Bela Jenbach.

July 21—"Naughy Marietta," a romantic comic opera; music by Victor Herbert, libretto by Rida Johnson Young.

July 28—"The Beggar Princess," an operetta in two acts; score by Noel Poepping, libretto by Sylvester Maguire.

Five of the operas for production this summer are new to the open-air theater stage. "The Bohemian Girl" was presented in 1919, the first year of the outdoor venture, and in 1920 "The Firefly" was the inaugural attraction. "The Fortune Teller" was included in the 1921 repertory and last summer "Naughty Marietta" and "The Prince of Pilsen" was given.

"The Beggar Princess" is the joint work of two St. Louisans and its production here will be the premiere of the operetta. It was designed especially for presentation at the Municipal Theater and has been dedicated by its authors to the Municipal Theater Association.

Preparation Under Way.

Active work in preparation for the coming opera season began two weeks ago with the arrival in St. Louis of Frank A. Rainger, general stage director for the theater association. Plots for scenic productions and costume investitures of the 10 operas have been prepared.

Two hundred candidates for positions in the opera chorus are being drilled in the musical numbers of the various operas. Charles Previn, musical director for the association, is expected in St. Louis tomorrow and will attend the final sessions of the chorus training school. Members of the chorus will be selected later this month and rehearsals of "Princess Chic," the first offering, will get under way immediately thereafter.

BERTRAND RUSSELL TO SPEAK

Scientist Will Address League of Women Voters.

Bertrand Russell, English scientist and lecturer, will speak before the League of Women Voters at Sheldo nMemorial, 3646 Washington boulevard, at 8:15 p. m. Tuesday. His subject will be "Why Men Fight."

Russell is in this country to lecture at several Eastern and Midwestern universities and colleges. He has lectured in this country before on philosophy, and was at one time a special professor of philosophy at Harvard University. He is the author of several books on the subject, and also has published studies of mathematics and the social sciences.

In 1920 Russell visited Russia, his opinions on the soviet Government being considered a valuable addition to criticism of bolshevik rule. He later went to China, where, while a professor at the Pekin Government University, he published several articles on China and the Orient.

Turko-Russian Trade Treaty.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 22.—The Turkish and soviet Governments have concluded a trade agreement whereby freedom of trade, subject to custom dues, is allowed between the two countries. Turkish traders are free to enter Russia at any time and to sell their wares to whomsoever they please.

Will Speak on Palestine Bank.

Dr. D. Rabelsky, member of the Central Committee of the Zeire-Zion (Young Zionists), with headquarters in Berlin, will speak on "The Co-operative Bank in Palestine and the Pioneers" April 23 at the Jewish Community Center, under the local branch of the Young Zionists.

fans of the West Coast wer carefully studied. The picture met with hearty approval from all three audiences, while the constructive criticism of a few fans proved of value in the final editing.

Strongheart is to have a screen rival. Egon von Grimnitz, famous show dog of the Berlin Police Kennels, will be seen with Betty Compson in the forthcoming Alan Crosland production, "Miami," distributed by Hodkinson. It is reported the animal was purchased from the Berlin police department for $3000 in American money, the highest price ever paid for a police dog. Egon is the property of Benjamin Finney, who plays the lead opposite Miss Compson. The intelligence of this dog is said to be astounding. He obeys orders given in five different languages.

Miss Lita Grey, beautiful 19-year-old descendant of one of the old Spanish families of Southern California, with all the charm and coloring of that race, has been chosen by Charlie Chaplin as his new leading lady and will have an important role in Chaplin's next feature length comedy.

D. W. Griffith has accepted an invitation from a syndicate of Italian bankers to go to Rome to confer on the production of a series of motion pictures to be made there.

Charles Chaplin wants it known that he is back in comedy, and will continue to portray his famous character of old, that which brought him fame and fortune. He is his own director and will always, he declares, make comedies for the masses. While a Chaplin unit to produce dramatic pictures may be organized under his supervision and direction, Chaplin asserts he never will desert comedies to direct others—nor will he appear in Shakspearean roles.

After considering a great number of titles William de Mille has decided to call his next production, "The Bedroom Window." The story is an original by Clara Beranger and was begun recently at the Paramount West Coast Studio under the title, "The Inside Story." The cast includes May McAvoy, Rulcolm McGregor, Ethel Wales, Mobert Edeson, Ricardo Cortez George Fawcett, Guy Oliver, Charles Ogle, Nadea Radzina, George Calliga and Mattie Peters.

Sidney Olcott has completed the French sequence of "Monsieur Beaucaire," Rudolph Valentino's new starring picture at the Paramount Long Island Studio, and has begun on the English section. In this Doris Keane, who plays Mary, and Ian McLaren, who is the Duke of Winterset, have important work to do. Valentino will have two duels to fight.

Joe King has been added to the cast of "Unguarded Women," which Alan Crosland is now producing at the Paramount Long Island Studio with Bebe Daniels and Richard Dix in the features roles. King will have the role of Jimmy Craig, an American man about town in Pekin, China, where most of the scenes of the picture are laid.

Because of delay in the production of "Monsieur Beaucaire" at the Paramount Long Island Studio, Helene Chadwick has had to give up the role of Lady Mary in the picture in order to begin preparations for her two starring pictures which she has contracted to make with Henry Hobert. When Miss Chadwick signed to play the role of Lady Mary it was contingent on a certain schedule, which was not maintained. When it was found that Miss Chadwick could not take the role Doris Kenyon was selected to play the part of Lady Mary and she is now busy at the Long Island studio in the English sequence of Tarkington's story.

Katherine Lee of the Jane and Katherine Lee sister team, has been cast for the role of Evadne in Herbert Brenon's Paramount production, "The Mountebank," in which Ernest Torrence and Anna Q. Nilson are featured.

O'NEILL MAKES BOTCH OF "THE ANCIENT MARINER"

Moliere Comedy Well Done.

MUCH better, very good indeed in fact, is the Provincetown production of Moliere's "George Dandin," which was translated and directed by Stark Young. For this an amusing and ingenious setting has been devised by Cleon Throckmorton and Jones. There is just a suggestion of too acute a consciousness of quaintness on the part of the players, but the piece is for the most part spirited and entertaining.

Yet I am more than ever convinced that practically every good thing in the theater is accomplished by the unconscious mind rather than through reason and premeditation. In a program note Stark Young writes: "But new times and social revolutions have brought the theme of this play even closer to serious drama, and have shifted toward the problematic and tragic what was written for comedy."

As far as I could see, no hint of this theory actually crept into the performance, no matter what the intent of the producer may have been. And that is fortunate. The thing as it stands is admirable farce. Rosalind Fuller plays it in that spirit and brightens the happiness of the occasion.

Mrs. Fiske's New Play Weak.

DRAMATIC critics frequently fall into the error of setting a play down as bad because they happen to disagree with the playwright's point of view. I shall, then, without further apology, not only fall, but leap, into this particular error and say that "Helena's Boys," at Henry Miller's Theater, is one of the most irritatingly poor plays I have seen.

Possibly my reaction is not based wholly on a constitutional bias against that school of anti-modernism which believes that "Pooh! Pooh!" is an argument. After all, the play has every chance. Mrs. Fiske gives an amazingly skillful and spirited performance, and yet the new comedy is only infrequently amusing.

The piece lunges mightily at men and women of straw. Such satirical swordsmanship soon grows dull. Here there is excellent material for the making of bricks, but you cannot turn out comedy without blood and breath.

"Helena's Boys" is a satire against the radicalism of the younger generation. The playwright's process proves a little too simple. She begins by burlesqueing the notions of the modernists and then proceeds to burlesque the burlesque. Mrs. Fiske does wonders in buoying up a deal of heavy-headed fun into lightness, but after all, she is not the strong woman of the Hippodrome. When she is asked to shoulder situations and quips leaden as anvils the fun sags a little.

She Pretends Tipsiness.

MOST of the dramatic devices are obvious. Thus, there is a scene in which the audience sees cider poured into a Scotch whisky bottle, which later permits Mrs. Fiske to feign intoxication. This she does with amazing adroitness and yet it is not altogether funny.

The story concerns the efforts of Mrs. Helena Tilden to reconcile her grown and radical sons to her second marriage. She accomplishes this purpose by pretending conversion to the new freedom and announcing that she plans to take her suitor without marriage. Immediately all the young radicals wilt and grow eloquently conservative.

The underlying notion of the comedy is that no radical ever means what he says anyway. Heresy hunting was a more respectable practice in days gone by. The good old conservative of earlier ages at least had the common decency to burn dissenters. The business of greeting each new idea with a bland "There! There!" is a refinement of torture which is wholly modern.

The Theater Guild will produce Ernst Toller's "Masse Mensch" at the Garrick on April 14, and "Fata Morgana" will make room for the new play by moving to the Lyceum. The other Theater Guild production, Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan," has passed its one-hundredth performance . . . Morris Gest is to bring over another Slavonic troupe next fall. It is called "The First Players of Moscow."

Revive "Affairs of Anatol."

SCHNITZLER'S "The Affairs of Anatol," is to be revived in special matinees at the Ritz, with a cast including Leslie Howard, Helen Menken, Margalo Gillmore and Winifred Lenihan. . . Fay Bainter is returning to musical comedy in "The Dream Girl," an adaptation of a play entitled "The Road to Yesteryear." . . "The Business Widow," in which Leo Ditrichstein was starred, has expired in Cincinnati.

Julia Marlowe tripped and fell at the end of the last act of "The Merchant of Venice," the other night in Pittsburg. She suffered a sprained ankle. Pending her recovery, her roles are being taken by Leonora Chippendale . . "Stella Dallas," in which Mrs. Leslie Carter was starred, closed last week in Boston. Mrs. Carter plans to appear next in a vaudeville playlet. . . . Ann Harding, now playing in "Tarnish," and George Marion, formerly of "Anna Christie," are to have the leading roles in "The Horse Thief," by Sam Forrest and Lewis B. Ely of St. Louis

'Adding Machine' Subtracts From London's Joy

LONDON, April 12

AN American play, "The Adding Machine," by Elmer L. Rice, which caused so much excitement on the occasion of its New York production, has received a cool greeting here from the critics. It was presented at the Strand Theater a few afternoons ago by the Incorporated Stage Society.

One can almost imagine Mr. Rice, writes the reviewer in the Morning Telegraph, setting out with the avowed object of beating German and Russian expressionists at their own game. And if to achieve one's purpose is the highest form of endeavor, then, surely, he deserves all possible praise. In point of unintelligibility, extravagance and elusiveness his play outstrips anything the London stage has seen in many a day.

The greater part of the action is apparently intended to take place in a dream, but "nightmare" is the only fitting word to describe what happens. In a note in the program it is said: "Mr. Rice seems to have arrived at his present form of dramatic expression by way of melodrama." The suggestion is a peculiarly unhappy one, for melodrama is at least consistent to the laws laid down for its governance. "The Adding Machine," on the other hand, shows a grave disregard for uniformity, reasonableness, and plausibility. It leads nowhere, it teaches nothing. In the note, already quoted, it is even implied that the piece is in the nature of an "impersonal morality play." The suggestion is sufficient to make the author of "Everyman" turn in his grave.

Adventures of Mr. Zero.

IT would serve no useful purpose to trace the course of the story in detail. Enough that it sets forth the varying fortunes of a poor, not too brainy, clerk, who, for 25 years has acted as bookkeeper in a firm of traders. When at the end of that period Zero, as he is named, learns from his employer that, instead of the expected promotion, he is to be dismissed and his place taken by an "adding machine," he goes stark, staring mad and murders his informant.

His subsequent wanderings take him, to begin with, home, where, in the presence of his wife, a shrill termagant of the first water, and a party of the most grotesque friends that ever assembled under one roof, he confesses his crime and gives himself up to justice. Later we have an entirely fantastic misrepresentation of a court of justice, ending with the prisoner's condemnation.

Scene in a Graveyard.

THENCE we pass to a scene in a cemetery, not by any means conspicuous for good taste, and later the Elysian Fields, where Zero learns to his astonishment that visitors are free to remain and enjoy the delights of dancing, love-making and other similar diversions or not as they please. But having yielded to them in association with Diana Devore, a former companion in his days of slavery, Zero, prompted by a sudden access of respectability, flies from her to end his career in what he fondly imagines to be heaven. Alas! he quickly discovers his mistake, being informed by the keeper of the place, a certain Lieut. Charles, that this is only the stepping stone to reincarnation as a monkey, and that his fate is to begin the process of evolution all over again..

A play of this kind, so full of inconsistencies, incongruities and unintelligible incidents, can hardly be expected to offer artists any great opportunities for the exercise of their talents. With the part of Zero, Mr. Brember Wills, however did as much as could be hoped for, particularly in the trial, as in the love-making scene, Miss Edith Evans also entering into the spirit of the latter with commendable abandonment. Miss Louise Hampton gave a very clever impersonation of the shrewish Mrs. Zero. Mr. Harold Scott was excellent, and Mr. Roy Byford has never done anything better or more forcible than his performance as Lieut. Charles. But why the Incorporated Stage Society should have thought "The Adding Machine" worth producing will always remain a mystery.

Program for Next Morning Choral Concert

THE spring concert of the Morning Choral Club, to be given at the Odeon on the evening of April 29, will present several vocal novelties, besides sponsoring the local debut of Jose Mojica, Spanish tenor, whose three groups of songs will include one of love ditties from his native land.

The female chorus, directed by Charles Galloway, will sing "To the Betrothed," by Samuel Gaines; "Dawn," by Carl Deis; "Silver," by Victor Harris, with incidental solo by Miss Clara Schlief; Dudley Buck's arrangement of "Annie Laurie;" "Fantasy on a Russian Folksang," by Gaines, with a violin solo to be played by Mrs. Esmeralda Berry Mayes; Deems Taylor's "Valse Ariette," a song without words; and a choral arrangement of Leoni's "Tally-ho."

Mr. Galloway's free organ recital, beginning at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Graham Memorial Chapel, Washington University, will include works by Ravanello, Bonnet, Batiste, Lemare and Andrews, and two movements from Widor's Sixth Symphony.

Music Week Begins May 4.

THE week beginning May 4 has been set aside by proclamation of Mayor Kiel as music week, in connection with the national music week celebration. Business and civic organizations will feature musical programs at their meetings during the period, and the Federated Music Clubs and public schools will co-operate. A Music Week Committee has been organized.

Miss Adele Koch, contralto, will give a recital on the evening of April 24 at the Wednesday Club auditorium, singing numbers by Gluck, Liszt, Rachmaninoff, Bemberg and others. She will be assisted by Dr. Charles Shumaker, tenor, and Miss Catherine Carmichael, accompanist.

The first St. Louis production of "The Passion of Our Lord, According to St. Mark," by Charles Wood of Caius College, Cambridge, will occur at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at St. Michael of All Angels' Episcopal Church, Ellenwood and Wydown boulevards. Hunter Jones will direct, and E. E. Enzinger, C. A. Renard and Norman Dutson will be soloists.

Miscellaneous Announcements.

THE Mel-Harmonic Club will present a program of 17 numbers Saturday afternoon at Baldwin Hall. There will be songs, violin, violoncello and piano solos, and two selections by the Mel-Harmonic violin choir.

Mrs. Emma Wilkens Gutmann will read an address on "Music in England" before the Morning Etude Wednesday morning at Baldwin Hall.

The annual production of Sir John Stainer's "Crucifixion" will be given Tuesday afternoon at Vandervoort Hall under the direction of William M. Jenkins. The soloists will be Kenneth B. Buchanan, Louis F. Hetlage and Edward A. Holscher. The chorus will be composed of the following members of various church choirs: Mrs. Karl Kimmel, Mrs. Rose Mortimer Cox, Miss Alma Menze; Mrs. P. A. Sommerfeldt, Mrs. Frank F. Gorham, Miss Olga Hambuechen, Miss Thelma Hayman, Mrs. J. J. Kessler, Elmer J. Lutz, Edgar Walsh, Norman R. Dutson, Dr. J. J. Kessler and James W. Porteous.

STUDENT, 19, WHO WON FAME WITH NOVEL, WRITES ANOTHER

Harvard Sophomore in "Confusion" Treats of French Girl's Adventures in America.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, April 12.—James Gold Cozzens, 19-year-old Harvard sophomore, whose first novel, "Confusion," has just come from the press and is attracting wide attention as one of the most brilliant books by any younger American writer, is already at work on "Ignorant Armies," a second story which his publishers, the B. J. Brimmer Company, of Boston, have contracted for and plan to publish at an early date.

"Confusion," which has served to attract much attention to this promising novelist, is the story of the education of a young French girl and her subsequent adventures in the circles of the younger generation around New York. It has been characterized by critics as an exceptionally mature piece of work and one which holds promise of an authentic career for Cozzens as a story teller.

"Jim," as he is known to his friends, lives on Plimpton street, Cambridge, and is specializing in classics and philosophy. His second year at Harvard is characterized by extensive research into the literature of decadent Rome and the early Spanish writings. "Cloudy Trophies," a third novel, is already in preparation.

DEVEREAUX PLAYERS COMING FOR RETURN ENGAGEMENT

Will Give Plays at Little Theater of Artists' Guild on April 25 and 26.

The Devereaux Players, favorably remembered from a previous visit, will play a return engagement at the Little Theater of the Artists' Guild on April 25 and 26.

On the evening of April 25 they will present "The Mummy's Ear Ring," by the Spanish dramatist, Jose Echegaray. On the next afternoon Ibsen's "Ghosts" will be offered, and on the same evening, "The Barber of Seville," by Beaumarchais. Clifford Devereaux and Zinita Graf again head the company.

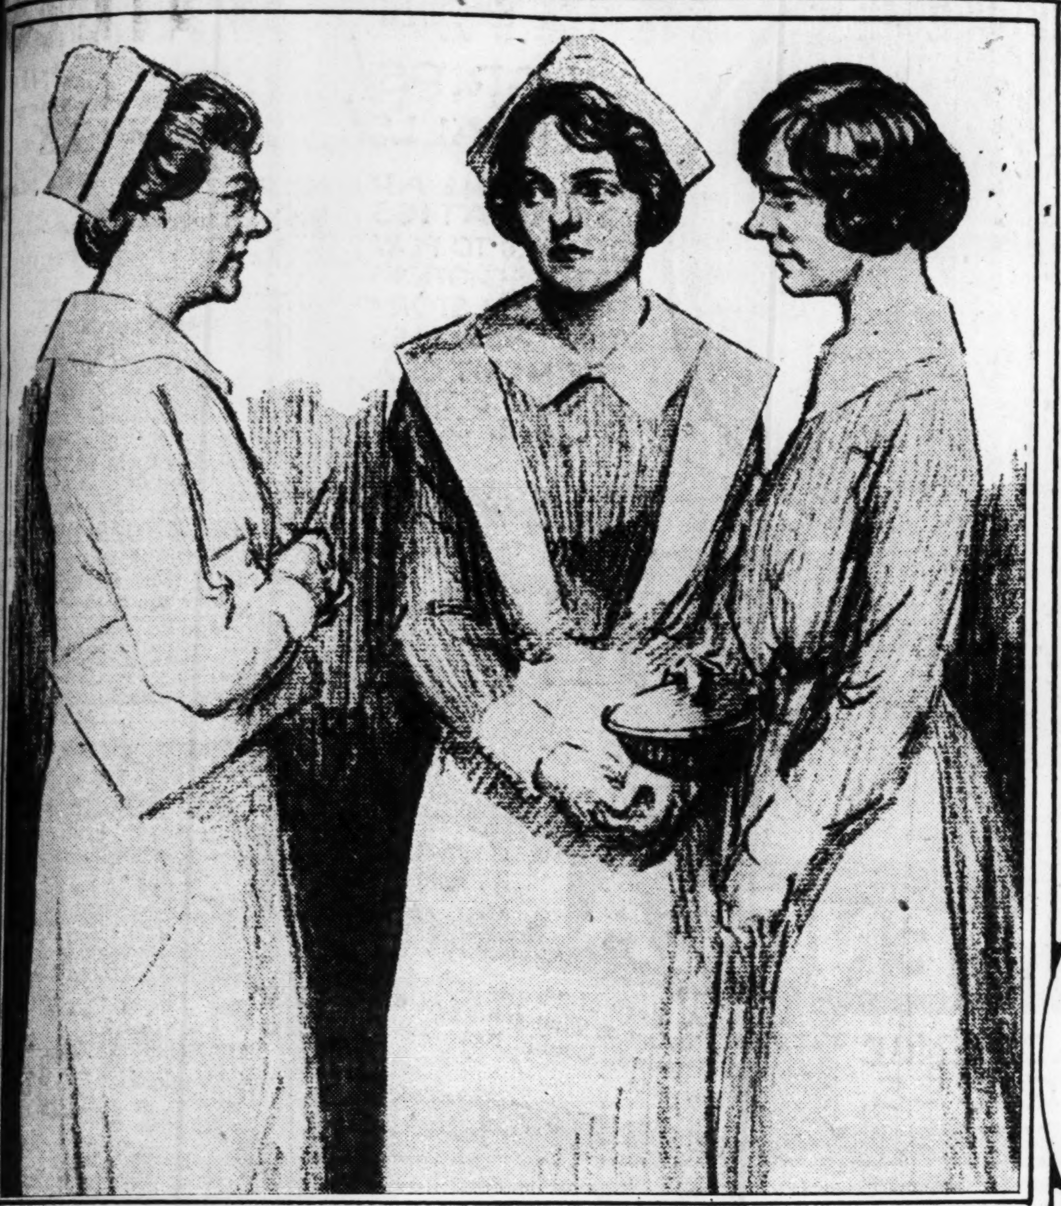
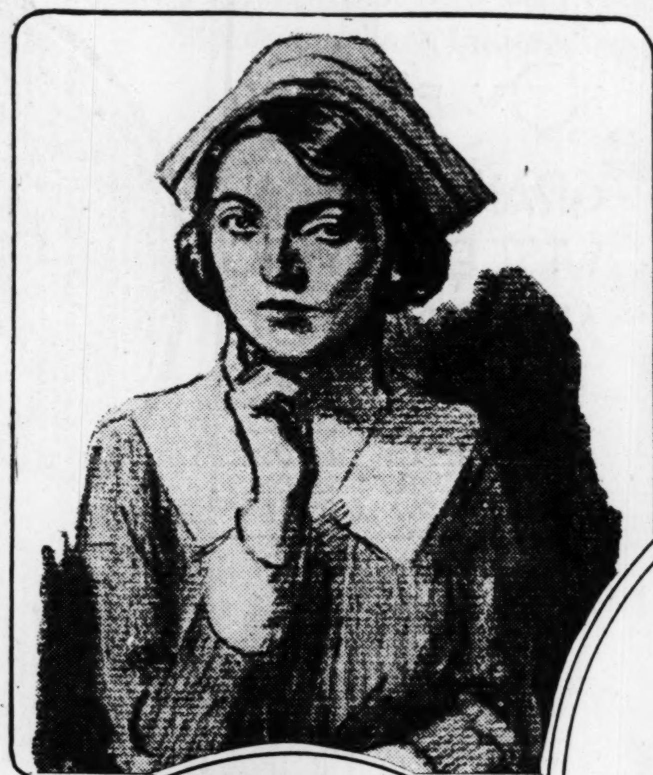
THE WELL-TRAINED NURSE

(Copyright, 1924.)

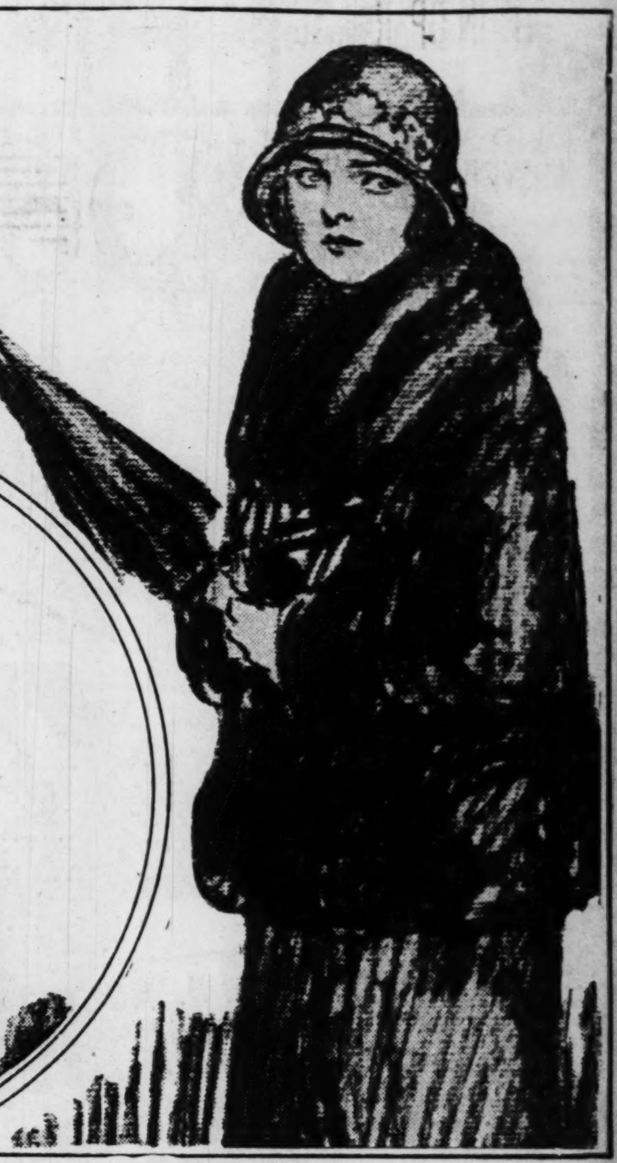
Drawn by W. E. Hill for the Post-Dispatch.



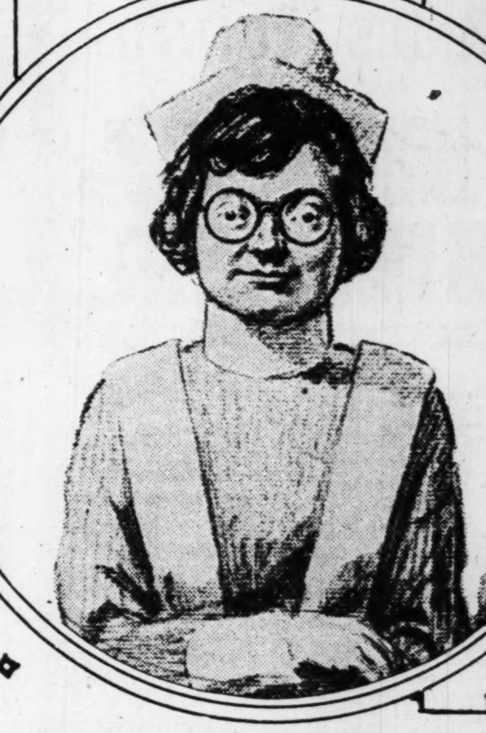
"My dear, I wish you could see the way she dolls up before the doctor comes! And a little rouge for even the internes!" Two nurses and a probationer talk over the patients.



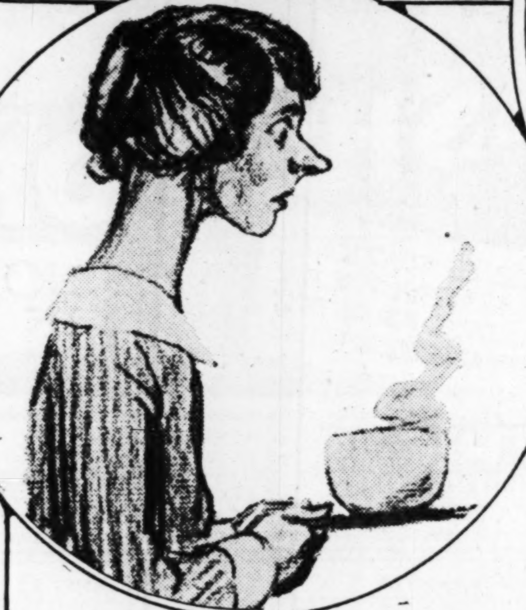
(Left)
Miss Boriclor has been on cases in all the best movie households, and oh, the illusions she shatters by so doing. She knows for a certainty that Gloria Gleeson wears false teeth and curses out her mother, and as for Dorrance Devine, the idol of the screen, "Why he's just a little ignorant wop with bad teeth. I know because I nursed his wife when she had influenza, and every time he came near her he threw something at her." You won't have an idol left when good Nurse Boriclor finishes.



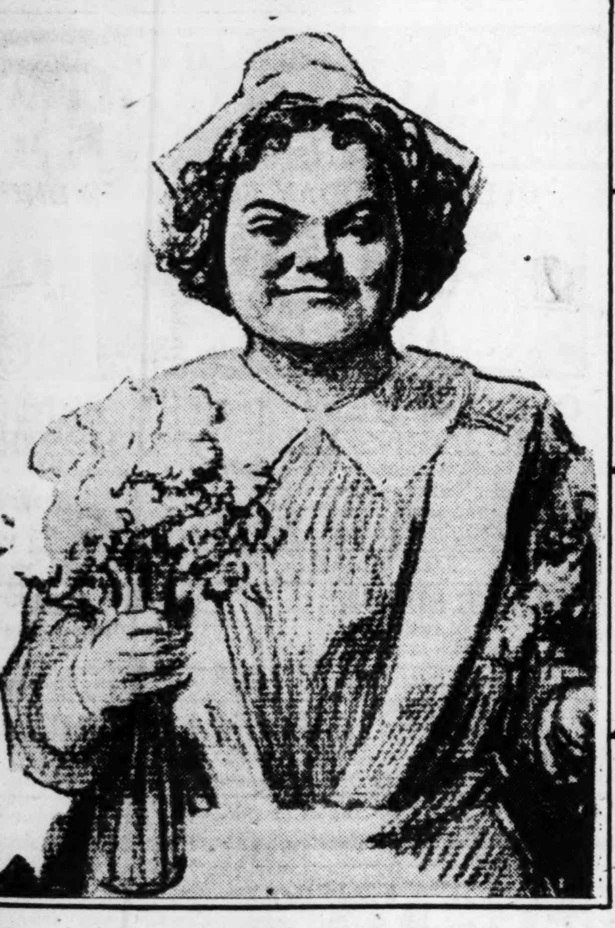
Miss Wilton, the night nurse, is five minutes late. She's been having dinner with her best young man.



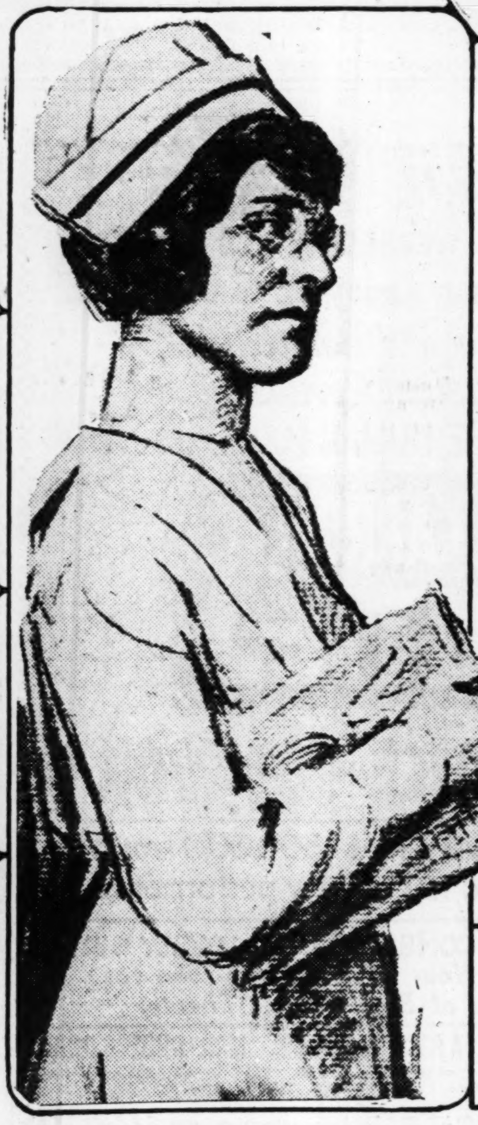
Mrs. Gorphy specializes in nervous ailments and such. Mrs. Gorphy has a great deal of trouble below stairs when on a private case. The cook is away doing her dirt. Once Mrs. Gorphy found out that the chauffeur was having the choicest of delicacies for his meals, while Mrs. Gorphy was living on the very plainest in the land. Often Mrs. Gorphy is grievously insulted. Many's the time she has gone to French Lick or Atlantic City with an old gentleman suffering from lumbago and had to turn right around and come home, so obvious was it that things weren't quite right. Poor Mrs. Gorphy.



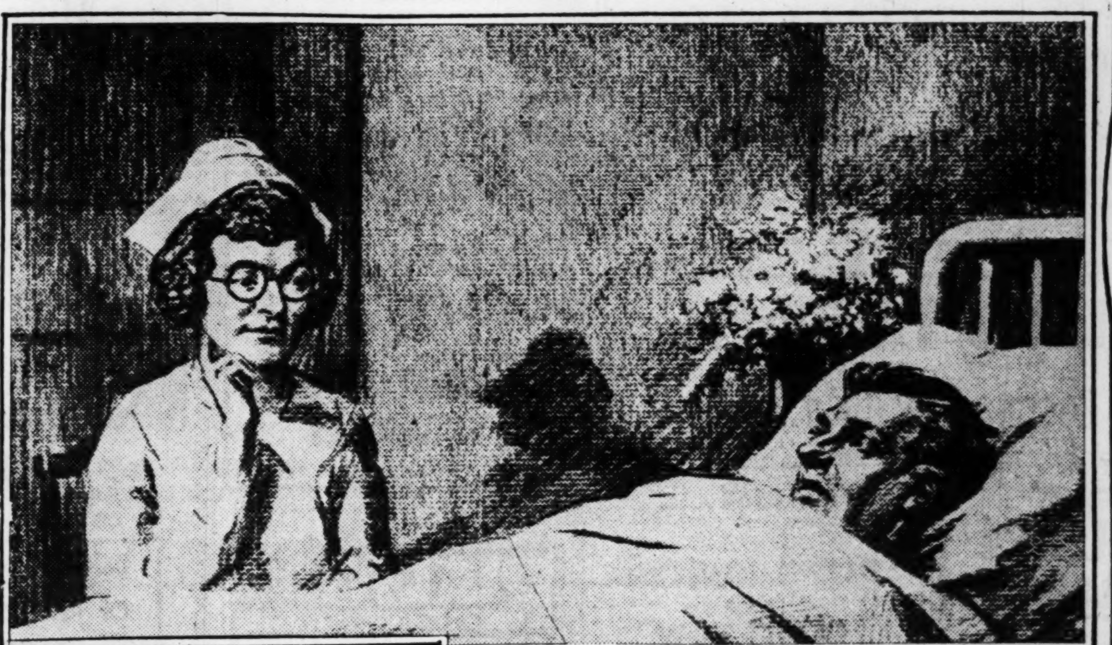
A probationer with a nice bowl of broth, and a thousand and one things on her mind. It's a long road to a graduate nurse.



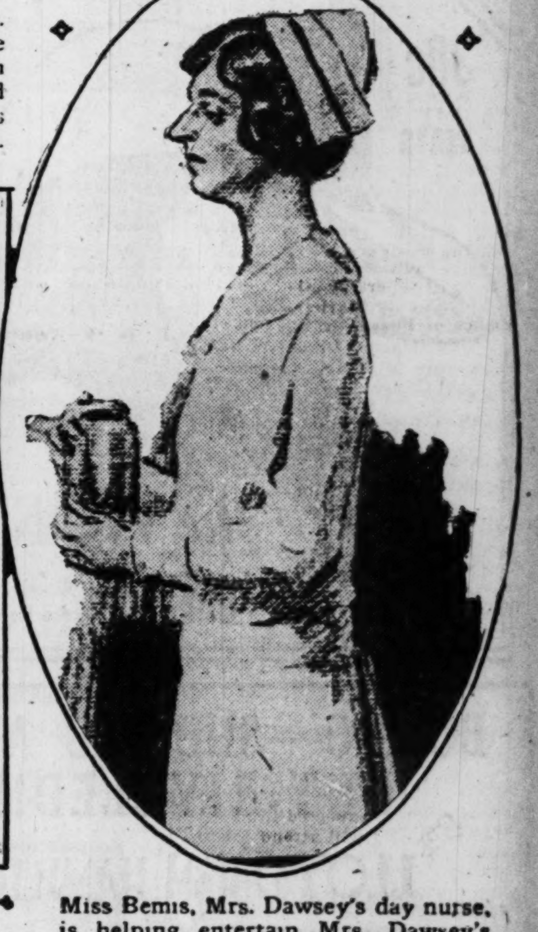
"Say good night to your posies," says Miss Ploughman, as she takes the flowers outside the sickroom.



(Left)
Oh, those fresh internes—they just have to be put in their place now and then!



The nurse with the chatty bedside manner, who aims to entertain. She will tell the patient, whose appendix has just been removed, all about the case she heard of last year, where a man had the scissors and a sponge left inside him and they finally stuck through six months after the operation



Miss Bemis, Mrs. Dawsey's day nurse, is helping entertain Mrs. Dawsey's visitors. She's brought out the Dawsey appendix in its own little pickle jar, to show them.

:: In Studio and Gallery ::

HEINZ WARNEKE, the young German whose sculpture exhibited at the Public Library in the fall and the Open Show at the Artists' Guild aroused such interest, has been working, since his return from New York a month ago, on several objects now nearing completion.

To persons remembering his small animals carved from brass, the prancing stallions of wood and brass and the mysteriously entertaining ceramic monkeys, his new work will come as a great contrast. The vivacity of his animals with their pert personalities is almost directly opposite to the serious vein of his present work.

His "Resting Workman" might be thought by some to be a monument to Labor. The very qualities which to some are so admirable and to others so repulsive and which are under discussion throughout the world today, seem heaped here together in a great lump of clay. The figure of the workman is seen, like a relaxed giant, sprawled out awkwardly, his great weight supported on his elbows, his head drooping forward in complete abandon to the physical sensation of relaxing huge muscles and thick bones. Heavy denim trousers cover the lower half of his body, the folds of the coarse cloth falling stiffly about his knees and ankles and around the tops of clumsy boots. A series of rhythmic lines in this awkwardness has been found by Warneke and used to strengthen the subject. The artist's viewpoint is that of an onlooker watching the movements of a great animal. Indeed, that was the impression prompting the creation of the statue.

A female torso designed for bronze is a finished proof of Warneke's ability in anatomical construction and sculptural technique. With surgical certainty he has modeled the form with the accuracy of long study and practice and after that has handled it as an artist, subduing the construction until it becomes a unit of harmony and continuity.

Strange and silent is the small statue of "Maternity." No smiling anticipation of the event of the first-born is felt by this quiet soul. In unspoken sadness she is seated on a bench, her head held in one hand, the other hand, powerless against the inevitable, drooping helplessly in her lap. Her expression, while not actually defined, is one of resigned, hopeless misery. The heaviness of this woman's heart is everywhere felt in the composition. Designed for ceramic, a material of great limitation, it purposely lacks detail, relying on its strength of form for its power.

Work of Bruce Crane.

AMONG the group of American paintings which may be seen at the Newhouse Gallery during the coming week are three examples of the work of Bruce Crane that are enjoyable not only from the standpoint of their individual artistic merits but in their relation one to another in period and style.

A winter woodland scene, painted about 1895, is the earliest of the three pictures. A simple arrangement of a generally complicated subject prevents density and heaviness, the entire atmosphere being kept light and moving. The snow, soft and feathery rather than cold and gleaming, swirls loosely about the tree trunks, through the high grasses and across the dim roadway that winds toward the spectator. To the left the edge of the woods is seen, where slender tree trunks stand close together, although not in an impenetrable mass. The picture is thinly painted, the transparency being suggested rather than depending upon the shadows of paint for high lights.

Probably five years later, or in 1900, the second picture was painted. It is a delicate spring landscape of blossoming apple trees, warm winds and the fragrance of the awakening earth. How extraordinary that the artist should have chosen a theme as fragile as this in which to perform some difficult feats in composition! Defying all conventional laws of arrangement, he has caused a meadow stream, bright with reflected light from the sky, to break the exact center foreground dividing the canvas into equal halves. Then the artist has contrived apple trees on either side of the composition, one large, near the foreground, the other, small in the distance, and the roof of a farmhouse at the horizon line to change the regularity yet gain perfect equilibrium in the ensemble. Over all is infused a tender poetic feeling. The gently moving skies, the winds through the apple blossoms and the fresh green of the meadow grasses all sing of spring with a lyrical swing.

Decidedly in contract to the spring pictur of 1900 is the third of this group, a low-toned autumn landscape painted about 1905 or 1906 in something of the manner of Crane's best-known style which just follows this date. This is a small study of the brown symphonies found among the hills when summer has passed. It is serious without being sad, low in key without being melancholy.

AN exhibition of the work of Kathryn Cherry has recently been scheduled for a Southern tour, the first destination on which is Dallas, Tex., where the exhibit will open, under the auspices of the Woman's Club, during the show of the work of the Women Painters and Sculptors of America, of which Mrs. Cherry is a member. Mrs. Cherry's own show opens Monday.

Persian Miniatures.

A SPLENDID and extensive collection of Persian miniatures included in the exhibition of ancient Persian art lent by Kouchakji Freres, is now installed in Gallery 32 of the City Art Museum. Outside of the Boston Museum, the Metropolitant Museum, the Rhode Island School of Design and the Morgan collection, few institutions or collectors can boast of any such magnificent number of these rare and beautiful bits of Oriental art.

Persian miniatures, unlike the present-day miniature as we are accustomed to think of it, are book and manuscript illuminations, painted on paper instead of ivory or parchment medallions, and not necessarily portraits.

In the missals and chorals for ecclesiastical use the first illumination of documents originated, ornamental initial letters being used first, marginal decoration in scrolls and floral design following later.

As we have seen from their ancient art in the forms of rugs, pottery, glassware and decorated metal work, the early Persian artists were skilled craftsmen delighting in extreme perfection in the detail of their work. This characteristic coupled with the Oriental love of fantastic tale and legend, has produced the fine romance we find woven in the Persian rug, written in the Persian manuscript and painted in the Persian miniature.

During the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries when miniature painting flourished in Persia, artists producing these works and calligraphers writin gthe books, occupied important stations at the royal court and were richly rewarded for their labors by the nables who regarded the manuscripts and illustrations highly.

Close examination and study of the Persian miniature is necessary before its beauties may be comprehended and its ilustrative significance understood. The elaborate detail accompanying all Oriental stories, no matter how brief, requires the same importance in the illustration as in the worded account. Therefore, to illustrate one event, other contingent action is shown although it may appear quite irrelevant. Thus in these miniatures we see sections that, to us, seem disconnected and extraneous. We must also note that at the time of the creation of these pages, perspective was yet unknown and for this reason the position of figures and general arrangement is foreign to the present-day world.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to cardholders on receipt of postage, in order of application:

ECONOMICS OF MOTOR TRANSPORTATION, by G. W. Grupp.

Purpose is to tell how motor truck and busses are to be operated most effectively and profitably and to explain the correct way to analyze the problem of when to replace horses with motor trucks. Presents principles of deriving cost of operations and describes cost systems in actual use.

LANDS OF THUNDERBOLT, by the Earl of Ronaldshay .

A narrative book of travel by the president of the Royal Geographical Society and Governor of the province of Bengal. Contains 32 illustrations.

PLEASURE AND BEHAVIOR, by F. L. Wells.

One of the most recent books on psychology. Especially interesting to the general public, as Dr. Wells assumes no knowledge of psychology on the reader's part and prefers the method of concrete description making abundant references to situations of everyday life.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THE MOVIES? by T. Lane.

A critical volume on the silent drama and its workers. "We have no philanthropists, no martyrs, no self-sacrificing geniuses, no artists and no real leaders in the silent drama. Nothing but business men and women. Not a semblance of the spirit that moves workers in other arts. No one is willing to risk a penny or even his time that the photoplay might be advanced."

CONQUEST OF HAPPINESS, by J. Payot.

Dr. Payot argues winningly on the duty of mankind to seek and enjoy happiness and gives specific instructions for the attainment by young and old of true and enduring happiness.

CRITICAL EXAMINATION OF PSYCHO-ANALYSIS, by A. Wohlgemuth.

A case against Freud. The author began the study of Freud in a perfectly unbiased state of mind, but soon realized, he says, that Freud merely made assertions and never proved anything.

AMERICAN PROBLEMS, by W. E. Borah.

A selection of speeches and prophecies by the well-known Senator from Idaho, who is one of the outstanding figures in American public life today. In this book one may obtain his views on many important questions.

"Garden Week" Proclaimed.

The week beginning next Sunday has been designated "garden week" by Mayor Kiel at the request of the Eighth District, Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs. The Mayor remarked in his proclamation that it was self-evident that flowers, shrubs and growing things around the home conveyed "cheerfulness as well as the idea of beauty and permanency to all who pass."

SHRINE HOSPITAL OPEN FOR INSPECTION TODAY

Institution for Crippled Children to Be Formally Dedicated June 2.

Public inspection of the new Shrine Hospital for Crippled Children, on South Kingshighway south of the Washington University Medical School, will be permitted today during an informal reception marking the opening of the building.

Announcement has been made that formal dedication will take place June 1, when Shriners from many cities, en route to the imperial council session at Kansas City, June 2, may participate.

Reception of patients is scheduled to begin during the coming week. Only children whose parents are unable to pay for treatment elsewhere will be received. The institution has 80 beds and is expected to care for 3000 children annually. The hospital is the base unit of 10 or 12 similar institutions to be established about the country by Shriners through a $2 annual assessment against each member.

Dr. Leroy C. Abbott is surgeon-in-chief at the hospital and Miss Estelle D. Claiborn is superintendent. The chairman of the board of governors is Henry F. Niedringhaus Jr. Past Imperial Potentate of the Shrine of North America. The hospital will be open for inspection between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. today.

EXHIBIT ON SOCIAL HYGIENE THIS WEEK

Display at 609 Locust to Be Open Daily—Lectures by Physicians.

The Missouri Social Hygiene Association is completing arrangements for the social hygiene exhibit to be held this week at 609 Locust street, according to an announcement made by Charles E. Miner, executive secretary. This exhibit will be open to the public without admission charge daily from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m.

The St. Louis Department of Public Welfare and the State Board of Health are sponsoring the exhibit and will lend their co-operation to make it a success together with the following organizations: St. Louis League of Women Voters, St. Louis Chapter American Red Cross, Community Council of St. Louis, St. Louis Public Library, Council of Jewish Women, Tuberculosis Society, St. Louis County Welfare Association, Urban League, Children's Aid Society and other organizations.

Lectures Daily by Physicians.

The Executive Committee which has charge of the arrangements for the exhibit includes Mrs. Virgil Loeb, chairman; Mrs. A. P. Greensfelder, Charles E. Miner and Dr. M. F. Engman. Prominent St. Louis physicians will lecture daily and three graduate nurses will be in attendance.

The purpose of the exhibit is to assist parents in their responsibility for the sex education of their children and to show the medical defense of the community against venereal disease. Exhibit material will be furnished by the following organizations:

St. Louis Public Library, Tuberculosis Society, Urban League, Playground and Recreation Association, Ameicran Social Hygiene Association, Missouri Social Hygiene Association, Municipal Nurses' Association, St. Louis Hospital Social Survey, Department of Public Welfare and the State Board of Health.

"Child Questions and Their Answers," "The Parent's Part," "Keeping Fit," "Healthy, Happy Womanhood" and other health pamphlets will be distributed. A part of the room will be set apart for the showing of motion pictures, which will be a special feature of the exhibit. Such films as "The Gift of Life," "Public Health Twins at Work" and "Priceless Gift of Health" will be shown.

Women to Act as Hostesses.

Another feature of the exhibit is that various women's organizations have volunteered to provide hostesses among their memberships to be at the exhibit on different days Organizations and the days on which their hostesses will serve are:

Monday—Missouri Social Hygiene Association.

Tuesday—Council of Jewish Women, Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Wednesday—Board of Religious Organizations, St. Louis Chapter Federation of Child Study and the St. Louis County Welfare Association.

Thursday—St. Louis College Club, St. Louis Council of Mothers and Parent Teachers' Association.

Friday—Eight District Federated Women's Clubs and the Children's Aid Society.

Saturday—St. Louis League of Women Voters.

POLICE DOGS TRAINED ON EX-KAISER'S PARADE GROUNDS

Society With 33,000 Members Teaches Young Animals and Keeps Old Ones in Trim.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 26.—One of the Berlin parade grounds, where ex-Kaiser William used to review his crack regiments, has been taken over for the training of police dogs by the Deutscher Schaeferhund Verein. There are 33,000 members of the society, which has branches in virtually every town and city in Germany and where weekly meets are held to teach the young dogs new tricks and at the same time keep the old dogs in trim. Most members of the organization are private individuals who really have nothing at all to do with police work, but take an interest in the drills and competitions merely as a matter of sport.

Much patience is required to teach the beginners obedience and discipline and for this course alone eight weeks are required, the young dogs being in the hands of professional trainers, who usually are aided in their work by the owners of the dogs themselves.

After the elementary grade is passed, most of the dogs are put through a course designed to protect their masters from attack by man, either in the street or in their master's home.

CELEBRATION FOR RABBI

"Karnival" at Moolah Temple Today in Honor of Rabbi Thurman.

The tenth anniversary of Dr. Samuel Thurman as Rabbi of the United Hebrew Temple will be celebrated by a "kermess and karnival" from 4 p. m. today to midnight, at Moolah Temple. Advance ticket sales indicate an attendance of 1800.

In announcing the affair, Dorothy Reay and Laura Wolkowitz, 10-year-old Sunday school pupils, promenaded as "sandwich men." A vaudeville performance will be given at 3:30, a cafeteria supper at 6 p. m. and thereafter will be dancing and side shows in a specially built ballroom called "Hollywood."

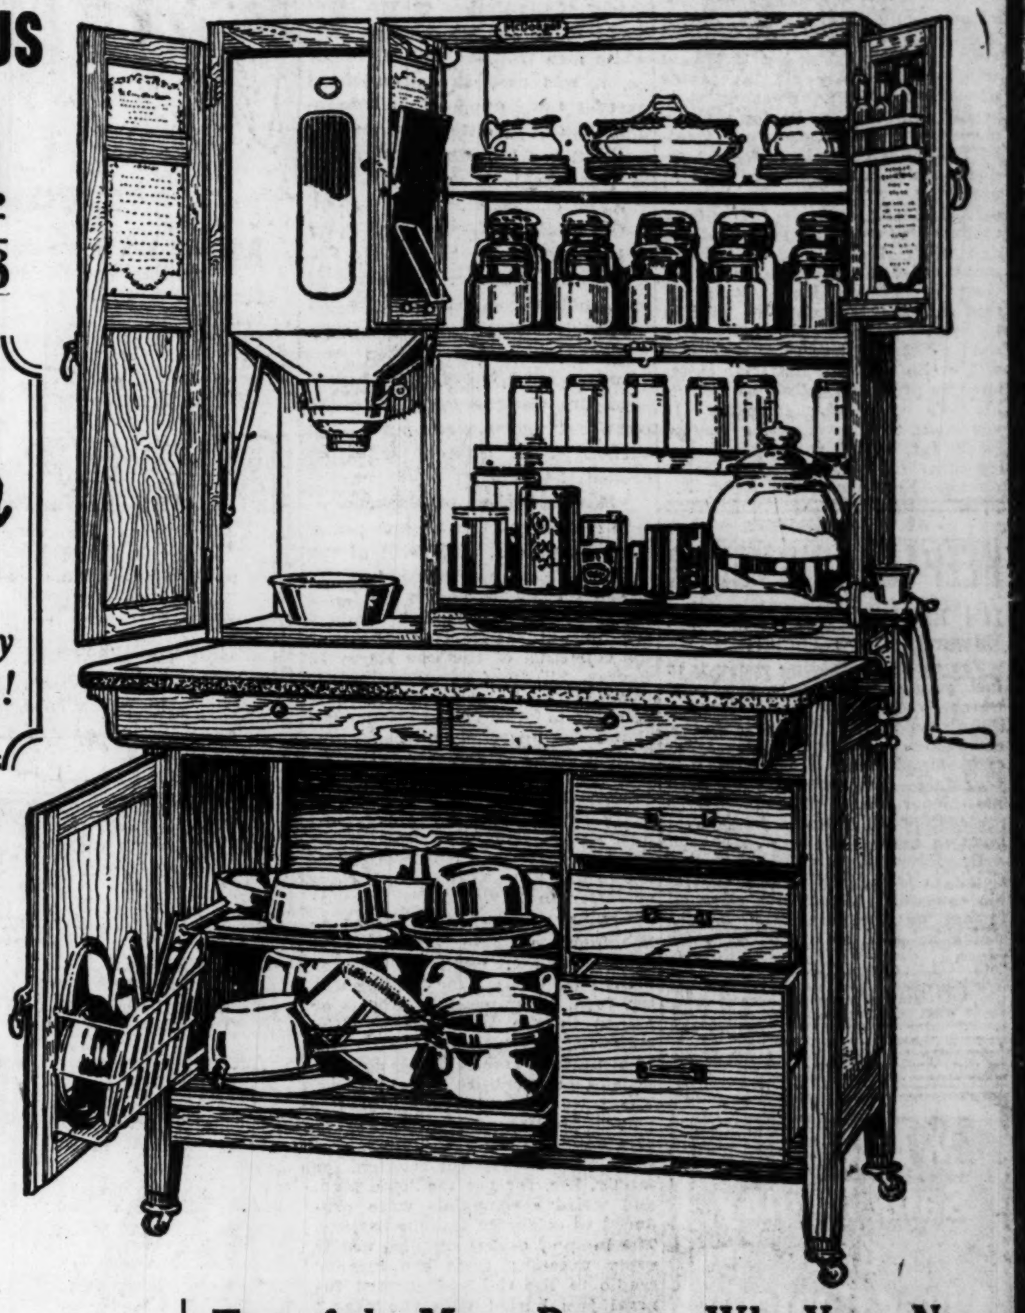
Delivers any McDougall to Your Home!

BALANCE ON YOUR OWN TERMS!



Here Is Your Opportunity!

To own the one piece of furniture which enables you to wipe out the greater part of a woman's hardest burden —kitchen drudgery—to shorten and brighten her kitchen hours—to lighten your tasks and save you countless steps.—Just think! A genuine McDougall—the world's first Kitchen Cabinet (and still the greatest value)—now offered to you during this sale on such tempting inducements, savings and terms that no woman can afford to miss it.

The First Kitchen Cabinet!

AND STILL THE UNCHALLENGED LEADER

The McDougall needs no introduction. We are authorized agents for the McDougall. No Cabinet that we have ever seen is so complete—none so scientifically arranged as to save you the absolute maximum of steps and time—none more honestly or sturdily constructed. McDougalls last for years of hard service—both this store and the manufacturers stand back of them, absolutely.

Remember!

There is no substitute for the McDougall. Only the McDougall has the greatest features listed above. ONLY THE McDOUGALL is so arranged as to give you the absolute MAXIMUM OF STEP AND LABOR SAVING. We want you to be the judge—all we ask is that you come in and let us demonstrate; then you are free to make any and all comparisons you desire.

We intend to break all records during this sale. That is why we are offering these splendid inducements, savings and terms. See our window display, then come in and inspect the Cabinets. THIS IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY—SEIZE IT MONDAY. McDougall's come in three finishes—beautiful Golden Oak, Snowy White or French Gray Enamel.

Ten of the Many Reasons Why Your New Kitchen Cabinet Should Be a McDougall!

1. Patented Simplex lowering flour bin; no springs or levers to get out of order. Removable and sanitary.
2. The only auto-front curtain; drops out of sight at a touch. No place for dirt or dust to hide.
3. Steel reinforced base corners; can't come apart.
4. All joints mortised and tenoned, giving maximum strength.
5. Non-buckling white porcelain work table, with velvet glide steel roller bearings.
6. Extending cutlery drawers, come out with work-table, with drawer velvet lined.
7. Antproof caster cups, made of brass—cannot rust.
8. Hardwood construction throughout, with all interiors finished in high-grade white enamel.
9. Meat chopper block; built for service.
10. Sunlit base construction—easy to clean.

Husband and Wife Have Same Trouble

Both Have Bad Case of Gas on Stomach

"For six years I suffered from gas on the stomach, pains, headache and dizziness. The first dose of Adlerika (intestinal antiseptic) gave relief and now I rest well at night and all the gas is gone. Adlerika has also made a new man of my husband." (Signed) Mrs. B. Brinkley.

INTESTINAL ANTISEPTIC.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacili in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

REPORTS FROM PHYSICIANS.

"I found Adlerika the best in my entire 37 years' experience." (Signed) Dr. G. Eggers.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. P. (Name given on request.)

"I have found nothing in my 50 years' practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington, and Enderle Drug Co. and other leading druggists.

MAKES FAT PEOPLE SLIM

New York Physician Perfects Harmless Method of Reducing Weight

The loss of as much as a pound of excess fat a day with no harmful results is the record made by many patients of Dr. R. Newman, a licensed practicing physician of 286 Fifth Avenue, New York, who announces that he has perfected a treatment which has quickly rid fat people of excess weight. What is more remarkable is the Doctor's statement that he has successfully treated thousands of patients for fat reduction without change of diet or unnecessary exercise. It is also said that fat people who suffer from chronic rheumatism, gout, asthma and high blood pressure obtain great relief from the reduction of their superfluous flesh. Realizing that this sounds almost too good to be true, the Doctor has offered to send without charge to anyone who will write him, a free trial treatment to prove his claims, as well as his "Pay-when-reduced" plan. If you want to rid yourself of superfluous fat, write him today, addressing Dr. R. Newman, 286 Fifth Avenue, New York City, Dept. R.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you 90 per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

THEORY OF FIRELESS COOKER AN OLD ONE

Museum Curator Says It Was Employed by Indians Hundreds of Years Ago.

There is nothing new about the theory of the fireless cooker. Hundreds of years ago, before the white men trod the soil of America, it was used as an important part of the equipment of the Indian family. In the museum language it is a "cooking basket," but in principle it is much like the modern device which the twentieth-century housewife uses today in her kitchen.

The basket cooker was made of split roots woven substantially and watertight. They were, of course, not put over a fire. Food was placed in them, stones were heated at a fire elsewhere and then the clean hot stones were put in the basket. Heat from these stones cooked the food.

Has Collection of Baskets.

The story of the cooker comes from Curator A. C. Burrill of the Missouri Resources Museum at Jefferson City, who was in St. Louis yesterday. Several such baskets are now at the Museum, part of the collection of the late Harry L. George, St. Joseph cotton broker. George's hobby was Indian basketry and the varied collection shows clearly to what almost unlimited uses the basket was put by the Indian tribes of America. George died a year ago and left the collection to the museum, unless, within five years, St. Joseph provides a suitable fireproof building to house it. Otherwise it stays at Jefferson City.

"There is a basket for every imaginable purpose," Burrill says in discussing the exhibit. "The Indians used baskets for holding water, food, other precious objects or things in use in every-day life, gathering and transporting articles of commerce, Indian babies and for articles of furniture and clothing. These woven basketry receptacles played an important part in the love affairs of the red men, and there were baskets for religion, for family, life, for the medicine man, and weird ceremonials were produced to celebrate famous baskets. The Indians' basket supplied nearly every necessity from the infants' cradle to the richly decorated funeral jars buried with the dead."

Among the ceremonial baskets in the George collection, perhaps the most interesting, according to Burrill, are two dozen tiny witch baskets, the largest of which measures two and one-half inches in diameter; the smallest, five thirty-seconds of an inch in diameter. These baskets were made by the Pomo tribe of Northeastern California, for the medicine men who came to the sick and drove the evil spirit into a witch basket.

"Had Gambling Basket."

A "gambling basket" has peach stones carved and marked to be used like dice and is one of the many forms of dice which are found all around the world. Heart-shape "courting baskets" were an important part of etiquette among the Choctaw girls in sending gifts of fruit or flowers to their sweetheart.

The George collection has 19 papoose cradles, with skin pouches to hold the babies, and several toy cradles which Indian children are believed to have carried their clay dolls in. A "burial basket," used for a prehistoric Indian child, is an unusual specimen from a cave in Arizona.

CITY GETS PLAYGROUND BLOCK FOR $3.25 A DAY

Owner Pays $5333 Taxes on Property — Municipality Pays Caretaker.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

We understand that the block of ground from Seventeenth to Eighteenth, and Pine and Chestnut streets, brought the city from $10,000 to $15,000 in taxes yearly. The writers of this, being taxpayers, have reliable information that it is now tax free and the city pays a yearly price to some politician to use this ground as a playground. Where will the children come from as there are no residences in the neighborhood? Can someone enlighten us? TAXPAYER.

What Inquiry Disclosed.

Inquiry by the Post-Dispatch disclosed that the block is owned by Isaac H. Lionberger, an attorney, of 37 Westmoreland place, and that last year he paid $5333 taxes on it.

When shown the taxpayers' letter, Lionberger said he could enlighten them on several matters. The block is a "white elephant," Lionberger says. It has cost him more in taxes and interest since he acquired it, more than 20 years ago, than its assessed value today, which is $219,450. Lionberger has his tax receipts since before the World's Fair, and stands ready to show them to anyone of the opinion that the block is tax free.

Further, Lionberger wants the taxpayers to understand that his only income from the property is $1800 a year, revenue from a string of billboards on the Eighteenth street side of the lot. Under the permissive agreement, which gives the city the use of the block, this money first goes to the Director of Public Welfare, and is then turned over to Lionberger.

Had Been Junk Yard.

Until several years ago the block was a junk yard. A year ago Paul Bunn, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, induced Lionberger to oust his junk dealer tenant and allow the city to use the site as a playground. The section is thickly inhabited by negroes, and the hundreds of children in the neighborhood had no place to play. It was further pointed out that this location for a junk yard, a block from Union Station, gave a bad impression to visitors. The City did some grading and planted shrubs. A caretaker was installed at $3.25 per day. That constitutes the entire cost to the city for a playground assessed at over $200,000.

Lionberger says the taxpayers' suspicions of his philanthropy make him feel like a "darn fool," but he is prone to forgive them on the theory that they are the victims of "too much Teapot Dome." He would like to sell the taxpayers, or the city, or anyone else the site, taxes, suspicions and all for its assessed value. He has tried to get this sum for the property, he says, and failed. Bunn and Director of Public Welfare Cunliff announce that they are willing to take their share of the blame for the playground, and to corroborate Lionberger's statement that the block is tax heavy instead of tax free.

QUICK RELIEF FOR SORE, TIRED FEET

"After a long hot day on my feet I run for Tiz," writes a city salesman. "No matter how my feet ache and burn, Tiz draws out all the pain and I'm as good as new."

Tiz is magical. Acts right off. Stops the pain of corns, bunions, callouses, sore spots.

A few cents buy a box of Tiz at any drug or department store. Have feet that never swell, never hurt, never get tired.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

No Money Down! No C. O. D.

This is the latest addition to the Longfellow Line, and we think it is the most beautiful of them all. In the two columns on each side of the dial is expressed the stately dignity, and in the figure the elaborate art, of the cathedrals of old. It is 15½ inches long, and 10 inches high. Has red marbleized moldings that suggest the wonderfully blended tints of polished granite. The metal trimmings are finished in bronze, with gilt metal caps and bases. Has a 5-inch ivoroid dial, with convex glass. Strikes the hour on the cathedral gong, and the half-hour on the melodious cup bell. Fitted with the famous Longfellow eight-day movement.

Beware of copies and imitations of the Longfellow Clock. If it isn't from the Quaker Valley it isn't a Longfellow. Longfellow Clocks are sold under the strongest guaranty ever written:

Gray Hair Is Quickly Darkened

Makes One Look Twenty Years Younger.

Men and women who used to be called Grandpa and Grandma are now setting the styles by darkening their gray hair with a simple home mixture.

For instance, J. A. McCrea, a well-known Californian, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture in five minutes that will darken gray hair and make it soft and glossy. Merely take a half-pint of water, add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, ¼ oz. of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at trifling cost. Apply to the hair twice weekly with comb. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

PARIS BANS BARE ARMS IN LATEST SPRING STYLES

New Models Feature Long Sleeves Although Costumes Are Simple Designs.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 12.—Bare arms have been completely ruled out by the spring fashion artists, judging from the parade of mannequins at Longchamps at the opening of the flat racing season.

The new models from the leading Paris houses without exception featured long, tight sleeves coming right down to the wrist and most of the mannequins wore frills at the end of the sleeves almost covering up their dainty fingers. As for the rest of the fashionable spring costumes, it is an unusually artistic combination of simple lines and gorgeous embroidery. One of the most striking frocks seen was a tight-fitting black one with a plainly pleated skirt which would have seemed almost too severe except for the tunic embroidered in many brilliant colors, making a sort of tapestry effect with its floral design of red, gold and purple. Long tight sleeves give a touch of Mona Lisa purity but the brilliant colors about the bodice preserved a balance of dashing modernity.

The hats were usually of the small "cloche" type mostly of fine woven straw in the most brilliant hues, scarlet being the favorite color. Many were trimmed with pink roses and marigolds and from not a few flowed long vari-colored silk streamers.

Scarves of all colors of the Joseph coat, instead of furs, were also lavishly draped around the necks of fashion's advance heralds.

PARIS LIVING COST SOARS AS OLYMPIC GAMES NEAR

Residents to Reap Golden Harvest From Thousands Who Will Arrive Soon for Event.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 12.—The slogan "C'est les Olympiques" is beginning to replace "C'est la Guerre" as the blanket explanation for excessive prices as the time approaches for the gathering of athletes from all parts of the world, except Germany, for the eighth revival of the Olympic games.

Spring fever seems greatly intensified by the effort to reap a golden harvest from thousands of Olympic guests who are expected to spend anywhere from three weeks to three months in Paris as a result of the great quadrennial exhibition.

The mania for renting at fancy prices is not restricted to the native inhabitants. Numerous foreigners from other parts of Europe, have obtained apartments, hoping to pay their expenses for a vacation by sub-letting to Olympic fans.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS IN FILMS IS OPPOSED BY HAYS

Attitude of Head of Producers Is Made Known in Letter to Animal Defense League.

Cruelty to animals in the filming of motion pictures is "strongly opposed" by Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., according to an article in the forthcoming issue of the National Humane Journal.

Hays has informed Mrs. Fannie Thompson Kessler and Mrs. Rosamonde Rae Wright, president and vice president, respectively, of the Animal Defense League, of his position and declared he would welcome the co-operation of the league in making certain that cruelty to animals is kept out of the industry.

The officers of the league requested Hays to appoint a special humane officer whose duty it would be to visit the studios and see that no cruelty is practiced. Hays answered that he could not do so without the authorization of the motion picture producers, although the idea appealed to him personally.

Do You Envy English Woman's Complexion?

Mrs. Asquith, famous diarist, in a recent interview took occasion to remark that the Englishwoman's complexion is far more beautiful than that of the average American woman. The truth of this assertion is admitted, if reluctantly, by all who have been in England. But Margot did not mention the fact that the ladies of her country are much given to the use of what is commercially known as mercolized wax, remarkable as a facial rejuvenator. This wax has the peculiar property of absorbing the soiled and lifeless particles of scarf skin as they appear, the fresh new skin underneath, with its bloom of youth and health, then being in evidence. The process is quite harmless, causing no inconvenience.

Mercolized wax can be had at drug stores here, as well as abroad, and if you will procure about an ounce of it and apply a little at bedtime, like cold cream, washing it off mornings, you soon will behold in your glowing cheeks a close resemblance to the wonderful transparent beauty of the English woman's complexion.

The Holland Furnace Cannot Be Sold By Dealers

Every Holland Furnace Customer MUST Be Pleased

People Expect More of a Holland Heating System

an of other systems and would be sure to complain they did not get more. This is exactly what we nt them to do.

long ago we discovered that we had a customer in nton, Ohio, who was not completely satisfied. In hort time we heard about it in Detroit, and three ys later we heard about the same Canton complaint m people living in Chicago. Upon looking it up found that the fault was our own, and we remedied forthwith.

this illustrates why we cannot afford to have even customer who is not delighted with his Holland ating System.

while you are reading this advertisement, you can nk of any Holland User who is not well pleased, you uld be doing us a great favor by giving us the name d address.

very Holland Customer holds a Holland Contract a Bond that is worth a great deal of money to him, d he must be pleased. We are directly responsible him for everything pertaining to the installation his heating system as well as for the manufacture it.

Holland Furnaces—manufactured by loyal workmen in two of the most efficient factories in the world; Holland Installation—done by our own trained Installers; Holland Engineering—done by skilled, courteous engineers, right in the home that is to be heated!

There is no loophole left in the way of success. And that completeness of service explains precisely why the Holland Furnace Company is the Largest Installer of Furnaces in the World. There are those who do a thing pretty well and seem to "get away with it." Then someone does it right and makes an outstanding success.

The Holland System is recognized by millions to be far more convenient, healthful and economical than either steam or hot water and is known to heat the house uniformly and steadily, which the system known as "hot-air" certainly does not do.

The Holland is not a pipeless Furnace. It is a complete pipe system, with cold air returns from rooms above the basement.

Are You Protected by the Holland Bond?

If not, let a Holland Man tell you just what it will cost for your home.

Remember, the Holland Heating System has been proven to use less fuel than any other system, so you are not spending money when you buy the Holland—you are making a paying investment.

Time Payment Plan If You Prefer

You can pay cash and get a fair discount, or, if you wish, you can buy on the easy payment plan. Any Holland Man can give you all of the particulars and it will not obligate you in the least. You will enjoy talking with a Holland Man. He is required to be courteous and clean, as well as skilled in his profession.

In the list below (there is not one dealer in the whole list) you will find the right Holland Branch Office to call up. Do it today! You will always be glad you did it.

Does your present furnace need a little fixing? If so let a Holland expert take care of it for you at the fair Holland prices.

Holland Furnaces Make Warm Friends

Mothers know a dose of
SYRUP PEPSIN
Will keep them fit

'First Aid' For Sick Children

THE experienced mother is not alarmed when a child becomes sick. She knows that most of the ailments of childhood are trifling. If it seems serious she calls a doctor, but whether or not she calls him she gives, first of all, a good laxative medicine. The doctor would advise that anyway. It is his "first aid." Such experienced mothers as Mrs. Everett E. Hunt of Belzoni, Okla., who has three children and never any sickness, and Mrs. F. B. Kuklenski of Prosser, Wash., always give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at the first indication of sickness. Such timely doses have saved them much worry.

The Meaning of "Good"

All doctors agree that a thorough cleaning out of the bowels is of first importance for it removes dangerous intestinal poisons. They will also advise a "good laxative," and by "good" they mean one that is effective and yet harmless. They know that there are physics that never should be given to children—calomel, which is mercury and loosens the teeth; phenolphthalein, a coal-tar drug that causes skin trouble; salts, which concentrate the blood and dry up the saliva. They consider Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin safe for all ages as they know it is a simple vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and agreeable aromatics. The formula is on the package.

Give Laxative for Colds

Adults should have at least one movement of the bowels every 24 hours, and children two or three. Failure to have it means constipation, then headache, biliousness, drowsiness, lack of appetite. Give a dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at bedtime, and there will be health and good feeling by morning. A dose costs less than a cent, and a bottle can be had at any drug store. Colds and constipation come together, so if you notice coughing or sneezing stop it at once with Syrup Pepsin.

QUEEN MARIE HAS EYE ON PRINCE OF WALES FOR ILEANA

Europe's Royal Matchmaker Said to Seek Marriage of Youngest Daughter to British Heir.

By Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, April 12.—Under the noise of fanfaronades, the salutes and the theatricalism which has attended the visit to this capital of Queen Marie of Rumania and her husband, King Ferdinand, Continental diplomats are watching closely just what form of attack the Queen will adopt to bring about a possible matrimonial alliance between the Prince of Wales and her youngest and only single daughter, Princess Ileana.

Queen Marie is the most inveterate matchmaker among European royalty. A granddaughter of Queen Victoria and a former Princess of Saxe Cobourg Gotha, her oblique attempts to bring about a closer relationship between Rumania and Great Britain by the marriage of the British Crown Prince to Princess Ileana is not only due to her desires for a closer union of the two nations, but to her ardent hope that through her daughter her family will be again within range of the British throne. Queen Marie's own marriage to a Catholic has barred her, regardless of contingency, but Princess Ileana, though brought up in the Greek Catholic faith, is only 15 years old and is easily eligible as the consort of the Prince of Wales—if British foreign policy can be persuaded to see it through the eyes of the Rumanian Queen.

King Ferdinand, during the present visit to Paris, has been reserved and quiet, but the paradings and entertainments for the royal visitors has put a sparkle into the Queen's eyes. In spite of the frigidity of Spain and Italy and the cancellation of the Rumanians' visits to Madrid and Rome, the reception in France and the coming ones in Belgium and England have increased rather than diminished the prestige of the traveling monarchs.

Visit Pleases Parisians.

Like her predecessor, Carmen Sylva, Queen Marie has a glittering personality and is vividly interested in all that is happening in the world. She has friends everywhere, and Paris is full of those who adore her. This week might easily have been called Queen Marie's week. She has a keen sense of thatricalism and has taken advantage of all the show accorded to her here. This pageantry has also caught the fancy of the Parisians, and with theatrical knowledge the French opened up the Palais Dorsay to furnish an apartment for Ferdinand and Marie. The arrival of royal visitors has not been frequent of late, so that little thought at first was given to a house for them. Then the Palais Dorsay was selected and turned upside down to make it habitable for the couple.

Gobelin tapestries were taken from the walls of Cabinet Ministers. Greuse paintings and priceless Sevres ornaments placed in their apartments. A smell of fresh paint lingered about and the old servants of the palace were a little anxious about the dinners until it was discovered that the protocol of the visit had arranged dinner entertainments during the entire stay in Paris.

Royal Pair Visited Alsace.

Queen Marie and King Ferdinand arrived Thursday after a preliminary visit to Alsace, where they visited in Val du Patre, the former German prison camp in which Rumanian soldiers were impirsoned

NEW GERMAN OIL FORMULA RUBS OUT RHEUMATIC PAINS

Remarkable discovery promises quick, soothing relief for rheumatism, gout, neuralgia and neuritis sufferers.

German Chemistry that has given to the world the boon of Aspirin for the relief of headache pain, and Novocain for painless dentistry, has now come forward with another scientific discovery that promises to make nerve, joint and muscular pains a thing of the past for thousands who have suffered terrible tortures.

A new combination of certain oils has been discovered which produces a clear amber liquid that affords immediate relief from pain in many instances. It is so penetrating that it disappears within a few seconds, so that it must be entirely absorbed by the body tissue. Even in the most advanced and stubborn cases the use of this remarkable oil has shown astonishing improvement at once in many cases. Tired muscles regain life, creaking joints with the pain all gone become supple, the nerves are quickly soothed and the annoying twinges cease.

Rheumatism, gout, neuralgia and neuritis are due to internal infections which throw off poisons. These poisons are carried by the blood to the nerve tissue where they inflame and irritate the nerve sheath. The New German Oil is designed to neutralize these pain-causing poisons, bringing almost instant soothing relief.

So astonishing have been the results from the use of this oil that the American distributors have authorized local druggists to dispense it to rheumatic, gout, neuralgia and neuritis sufferers in this city with a positive written guarantee, signed by themselves, to return the full purchase price of the first bottle if the pains are not wonderfully relieved. All sufferers should take advantage of this liberal offer. Unless you get relief from the very first bottle, your druggist will return your money. It is called Buhler Oil, and can be had at most good druggists, such as Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Stores, Keiffer Drug Co., (2 stores), Enderle Drug Co., (6 stores), Johnson Bros. Drug Co.

SCHOOL BUILDING SOUGHT

patrons of the Shenandoah ool district have petitioned the rd of Education for a new, permanent school to replace the portable building now at Shenandoah and Tennessee avenues.

The petition was signed by 2700 adults, it is said, which represents about 90 per cent of the adults in the Shenandoah neighborhood. Several South Side business men's organizations have adopted resolutions favoring the building of a new grade school.

QUEEN MARIA HAS EYE ON PRINCE OF WALES FOR ILEANA

and died during the World War, and then called upon Gen. Berthel and then called upon Gen. Berthelled the Franco-Rumanian troops in Rumania during the war and is now French Military Governor in Strasbourg. The General accompanied the royal pair upon their trip to Paris, his presence lending an ease to the visit which robbed it of formality and stiffness.

On their arrival here the royal couple first called upon President Millerand and were received in the Hotel de Ville and then at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Following this they dined with President Millerand in the Elysee and at night went to the Grand Gal soiree at the opera, where the assemblage was the most brilliant Paris night life has seen in years.

Queen Enjoyed Functions.

Queen Marie almost romped through these formal affairs. Instead of boredom settling upon her, the Queen fairly scintillated. She was playing a leading role and doing it with gusto. Her beauty, her dramatic appearance appealed highly to the Parisians and the cordiality of the welcome given to her and to her husband was reflected in the glow that exuded from the Queen's demeanor.

Yesterday she visited with the King the aviation field at La Bourget and ate the usual dinners of reception. Today she visited the Beaux Arts, and in the afternoon went to the steeplechase at the Grand Palais. Tonight the final reception was given at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

This was the objective happenings of the visit of the Queen of Rumania. But it is noteworthy that because Italy and Spain frowned upon a visit that France outdid herself in entertaining the couple, with the newspapers playing up the role King Ferdinand assumed during the war when he threw his nation in upon the side of the allies.

Visit London Next Month.

It is also possible that the emphasis given the entertainment was for the purpose of diminishing the possibilities of a clash between Italy and Rumania by showing Italy under the guise of hospitality to the Rumanians, just how much France wanted a complication avoided.

However, in spite of the cancelation of the Rome visit, Queen Marie approaches England and the Prince of Wales, held there next month by the postponement of his trip to South Africa. The Queen and her husband are expected in London about May 25. Labor in England, while grumbling a bit at the expense of entertainment, will see that the visitors are properly received, but it is known that the Queen has not abandoned her project to land the Prince of Wales in her matrimonial net. This in spite of the fact that there has been talk of an engagement of the Princess Ileana to Prince Paul of Greece and King Boris of Bulgaria.

From the record of the Queen, the trepidation of the diplomats may be easily understood. It must be remembered that Queen Marie is the daughter of the late Duke of Edinburgh, a brother of the late King Edward and thus she is a first cousin of the present King of England. With this family connection she has a formidable entree to the inner circles of British royalty, where the real whispering and planning of international marriage may be done with that ease which might be found among people of less exalted station.

Queen's Matchmaking Record.

As for her record of successful matchmaking, Queen Marie's schedule has been as follows:

She succeeded in marrying Prince Carol, Crown Prince of Rumania, to Princess Helen of Greece in 1921, and thus cemented a tie between two of the strongest Balkan nations.

Her oldest daughter, Princess Elizabeth, she married to Prince George of Greece, who, later, was deposed as King and is now in exile. This marriage was consummated a month before that of Prince Carol, and while it developed badly, the second match is felt to have redeemed the situation.

A year later, in January, 1922, her daughter, Princess Marie, was married to King Alexander of Jugoslavia and there now remains two unwedded children—Prince Nicholas, who is but 21, and Princess Ileana. Another child, Prince Mircea, born in 1913, died when but 3 years of age.

FERRY'S purebred SEEDS

FOR BETTER GARDENS

"A chip off the old block"

EVERY packet of Ferry's Seeds comes from a parent plant that has proved to be ideal in every respect. By ideal we mean that the parent plant is a purebred—true to name and type.

Here is a relationship that every gardener should keep in mind as he plans his garden. It always pays to be sure about the ancestry of the seeds you buy.

At our experimental gardens we watch our plants. The history of every one is known. Before going to seed, undesirables and "freaks" are weeded out. From only those which are ideal are the seeds harvested. Then, to make sure, we test these seeds to see that they do run true to the perfect type.

Such care as this on our part invites you to buy Ferry's purebred Seeds with faith that they will produce in quantity and quality. Ferry's purebred Seeds are on sale "at the store around the corner."

Write for Ferry's Seed Annual. It is full of garden facts. Get it now before you plant.

ECZEMA ITCHED DAY AND NIGHT

Burned So Could Not Sleep. Cuticura Heals.

"My mother had eczema which broke out in pimples on her scalp and itched and burned day and night. Her hair fell out and was dry and lifeless. It later broke out on her back and chest, and at night her back burned so that she lost many nights' sleep.

"She read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased some, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and over a box of Cuticura Ointment she was healed." (Signed) Miss Helma Loe, Rt. 2, Centerville, So. Dak., Aug. 23, 1923.

Use Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum daily and keep your skin clear and healthy.

Samples Free by Mail. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden 48, Mass." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Try our new Shaving Stick.

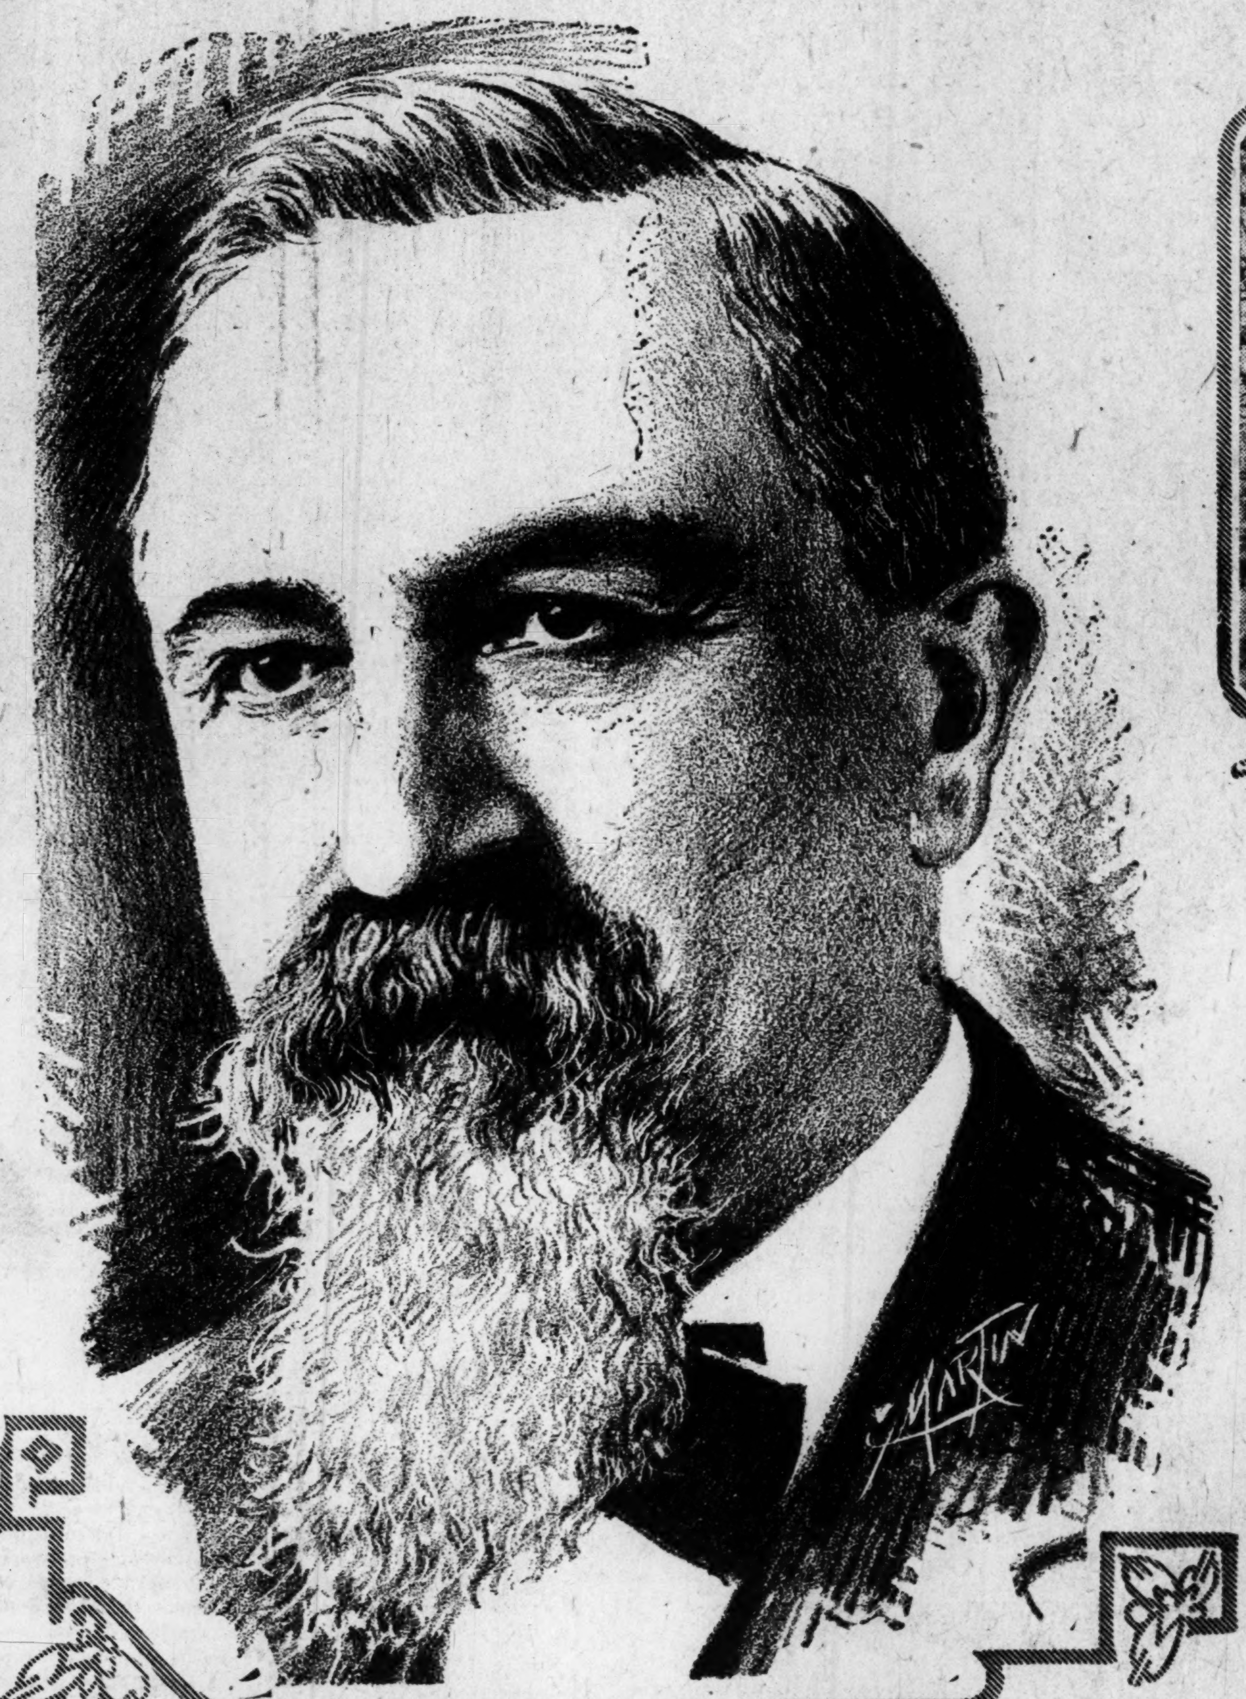
Farmer Who Lived 75 Years on One Farm, and Made $5,000,000 on the Side

E DIED ON THE LAND WHERE HE WAS BORN, AND HE FARMED IT ALL HIS DAYS

Latzer Backed an Idea to Make Milk "Keep" and He Clung to It Through Its Lean Years — When Success and Riches Came He Stayed on the Farm From Which He Never Had Wandered Far, and There He Died.



LOUIS LATZER,
The Highland, Ill., farmer who saw possibilities of making milk "keep" and stood by the struggling Helvetia company when it was tottering, thereby laying the foundation for the fortune of more than $3,000,000 which he left at his death recently.

By F. A. BEHYMER,
aff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HIGHLAND, Ill., April 12.

was a great day for Highland, as it ned out, the day that August Pagan, re- rning from St. Louis, where he had the wine from his vineyards, brought him, in his high-wheeled wagon, John berg, who had come from Switzerland a crazy idea that he could make milk p."

was the day-dawn of the condensed milk was to make Highland famous and prosperity to the Swiss farmers of the Helvetia surrounding Highland, and s to Louis Latzer, farmer, plowing fields out south of the village along the ton road. This Louis Latzer died the day and his estate inventoried $3,000,- besides the largess he had bestowed upon tives in the late years and substantial anthropies, exceeding $2,000,000.

Louis Latzer came millions as the re- of his persistence in solving the prob- of preserving as well as condensing , and he became the head of one of most successful business enterprises in country, but he remained a farmer to the , dying at the age of 75 on the farm on h he was born, and from which he had , except on one pleasure trip, only to ge and university near by and on busi- trips necessitated by the expansion of the ness.

Swiss farmers who gathered about the the old Green Tree Hotel on Third , in St. Louis, the day that August Pa- drove to town with a barrel of his fa- wine, were merry. A new "Schweizer" just arrived and he had the funniest no- . He thought he could make milk p." Milk always soured, when its brief of sweetness was past, as every Swiss r knew. It had always soured and it s would. The "Schweizer" who said it n't was crazy. So they laughed, "Ho- " and had another drink.

All He Needed Was "Lots of Milk"

When August Pagan came with his wine Mein Host of the Green Tree Hotel, which was one of the reasons for the Swiss rs gathering there, they told him about "Schweizer" with the funny idea and Pa- said he would like to meet the man.

The original milk condensing plant at Highland, Ill.

brought him in and August Pagan and Meyenberg shook hands and August n listened, with a certain sympathy and erstanding, to John Meyenberg, enthusi- , who thought he could make milk keep.

All that John Meyenberg wanted was to where there was "lots of milk," and would show them that he could make it p. Well, if milk was all that he wanted, was plenty of it around Highland. Most the Swiss farmers there kept cows and milk and butter and cheese. As to ther there was anything in John Meyen- 's notion, August Pagan, vineyardist, ld not undertake to say, but if Meyen- would come along with him to High- he could talk to the Swiss dairy farm- , and if he could convince them of the merit of his formula, very well.

So to Highland with August Pagan, in his high-wheeled wagon, came John Meyenberg that day, and that is why the world now has milk that keeps, and that is why, one might say, Louis Latzer, farmer, was worth millions when he died last week on his farm near here.

Condensation of milk was not a new thing. But the trouble was that condensed milk did not keep any better than milk that had not been condensed. Not much better any way. What was needed was a formula that would make it keep. Meyenberg said he had that.

One of the farmers who listened to him and was impressed and said "So?" and wanted Meyenberg's dream to come true, was Louis Latzer, who lived on "the Latzer place," a mile and a half from Highland on the Trenton road. Unlike most of his neighbors he wasn't a "milk farmer." He farmed the acres his father, immigrant from the Austrian Tyrol, had accumulated, and leased other acres and was one of the successful farmers of Helvetia township. So it was not because he was a milk producer but because of his prominence in his community that Meyenberg went to him with his story of milk that would not sour.

Walked 20 Miles to College

Louis Latzer, born on the farm 35 years before that year of 1885 when John Meyenberg came to Highland, was better qualified than most of his neighbors to appreciate the possibilities of Meyenberg's process. Somehow, from his Tyrolean father or his Swiss mother, or from his contacts in his youth, he had a craving for knowledge and, in particular, for knowledge concerning chemistry. As a youth, after finishing the grade school, he had walked the 20 miles to Lebanon and entered McKendree College, and every Friday night he walked the 20 miles home and every Sunday night he walked the 20 miles back to college. There were horses on the farm but it was not adjudged the thrifty thing to ride a horse to school and keep it there from week's beginning to week's end. Besides, walking was good for a growing boy.

And after a term in college there was a year at the State University at Champaign, 100 miles away, before it was necessary for him to take over, as eldest son, the management of the farm.

So, when John Meyenberg came talking, Louis Latzer was one of the Helvetia township farmers who listened with understanding and was ready to believe that milk could be kept from souring.

If anything was to be done about it there would have to be a company formed and capital supplied. The business men of Highland were spoken to about it. It meant a new industry for the town. Some of them were willing to go into it. So a meeting was called and farmers and business men met and talked it over. A company was formed, with a capital stock of $15,000, which every one present felt was a very large sum to put into any undertaking, no matter how promising.

Among the considerable number of stockholders were four men who, in the troubled times that were to follow before triumph was won, were to bear most of the burden—Louis Latzer and Fred Kaeser, farmers, and John Wildi and George Roth, merchants.

The old woolen mill was taken over and machinery bought and installed and the condensation of milk began. But the milk did not keep. Not dependably. Sometimes it kept pretty well. Other times it came back by the carload, spoiled.

Capital Increased to $50,000

A company with $15,000 capital could not stand a great deal of that. The "told you so" crowd had their day. The timid were ready to quit. The few who had faith backed it with their all. The capital was increased to $50,000. The fight, although it was not clearly understood then, was with the bacilli that soured sweet milk, and for a good while it looked like the bacilli would win.

Dr. Werner Schmidt, village physician, was a thorough chemist as well. Latzer realized that what he and his associates needed was greater knowledge of chemistry. Dr. Schmidt had it. He was interested, too, in the success of the enterprise. So he consented to conduct a chemistry class, with Latzer, Kaeser and Wildi as his pupils. They studied the laws of chemistry and the iniquities of bacilli. Kaeser and Wildi became discouraged after a time and dropped out but the class continued with Latzer as the solitary pupil.

Latzer's spacious residence on his farm near Highland which has remained a farm home to the end. Several years ago this structure replaced the old homestead which formerly stood on the site.

While Latzer and Dr. Schmidt struggled with the problem the situation of the company became increasingly precarious. There came a time when the payroll could be met only by paying partly in cash and partly in stock of the company and there ensued a period during which shares of stock were offered to tradesmen in lieu of cash and accepted with reluctance or refused. These shares are now worth $20,000 each. The Swiss farmers who gathered at the Green Tree bar and had their laugh at the "Schweizer" who thought he could keep milk from turning sour still gathered there and still laughed. And why not?

The question still was whether it could be done. Nearly everybody said it couldn't. Every housewife knew that milk would keep only a little while. They did not, at that time, know why, but they knew it was a fact and did not believe anything could change the fact.

At Last a Successful Process

It became apparent that if the milk were evaporated in a vacuum and sealed hot the bacilli would be foiled and the product would keep indefinitely. At last a process was worked out which, imperfect though it was at first, was the solution of the problem. The fight had been won and Latzer had won it because he hung on when everybody else gave up.

John Meyenberg? Oh, he sold his stock when the outlook was dark and went away. In later years he engaged in other condensing enterprises which succeeded, but always he let go of his holdings too soon and he died a few years ago without having profited greatly from the idea which has been the foundation for others' millions.

Nearly four years the battle with bacilli had lasted and when it was won the enterprise was almost prostrate with exhaustion. Then began the slow climb toward success, hindered by the misgivings that persisted.

At first the market for condensed milk was mostly in mining camps and other remote regions where fresh milk was scarce or lacking. The company, improving its equipment and its product from time to time, gradually came into its own, but achieving only a fair measure of success. Then came the Spanish-American war, with the Government requiring all the condensed milk that could be produced. That was the beginning of an amazing success.

They were thrifty and cautious, Latzer and the men associated with him. They never increased the capital stock and never went seeking financial help. The earnings were turned into improvements and enlargements and they were content to wait for their rewards, which came in thousand-fold measure when they did come.

One by one the charter members of the enterprise had dropped out and there remained, besides Latzer, only Wildi. In 1907 Wildi withdrew from active connection, but retained his stock. It was good stock and worth retaining, paying 1000 to 2000 per cent on the capitalization of $50,000. Wildi started a rival concern in Ohio, but died a few years later, leaving to his wife, Mrs. Louisa Wildi, his 176 shares of stock. Litigation followed but it was settled last October when the company paid Mrs. Wildi, now of New York, $3,520,000 for her stock.

Fostered by the condensary, dairy farming became general throughout the new Helvetia surrounding Highland. The level lands, for Highland and Helvetia are mere euphemisms as far as the topography is concerned, were covered with Holstein herds.

Then the Milk Strike of 1920

Although the condensed milk business expanded to the corners of the country and crossed the seven seas and plants were established in many cities, the headquarters probably would always have remained at Highland, as long, at least, as Louis Latzer lived, if it had not been for the milk strike of the fall of 1920. Because of reduction in European credits, exports of condensed milk at that time fell off. In the face of a demand from the farmers for an increased price the company felt compelled to reduce the price it had been paying them. It continued to buy, however, and just when the producers' quarrel with St. Louis distributors over the price came to a climax in the refusal of the farmers to ship any more milk to the city, the condensing company found itself with a surplus and deemed it good business to dispose of this surplus to the St. Louis distributors.

That angered the farmers and bitter things were said and some of these came to the ears of Louis Latzer. Always, although the enterprise had brought him great wealth, Latzer had found satisfaction in looking upon himself as the benevolent friend and benefactor of the farmers. Their rancor now seemed ingratitude to him and he took it much to heart. And because of it the offices were removed to St. Louis and the condensing plant sold and there remains in Highland only the can-manufacturing plant.

But Latzer continued to live on the "home place." He remained a farmer as always he had been. It pleased him not at all that he had to be taken by train or automobile to St. Louis, and it is unlikely that he ever felt at home in the grand offices which had been fitted up in the big office building. At Highland he had never felt the need of anything like that. He rode horseback from the farm to the office here and was well content with a plain table for a desk and kitchen chairs for his visitors to sit on. Automobiles had their uses, he would admit, and he bought them for his family, but a saddle horse suited him better, even on the longer journeys to Edwardsville, the county seat, when he was serving his generation as chairman of the Board of Supervisors.

The old homestead gave way years ago to a more spacious residence, imposing upon its knoll by the side of the road, but it was a farm home to the end, with Louis Latzer finding greater pleasure in overlooking his acres than counting his accumulations.

He seldom left the farm or the nearby town except on business until last fall, when he took his first pleasure trip, going to California to visit relatives and old friends, but best satisfied when it was over and he was back on his farm.

DOES THIS DEATH CERTIFICATE CLOSE STORY OF LONG-MISSING AUSTRIAN ARCHDUK

Aged New York Art Dealer Identified as Rebellious "John Orth" Who Was Given Up as Lost at Sea 34 Years A Mysterious Disappearance of "Orth" With His Ship Off the South American Coast in 1890 Gave Rise to Innumerable Fantastic Legends, but Friends of "O. N. Orlow," Who Expired in New York Hospital Last Week, Are Convinced That He Has at Last Been Found—Romance With Viennese Dancer and Alleged Plot to Seize Hungarian Throne Led to Clash With His Cousin, Francis Joseph, Resulting in His Flight From Europe.

WHEN the death certificate was filed in New York last week for an impoverished old man of 72 who had spent the last years of his life in a squalid attic studio, it closed the books, so far as the courts of this country are concerned, on the strange career of the long-missing Archduke Johann Salvator of Austria, once the favorite cousin of the Emperor Francis Joseph and a dashing General of artillery in the army of the Crown. If the physicians' identification is correct—and there is reason for believing that it is—then this final official gesture writes, after 35 years, the last chapter in the romantic tale of "John Orth," which has become almost a legend.

Known during his life in this country as "O. N. Orlow," doctor of philosophy, linguist and art dealer, the aged scholar finally went to his grave with the rank to which he was born. He could escape it no longer, though he had tried for 35 years to do so. For 35 years he had been a wanderer, a "living dead man," the Austrian courts having decreed him legally dead and administered his European estate following general acceptance of reports that he had perished in a shipwreck off the South American coast in the summer of 1890.

It was in 1889 that the tale of "John Orth's" travels, with its weird variations of fact and fable began. In that year—an eventful one for the "Hapless Hapsburgs," for it brought two of the long string of tragedies that befell the ill-fated family—Archduke Johann renounced his title, his name and his allegiance to Francis Joseph and became the half-mythical adventurer who, like "The Flying Dutchman" of Wagner's opera, came back from his grave in the deep to bob up here and yonder in strange ports and strange lands.

Hurled Medals in Emperor's Face

Standing in the presence of his Emperor, he had torn from his uniform the trappings of royalty and flung them in the astonished monarch's face. Then, assuming the name of Orth, he had fled from the land which many believe he might eventually have ruled, taking with him the underlying cause of the royal dispute. And that underlying cause was a woman. It was Milly Stubel, the Viennese dancer, whom the Emperor had forbidden him to marry.

Twice after that he was heard from authentically. Once in England, where he married Milly Stubel, and again at La Plata, near Buenos Aires, from which place he wrote to his Vienna lawyer on July 12, 1890, that he was about to sail his own ship, the Santa Margareta, around Cape Horn to Valparaiso, Chile, and there pick up a cargo of saltpeter for Europe. Soon afterward the ship sailed, but the Santa Margareta was never seen again, except in legend. She never made port and it was taken for granted that she went to the bottom carrying all hands with her. One of the numerous wrecks that the storms tossed up upon the ledges of Cape Horn that summer was supposed to be the remains of the Santa Margareta.

From time to time since that shipwreck reports have turned up in various parts of the world announcing the discovery of the wanderer. Persons claiming to be John Orth or claiming to have intimate knowledge of his whereabouts have appeared repeatedly, have been investigated and their claims passed over as spurious. Now he was said to be a planter in Mexico, now a machinist in Painesville, O., again a General in the Japanese army, and by another account a polar explorer, still sailing the Santa Margareta. At last he dies of heart disease in a New York hospital. The possibility exists, of course, that this identification may prove to be groundless, like the others, but so certain are his intimate acquaintances that Dr. O. N. Orlow was really the Archduke that they have caused a death mask to be taken and have tabulated various physical identification marks to defend his right to royal rank when documentary evidence to put this testimony to a final test is available.

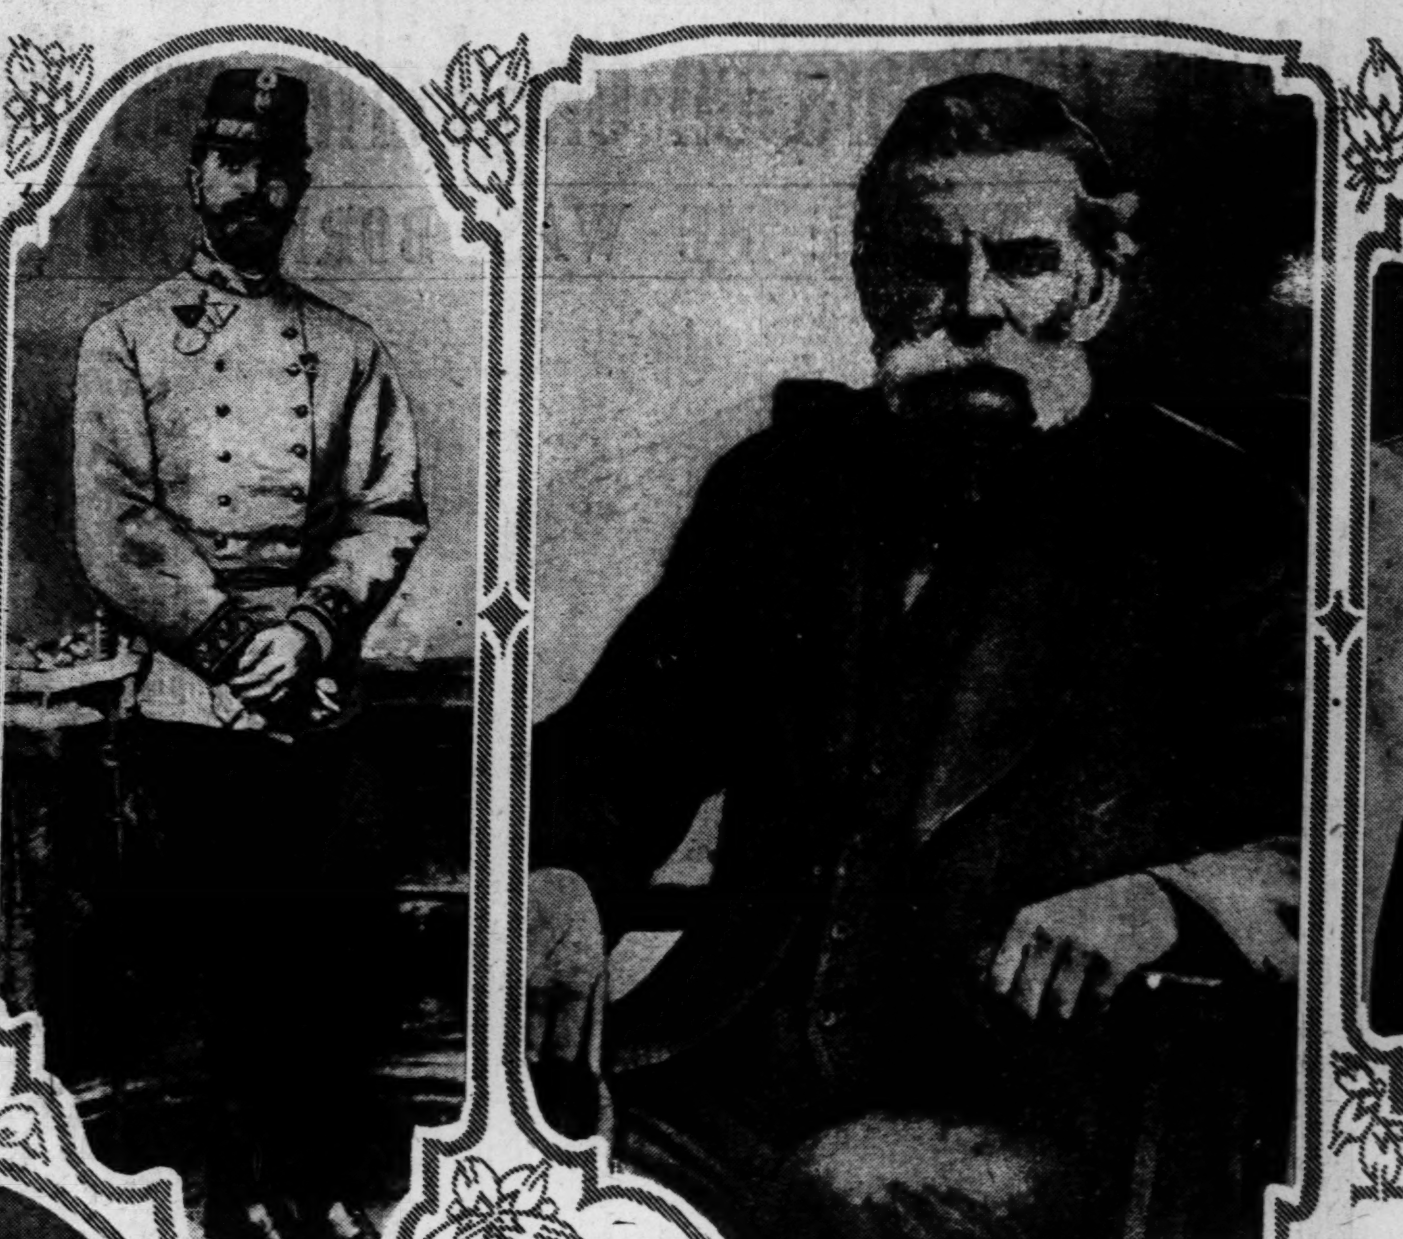
The Mysterious Steel Casket

That this documentary evidence exists there can be little doubt. Even if it doesn't exist in Europe, there is a possibility that it may be found in South America, for his friends relate that for more than a year the old art dealer had been trying to raise sufficient money to finance a trip to Rio de Janeiro in quest of a mysterious steel casket which, he declared, would establish beyond dispute his identity as Archduke Johann, should occasion arise to have that identity established.

He had told his ward, Miss Grace Wakefield, who was put in his charge many years ago by her father in Seattle, Wash., something about the contents of that box. But now she is also dead. She ended her life a few hours after the death of "Orlow." Previously, however, her friend, Mrs. Charlotte Fairchild, had learned from her and from Orlow enough about the casket to attach to it a deep significance and to reinforce the conviction that Orlow was really the Archduke. What that significance is the story of Archduke Johann's eventful career in the Austrian court will presently reveal.

It is recalled that when John Orth fled from Austria in 1889 he took with him a mysterious steel casket similar to this now supposed to exist in Rio Janeiro. Two persons had known of the contents of that box. One was the Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria. He delivered the box into the keeping of Countess Marie Larisch, his cousin and a member of the royal household, a few days before his tragic death at the Meyerling hunting lodge. With his surrender of the box he swore her to secrecy, declaring that it contained political documents which, if found, would seal his death warrant. She was to deliver it unopened to an unnamed person who, in calling for it, would repeat the letters "RIOU." Shortly after the murder (or suicide) of Rudolph and his mistress, the beautiful Baroness Mary Vetsera, at Meyerling, a man in disguise whom the Countess recognized as Archduke Johann, repeated to her the mysterious code and received the casket with the remark:

"You couldn't have saved a coward like Rudolph, but you have saved my life. Now I am going to die without dying, for I am tired of the hollow things of life and I intend to begin a new career."



"DR. O. N. ORLOW,"
Aged New York art dealer whose death certificate has been filed as that of Archduke Johann Salvator of Austria, who disappeared 34 years ago and was believed to have been drowned at sea. The Archduke was a second cousin of the Emperor Francis Joseph. The photograph at the left shows him as he appeared in the eighties when he was a member of the Austrian court.

EMPEROR FRANCIS JOS
Most noted of the Hapsburg line, wh at the age of 86 in 1916 after a r years, the longest in history and one filled with tragedies. His quarrels w Archduke over the latter's unco love affair is said to have been a c cause of Johann's exile.

MRS. CHARLOTTE FAIRCHILD,
New York photographer and friend of "Orlow" who declares that she had known for a year that he was the missing Archduke.

BARONESS MARY VETSERA,
Vienna beauty and inamorata of Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria who met her death with him in the tragedy of Meyerling.

A few days afterward, following a bitter quarrel with Francis Joseph, the Archduke hurled his decorations at his royal cousin and fled to England, followed by the warning that the Austrian secret police would be waiting for him if he ever dared to cross the frontier again. With him went the casket, it is believed, containing what Countess Marie Larisch has declared must have been the plans for the seizure of the Hungarian throne by the Emperor's own son and his cousin. Whatever it contained, the fact that O. N. Orlow left such a box in Rio Janeiro beckons the imagination. Hardly too fanciful is it to believe that the discovery of this historic box some day may clear up the details of that Hungarian plot which for the last 35 years have remained obscured behind a tangled woof of suspicion and gossip.

Might Have Enriched History

It may be that the box has been lost or its contents destroyed. If such is the case, poor, old, poverty-stricken Orlow's failure to raise money for his intended journey may rob history of a valuable contribution, but, at that, perhaps no more valuable than the memoirs Orlow might have written and didn't. If he was really the missing Archduke, what a tale he might have told of the intrigues, the conspiracies and irregular love affairs that beset the Austrian court in the old days when Francis Joseph ruled over his subject states with a fist of iron. Probably no reigning family of Europe ever navigated so turbulent a course as the Hapsburgs and probably no living person could have revealed so much about events and motives which have remained darkly mysterious as Archduke Johann.

For instance, there is the murder of Crown Prince Rudolph and Baroness Vetsera. No entirely satisfactory explanation of that royal tragedy has ever been made, although a thousand different stories have been told and retold for 35 years. Isn't it probable that the Archduke knew the "inside" version of that? He was a close friend and companion of Crown Prince Rudolph, sympathizing with him in his love as he did in politics, and if the word of Countess Marie Larisch is to be credited, even going so far as to plan a revolution and seizure of a throne. The belief has always persisted that Rudolph's fate had something to do with Johann's exile, for his clash with Francis Joseph took place shortly afterward. That, however, is problematical. A host of factors probably contributed to that. The breach between him and his Emperor had been widening for years, and although it appears to have been politics that caused the final rupture, it is well known that his love affair with a nymph of the Vienna Opera was at the bottom of it.

In this unconventional romance with Milly Stubel the Archduke was true to Hapsburg form. Nearly all of them were involved at one time or another in irregular romances. They are too numerous to mention here, but a few of the most outstanding will suffice. There was Empress Elizabeth's affair with Count Nicholas Esterhazy and her subsequent "fairy-story" confession to Marie Larisch that the Count was the father of her second child. There was Francis Joseph's illicit association with Kathi Schratt, the actress, which was even sanctioned by the Empress Elizabeth herself. And the most striking of all, perhaps, was the romance of Crown Prince Rudolph and Mary Vetsera that ended so tragically at Meyerling.

Ordered to Break Off With Dancer

The fact, then, that Archduke Johann was a Hapsburg seems sufficient explanation of his mad infatuation for a girl of the stage whom he could not hope to marry legally so long as he held his rank. He was ordered to break off the association, as Rudolph had been ordered to break of with Mary Vetsera before. He refused to do so and the iron will of Francis Joseph prevailed, as it usually did. But that is ahead of the story. Here a glance backward at the times in which he lived and an examination of his own revolutionary spirit is essential.

Archduke Johann, later "John Orth," was a member of the Tuscany branch of the Hapsburg family which has been most conspicuous for its revolts against Hapsburg dictation, and Archduke Johann's place among them is that of first of the family rebels. As we have seen, he was not only a rebel in politics, but a rebel in love as well. He was born in Florence, Italy, in November, 1852, the youngest son of Leopold II, last sovereign Grand Duke of Tuscany, and was a second cousin of Emperor Francis Joseph.

Educated for military service, he faced a brilliant career as a soldier, politician and statesman when he first became attached to the Austrian court as a youth. He was described as a man of many accomplishments, but by inclination and principle, was one of the least royal of his line. In manner of bearing and attitude toward the common people he was anything but a Hapsburg—certainly but little like, Francis Joseph, who deemed most of his subjects dogs of the street and would never stoop to inquire about the family of anybody below the rank of a Count. But for all his democratic ways, Archduke Johann was regarded as one of the most brilliant of the family. He wrote poetry, delivered lectures, composed music and dabbled occasionally with socialism, greatly to the distaste of his superiors at court.

While still little more than a youth he became a military critic, a calling which promptly got him into deep water. His published attacks on the inefficiency of the Austrian artillery and criticism of the Austrian Foreign office incurred so much official displeasure that he was politely exiled to a command at Cracow so he would be out of the way.

Real Trouble Began With Romance

When the affair with Milly Stubel began Francis Joseph was scandalized. There was a row and the Archduke obtained the Emperor's permission to leave the army and retire to his castle of Orth on the shores of Lake Gmunden. From then on his political aspirations were worse complicated by his love affairs. The scorn that met his candidature for the vacant throne of Bulgaria, where he may have intended to install Milly Stubel as his Queen is believed to have been partly responsible for his supposed conspiracy with Rudolph, about this time, for the coup d'etat.

Rudolph, it is known, was then involved in a similar state mixup over Mary Vetsera. He had sought a papal decree annulling his distasteful marriage to Princess Stephanie of Belgium and had been refused it. At the same time he knew well enough that even if he received it he could never hope to make Baroness Vetsera Empress of Austria. In the Hungarian coup, then, he possibly saw a chance to retain his imperial rank and marry the woman of his choice besides. The truth has never been learned. It is one of the secrets that was supposed to be locked in that steel casket. And this brings us back to the trust which the Crown Prince imposed upon Countess Marie Larisch.

The murder of Rudolph and C Marie's surrender of the casket to duke followed in quick succession came the final clash with Franc which terminated Johann's career court life of Vienna. He sailed sh erward for England, married Milly and set out for South America, there early in the summer of 189

Who was, before her marriage, Gloria Morgan. She is a twin sister of Thelma.

She is not beautiful, decidedly not, according to the world-wide impressionistic standard of Hollywood beauty. But—ah!—she has a 'manner."

"The other Morgan Twin," as Hollywood's latest distinguished arrival is often referred to in New York, Newport and Palm Beach, denies she is a "runaway heiress"—running away to enter the movies. In her secluded Hollywood bungalow, back in the foothills, where she has established herself, with her very French maid, she avers she has run away from only an "idle, purposeless life."

Thus, she hints at the causes underlying her separation and subsequent divorce, in France, from the grandson of the outstanding figure in the development of the American telephone industry. She married Converse Feb. 22, 1922, at Rockville, the Gretna Green of Washington, but the runaway nuptials went on the rocks in a year's time.

Thelma Morgan's twin sister, Gloria Morgan, married Reginald C. Vanderbilt about a year ago.

The third member of this trio of young women is Mrs. Benjamin Thaw Jr., wife of the immensely wealthy scion of the Pennsylvania family, and whose popularity was enhanced by his service as an American aviator during the World War.

Mrs. Thaw was Consuelo Morgan and, although only 22, she also has been divorced. By this divorce, granted to her in January, 1922, she was freed of the Count Jean de Maupas, whom she married in 1920.

The father of this trinity of young American sisters is Harry Hays Morgan, who has spent most of his life thus far in the diplomatic service. At present he is Consul-General to Belgium, stationed at Brussels.

It is her belief, declares Miss Morgan, that the world needs heroes now worse than ever before to inspire it with high ideals and her conviction that the motion picture is the best medium for supplying such heroes which enlists her as such a stanch defender of the cinema art and inspires her with her ambition to succeed in it.

"There are few heroes these days to enthrall popular fancy," she says.

"Greece was exalted because Homer's heroes—myths—stimulated the idealism latent in her prosaic people, bargaining, trading, scheming to "get ahead in the world."

MISS THELMA MORGAN,
Former wife of James Vail Converse who has abandoned society for the movies and is now being filmed at Hollywood in her first important picture, "Cytherea."

"America today is the world's Greece—more than 100,000,000 of us, and bargaining, trading, scheming to 'get ahead in the world.'

"It's a prosaic existence, and to make it life, with all life means, we must have our Homer. And we have him. Our Homer is the motion picture.

"It is the motion picture which is the great provider of our heroes visual, the men and women of great and worthy and beautiful deeds which, as exemplified upon the screen, are impregnating the contented, humdrum soul of America with the spark of divine heroism.

"Pittsburg makes steel, Lynn shoes, Hollywood heroes. All three are vital necessities; and, in the final analysis, Hollywood's product is the most vitally needed if America is to be a nation of people who look up as well as along store aisles and market stalls.

"But if our Hollywood heroes and heroines are to do for America—and America means the world—what Homer's heroes did for Greece, they must be natural heroes—and heroines. Suffering, pain, tragedy are in the world, along with delight, laughter, comedy. And 'all the world's a stage,' we must admit. Therefore, if our plays—our pictures, our Hollywood heroism—is to reflect a segment of the world stage it also must reflect suffering, pain, tragedy. It must reflect it consistently, not for three or four reels and then a final one visualizing the praise of sugar plums. Life is not like that; pictures that always end with a sugar coating are not human pictures; heroes who always are rewarded with cake at the close of the picture are fair-weather heroes and they will do little or no good to the moral fiber of America after their heroing has captured America's imagination.' The hero absolute is the one whose image sticks in your memory whether, in the fadeout, he wins the girl or a call for the undertaker.

Thelma Morgan making up for her part in "Cytherea."

Favors the "Unhappy Ending"

"I think it is a mistake to assume that all our pictures must finish, like a Fourth of July celebration, in a grand pyrotechnical display, with the band playing "The Star-Spangled Banner." The nights of our lives do not end thus—not many. To be sure millions go to the motion picture shows to be entertained. But are they not being entertained when the hero is getting the worst of it? Certainly they are—so much so that they do not notice the person squeezing past them to get into the next seat.

Another view of Miss Morgan. Above she appears in her first movie scene with Alma Rubens (seated) and Lewis Stone at the left. The man at the right is George Fitzmaurice, director.

"The picture may show drab houses, drab hopes, drab lives, but that is life as it is lived.

"Yes, personally, I believe in the 'unhappy ending,' decidedly. And I here so state, even at the risk of being branded as a heretic by the mighty of filmdom—the producers.

"The motion picture, possibly, has added to the cost of living, but it is making living an art. And it has done more to elevate the masses in taste and living conditions than any other agency.

"The motion picture is still open to adverse criticism. Perfection, like the pot of gold, is always at the end of the rainbow. But the motion-picture maker is headed for the end of the rainbow. He knows he'll never get there, but he's going to keep on going.

MRS. BENJAMIN THAW,
Formerly Consuelo Morgan, the eldest of the three sisters. She became Countess Jean de Maupas upon her first marriage, in 1920, but obtained a divorce two years later.

Thelma Morgan, like the girl from Iowa or any other place trying to "break into the pictures," must work, too—and live by rules that are really Spartan. Here are some of the regulations, as laid down by the studios in common, that she must observe, if she is to "get on" in Hollywood.

1. Be at the studios, in costume and with makeup on, at 8 a. m.
2. Work nights, Sundays and holidays when called on by the director so to do.
3. Arise at 6 a. m.
4. Give heed to diet constantly, meaning much self-denial at the table (ill health and fat are not tolerated in Hollywood).
5. Be content to watch the "social whirl" whirl by, not mingling in it. (Would-be screen successes cannot dance even until midnight and be efficient, according to the directors).
6. Make no social engagements, because there is likelihood of being unable to fulfill them, on account of uncertain "after" working hours.

DOES DEATH CERTIFICATE AT LAST CLOSE THE STORY OF MISSING ARCHDUKE?

ing by the same name, Johann Salvator, was working for $15 a week in a machine shop at Painesville, O. He was said to have vanished soon afterward, however, when news of his identity was published. He had told inquirers there that he and his wife, instead of sailing on the Santa Margareta, had decided to go overland to Valparaiso and meet the ship there and in that way escaped the disaster. When the vessel failed to make port they had gone to the Island of Martinique, bought a plantation and were doing very well until the eruption of Mount Pelee killed the wife and two children who had been born to them.

And so, in one form or another, the legend has continued. The vast number of conflicting stories that have been told and then discredited now naturally tend to cast suspicion on the claim that Orlow is the Archduke. But there are a few persons—and these, by the way, are persons who were nearest to him—who are convinced. His ward, Miss Wakefield, who drowned herself in a bathtub together with her two parrots and a pet spaniel, after his death knew his secret. So did Mrs. Fairchild, a society photographer, who was an intimate friend of the "family" and had loaned money to Orlow during the last year after his struggle with poverty became a losing fight. Remaining now as his strongest defender, she gives a convincing account of the stories he told her of European diplomacy and his quarrels with Francis Joseph.

"He was a wonderful man," Mrs. Fairchild declares. "He was a marvelous astrologer and even lectured on Sanscrit. In his delirium he talked Sanscrit and it was very beautiful. And he was thoroughly familiar with military affairs. He often told how the war started and what the Hapsburgs had to do with it before it started. The secrets that he could tell of Europe alone was evidence enough that he was no ordinary person, even if he had not told us fully of his identity. As for the shipwreck story, he explained to us that he did not sail on the Santa Margareta as he had planned to do. Then, after reports of his death became current, he seized upon the opportunity to lose himself, so that he might not be returned to Austria.

This evidence is supported by Dr. John Grimley, chief surgeon of Columbus Hospital, who signed the death certificate. He, too, was convinced by the old patient's knowledge and "inside" stories that he was the Archduke. Still others are the Viscount Henry de Fries, an Austrian nobleman and friend of "Orlow"; Princess Marie de Bourbon and Mme. Francis de Spilassy.

There remain awaiting confirmation as still further evidence the death mask, the photograph of the birthmark on his arm, and, lastly, the steel casket said to be hidden somewhere in Rio Janeiro. If it is ever found it may some day reveal whether the passing of O. N. Orlow really ends at last the travels of John Orth.

NATIONAL ART GALLERY AT CAPITOL URGED

Bills for Construction of Building to Be Introduced in Congress.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—priceless art treasures are jostling invaluable examples of man's progress in other fields into places of obscurity in the National Museum, and in consequence the scientists of the country have come to the support of the American Federation of Arts in its campaign for a National Art Gallery.

Bills providing for the construction of a national gallery are being prepared for introduction in the Senate and House should funds for the structure not be raised by gift or bequest, and Charles A. Platt of New York has been commissioned to design the building by a group of art patrons who have subscribed $10,000 for this purpose. Meanwhile, however, the situation is described as acute.

Art was one of the subjects to be cultivated under the bequest of James Smithson, with which the Smithsonian Institution was founded in 1846, but science and history claimed principal attention for many years. The archeological, anthropological and ethnological exhibits that have been gathered are recognized by scientists and historians as being among the finest and most important in the world.

$5,000,000 From Government.

The steady growth of the scientific and historical collections has resulted in the expansion of the Smithsonian group of buildings into four, of which the New National Museum is one. When they were planned, art occupied only an incidental place among the exhibits, and no special provision was made for its preservation.

In recent years, however, the Government, which has a hand in financing the institution, has been given art collections of great value, including works by Titian, Luini, Rubens, Rembrandt, Maes, Gainsborough, Reynolds, Turner, Romney, Raeburn, Hogarth, Constable and other masters. This store of created beauty, already valued at something more than $5,000,000, will be increased by numerous other gifts and bequests, it is said, as soon as the private owners are assured of adequate arrangements for the care and display of such treasures.

Charles L. Freer of Detroit, who recently gave the Government the most extensive single art collection it has received, provided a special gallery for it at a cost of $1,250,000, but it is pointed out that few connoisseurs are able to make such gifts, and many of them are not willing to have their most prized possessions put on display in makeshift quarters.

Present Quarters Overcrowded.

Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, who has charge of the national art collection as well as the scientific exhibits, has emphasized the need for a separate, especially designed building in which to house the former. Not only is the United States the only great nation in the world that has no national art gallery, but the existing buildings have become so crowded that expansion of the historical and scientific as well as the art exhibits is being retarded.

The Government has granted the institution a site on the Mall of the capital for a gallery, but funds have not yet been made available for its construction despite the fact that science and art—as Dr. Walcott puts it—"should both have buildings of special design in which the treasures which are being preserved for posterity could be suitably displayed for study by scientists, artists and historians."

OSTRICH FEATHERS TO FEATURE COURT DRESSES IN ENGLAND

Majority of Styles of Straight, Slender Lines, Most of Them Elaborately Embroidered.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 12.—Debutantes and others, hopeful of being invited to attend the first court of the season at Buckingham Palace within the next few weeks, had a field day at the establishment of one of the famous court dressmakers last week when fashions for court dresses and for gowns for other functions were on view.

Apparently ostrich feathers are considered among the most important adjuncts this year. They were used in fans, on boas as collars and trailing down the skirts. Roses, large and small, also figured prominently in the decorations. A majority of the dresses on show were of straight, slender lines and were of various colors, most of them elaborately embroidered, some of them characterized by Grecian effects and a few by the Tutankhamen style. All maintained the present fashionable low waist line.

The new colors appear to be pale apricot and shot pink. Another is water blue and another crocus mauve. Diamond flowers were prolific and elaborate trimmings were used freely.

The gowns of some of the debutantes had silver and gold bands in tiers on the skirts. One court gown was embroidered with diamond flowers on the corsage and the train was decorated with clusters of pale silver gray ostrich feathers. Another orange satin gown was a glittering mass of jewels, while others were decorated with green, pink and blue pearls, with blue and gold paillettes, and Byzantine embroidery.

Defense of Lord Byron as 100th Anniversary of Death Of Noted Poet Approaches Writer Replies to Attacks by Harriet Beecher Stowe Regarding Domestic Troubles of Famous Man.

Next Saturday (April 19, 1924) will be the 100th anniversary of the death of Lord Byron, proclaimed by Prof. von Treitsenke to have been England's greatest lyric poet and reported by Matthew Arnold to have been "so great and so English that from him alone we shall learn more of the truths of his country and his age than from all the rest put together." Goethe said, when all England had seemingly turned against Byron: "The English may think of Byron what they please, but it is certain that they can show no other poet who is his equal, or who is to be compared to him. He is different from all the rest, and, in the main, greater." In an editorial published by the Missouri Republican on the 100th anniversary of the poet's birth, I find this statement: "What Byron wrote is more read than the writings of any other English poet, with the possible exception of Shakspeare, and every student of the literature of the world recognizes him as one of the world poets. French critics rank him above Goethe. German critics can find no French poets worthy to compare with him. Had he been born in Italy he would have been for the modern Italy what Dante was for the midieval. In England he is incomparably the greatest poetic genius of his century." The writer of the editorial was William Vincent Byars.

The standing of Lord Byron, both the man and the poet, has suffered much as a result of the charges made against him by Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe—charges which, in my opinion, had comparatively little foundation. I thought so then, and I have not changed my mind. The Stowe-Byron controversy was world-wide and very bitter. My participation in it was confined to preparing for a college literary society a paper in the poet's defense, which was some years after (on the centenary of his birth) published anonymously. This article differs materially from the one written in 1871. A few errors have been corrected, other changes made, additional information given and some of the unkind things then said about Mrs. Stowe have been omitted. The mock apothesis to Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe as originally written, without literary merit, has been retained to show the bitterness of the controversy.—The Author.

By W. A. KELSOE.

LORD BYRON.

ON Jan. 2, 1815, Lord Byron, then 27 years old, was married to Miss Anne Isabella Milbanke, a rich and beautiful heiress five years his junior. About a year later Lady Byron left her husband without assigning any reason, and Byron professed ignorance in the matter. To a deed of separation he affixed his signature and soon after he left England, never to return. The affair was wrapped in mystery for more than 50 years.

Lady Byron's charges against her husband were given to the public by Harriet Beecher Stowe in a magazine article in 1869, and this was followed in 1870 by a more detailed account of an interview Mrs. Stowe had had with Lady Byron in 1856. It was at this interview that Mrs. Stowe heard the story published in her "Lady Byron Vindicated."

Mrs. Stowe accuses Lord Byron of having circulated reports defamatory to the character of his wife and says he had a way of enlisting sympathy for himself by making general confessions of sin and at the same time complimenting Lady Byron, thus hoping to be praised for his seeming magnanimity of soul and greatness of heart.

I know of no evidence to support this claim. In the few allusions to Lady Byron in his poems, journals and letters, the only complaint recalled is that she remained silent while by the world he was being accused of a thousand and one crimes. Madame de Stael says that in conversation with her, Lord Byron spoke only in praise of Lady Byron. To Rogers, the poet, Byron wrote: "You, Rogers, are one of the few persons with whom I have lived in what is called intimacy. You have heard me at times conversing on the untoward topic of my recent family disquietudes. Will you have the goodness to say to me at once whether you have heard me speak of her in disrespect, with unkindness, or defending myself at her expense by any serious imputation of any description against her? The reason I put these questions to you and others of my friends is that I am said by her and hers to have resorted to such means of exculpation."

Reconciliation Attempt Fails.

Madame de Stael tried, at Byron's request, to effect a reconciliation, but failed, and in 1819, upon the receipt of a letter from a friend in Paris who, for some reason of his own, thought a reunion might be effected, Byron answered that it was impossible for him to make the first advances. Two years later (1821), in a letter addressed to Lady Byron, which was never received by her, though from no fault of Byron's, he said: "I assure you that I bear you now (whatever you may have done) no resentment whatever. We both made a bitter mistake, but now it is over and irrevocably so, for at 33 on my part and a few years less on yours, though it is no very extended period of life, yet it is one when the habits and thoughts are generally so formed as to admit of no modification, and as we could not agree when younger, we would with difficulty do so now. I considered our reunion as not impossible for more than a year after the separation, but then I gave up the hope entirely and forever."

Mrs. Stowe charges that he intended to make his daughter a future partisan against Lady Byron.

Not a single threat or statement of any kind or any action whatever on the part of Lord Byron is recorded that tended to the accomplishment of such a design, but, on the other hand, he wrote to Lady Blessington: "My message in regard to the child is that in the event of any accident occurring to the mother and my remaining the survivor, it would be my wish to have her plans carried into effect, both with regard to the education of the child and the person or persons under whose care Lady Byron might be desirous that she should be placed."

Col. Wildman, the purchaser of Newstead Abbey, reports that up to the time of Ada's first visit with him to the old homestead, a few months before Byron's death, she had never read a line of her father's poetry or had seen even his portrait more than once or twice. From then until the end of her life she seemed happiest, he says, while pouring over her father's poems and when on the point of death she asked that she might be buried next her illustrious parent, in the village church near Newstead. There, side by side, now sleep the father and daughter, who, separated in life, became united in death.

Ada's Great Love.

In Ada's great love for her father were the words of a stanza in "Childe Harold" (the 117th of the third canto) made prophetic:

Yet though dull hate as duty should be taught,
I know that thou wilt love me;
  though my name
Should be slt from thee, as a spell still fraught
With desolation—and a broken claim;
Though the grave closed between us—'twere the same,
I know that thou wilt love me;
  though to drain
My blood from out thy being were an aim,
And an attainment—all would be in vain—
Still thou wouldst love me, still that more than life retain.

Says one of our countrymen who visited Byron in 1824, two months before his decease "I found the poet in a weak and rather irritable state, but he treated me with the utmost kindness. He said that at the time I first called on him all strangers and most of his friends were excluded from his room, 'but,' said he, 'had I known an American was at the door, you would not have been denied. I love your country, sir. It is the land of liberty, the only portion of God's green earth not desecrated by tyranny.' In a few days after I left him I received a note from him asking me to call and bring with me Irving's 'Sketch Book.' I took it in my hand one morning to the illustrious author's residence. He rose from his couch when I entered and, pressing my hand warmly, said 'Have you brought the 'Sketch Book?' I handed it to him, when, seizing it with enthusiasm, he turned to the 'Broken Heart.' 'That,' said he, 'is one of the finest things ever written upon earth, and I want you, an American, to read it. But stay, do you know Irving?' I replied that I had never seen him. 'God bless him!' exclaimed Byron. 'He is a genius, and he has something better than genius—a heart. I wish I could see him, but I fear I never shall. Well, read the 'Broken Heart'—yes, the 'Broken Heart.' What a word! In closing the first paragraph I said 'Shall I confess it, I believe in broken hearts?' 'Yes,' exclaimed Byron, 'and so do I, and so does everybody except philosophers and fools.' While I was reading one of the most touching portions of that mournful piece I observed that Byron wept. He turned his eyes upon me and said: 'You see me weep, sir. Irving never wrote that piece without weeping, nor can I hear it without tears. I have not wept much in this world, for trouble never brings tears to my eyes but I always have tears for the 'Broken Heart.' Sir, how many such men as Washington Irving are there in America? God doesn't send many such spirits into this world. I want to go to America for five reasons. I want to see Irving. I want to see your stupendous scenery. I want to see Washington's grave. I want to see the classic form of living freedom and I want to get your Government to recognize Greece as an independent nation. Poor Greece!'"

Had Byron no heart? Were these the tears of a hypocrite? Poor Greece! The poet, frail and in poor health, was then in Greece aiding the revolutionists in the fight against their Turkish rulers, a fight for liberty that ended a few years later in the independence of Greece.

Because Byron gave to Thomas Moore, the Irish poet, memoirs which contained an account of his marriage and which were to be published after his decease, Mrs. Stowe says he was not content with slandering his wife while alive, but must transmit his calumnies to others for publication after his death. If that were his purpose would he have offered to show the manuscript to Lady Byron? In a letter to Murray, his publisher, dated Dec. 10, 1819, Byron says: "I sent home for Moore and Moore only (who has my journal also) my memoir written up to 1816, and I gave him leave to show it to whom he pleased, but not to publish on my account. You may read it and you may let Wilson read it if he likes. * * * And I could wish Lady Byron herself to read it, that she may have it in her power to mark anything mistaken or misstated. As it will never appear until after my extinction, it would be but fair that she should see it; that is to say, herself willing.'

Lady Byron was not willing, however, and declined the offer.

Against Mrs. Stowe's statement, on Lady Byron's authority, that Byron signed the deed of separation from fear of disclosures in open court, we have his word that he, through his friend Hobhouse, made a proposition to Lady Byron to go into open court and that his wife then and there expressed a desire for him to sign the document, and this is corroborated by Hobhouse, himself.

At the time of Byron's marriage, society in England, from royalty down, was permeated with vice that would not be tolerated today. Excessive drinking at clubs and at homes was not uncommon and Byron had a very bad reputation. Some clubmen even called him a "rake and a roue," and all London had heard of his ungovernable temper, inherited, it was said, largely from his mother and in part also from his father. His demonstrations of affection and endearment were likely to be followed suddenly by exhibitions of rage and fury, when he was liable to say or do most anything. His spirit of independence led him to lose his self-respect at times and to care little for the respect of others. He exaggerated his own faults to see what effect it would have on his friends. Mrs. Stowe tells of this in her book, quoting from a magazine article by one of those friends: "Byron had one pre-eminent fault, a fault which must be considered as deeply criminal by every one who does not, as I do, believe it to have resulted from monomania. He had a morbid love of a bad reputation. There was hardly an offense of which he would not, with perfect indifference, accuse himself."

Mrs. Stowe cites this as proof that nothing Byron said or was reported to have said against his wife should be believed. To some his alleged admission of guilt when accused by his wife seems to have been due to that same "morbid love of a bad reputation."

Mrs. Leigh (the half sister) denied the accusation against her, and both she and Fletcher, the valet, are reported to have convinced Lady Byron, for the time, that the poet was partially deranged, now and then, and not accountable for what he said and did.

Mrs. Leigh maintained her innocence and Lady Byron must have believed her, although Mrs. Stowe quotes her as saying of Mrs. Leigh: "Poor woman! She was weak relatively to him and wholly under his control. She afterwards repented and became a really good woman." When or where Mrs. Leigh "repented" Mrs. Stowe does not say, but she reports from Lady Byron's letter written after the latter had gone to the home of her parents that "she had left her husband to his sister's care." A little later Lady Byron, in a letter to Mrs. Leigh, wrote: "My dearest Augusta, shall I still be your sister? I must resign my rights to be so considered, but I don't think that will make any difference in the kindness I have so uniformly experienced from you." In a later letter to Augusta she says: "You have been, ever since I knew you, my best comforter." Still later, in September, 1816, several months after the separation, Shelly, the poet, in a letter to Byron wrote that "Lady Byron was living with Mrs. Leigh." It is also of record that when the two were not living together, they were in correspondence and that Lady Byron continued sending her sister-in-law loving letters for 13 years, that is, up to the time of Mrs. Leigh's death.

In speaking of Byron's affection for his sister, Mrs. Stowe writes: "So long as he lived he was her faithful correspondent; he sent her his journals; and, dying, he left her and her children everything he had in the world." That Mrs. Leigh exerted a great influence over her brother will, I think, be conceded. Byron realized it when he wrote: "Augusta wishes that I become reconciled with Carlyle. I have refused this to everybody, but I cannot to my sister." The pocket edition of the Bible she gave him upon his leaving England Byron prized above all other things, not because it was a Bible, but because it was his sister's last token of her love and affection for him. Byron said of her: "There is not a more angelic being on earth." To her were these beautiful lines addressed:

> My sister! My sweet sister! If a name
> Dearer and purer were, it should be thine.
> Mountains and seas divide us, but I claim
> No tears, but tenderness to answer mine:
> Go where I will, to me thou art the same—
> A loved regret which I would not resign.
> There yet are two things in my destiny—
> A world to roam through and a home with thee.

We have no good reason for thinking Mrs. Leigh ever lived in fear of her brother or that she was under his control. As to other charges against Byron, I contend that he would not have been willing, whether he said so or not, for Lady Byron to have "her lovers," and that he could not have been induced, when in his right mind, to make a confession to her that would implicate another. Was Byron a man to so disgrace a friend, especially a sister, the only sister he had? He was not. His whole life proved the contrary.

The story published by Mrs. Stowe is all we have to establish her case against Lord Byron. There may have been rumors in the clubhouse and among gossiping women, but nothing more. In the life-long correspondence between Byron and his sister not a hint is given that such a connection ever existed. From not a single one of the many private letters that passed between Mrs. Leigh, the sister, and Lady Byron, the wife, could we ever suspect it. Byron wrote to Murray three years after the separation as to the cause of it: "No man can desire a public investigation of that affair more than I do." Sir Ralph Milbanke, the father of Lady Byron, signed a statement to the effect that his daughter had no charge of moral delinquency to bring against Byron; Byron himself declared repeatedly that he did not know the reason his wife had left him. He told the Countess Guiccioli that his married fidelity was perfect. His sister at that period was both a married woman and a mother.

A large part of Mrs. Stowe's book is devoted to praise of Lady Byron. The splendid eulogies of her published by Harriet Martineau, the gifted English writer, and Thomas Campbell, the poet, are given, as are many others, including what Byron, himself, said of this exemplary woman after his first offer of marriage had been refused. "She is a very superior woman," wrote the rejected suitor, "and very little spoiled; which is strange in an heiress, a girl of 20, a peeress, that is to be, in her own right, an only child and a savante, who has always had her own way. She is a poetess, a mathematician, a metaphysician; yet, withal, very kind, generous and gentle, with very little pretension. Any other head would be turned with half her acquisitions and a tenth of her advantages."

DEFENSE OF LORD BYRON ON 100TH ANNIVERSARY OF DEATH

But Mrs. Stowe is not content with praising the injured wife in this case. She would have us believe that Byron was an arch-fiend, the incarnation of immorality in its worst form, the chief representative of the devil, himself, on this mundane sphere.

Mrs. Stowe says the "revelation" was made to her in 1856. Lady Byron died in 1860. Now, why did Mrs. Stowe wait till 1869 before giving the story to the public? The reason is obvious. Byron, together with his sister, and Murray and Fletcher and other close friends, had died, but the one ablest to defend him in a case of this kind was still living and Mrs. Stowe did not dare to publish her charges until he, too, had passed away. Cam Hobhouse, or, as he is now known in history, Lord Broughton, the early friend and schoolmate of Byron, who was with him in all of his travels, who witnessed his marriage ceremony with Miss Milbanke and who was the executor of his last will and testament, died in 1868, thus severing the last tie that bound the latter half of the nineteenth century with Byron's private life in England.

Hobhouse is dead, and immediately Mrs. Stowe, international champion of justice, liberty and morality, steps forward to re-open, with new evidence, the case of Byron versus Byron.

O, preter-pious Htatie Beecher Stowe,
Angelic creature of the female kind,
High chief o'er all the angels here below,
Divinest woman of the purest mind;
O, rarest gem of chastity, and, O,
Thou spotless lamb of purity, mankind
Will never cease to worship thee; no, not Until the name of Washington's forgot.

Says Steel: "In all the unhappy marriages I have seen the great cause of evil has proceeded from slight occasions." In this case there was little hope for a happy married life. Neither party to the contract had married for love—one, from vanity; the other, for fortune. They were an ill-mated couple. Lady Byron was a highly moral, methodical, inflexible woman who did everything by rule. Byron was quite the opposite. They differed not alone in their morals, but also in their ways of living, in their religious opinions and on social and domestic matters. Lady Byron is said to have been extremely jealous, watching her husband's every movement, which must have been very annoying to him. She was made to believe that Byron had married her out of spite, because he had been refused by another lady to whom he had proposed. Lady Noel, her mother, and Mrs. Clermont, a companion, were continually running to her with long accounts of the wickedness and inconstancy of her husband, all of which tended to widen the breach.

We know that Byron had his faults, and many of them, too, but we also know that never was man, woman or child more grossly misrepresented than he has been by Mrs. Stowe. That Byron had a heart and a conscience was evident to all who knew him. That he was brave, amiable and openhearted is equally true, while his generosity knew no bounds. When his income was only £4000 a year, he gave £1000 to the cause of charity. When Byron was on the eve of leaving Ravenna, for another place of residence in Italy the poor of the city petitioned the Cardinal to request the poet to remain. It has been reported of Byron that he came to the assistance of Moore, Coleridge and Leigh Hunt, when they were in need of funds and for the cause of Grecian liberty he gave not only his every dollar of ready money, amounting to more than $40,000, but also his life.

Says Moore in speaking of Byron: "Through life, with all his faults, he never lost a friend; those about him in his youth, whether as companions, teachers or servants, remained attached to him to the last; the woman to whom he gave the love of his maturer years idolizes his name; and with a single unhappy exception, scarce an instance is to be found of any one, once brought, however briefly, into relations of amity with him, that did not feel towards him a kind regard in life and retain a fondness for his memory."

The pyramid at Harrow erected to Byron's memory and his grave near Newstead are visited by thousands every year, as is also the monument at Cambridge, which occupies the place of honor. Byron has been long dead. Whate'er his faults, his virtues were not few. Freed from the cares and sorrows of this earth, he is now quietly and peacefully sleeping, preparatory to a life in another and, let us hope, a brighter, better and happier world.

"Sweet child of song, thou sleepest—ne'er again
Shall swell the notes of thy melodious strain;
Yet, with thy country wailing o'er thy urn
Pallas, The Muse, Mars, Greece and Freedom mourn."

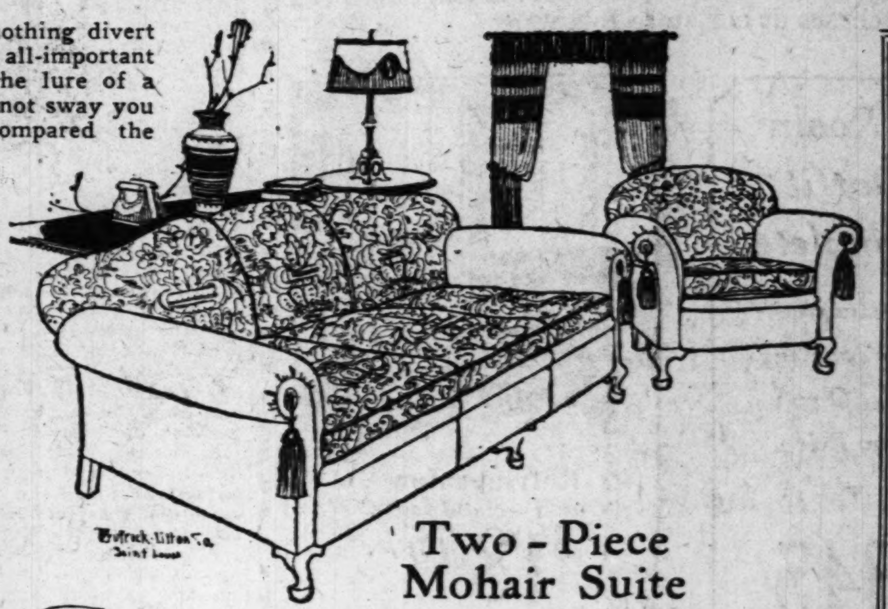
The Last Week of Our Spring Sale
Sample Suites Drastically Reduced

In buying Furniture, let nothing divert your thoughts from the all-important question of quality. The lure of a seeming bargain should not sway you until you have carefully compared the quality.

You can seldom buy Furniture at a low price without a sacrifice of quality, and any price you pay for cheap, poorly made Furniture is high.

Every year in our Annual Sale of Sample Suites you have an opportunity to buy Furniture of Prufrock-Litton impeccable quality at the cost of the commonplace. Because there are only one or two of a kind in most cases, and because many Suites are discontinued patterns, or slightly shopworn, we have marked these Suites at prices that merit immediate purchase. And this is the last week of the sale!



Two-Piece Mohair Suite

Solid comfort and attractive design combine with Prufrock-Litton superior workmanship to distinguish this Suite. The wide 80-inch davenport and roomy armchair have loose spring-cushion seats and soft roll arms. Well made throughout in our own factory.

Each piece is covered in $11 per yard elegant taupe mohair and has solid walnut legs and heavy silk tassels on all arms. Two pieces, formerly priced at $282, now reduced to $206

Just a few Suites at this price. Other values in Living-Room Suites in a great variety of styles and prices.

=Editorial=
Are You One?
Have you ever stopped to think what a splendid accomplishment it is to be a good listener?
Many a glib tongue has wagged its way into its objective only to wag its way OUT by continuance.
There's a time and a place for everything, and rare judgment possesses he who knows WHAT TO SAY and WHEN TO SAY IT.
Orators are few; talkers plentiful.
Arguments are not always conclusive, but ofttimes create enemies.
Think twice before you speak, then weigh well your words.
Shakespeare said: "Lend every man thine ear, but few thy voice." Much can be learned by listening!

HUDSON AND ESSEX LEAD IN DETROIT

"As Kentuckians know horses Detroiters know motor cars. Nearly a quarter million workers are engaged every day in making them. That is why it is so significent that Hudson-Essex since the bringing out of the Essex Six, has become the largest selling line of six-cylinder cars in that city," said R. C. Frampton, president of the Hudson-Frampton company, Hudson-Essex distributers here.

"For the first three months of 1924, in fact, the new Essex and the Super-Six have been bought by more Detroiters," he continued, "than any other makes except the two lowest-priced fours. These figures are from official registrations.

"That is important because it represents the verdict of experts—men who build cars and know what goes in them. In our city here we know the ins and outs of our own business. Our gossip is about how this or that concern is doing. Similarly, in Detroit nearly everyone knows almost immediately whether this car or that is a successs, or whether it has failed to fulfil the expectationes held out for it. You can see for yourself that it takes a car that is fundamentally right to get by. And in Detroit, Essex has gone across big."

GARDNER BLIZZARD BEING SHOWN HERE

The Gardner "Blizzard," the stock sedan that E. G. "Cannonball" Baker drove from New York to Los Angeles in midwinter, is being shown this week in the salesroom of the Mound City Auto Co. It arrived there Friday evening and will be on display until next Thursday evening when it will be shipped to Cleveland. Large crowds are viewing it. The Mound City Auto Co. is the sixth distributer for Gardner cars which has been allowed the honor of displaying the "Blizzard," the other five having been the distributers at Los Angeles, San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Denver and Kansas City. Each has had the car on view for about a week.

TIRE ASSOCIATION ELECTS OFFICERS

A. P .Woehrle of Beverly Rubber Co. Is President—Charlins, Schollmeyer and Quinn Elected.

The first annual election of the newly-formed Tire Dealers' Association of St. Louis was held at Hotel Claridge, Thursday evening, April 10. A. P. Woehrle of the Beverly Rubber Co. was elected president; Sam L. Charlins of the State Tire Co. was elected vice president; H. F. Schollmeyer of the Valley Motor Co., secretary; C. V. Quinn of the Reid-Quinn Tire Co., treasurer, and Joseph Roberts of Roberts-Hallle Tire Co., sergeant-at-arms.

Directors elected included: Arthur Goenther of Flynn-Goenther Tire Co.; Joseph W. Kuemmerle of the B and K. Tire Co.; T. C. Setzer of Buckley, Parnell & Setzer; Thomas F. Carpenter of the Carpenter Tire Co., and O. R. Raith of O. R. Raith Tire Co. Forty-three Class A members voted. There are now 55 members in the association.

A quartette, composed of A. N. Stanley of the Fisk Rubber Co., Thomas Hayes of the Racine Rubber Co., W. G. Sabine of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. and A. J. Sears of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. entertained during the meeting with songs.

The feature speaker of the evening was George A. Waddle, manager of the Dealer Relations Department of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. of Akron, O. Waddle discussed tire dealers associations and the tire dealers' business methods.

Hoevel With Lambert-Graves.

C. W. Hoevel, well known on automobile row, is now connected with the selling force of the Lambert-Graves Motor Co., Inc. Hoevel, at one time, was distributer for Indiana trucks.

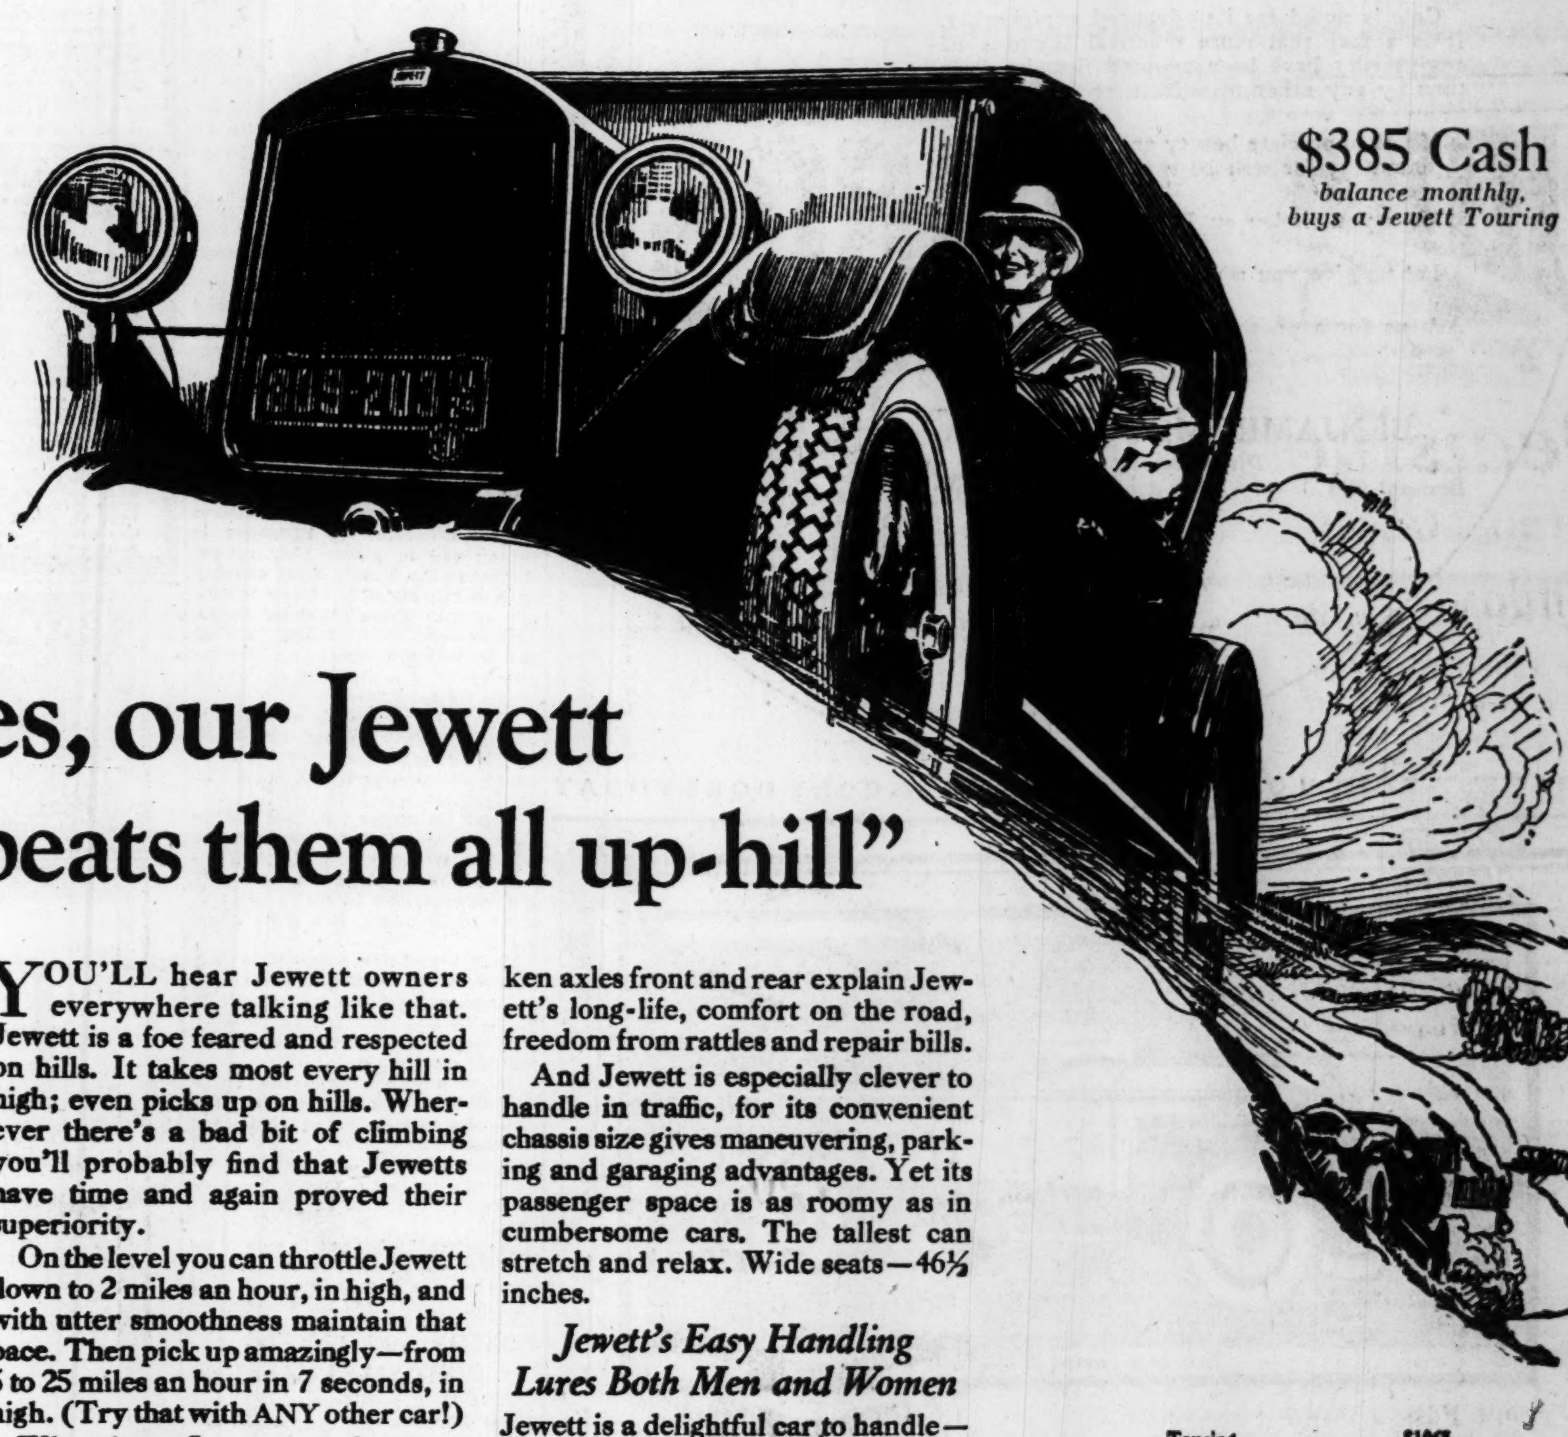
IN ALL THE WORLD NO CAR LIKE THIS



$385 Cash
balance monthly, buys a Jewett Touring

"Yes, our Jewett beats them all up-hill"

YOU'LL hear Jewett owners everywhere talking like that. Jewett is a foe feared and respected on hills. It takes most every hill in high; even picks up on hills. Wherever there's a bad bit of climbing you'll probably find that Jewetts have time and again proved their superiority.

On the level you can throttle Jewett down to 2 miles an hour, in high, and with utter smoothness maintain that pace. Then pick up amazingly—from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 7 seconds, in high. (Try that with ANY other car!)

Why does Jewett perform so sweetly? Most power for weight. Power for weight determines performance. Jewett has a cubic inch of motor displacement for every 11¼ pounds of weight. Compare that with "light" sixes. In them each cubic inch of motor displacement must pull 13.4 pounds, or 14.2, or 12.8, or 17.6. Obviously not one could have Jewett's performance.

Jewett is a Sturdy Six Not a "Light" Six

And Jewett is not a "light" six. It weighs 2805 pounds—200 to 400 pounds more than "light" sixes. Jewett's weight accounts for its strength and sturdiness. 6-inch-deep frame; all-steel universal joints; Paige-Timken axles front and rear explain Jewett's long-life, comfort on the road, freedom from rattles and repair bills.

And Jewett is especially clever to handle in traffic, for its convenient chassis size gives maneuvering, parking and garaging advantages. Yet its passenger space is as roomy as in cumbersome cars. The tallest can stretch and relax. Wide seats—46½ inches.

Jewett's Easy Handling Lures Both Men and Women

Jewett is a delightful car to handle—loved by women, appreciated by men. It steers with touch guidance. Its flexible power makes gear changing rare. You drive from 2 to 60 miles an hour, or more, in high. You can even shift from high to second at 30 miles an hour—quietly! Paige-type clutch is gentle; transmission all but noiseless.

"In all the world no car like this!" It's true. Jewett combines qualities and advantages as no other car does. And Jewett, so fine in comfort, convenience, sturdiness and performance, costs only $1065. Cars approaching it cost hundreds to thousands more and are bulky to handle. You should drive Jewett—yourself—and experience the thrill of big six performance. Note our number now!

COLE

Even the man who never drove a motor car knows that the Cole is a beautiful car. It is the kind of a car which causes people to turn around and follow it with their eyes.

But one must actually drive a Cole to realize that it is also one of the lowest cost fine cars to purchase, operate and maintain.

Cole is noted for its advanced engineering. It is a fact that more practical features of engineering have been adopted first by Cole than by any other manufacturer of fine cars.

If you appreciate beauty and value economy —your next car will be a Cole.

CHIEF ENGINEER BECOMES A TESTER

G. Clark Mather of Paige-Detroit Co. Checks Factory Methods Regularly With Long Trip.

DETROIT, Mich., April 12.—The chief engineer who is both designer and tester, is an unusual figure in the automobile world. One of these few is G. Clark Mather, of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co., who checks up on the factory production methods every two or three weeks with an extraordinarily severe test.

At this time, he steps into the final inspection department and is given a brand-new car on which the final tester's O. K., printed in ink on the yellow carrier tag, has hardly dried.

If the new car knew what it was in for, it would possibly balk. Not knowing, it is driven from Detroit to Philadelphia and return at a relentless speed—on a drive chosen by Mather as one which will place the greatest possible strain on every unit of the new Paige.

The distance to Philadelphia is about 725 miles via Uniontown. The first leg of the trip from Detroit to Cleveland is a flat, smooth stretch. This is the kind of roadway found in the majority of places in which the automobilist drives today. Cleveland to Pittsburg is rolling and in places very rough, similar to the Middle West country or foot-hill districts of any mountain range. From Pittsburg to the Susquehanna River Valley are as bad mountain grades as will be encountered by a motorist anywhere in the United States.

The last 75 miles into Philadelphia is a level stretch on which speed possibilities may be tried out —provided Pennsylvania State Police are not watching you.

Chief Engineer Mather states that any make of automobile that will stand the "rawhiding," Detroit to Philadelphia, which a driver is forced to give to make the trip in 20 to 23 hours, is a good automobile.

"Any brand-new automobile that will stand the 'gaff' of that trip and not give somewhere before the day is up and Philadelphia reached is close onto a perfect machine," Mather claims.

He is known around the Paige factory as a hard driver. On the route he usually takes, there are six mountain climbs and an equal number of down-grades that require the utmost a motor can give as well as the best of braking facilities.

However, he has yet to smash up a Paige so badly that it wouldn't complete the journey from Detroit to Philadelphia and back again.

POXSON APPOINTED DORT SALES MANAGER

J. D. Dort, president of the Dort Motor Car Co., has announced the appointment of E. G. Poxson as sales manager, succeeding John D. Mansfield, who has resigned to take a highly responsible position as factory executive with the Maxwell-Chrysler organization. Both these men have been prominent figures in the automobile industry for several years.

Poxson, who now takes over the duties of sales manager for the Dort Motor Car Co., has been an important factor in the Dort organization for the past six years in the position of assistant sales manager. He has an unusually wide acquaintance among dealers and distributors throughout the country and is generally recognized as one of the leading sales executives in the automobile business.

COLE EXPORTS CARS TO MANY COUNTRIES

An unusual activity in the export business of the Cole motor car is reported by J. J. Cole, president and general manager of this Indiana company. During the week ending April 5, shipments were made to Athens, Greece; Montevido, Uruguay; Vigo, Spain; Republic of Salvador in Central America; Port Madeira and Hamburg, Germany. All of the shipments except Hamburg, Germany, were for Cole dealers at foreign points who have been customers of the Cole Motor Car Co. for several years.

The shipment to Hamburg, Germany, is for Paul Surenbrock & Co. Two cars were shipped, and will be the first demonstrators of the new Cole line to go into Germany since the war.

The export department, under the supervision of Pablo Homs at 44 Whitehall, New York City, says that April shipments are 50 per cent larger than the same month last year.

BALLOON TIRES ON ALL GARDNER MODELS

Balloon tires and complete balloon equipment are now offered as optional equipment at extra cost on all Gardner models shipped from the factory. The equipment, which is supplied in only one way, consists of five full balloon type tires, four 21-inch Tuarc offset steel wheels, Ross stearing gear, 18-inch Sheeler steering wheel and spare tire cover.

"It will be impossible to make any variations from the above line-up," said Fred W. Gardner, vice president in charge of production. "For example, balloon tires will not be supplied on wood wheels, and all closed cars ordered with balloon tires will take the same 18-inch steering wheel as the open models."

LINCOLN

NOTABLE FOR ITS TOURING COMFORT

THE remarkable riding ease of the Lincoln over all roads makes it the preferred car for cross-country touring.

Exclusive engineering features of the chassis, roomy staunchness of Lincoln open body types, exacting care devoted to the selection of materials, and unusual precision of workmanship in every part build comfort into this car—such comfort, in fact, that you ride all day without fatigue, and heartily enjoy every mile of your tour.

"EUROPE IMPROVED" SAYS MOON PRESIDENT

Stewart McDonald, president of the Moon Motor Car Co. of St. Louis, who has just returned from a six weeks' business trip to Europe, says business in European countries shows definite improvement.

"In France everyone is busy," he stated. "England is in the throes of labor difficulties, though the reaction to the tram and bus strikes indicates the country is fed up on labor's continued demands. The atmosphere is clearing there.

"American cars are selling freely in Spain, Great Britain and the Scandinavian countries, in which nations the Moon car has enjoyed a good trade for some years."

On this trip abroad Mr. McDonald closed new connections in the occupied German territory. The German distributor has purchased 200 cars, 42 of which are now being boxed for shipment. Moon Motor Car's export business has been expanding steadily, about 10 per cent of its production being sold in foreign countries.

STEWART-WARNER TO ADD TO QUARTERS

D. L. Hyland, manager for the Stewart-Warner company here, announces the signing of a five-year lease on the building at 3208-10 Locust boulevard, next store to the company's present quarters. The new building has a frontage of 25 feet on Locust, and is 125 feet deep.

The Stewart-Warner company will retain its present location and use it as a bumper and speedometer shop and for service. In the new building it is planned to arrange the main office in front, with a stock department in the rear. Space will be arranged for display and reception purposes.

LINCOLN DEALERS HAVE PETIT SALON

In Co-operation With Factory Branch, Dealers Show Models at Hotel Chase to Good Crowds.

St. Louis admirers of fine cars crowded the ballroom at Hotel Chase, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week to attend the Lincoln Petit Salon. The exhibition was given by the Lincoln dealers of St. Louis in co-operation with the Ford Motor Co. factory branch here. Careful attention to details of arrangement and surroundings made the Lincoln Petit Salon one of the most memorable exhibits of fine cars in the city's history.

Music by an orchestra, fountains that breathed black narcissus perfume, attendants in livery, rugs on the ballroom floor added to the pleasures of seeing the Lincoln cars.

Among the Lincoln models exhibited were the following: Five-passenger coupe finished in cobalt blue, with velour upholstery and tilting seat; two-passenger coupe with cobalt blue finish Judkins body; five-passenger phaeton finished in Lincoln gray and trimmed in brewster green; seven-passenger Fleetwood built body, inside drive limousine; four-passenger Judkins built body, cobalt-blue finish sedan; two-passenger Lincoln gray finish roadster; five-passenger sedan; seven-passenger touring; four-passenger sedan and four-passenger berline.

The first show chassis Lincoln ever turned out was on exhibition in the center of the ballroom.

There was also a cut-out motor show and an exhibition of Johansson guages. These guages were especially interesting to those who attended the salon.

In one set of 11 gauges, each block in the set was one-millionth of an inch larger than the preceding one.

The blocks were so sensitive to heat that only at 68 degrees Fahrenheit they register correctly to the millionth of an inch. Even at that temperature they are handled with tweezers, for if picked up by hand the heat from the fingers would expand them out of true measurement. The set was brought here for special showing and is insured for $20,000.

"BALLOON TIRES" BROUGHT PROBLEMS

Goodyear Vice President Tells of Difficulties in Designing Balloon Tires for Present Cars.

"Quite the severest problem put up to tire designers in recent years was that of designing a balloon tire that would fit present cars," says P. W. Litchfield, first vice president and factory manager, the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.

"The successful solution of the various phases of this problem and the development of a tire that would give the advantages of low pressure driving and still be adapted to the intricate mechanism of the automobile was a real achievement.

"I am convinced that the low-pressure or balloon tire, because of its easy-riding qualities and its greater protection to the mechanism of the car and consequent lengthening of the life of the car, will, within a very few years, dominate the tire industy and drive out the high-pressure tire, as surely as the cord tire drove out the old-fashioned fabric.

"However, 99 out of 100 of the 14,000,000 cars and trucks now running were built for high-pressure tires.

"Thousands of owners wanted low-pressure tires, but hesitated to go to the expense of scrapping their old wheels and rims. So the first problem of the tire designers was to build a tire that would fit present wheel equipment without expensive change-over.

"Along with this came the requirement that these interchangeable tires should have adequate fender and body clearance and should be adapted to present gear ratios.

"Each of these problems has been solved, we believe, in the Goodyear interchangeable balloon tire which is now available for every types of present automobile.

"How successfully the designers have reached the goal on low pressure may be seen by taking a typical popular size, 32x4, for which the 33x4.95 interchangeable substitutes on such makes of cars as Buick, Dodge, Studebaker, Chandler, Rickenbacker, Willys-Knight, Hupp, Velie and others.

The inflation comparison follows:

"32x4 (regular) should carry 35 pounds pressure.

"33x4.95 (interchangeable) should carry 36 pounds pressure.

"31x5.25 (balloon) should carry 32 pounds pressure.

"These pressures are figured for a normal load.

TRANSMISSION GOES 167 HOURS IN SECOND

Eighteen miles an hour in second gear for 167 hours without a stop, up a continuous "grade" that would represent approximately a run from New York City to a point 420 miles into the clouds above San Francisco. This is the record of a test of transmission gears just completed by the Packard Motor Car Co.

The transmission attached to a Packard eight motor was run on a dynamometer in the company's laboratories day and night for the period of the test. A heavy load was put on the machine to give the equivalent of an unbroken and heavy grade. The load was such that the motor had to be run on full throttle for the duration of the test, a fact that made what engineers asserted was a most unusually severe test for an automobile motor.

At the end of the test it was found that none of the terrific strain apparently had been felt by the motor or the gears.

EXCEPTIONAL RIDING COMFORT

Owners continue to comment on the marked riding comfort of Dodge Brothers Motor Car.

Increased chassis length, low-swung body and generous seat depth have much to do with this.

Primarily, however, it must be accredited to the greater buoyancy of the new spring equipment. The rear springs are ten inches longer, and underslung.

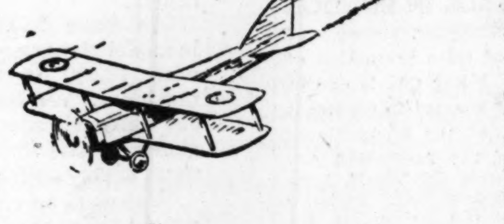
Chrysler

From Capt. E. D. C. Herne, a man well qualified to speak regarding internal combustion engines, comes the accompanying enthusiastic letter about the Chrysler Six.

Capt. Herne, who has been associated with the automotive industry since its inception, is perhaps best known in America as the aviator who writes in the sky. His daring and skill in the air are well known throughout England and the Continent. He flew, of course, with the British air force during the war, and has since been continuously occupied in aviation and its development.



Walter P. Chrysler, Esq.
New York City.
Dear Mr. Chrysler:

After twenty years' experience with motor cars of all nationalities, during five of which I served my apprenticeship in the largest automobile factory in Europe; after many years flying on all types of aeroplanes in various parts of the world, before, during and since the War, it takes something very unusual in the way of internal combustion engines to arouse even the slightest degree of enthusiasm; so I am sure that you will pardon a complete stranger taking the liberty of addressing to you a few appreciative remarks concerning the Chrysler Car.

I happened to be strolling through the Commodore lounge yesterday afternoon, and noticing a crowd gathered around something, went to investigate. The attraction proved to be your chassis; and an immediately noticeable "cleanliness" of design caused me to look a little more closely, when I was surprised to see a certain very efficient type of cylinder head—which I had thought existed only in England—incorporated in your motor. I was now really interested, examined the chassis in détail and became more agreeably surprised every moment.

I had never before seen an engine of that piston displacement with a seven-bearing crankshaft; the water jacketing around the cylinders and valves was admirably carried out; the exhaust and inlet manifold arrangement were excellent; and all the accessories, such as generator, carburetor, ignition distributor, oil and air filters, etc., seemed extraordinarly well placed; and one certainly could not help being struck by the absence of all "annoyances" in the chassis, such as brake and torque rods, which, in the average car are never greased and are inclined to breed rattles. By this time one of your salesman began volunteering some startling information, the outstanding feature of which was the fact that the car would do seventy-five miles per hour.

Well, Mr. Chrysler, I know and you know what that means for an engine of two hundred one cubic inches displacement. Wind resistance has the unfortunate habit of increasing as the square of the speed, and seventy-five miles per hour with a touring car with the top and wind-screen up, means perfect balance of the motor and chassis as a whole, and it means power, with a capital P. Of course, I didn't believe him and told him so and he insisted that it would be only fair to him if I drove the car.

I drove it for an hour this morning, and all I can say is that it is astounding in every way.

It took Fort George Hill from a standing start in high gear with five passengers without a murmur and finished up at well over twenty-five miles per hour.

It then went up in second speed with the same load at a comfortable forty—riding magnificently over the cobblestones.

On the level it did approximately seventy-seven miles per hour—the speedometer only read to seventy-five and it was hard up against the needle for some time—whilst in second speed forty-seven miles per hour was obtained, all without the slightest vestige of vibration.

At over seventy I jammed the foot brake down hard, with my hands off the wheel, and the car stopped in an incredibly short space, without deviating an inch from its course, whilst, with the brakes hard on with full throttle, the car could be steered from one side of the road to the other with one finger.

At no time during this ride, of over an hour, did the thermometer on the dashboard register more than ninety-five degrees Fahrenheit and after coming down Fort George Hill several times to try the brakes, one could bear one's hand on them and they were all the same temperature.

The reason I am writing to you at such length is because I like motor cars and appreciate something out of the ordinary when I see it; and I really must congratulate you, Mr. Chrysler, and your designing staff on producing the finest car I have had the pleasure of driving during the past five years, regardless of price. As for that roadster of yours—it's more than an automobile—it's a work of art.

Yours faithfully,
E. D. C. Herne / Capt.

The New Hupmobile

Bearings: At 15 points throughout the Hupmobile chassis—points at which shock is greatest, and wear is heavy—ball and roller bearings are used. All these roller, taper and annular bearings are made of chrome nickel steel, in place of simply case-hardened bearings which cheaper construction calls for at the same points.

Facts You Should Know

Hupmobile Quality-Proof Arms You With Them

Hupmobile Quality-Proof, in the shape of a parts display which contrasts Hupmobile construction with ordinary construction, will tell you plain facts about the things that make a motor car stand up.

It will tell you more than we can ever say about economy and long life, about wonderful performance and stick-on-the-job ability, about whole-hearted satisfaction.

But even all that is not enough for us. We want every man who puts his good money into the Hupmobile to do so with his eyes open. So we bring the inside of the car out into the daylight, where he can see it before he buys. We want him to know that he can't buy higher value no matter how much he might be willing to pay.

We want him to see how much more he gets than the same price can buy elsewhere.

So come in—see the Parts Display—and learn real facts about motor car construction.

WHY WOMEN FAVOR CLOSED MOTOR CARS

Coach or Similar Type Ideal for All-Weather Driving—Comfortable All the Time.

"Out of my house I get into the closed motor and away I whiz and arrive at the party as trim and neat as when I left the mirror." This might be the way any woman motorist would put it.

"A closed car and self-confidence have become synonymous," she might continue.

"Give me the closed car every time—say a Hudson or Essex coach.

"Supposing I long for a ride through the country to breathe fresh air and feel the balmy wind. Do I need an open car? I do not. In two minutes I can put down all the windows and even open the windshield, if I prefer, and get all the breeze.

"One time I was out on just such a spin. It was an early spring day and the freshness of everything had a way of vanquishing the petty troubles and cares. I was quite some distance from the city, but on a rather frequented road. Without warning a dark cloud appeared, distant thunder rumbled, a few drops of rain fell and then a regular cloudburst. Of course you think my day was ruined. Well, my dear, when those first few drops fell I stopped the car, began putting up windows, and will you believe that I was tucked safely in my closed car and continuing with my drive before that cloudburst came?

"Now can't you just imagine what a fix I would have been in with an open car? Getting out all those curtains, fitting them up—oh it makes me tired to think of it. Undoubtedly I'd have been drenched by the time the curtains were up.

"Some of my friends who had not yet come to the idea that a closed car is best for every kind of weather and for every occasion often have asked me if the closed car weren't beastly warm in summer. In answer I've invited them to come for a spin on the hottest day of the year and compare the comfort or discomfort, as the case might be, with their open cars. When they consented my case was won.

"To use the vernacular, the enclosed car has it all over the open car in summer—and always.

"But speaking of summer. Do you know that in the open car I had it was nothing unusual for me to return from a ride on a summer's day with my face quite sunburned. And my nose was horribly red, which no powder ever hides.

"A great many of the open-car fans are under the impression that to get fresh air in a closed car you have to sit in a draft. That's perfectly ridiculous. All I do is to open the windows on one side and close them on the other side, and common sense will tell you there couldn't be a draft then.

"When going to an affair where I desire to be particularly neat in my appearance I always open the windows on the right, and the breeze never touches my hair.

"Here is another point strongly in favor of the enclosed car, I think. Mothers who drive their own motors need never fear putting the children in the back seats, for the kiddies simply cannot fall out with the rear windows closed. It's dangerous, too, to have the children in the back while driving, because turning around frequently to look after them might cause a collision with another automobile. The purchase of a closed car has been one of the greatest pleasures and comforts in my life."

RICKENBACKER CHIEF TO TALK IN LONDON

E. Le Roy Pelletier, manager of advertising and sales promotion of Rickenbacker Motor Co., is one of six Americans selected to represent this country at the international convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, London, England, next July. Pelletier will represent the Newspaper Division and his address will be: "The Successful Use of Newspapers in Developing the Automobile Industry."

Having been one of the first advertising men to use large space in daily newspapers throughout the country and hooking them up so as to constitute a national campaign; having been from the first an ardent champion of the daily and a consistent user of this medium, he was the unanimous choice of the committee to represent this division.

MORGAN MANAGING CLEVELAND SALES

R. M. B. Tidd, president of the Cleveland Motor Sales Co., distributers in the St. Louis territory for the Cleveland Six, has announced the appointment of Harry B. Morgan as retail sales manager. For the past seven years Morgan has been selling General Motors cars in this city. He is well known on automobile row and is rapidly rounding out a staff of salesmen for the Cleveland concern.

In addition to the appointment of Morgan, the Cleveland Motor Sales Co. are ready to announce the addition of three country dealers to those handling the line. They are W. A. Perrine Motor Co. of Herrin, Ill.; the Bradley-Cleveland Motor Co. of Carbondale, Ill., and Reese & Page of Roodhouse, Ill.

SEIGFREID-O'CONNOR JOIN HUDSON-FRAMPTON

A. B. Seigfreid and William O'Connor have joined the sales force of the Hudson-Frampton company. Seigfreid is a well-known former college and professional football player. He played, in his university days, both at Missouri and at Washington and Jefferson and is well remembered here as a star by the alumni of both schools. Last year he was a member of the backfield of the St. Louis professional league football eleven. Until joining the forces of Hudson-Frampton he was in the advertising business, both in the production and selling ends.

O'Connor, the other new Hudson-Frampton salesman, is well-known on St. Louis Auto Row. While he has never sold cars in this city, he has been a member of the organization of prominent automobile firms here. He has just returned from the West where he was selling Hudson and Essex, and immediately upon his coming back was invited to become a member of the Hudson-Frampton sales force.

A Perfect Paint Job

Made Possible by Use of Newest

DUCO METHOD

Used for high-class, guaranteed finishing of automobiles in one-half the time formerly required under old methods.

This method has a durability beyond the now old-fashioned coach painting; it is imprevious to sun, rain, snow, greese or dust and is much less marred by scratches.

The smooth, satin-like surface, whose soft luster actually improves with age, will not stain, is extremely easy to clean.

On This Light-Six Touring Car

By our matchless facilities—our enormous production

HERE is a car priced at $1,045. Built by ordinary methods it would cost you from $200 to $400 more.

It is in scores of ways the leader of its class. No rival car compares in the value that it offers.

Let us tell you how we give that value, then urge you to see this car.

A sensation

Studebaker is today the world's largest builder of quality cars. Studebaker success is the sensation of Motordom.

Sales have almost trebled in three years. Last year, 145,167 people paid $201,000,000 for Studebaker cars.

There are tremendous reasons for this rush to Studebaker cars. And every man who buys a car should know them.

72-year traditions

The Studebaker name has for 72 years stood for quality and class. To build an ordinary car under that name is unthinkable.

Our assets are $90,000,000—all at stake on serving you better than all others.

We have $50,000,000 in model plants, equipped with 12,500 up-to-date machines. We have 23,000 workers, under profit-sharing plans which lead them to stay and develop.

We spend on engineering $500,000 yearly. We employ 1,200 men to give 32,000 inspections to each Studebaker car in the making.

We are lavish

We are lavish in things that count.

We pay 15% bonus on some steels to get them exactly right. We use genuine leather in our cushions. We use curled hair.

We use more Timken bearings in this Light-Six than any competitive car within $1,500 of its price.

Our bodies are beautiful creations. The finish and coach work show the final touch. But we build them in $10,000,000 body plants of our own, and pay for these extras in savings.

We machine all surfaces of our crankshafts and connecting rods, as was done in the Liberty Airplane motors. No other maker of cars at our prices does this. The result is that perfect motor balance, lack of vibration and long life.

Where we save

We save by enormous production—150,000 cars per year. Our major costs are all divided by that enormous output. It is utterly impossible for smaller makers to compete.

We save by modern plants, mostly built in the past five years. We save by up-to-date machines. By building our own parts and bodies.

See what this car offers

Come see what this Light-Six offers. How it excels in scores of ways any rival car.

Built with the same steels, the same care and skill, as the costliest of our cars. We have only one grade of chassis.

See its beauty, its comfort, its luxury. See how we have studied your every desire.

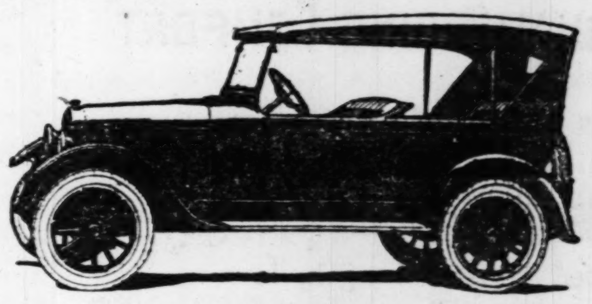
Do that and you will choose this car, if you have in mind a price anywhere near this.

Send for the book

Mail us the coupon below. We will send you free our new book that will inform you on five simple things which reveal the value of a car. For instance—

It will enable you to look at any car and tell whether it's been cheapened to meet a price or offers true quality.

It will tell you why some cars rattle at 20,000 miles and others don't. It shows one single point in a closed car which measures whether you're getting top or medium quality. The book is free. Clip the coupon below.



Studebaker Light-Six Touring Car—$1,045

Same steels as we use in the costliest cars we build. More Timken bearings than in any competitive car within $1,500 of this price.

Genuine leather cushions, ten inches deep. Curled hair filling. All-steel body.

One-piece, rain-proof windshield. Attractive cowl lights. Standard non-skid cord tires.

Transmission and ignition locks. Perfect motor balance. Curtains that open with the doors.

By far the greatest value in this class.

THE WORLD'S LARGEST PRODUCER OF QUALITY AUTOMOBILES

Rickenbacker

A • CAR • WORTHY • OF • ITS • NAME

An Open Challenge!— To Any Automobile In The World

No Vibration

4 Wheel Brakes

IT HAS BEEN PROVEN in the most exacting tests—in which all cars, American and European, were invited to take part—that Rickenbacker has the best brakes ever built into an automobile.

THIS KNOWLEDGE, all engineers and all manufacturers have.

IF ANY PLEADS IGNORANCE, then the Official Data is available to him for the asking.

BUT THE PUBLIC does not know—yet!

THOUSANDS of otherwise well informed people are still accepting cars with brakes only on two rear wheels.

NO SANE MAN would do this did he know all the facts.

FOR HE IS BUYING A CAR that is already, in the mind of its own maker, an "obsolete" model. He is buying excess depreciation.

AND WORST OF ALL, he is putting the safety of his loved ones, as well as himself, in jeopardy.

FOR; NO CAR IS SAFE in present-day traffic with less than 4-Wheel Brakes.

WE MAINTAIN that we would be derelict in our duty to automobile buyers did we not make every effort to give them the knowledge that is right now in the possession of engineers and manufacturers.

PROOFS so conclusive as to leave no room for doubt or controversy.

WE HAVE THE FIGURES—but we cannot publish them.

BECAUSE in the only official contests so far held, it was stipulated in advance that no maker would publish the competitive figures.

THAT WAS THE ONLY WAY to get any 2-brake car to enter the contests—that the facts—the comparative figures—be kept from the public for the present!

AND NO WONDER!—for every test proved that any 4-Wheel Brakes, are just twice as effective—twice as safe—twice as certain—under all conditions—as the best 2-Wheel Brakes.

PROVED THAT the best 2-Wheel Brakes are not as good as the worst 4-Wheel Brakes!

JUST READ THAT AGAIN—so you will get its full import!

NO WONDER THEY INSISTED the figures be kept under cover.

THEY ARE NOT KIDDING THEMSELVES about the deficiencies of the old system of Brakes. They know they are only "50 per cent brakes!"

NOW WE ARE ANXIOUS to bring these figures out into the sunlight.

RICKENBACKER HAS everything to win—nothing to lose—by any tests that can be made in public.

IF OTHERS ARE SINCERE in their claims—then they also have nothing to lose.

SO WHY NOT COME OUT in the open and prove which type of brakes (2 or 4) are the best; and which 4-Wheel Brakes are the World's Best?

WE KNOW—AND THEY KNOW—that is why we are so anxious to have you know.

The Challenge

WE HEREBY CHALLENGE any automobile in the world to equal the performance of Rickenbacker Brakes in a series of Public Tests;—and any car with 2-Wheel Brakes to equal Rickenbacker performance within 50 per cent.

WE STIPULATE that all records must be available to daily newspapers and trade journals everywhere.

TESTS TO BE MADE on the streets of this city, or Washington, D. C., under the auspices of the A. A. A. and certified by U. S. Bureau of Standards.

THEY SHALL INCLUDE not only speedometer readings and road measurements to show quickness of stops, but also charts by the "Decelometer."

(THE DECELOMETER is an instrument developed by the U. S. Bureau of Standards and is the most accurate known.

IT REGISTERS not only the rapidity of deceleration (quickness of stopping) but it also proves which car stops with least shock or jar to chassis and occupants).

IT PROVES SPRINGS as well as brakes. And tires too.

WE INVITE all cars foreign and American, especially 2-Brake cars of every type.

RANGE OF TESTS shall cover, in addition to quick stopping, the ability to decelerate from high speed, and with brakes set hard, turn a sharp corner on wet asphalt.

WE WOULD PREFER that the brake tests be preceded by a drive of several hundred miles over rough mountain roads—rougher and steeper, the better—so as to shake up all connections and disclose inherent weaknesses, if any, in the different types; then twenty-five miles through dense city traffic.

THEN WITHOUT ADJUSTMENT—without touching brakes—make the tests suggested.

EVERY MINUTE of such tests, each car to be under observation of a competitor—of course.

ANY KIND OF TIRES—any kind of treads—inflated to any degree of hardness.

RESULTS OF PREVIOUS TESTS prove these factors make no material difference—so tires you use will not matter.

What Will the Answer Be?

WE CAN TELL YOU NOW—and so can any manufacturer who has kept in touch with official tests that have been made during the past few weeks.

SO SURE ARE WE of what will be proved, we are willing to give you the answer now.

THOSE TESTS WILL PROVE that 4-Wheel Brakes are one hundred percent better than 2-Wheel Brakes.

THEY WILL PROVE that there is no material difference in 2-Wheel Brakes—whether acting direct on wheels or through transmission shaft.

THEY WILL PROVE that balloon tires do not add to effectiveness of 2-Wheel Brakes.

OFFICIAL TESTS ACTUALLY SHOW them to be slightly less effective on 2-Brake cars.

"BALLOONS" ARE TIRES—not brakes. Cannot in truth or reason be advanced as substitutes for 4-Wheel Brakes.

THAT, SIZE OF BRAKE DRUMS does not matter—any size will prove equal to stopping the wheels. And when you have done that you are through.

THAT, ON WET ASPHALT, Rickenbacker 4-Wheel Brakes will actually stop the car quicker than on the very same surface when dry.

THERE IS A SURPRISE FOR YOU!—yet it only proves what Rickenbacker has been saying for two years.

AIN'T IT A GRAND and Glorious Feeling to know that you can now drive along as fast as the law allows, on a water-soaked street, and yet be able to stop almost instantly—quicker than if it were dry.

AND IN LESS THAN HALF the distance that you can stop with 2-Brakes!

THOSE TESTS WILL PROVE that the best brakes in the world are of the internal, expanding, rigid-shoe type, on all four wheels and mechanically operated.

AND—Having Differential Gear Equalizers to guarantee that all four take hold uniformly at all times and under all conditions.

FOR, IT HAS BEEN PROVEN, that the answer to the last ounce of effectiveness is to be found in perfect equalization.

NINE MONTHS AGO we said in an ad which created a profound sensation:—"Any Car Without 4-Wheel Brakes is Obsolete."

WE MAINTAINED that in the mind of any person who knew the facts, 2-Wheel Brakes were even then as obsolete as the "One-Lung" Motor.

JUST AS TRULY "OBSOLETE" as was the single cylinder car from the day the first multi-cylinder car was produced.

THE ACCURACY of that assertion was challenged. And in no gentle terms.

EVERY SPECIES OF ARGUMENT—and evasion—was used to discredit it by makers who would save millions could they but stem the tide of demand for 4-Wheel Brakes.

TO AN AMAZING EXTENT they succeeded too!—we still see people buying cars with only fifty percent braking capacity!

WHAT WILL THEY DO when the car ahead of them has brakes on all four wheels—and is compelled to stop as quickly as it can?

THEY USED TO ASK our salesmen what a 4-brake car would do when it stopped quickly, and the car behind couldn't.

YOU SEE, 4-Wheel Brakes were the exception then.

TODAY—TABLES ARE TURNED—hundreds of thousands of cars now have 4-Wheel Brakes.

SO QUESTION NOW IS—what will the man behind do—if he has only 2-Wheel Brakes?

JUST THINK! Last July, when Rickenbacker announced this epochal improvement, only two American cars had 4-Wheel Brakes.

TODAY 35 MAKES HAVE THEM and every week another is announced.

120 DAYS HENCE—August first at the latest—you will be able to count on the fingers of one hand the prominent makes that will still adhere to the "obsolete" type.

FOR WE INSIST IT WAS obsolete from the day that insiders knew the tremendous superiority of 4-Wheel Brakes.

IT IS ONLY A MATTER OF TIME till buyers also learn the truth.

WE WANT TO HURRY that time.

WE WANT EVERY BUYER TO KNOW what all engineers know—what has been proven—and can be proven over and over again, as often as cars with 2 and 4-Wheel Brakes can be brought together.

WE CAN'T IMAGINE by what process of reasoning anyone would today accept a car without 4-Wheel Brakes, any more than he would buy a single-cylinder car—or one with a crank-starter!

RICKENBACKER HAS, in the most rigid and exhaustive tests ever made, proven that it can out-perform any other car made in America or Europe.

TWELVE CARS TAKEN right off the assembly line proved just as perfect in operation—some of them slightly more so—as the test car which had been adjusted with utmost care. Showing that Official test car was just a fair average.

WITHOUT PREVIOUS NOTICE we will let a competitor come into our showroom, pick any car from stock and use that car in the official tests!

COME ON! Let us turn on the spotlight.

LET THE PUBLIC SEE and judge for themselves.

Meantime

WHILE YOU ARE WAITING for 2-Brake cars to accept this challenge, we suggest you make a few tests on your own hook.

A RICKENBACKER SIX is at your disposal any time. Drive it yourself if you like—no trick handling is necessary.

INSIST THAT THE OTHER FELLOW bring his car along and prove the quality of his brakes against Rickenbacker's in any test you can think of.

YOUR AMAZEMENT will be inexpressible.

AND AS A RESULT—YOU will be numbered among the Elect who enjoy Pride of Ownership of a Rickenbacker Six with 4-Wheel Brakes.

> "Rickenbacker never will build another automobile without 4-Wheel Brakes. Nor will this product ever be equipped with any but internal expanding, mechanically operated brakes."

FIRST NEW CHRYSLER ROADSTER DELIVERED

The first new Chrysler roadster to be seen here arrived at the Ward Motor Co. salesroom last week. This new roadster is being delivered to C. H. Koehler of Stifel-Nicolaus-Parsons Investment Co.

This striking car is finished in dual tone French gray and is upholstered in genuine spanish morocco leather. The top is colored to match the finish. The car has black enamel side aprons and fenders and wheels to match.

A large compartment in the rear houses a roomy spare seat for two. There is a special package compartment, with opening in the side, for golf bags and similar articles, the door of which is uniquely arranged to open out as a step, enabling passengers to get into the rear seat. Those who have seen this roadster claim it to be one of the handsomest they have ever seen.

F .W. A. VESPER WILL BE HOME THIS WEEK

Walter H. Vesper, vice-president of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co., has just received a letter from F. W. A. Vesper, president of the company, announcing his immediate return to St. Louis, with Mrs. Vesper.

Mr. and Mrs. Vesper left St. Louis just after New Years to attend the New York Automobile Show. On January 14 they sailed on a Mediterranean cruise on the Steamship Empress of Scotland.

In addition to the regular sightseeing tours Mr. and Mrs. Vesper have taken a number of special "side-trips," including a motor trip through the Holy Land. Some little time was also spent in motoring through Belgium and Holland. The Vespers arrived in New York on the Steamship Acquitania Saturday.

CHAMPION BODIES ARE IN UNUSUAL DEMAND

Demand for Champion bodies has increased with the coming of mild weather, according to George Smith Jr. of the Champion Body Co. Out of town, as well as local sales, have jumped, declares the official.

Smith also reports that H. N. Dietzen, who formerly sold these closed bodies, and who has been away from St. Louis for several months, has again returned to the fold. Dietzen operated his farm in New York State temporarily.

TWO BIG PLANTS BUILD VELIE CARS

Two factories with more than 1,000,000 square feet of floor space are now in operation making Velie automobiles, according to an announcement by the Velie Motors Corporation, Moline, Ill. The statement shows that the corporation is building the major portion of its product and is well on the way toward becoming one of the factories which build their own car parts.

The factory executives assert that an entire modern factory, of cement and glass construction, has been put in operation at Marion, Ind., and it completes all engines for Velie cars. This factory has a floor space of more than 250,000 square feet. All the assembly work on the engines is done at the Marion, Ind., plant and the engines are then shipped complete to the factories at Moline. In this city five large buildings, ranging from three to six stories in height, are devoted to the manufacture and assembling of the Velie cars. These buildings have a floor space of 750,000 square feet.

HOLKE WINS VICTOR GOLD STAR HONORS

Departmental heads, executives and salesmen of Victor Motors Inc., local truck manufacturers, held a get-together meeting and banquet at the American Annex at noon last Saturday. The guest of honor was Elmo Holke, advertising manager of the Victor company, who was presented with a gold star emblem by the officers of the company. The gold star emblem in the Victor company is a much coveted prize as it is awarded only in instances where, in opinion of the board of directors, exceptional meritorious service has been rendered the company. V. George Harper, export manager of Victor Motors Inc. served as toastmaster, and Edgar Riedinger, sales manager of the company, made the presentation speech.

517 N. GRAND BLVD. IS LEASED BY DIESING

The Diesing Motors Sales Co., Rickenbacker distributors, announce having leased the building at 517 North Grand boulevard, between Olive street and Washington boulevard, for handling used cars.

"Jim" Ward, secretary of the Diesing firm, believes this is one of the best locations in the city, especially at night, when thousands of theater-goers pass by.

168-HOUR NON-STOP RUN BY STUDEBAKER

TAMPA, Fla., April 12.—A seven-day, 168-hour, non-stop run of 3101 miles was just completed here by a Studebaker Light-Six touring car.

Eighteen drivers handled the car during the run. Taking out the time required for changing drivers, the light six actually covered the 3101 miles in 147 hours. Gasoline consumption averaged 21 miles a gallon and more than 300 miles per quart of oil were obtained.

Running continuously day in and day out, and forced to idle down constantly in congested traffic, the car's radiator thirsted for only one additional teacup of water.

STUDEBAKER SHIPS TRAINLOAD TO EAST

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 12.—A solid trainload of cars was forwarded today from the big Studebaker factories with Hartford, Conn., as their destination. This is one of the biggest single shipments of automobiles made this year.

Leaving South Bend, this train consisted of 52 freight cars of light and special six models. It was routed by way of Detroit to pick up 12 more carloads of big sixes. Altogether, the train contains 207 Studebakers, valued at approximately $300,000.

COLLINS PURCHASES CHICAGO BUSINESS

Effective as of April 1, R. H. Collins, one of the automobile industry's foremost leaders, assumed charge of the distribution of Maxwell, Chrysler and Chalmers cars in Chicago and surrounding territory.

This announcement, made by J. E. Fields, general sales manager of the Maxwell-Chrysler-Chalmers companies, reunited two of the outstanding figures of the industry—Walter P. Chrysler, president and chairman of the board of directors of Maxwell, and Collins. For years they were associated together, first as Buick, and later in General Motors.

The Maxwell-Chalmers Sales Co., which Mr. Collins has purchased, has been a factory branch for severeal years. Through its purchase he assumes control of a business which has grown in that period from a yearly volume of a few hundred thousand dollars to one which is expected in 1924 to handle more than $6,000,000 worth of motor cars.

March was the biggest month in the 17 years' history of the Moon Motor CarCo. Its sales that month exceeded March, 1923, by at least 55 per cent, and were 30 per cent greater than Moon's previous record month, which was April of the last year.

GARDNER REPORTS BIG PRODUCTION INCREASE

Gardner Motor Co., Inc., production figures have just been released by the factory. Gardner's February production was exactly double that of January, and March production 110 per cent greater than that of February. Plans for succeeding months call for further increases.

"Orders already in hand," says W. H. Yeldell, secretary in charge of sales and advertising, "indicate that 1924 will be our greatest year. Dealers everywhere report an increased interest in the Gardner car, and steadily growing appreciation of the exceptional performance and economy assured by the five-bearing crankshaft Gardner motor."

More Than 60 Exhibitors.

More than 60 exhibitors to date have reserved 10,000 square feet of floor space for the Automotive Maintenance Equipment Show which is to be held at Detroit May 19-23, 1924. The event will demonstrate in action the various kinds of machinery manufactured for motor vehicle repair shop work. The associations participating are: Motor and Accessory Manufacturers' Association, Automotive Equipment Association, Service Equipment Associates, Society of Automotive Engineers, The National Automobile Dealers' Association and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. S. A. Miles, 366 Madison avenue, New York, is chairman.

WILSON IS DIESING SERVICE MANAGER

Robert Wilson, formerly assistant service manager for one of St. Louis' biggest automobile distributing concerns, is now in charge of service for the Diesing Motor Sales Co., Rickenbacker distributors. Wilson has been connected with the automobile business since 1901. He came here in 1908 and joined the forces of the St. Louis Car Co., helping to build the Americans Motors at the plant at 5200 North Second street.

Later he was associated with rubberneck wagon companies until 1912, when he joined the distributing firm, which he just left after 12 years, to go with Diesing. Wilson is one of the best known service men in St. Louis.

During the present year, the Franklin Automobile Co. will concentrate 63 per cent of its production on sedans alone, with a total of 85 per cent enclosed cars.

RED CROWN
ETHYL
GENERAL MOTORS PRODUCT
GASOLINE

—improves the condition of the motor

The result of using Ethyl Red Crown Gasoline in your automobile brings about an actual improvement in the condition of the engine. All harmful effects of carbon are eliminated and an actual degree of protection is given to the metal surfaces.

Ethyl Red Crown Gasoline is the most fundamental improvement developed in the automobile industry for years. Two great industrial organizations assure you of this fact—Standard Oil Company, (Indiana) and General Motors Corporation.

You owe it to yourself at least to try this new fuel. Give it a thorough trial and you will find that Ethyl Red Crown Gasoline—

Increases fuel efficiency

Increases power

Lessens waste of fuel

Eliminates fuel knocks and the poor operating conditions that such knocks indicate

Makes possible quicker acceleration

Provides easier and safer handling of your car in the traffic

Makes it possible to ride over the hills with greater power and ease without retarding the spark

Reduces gear shifting to a minimum

Get Ethyl Red Crown Gasoline at any Standard Oil Service Station in St. Louis and St. Louis County.

Oakland is the only Light-Six with
4-Wheel Brakes

Standard Equipment on All 1924 Models at no extra cost

You wouldn't knowingly buy a car that wasn't up-to-the-minute, any more than you would pay good money for a house lacking essential modern features.

By the same reasoning your new car should certainly have four-wheel brakes—a proved safety essential in a truly modern automobile. The owners of hundreds of thousands of cars thus equipped would never go back to any less effective braking system.

The True Blue Oakland is the only light-six on which you get four-wheel brakes as standard equipment. These brakes—sound, simple, easily adjusted—give a new and satisfying assurance of safety under every possible driving condition.

Many Other Exclusive Features

Oakland also is the only light-six with permanent top, special Duco finish, controls on steering wheel, special glass enclosures and many other exclusive features.

If ever there was a car which sells itself, it is this year's True Blue Oakland Six. Don't choose your next car until you see it. If you haven't examined it—ridden in it—you haven't any idea how much ability and goodness you can purchase at its low price.

DORT CARRIES PARTY TO AUSTRALIAN MINES

Word has recently been received from Australia of new rich finds of gold, silver and lead. The deposits are in the little-known Northern Territory, in the neighborhood of Barrow's Creek. This country is as wild and unknown as the great ore-bearing sections of the American West were 100 years ago. Rumors that leaked into the larger Australian cities of the richness of the ore have led powerful mining interests to organize prospecting parties for work in this almost inaccessible area of the interior.

The first of these expeditions to get through to the fields is one headed by Dr. H. Basedow, leading Adelaide geologist, and composed of practical mining men. There is no rail or road transportation to this almost unexplored part of Australia's back country. Dr. Basedow's prospecting party made the trip in an American-built Dort Six automobile. The Dort was chosen because of its splendid recent performance in crossing and recrossing Australia—the first time that feat had ever been accomplished. The party left from Oodnadatta and reached the Borrow's Creek country after four days of traveling over sand hills, mountains and sand creeks. The trip was made without stop or mishap of any kind, beating by several days any previous record for covering this extraordinarily difficult country.

U. S. Trucks Relieve Congestion.

More than 2000 trucks belonging to the Pickfords Colonial, Inc., a large percentage of which are of American manufacture, were pressed into service in English ports to assist in relieving the freight traffic congestion which has resulted from the strike of railway engine men there. For a long time the Pickfords Colonial, Inc., through the American house in New York, has been prominent on the list of purchasers of the American truck factories. In all, they operate a fleet of approximately 2500 trucks throughout England.

A. A. A. PAPER WARNS USERS OF GASOLINE

Declares That Because Fuel Is Feared Less, It Is More Hazardous Than Ever.

Warning motorists that gasoline is now a greater hazard because it is less feared, the American Automobile Association has issued a bulletin from its national headquarters in Washington that marks the beginning of a drive on what is termed "contemptuous carelessness."

Because "nothing happens," the bulletin states, the average motorist reaches the hazardous conclusion that "nothing will happen," and as a consequence he lets down on precaution and actually encourages trouble.

"Gasoline is much more dangerous to the motorist than it ever was," the A. A. A. paper explains, "for the simple reason that the majority of motorists take undue liberties with it.

"We are out to forestall the sort of carelessness that develops from contempt," declares Thos. P. Henry, president of the American Automobile Association. "When a motorist reaches the point where a danger no longer looks like one to him he has reached the danger line. Knowledge of the facts is the only thing that will keep him on the safe side.

"It has come to the attention of the A. A. A. that one motorist actually went so far as to light a match when seated in a Ford sedan in order to read the number of gallons of gas in the tank as indicated on a measuring rod. Nothing happened, but that is just the trouble. This motorist will take further liberties next time. And that will be the end.

"A very large percentage of automobile mechanics now smoke while working on cars, even when tinkering with carburetors and vacuum tanks. Motorists see this and conclude that gasoline has ceased being dangerous. Because nothing happens they acquire a certain contempt for its known hazards. It isn't long before they apply the straw that breaks the camel's back."

According to the bulletin, the vapor from a gallon of gasoline when mixed with the right proportion of air, produces a hazard equal to 85 pounds of dynamite. Because this vapor does not always develop when gasoline is exposed, it is pointed out, a lot of tricks can be done with the gas-tank without any immediate results. What happens, however, is that the full hazard invariably asserts itself when the motorist treats gasoline with the greatest contempt.

The A. A. A. contends that contempt is the worst form of carelessness and that if motorists were as precautious as in the old days hundreds of lives would be saved annually.

Railroads Can Use Trucks.

Increased use of motor trucks by railroads is made possible by a recent decision of the Texas Supreme Court permitting railroads to discontinue unprofitable branch lines. Hitherto some railroads have had no opportunity to consider installing auxiliary motor truck service because of unfavorable interpretations of charter provisions by state public utility commissions. The Texas decision sets an important precedent for future litigation. The Court upheld the right of a railroad corporation to dismantle its line and discontinue its rail service on the ground that further operation would result in financial loss.

DELEGATES COMING TO WORLD MOTOR CONGRESS

Five more delegates from abroad have definitely arranged to participate in World Motor Transport Congress, which will be held in Detroit during May 21-24. There are more than 40 acceptances to date. Among the more distant countries to be represented are: China, Syria, Australia, Venezuela and Argentina. Countries less remote include: Cuba, Jamaica and Mexico.

Acceptances are also coming in from such automotive manufacturing nations as the United Kingdom, Italy, Austria and Germany. An especially large delegation is expected from the last-mentioned country, in view of anticipated removal of barrier on imports of American cars.

Where. Do You Want Your Car to Perform?
On Paper or on the Road?

PERFORMANCE is now the popular theme in automobile advertising—particularly among the makers of moderately priced sixes.

Over-bold claims and counter claims are being hurled at the public to establish some sort of performance supremacy.

Manufacturers whose engineering staffs have not yet developed a compact, powerful, efficient motor, dwell on the bigness of their power plants.

To impress the layman they print statistics; and the engineer who knows the tendencies of modern motor design, enjoys a smile.

Please forget the statistics—many a perpetual-motion machine performs beautifully on paper.

Please remember this unarguable fact: There is only one place to prove automobile performance, and that is on the highways and up the hills!

If a car takes the hardest, stiffest hill with masterful ease; if it sweeps along at high speeds with Pullman car smoothness; if it can literally leap from a crawl to twenty-five miles an hour, statistics and over-bold claims are unnecessary.

We make the simple statement that, in each and every phase of performance, the Cleveland Six has no equal in its class!

Will you come in and let us convince you? We promise to do it on the road, not with a pad and pencil.

How Signs Of Old Age Creep Into Your System When The Iron In Your Blood Runs Low

For Want of Iron You May Be Old at Thirty—Nervous, Irritable and All Run-Down—While at Fifty or Sixty, With Plenty of Iron in Your Blood, You May Be Young in Feeling and Brimming Over With Vim and Energy.

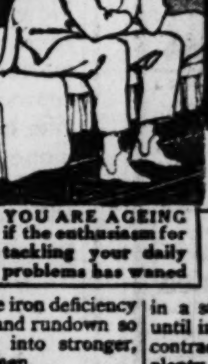
IRON IS THE RED BLOOD FOOD

That Helps Strengthen the Nerves, Restores Wasted Tissue and Aids in Giving Renewed Force and Power to the Body. Physicians Explain Why Administration of Simple Nuxated Iron Often Increases the Strength and Endurance of Delicate, Rundown People in Two Weeks' Time.

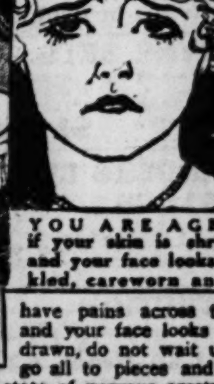
Old age has already sunk its talons into thousands of men and women who ought still to be enjoying the springtime and summer of life simply because they have allowed worry, overwork, nervous strain, dissipation and occupational poisons to sap the iron from their blood and thereby destroy its power to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. You will find plenty of people at 40 who are broken in health and steadily going downward to physical and mental decay while others at 50 are strong, active, alert and seemingly growing younger every year. One class withers and dies like leaves in autumn while the other by keeping up a strong power of resistance against disease may pass the three score and ten mark with surprising health, strength and vigor. But you cannot expect to look and feel young and vigorous unless you have plenty of iron in your blood, and physicians explain below why they prescribe organic iron — Nuxated Iron—to supply the iron deficiency in the weak, nervous, and rundown so as to build them up into stronger, healthier men and women.

When, as a result of iron starvation you get up feeling tired in the morning, when you find yourself nervous, irritable and easily upset; when you can no longer do your day's work without being all fagged out at night; when your digestion all goes wrong, or you have pains across the back and your face looks pale and drawn, do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration, or until in your weakened condition you contract some serious disease, but add plenty of spinach, carrots, baked apples or other iron-containing fruits and vegetables to your daily food and take organic iron—Nuxated Iron with them for a while and see how much your condition improves.

Thousands of people have surprisingly increased their strength, energy and endurance in two weeks time by this simple experiment. But in making this test be sure that the iron you take is organic Nuxated Iron and not metallic iron or mineral iron which people usually take. Organic Nuxated Iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron. Nuxated Iron represents organic iron in such a highly concentrated form that one dose is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating half a quart of spinach, or one quart of green vegetables. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. At all druggists.



YOU ARE AGEING if the enthusiasm for tackling your daily problems has waned



YOU ARE AGEING if your skin is shrinking and your face looks wrinkled, careworn and old

YOU ARE AGEING if you have lost the spring of your step and your movements are cumbrous

YOU ARE AGEING if you are wearied by the activities of your daily life.

ERROR IN QUOTATION OF WEAF RADIO FEES

Letter from Vice-President Corrects Statement Published March 16.

In an article published in the Post-Dispatch, March 16, under the heading "Who Owns the Ether?" is was asserted that the Bedford Branch Y. M. C. A. paid $300 weekly to Radio Station WEAF, New York, for the privilege of broadcasting Dr. Cadman's lectures. In the same articles it was said that a New York theater orchestra paid a weekly fee of $1000 for the transmission of its Sunday night programs from New York, Providence and Washington.

Station WEAF is operated by the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. The Post-Dispatch has received a letter of correction from W. E. Harkness, assistant vice president of that company, who writes that the company charges the Bedford Branch Y. M. C. A. only $100 for the Sunday broadcasting and that this is less than actual cost, due to the fact that it is necessary to pick up the meeting from a distant point in Brooklyn.

As to the theater orchestra, Mr. Harkness says the WEAF station receives no compensation from the Capitol Theater, but bears all the expense of broadcasting on the ground that it is a good program feature and meets with public approval.

The letter also points out that station WEAF broadcasts every Sunday from its studio for the New York Federation of Churches, without cost to the Federation and that it also broadcasts weekly for the United Synagogues, and from time to time for Catholic organizations, all without expense to the organizations served.

Sources of Noises.

The "hissing" and "frying" noises sometimes attributed to "B" batteries are often caused by poor connections, usually between the terminals and the socket contacts.

PHUSIFORMER IS NEW RADIO ACHIEVEMENT

Device May Be Used in Various Circuits From Crystal to Radio Amplifier.

There appeared in the Eastern radio market, some weeks ago, a new piece of apparatus called the Phusiformer. This is a general name and not the particular trade mark of an individual manufacturer. Three firms already have been licensed to put it on the market. The principle, in each case, is the same. Minor details of design distinguish the different kinds of Phusiformers.

The Phusiformer can be used in every kind of a circuit, starting with the simple crystal hook-up. It can serve as a vario-coupler. Its chief use, however, is bound to be in tuned radio frequency sets, reflex circuits, and similar advanced means of picking up radio signals.

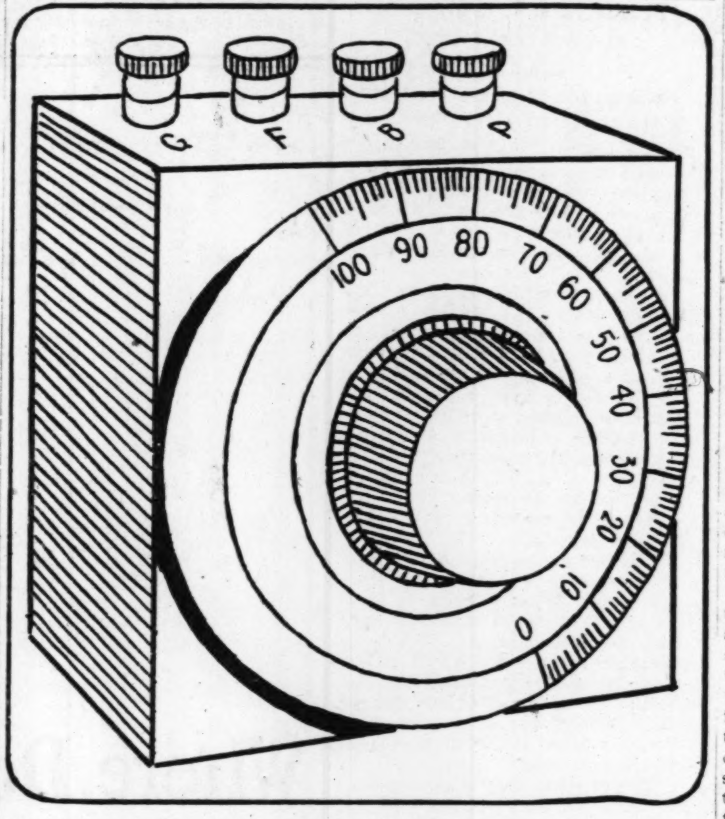
One of the most interesting claims for Phusiformers is that they will take the place of radio frequency transformers and their associate condensers in a multi-stage tuned radio frequency amplifier giving a receiver which is immune from execssive regeneration, regardless of the type of tubes employed.

The Phusiformer (pronounced fuse-i-former), is the result of years of experimentation on the part of radio engineers to develop a tuned radio frequency amplifier which would not cause self-oscillation when tuned to resonance with an incoming wave. Construction of multi-tube sets is greatly simplified by the use of several of these devices and the result is a highly efficient receiver whose dials may be calibrated.

The word Phusiform, is from the Greek "phusikos," meaning natural, or natural form and it appropriately sets forth the features of this new and remarkable non-oscillating coupler, especially useful in radio frequency amplifiers, which meets the following requisites of an ideal receiver:

1. Non-oscillation.
2. Non-reradiation and non-interference.
3. Sensitive to distant stations.
4. Freedom from hand capacity.
5. Synchronized and calibrated tuning.
6. Simple construction and operation.

Radio Device of Many Uses



Applying these admitted requisites to perfect reception, as we would consider it today, to any of the present standard and popular circuits, we would undoubtedly find that very few meet half of these requirements.

There are, of course, some exceptions which meet most of the demands fairly well, the most notable of which is the neutrodyne. However, the neutrodyne fails in some of the requirements, while in the average receiver which approaches the ideal the construction is very complex and its cost is prohibitive to the majority of radio fans.

More and more the tendency in radio has been toward radio frequency amplification, and exceptional results in this direction have already been accomplished. Progressive evolution from transformer coupled to tuned radio frequency stages has thrown an entirely new light on the possibilities of "DX" reception on which the pleasure and enjoyment to be derived from the radio receiver depends.

The Phusiformer unit used in the Phusiform circuit, makes possible new combinations in radio frequency amplification hitherto considered impractical and provides an excellent means for a study of the results of non-oscillating tuned radio frequency amplification, in terms of our present receiver, since among its other accomplishments it can be added, if it be desired, in one, two or three stages to any existing receiver.

In the center of the phusiformer case is a semicircular plate variable condenser. Around the condenser the radio frequency transformer is built up. It is formed of self-supporting coils of copper wire, with the various sections connected so as to give a minimum of distributed capacity. The sections are concentric and in a plane with the condenser plates. As is common in radio frequency amplifier construction, the primary is located inside the secondary with comparatively close coupling. This winding terminates in binding posts at the top of the instrument. The secondary is connected in shunt with the variable condenser so that this circuit is variable through a wave length range of 200 to 600 meters. Two binding posts beside the primary terminals are wired to the condenser for external connections to the receiving circuit. Thus we have a radio frequency transformer without means of tuning the primary, and a secondary winding closely coupled to it, shunted by a variable condenser. Not only is it a familiar arrangement, but its connection in an amplifier circuit is according to the well-established method.

Why is it, then, that no oscillation occurs in a radio frequency amplifier made up of Phusiformers, while this action is extremely troublesome when apparently the same electrical arrangement is produced through the use of the older type transformers and condensers? It seems that the answer lies in the fact that the electro-static and electro-magnetic fields are so concentrated that their external density is not sufficient to cause trouble. The accompanying illustrations show a comparison between the fields set up about Phusiformer coils and honeycomb wound inductances. It can be clearly seen that the external electro-magnetic field about the Phusiformer coils is of a character that would give much less trouble in radio circuits than that of the coil with which it is compared. While this explains many reasons for the success of the new device, it does not take into consideration the coupling due to the capacity between the vacuum tube elements, but a complete discussion of theory involved must necessarily be so extended that it is beyond the scope of this article. The problem brought up will provide a great field for exploitation among radio enthusiasts interested in this phase of receiver design.

Besides this being available as a single unit, the phusiformer is already commercially employed in two instruments which are growing in popularity at the present time. One is a so-called "radio deputy." This is essentially a tuner and a two-stage tuned radio frequency amplifier that can be connected to any detector, or detector and audio frequency amplifier system to form an ultra-sensitive and stable receiver. A complete Phusiformer set of this type has also made its appearance on the market. The outfit possesses all of the advantages of the best neutralized radio frequency sets with the exclusive virtue of maintaining its stability with various types of vacuum tubes. Thus it is probably the first instrument of this grade that can be turned out commercially with a positive assurance against re-radiation.

The effectiveness of any wave-trap depends largely upon its electrical efficiency and the Phusiformer is particularly well adapted for this purpose. In the first place it makes possible either a single or a two circuit trap which covers the entire field of filter utility, and secondly the electrical losses of the Phusiformer are at an absolute minimum—its high frequency resistance is extremely low and the condenser losses negligible.

The Phusiformer is equal in its performance as a wave filter to any of the especially designed pieces of apparatus on the market intended for this purpose only, and which consequently sell for a considerably higher price.

There are several methods of connecting wave filters or traps into receiver circuits and each presents some advantage for particular forms of interference. A great deal has been written on this subject and many exaggerated representations have been made. However, excellent results can be secured with an efficient wave filter, but several things must be kept in mind. Any wave trap will cut down the "tuned-in" station slightly; a wave-trap will be more effective against phone or C. W. interference than it will on nearby spark signals; if two interfering stations have so nearly the same wave length that they "heterodyne" each other, it is useless to try to separate them; and for wave lengths near to that to which the trap is set the tuning of the radio set itself will be disturbed. These are vagaries peculiar to the particular receiver, which will have to be mastered by the operator of the set and no fixed rules can be established to cover all existing receiving circuits.

While the greatest field of application of the Phusiformer lies in instruments of the type just referred to, it has so many other possibilities that there are uses for it in every radio receiving equipment, regardless of its character. It makes a wonderful little tuner for use with a crystal detector, as it provides everything needed but the phones and detector itself. In a simple vacuum set it will perform equally well, and due to its extreme compactness it is ideal for portable equipment. When used as a tuner of a regenerative receiver, a variometer is needed in the plate circuit of the detector to control the feed-back. For converting a loop receiver for use with an open type antenna, the type "P" Phusiformer is the handiest of anything that can be used. It can be secured to the cabinet of the receiving set near the loop terminal, so that short leads will connect the two, leaving the primary Phusiformer posts for aerial and ground connections

The second of this series of three articles will show the wiring diagram of a tuned radio frequency set using Phusiformers. It will be published in the Radio Section of next Sunday's Post-Dispatch. The third article will deal with the use of Phusiformers in reflex circuits.

Concerning Loop Aerials.

The use of loop aerials should not be attempted without radio frequency amplification, reception being only successful when several stages of amplification are used. Any other type of aerial will pick up more energy than an average loop aerial.

A good aerial and a fair receiver will do as good work as a poor aerial and a good receiver.

Employ two insulators at each end of aerials, separating them by a fem inches of cable. This makes doubly sure of nonleakage.

If a soft satin finish is desired on the panel rub it with coarse sandpaper finishing with several rubs of fine steel wool, rubbing only in one direction.

To Reduce Interference.

Reducing the size of the aerial is the simplest and perhaps the best method for reducing interference from a neighboring station, or even between stations which use the same wave lengths. An antenna about 75 feet long will often pick up sufficient energy for the set, with the added advantage of giving the operator a chance to eliminate much of the troublesome interference.

'HECKLING' POLITICAL SPEECHES VIA RADIO?

Department of Commerce Officials Admit It May Take Place During Campaign.

Unless inventive genius devises a way to curb playful, willful or malicious enthusiasts, a 15-year-old boy can raise a rumpus in the air and make any political speech a mere series of whistles, buzzes and ear-splitting shrieks, radio experts at the Department of Commerce admitted when asked if there were any way to prevent a repetition of the "radio heckling" Senator James A. Reed suffered in Kansas City recently.

Politicians have been planning for months how they would use the radio during the coming campaign to reach thousands who ordinarily would not attend political meetings. They are now trying to solve two problems which they feel are almost certain will develop as the campaign grows warmer.

The first problem is to prevent "heckling"—not the usual impertinent question from the back of the hall by the opposition—but the "hashing" caused by an oscillator attached to an antenna, which has every broadcaster at its mercy. The second problem is to find suitable court procedure for libel or slander by radio. Commerce officials here declared they did not know whether to classify malicious remarks broadcast by radio as libel or slander, but inclined to believe that a slander charge might be successfully prosecuted. The department experts explained that an amateur could turn a receiving set into a transmitting set without much trouble or expense. This operation is so easy that they suggested that nothing should be printed about it, as many amateurs would be tempted to experiment on interfering with scheduled programs. This interference can be traced, they continued, by a radio inspector with direction finder and an automobile only after a great deal of time and trouble. In the case of the political interferer, the job would be almost impossible because the interference would probably be intermittent and would stop after the speech had been garbled.

Should the miscreant be caught, however, he could be penalized with a fine of not more than $500, a year's imprisonment or both, provided a conviction could be obtained in court for malicious interference or operating without a license.

The second problem involves nice, legal questions. At present there is no censorship except the voluntary good will censorship exercised by the broadcasting stations. Many of these stations demand a written copy of the proposed speech and a man is at the switch ready to turn it off if the speaker deliberately deviates from the text. This plan has worked well, the officials say, as they have had only a few complaints from operators of receiving sets. These complaints have been forwarded to the broadcasting stations and in every case these stations have willingly complied with the suggestions that care be taken in the future.

With the present regulations, however, it is possible, the experts said, for political speakers to make untrue and malicious charges over the radio and escape prosecution by the Government. It is a question of whether or not the slandered or libeled person could sue, and whether the speaker or the broadcasting company would be liable.

'HECKLING' POLITICAL SPEECHES VIA RADIO?

Department of Commerce Officials Admit It May Take Place During Campaign.

It is a question of whether or not the slandered or libeled person could sue, and whether the speaker or the broadcasting company would be liable. In the case of indicent and obscene language, the regulations of the Commerce Department are so vague that licenses of this class of offenders are usually revoked on a technicality.

The only consolation the department experts could offer was that the next few months might bring forth a new invention which would readily detect a "radio vandal" and that some court ruling might be made as to whether the laws of libel or slander cover malicious speeches via radio.

LABORATORY CHIEF DISCUSSES AERIALS

Bureau of Standards Engineer Describes Antennae for Broadcast Reception.

Some sort of an aerial is necessary to most receiving sets, and it is well known that an outside aerial is better than an inside one or a loop, except in connection with very sensitive tube receivers.

According to Dr. J. H. Dellenger, chief of the Radio Laboratory of the Bureau of Standards, a fairly long and high antenna is the cheapest way to get loud signals with the simplest receiving sets. To get the best results, an outdoor antenna, used for great distances or for crystal sets, one should use a single, continuous copper wire, 50 to 115 feet long, direct from the set to the highest point available at the far end, supported by good insulators, such as porcelain or glass, and kept well away from trees and buildings. "Keep the antenna away from possible accidental contact with electric wires," he admonishes.

Replying to the query: "Are antennae dangerous?" Dr. Dellenger said: "The lightning hazard is practically nil. Only for outside antennae need lightning protection be considered at all; it is very simple. A small and inexpensive device called a lightning arrester should be connected between the antenna and the ground wire on receiving sets. An antenna is no more likely to attract lightning into a house or apartment than are overhead telephones or electric light wires. The principal hazard from antennae is from stringing outdoor antenae over or near electric light wires. A number of persons have met death by electrocution from this cause." A special committee on the National Electrical Safety Code is now drawing up regulations and precautions for the erection and use of aerials.

Concerning antennae in general Dr. Dellenger pointed out that there is nothing about them to justify the large amount of worry and uncertainty they seem to give many uninitiated fans.. An antenna, he explained, is the "harness that converts the radio wave motions into currents which operate the receiving set. Almost any sort will work for a broadcast receiving set, he said, adding that fans do not need to imitate the amateur transmitter and erect elaborate antennae of several wires. A general antenna for reception should be a single wire running from the set, direct if possible to a conveniently high point at the far end. It does not have to be horizontal, and it does not matter in what direction the aerial points. Little directional difference is noted in reception, except in special and long antennae. Insulated wire, he explained, is not especially detrimental, but costs more than bare wire. From 50 to 115 feet is the usual length recommended for broadcast reception; longer aerials bring in somewhat stronger signals, he says, and are more certain to bring in distant stations, but they also bring in more interference, including static.

SEVEN NEW BROADCASTERS NOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Plans Under Way for 14 More Class "B" Stations, According to Department of Commerce.

Plans are afoot for the erection of at least 14 new Class "B" broadcasting stations, and seven are already under construction, according to the Department of Commerce. To date, there are 49 of these high-class and high-powered stations, but with the development of the art more powerful stations have come into vogue and as a result bigger and better stations are anticipated in New York, Chicago, New Orleans, Denver, Hartford, Houston, Hot Springs, Cincinnati, Fort Bragg, N. C., and Berrien Springs, Mich.

Although seven stations are known to be under construction, the department has not yet issued licenses and will not announce the names of the prospective owners.

In Chicago, a sort of reorganization in super broadcasting is under way. WJAZ, the well-known station of the Chicago Radio Laboratory, will become station WGN; its call, significant of the Chicago Tribune which will not use his station on 370 meters instead of 448 meters. The Herald-Examiner with Sears-Roebuck Co., will share a new "B" station which will operate on 345 meters, splitting time and sharing this wave length with WCBD at Zion City. The Daily News station, WMAQ, will operate on 448 meters, dividing time with the Rainbow Gardens. The Calumet Baking Powder Co. is planning a new station now under construction, but no call has been announced yet.

Diaphragms Are Delicate.

The caps on telephone receivers should not be unscrewed unless it is absolutely necessary. If this must be done to tighten connections, etc., be very careful not to bend or dent the diaphragm in any way.

For the Notebook.

It is usually more economical to purchase a honeycomb or duolateral coil than to wind one.

There are no fewer than 12 American types and sizes of vacuum tubes suitable for use in receiving.

A speck of dust is sufficient to cause the whole set to stop working if it happens to get in the right place.

Solder all connections tight and strong, as it takes only one good knock to loosen a half dozen connections.

One hundred turns is the practicable limit for single layer windings, if any degree of efficiency is desired. For amounts greater than this, bank winding should be used.

A radio enthusiast, if using many stages of radio-frequency amplification, will have more trouble from these sources than with a straight detector and audio-frequency amplifier.

Rubber tape is better than friction tape for aerial work.

A vacuum tube is fragile; do not handle it like an ordinary incandescent lamp.

Do not use a gas pipe for a ground, as this is strictly against insurance regulations.

When experimenting with various hookups, make up about a dozen leads of various lengths with snap connections. These are excellent for making temporary connections.

NEW ARRIVALS ON THE RADIO MART

New Acme products just arrived on the St. Louis market are 30 K. C. iron core transformers for use in super-heterodyne circuits, and variable condensers in three standard sizes, 13, 23 and 43 plates. The variable condensers have a thin transparent mica case to prevent dust from collecting on the plates and thereby altering the capacity of the instrument. This makes cleaning unnecessary and is a very desirable feature.

Bremer Tully Oscillation Couplers for super-hererodyne use are now on sale at local dealers.

Grid-leaks in steps of ½-5 megohms are new products of the Dubilier factory and are now available in this city.

A new type of variocoupler has been placed on the market by M. Spingarn, Inc. It represents another advancement in receiving circuits, inasmuch as it makes the construction and operation of a set more simple and efficient. The primary and rotor are wound with Litzendracht wire. The primary is aperiodic or untuned. Fixed coupling is employed between the primary and secondary windings, which are spaced to provide maximum results. The rotor has 180 degrees variation, which affords a wide control of regeneration. The Spingarn variocoupler is known as the three-circuit coupler and because of the three circuits this coupler reduces radiation interference to a minimum. All of the windings are wound on genuine bakelite tubes. The wire used is double silk covered.

An innovation in dials has just appeared in the form of a dial having a ribbed surface. These are Radion dials and come in black and in mahoganite, with gold graduations, in 3 and 4 inch diameters. The ribs radiate from the knob out nearly to the beveled edge and provide easy rests for the fingers when delicate tuning is necessary. A vernier effect is thus obtained, and a very small motion of the dial may be secured with a considerable movement of the finger tip placed near the periphery. This dial is equipped, as are other Radion dials, with a semicircular slot in the back of each which corresponds to the scale indications and fits a stop peg in the panel, thus preventing damage to internal rotor leads, and limiting the dial movement to the semicircular scale. The metal insert is made to fit a ¼-inch shaft, but there is a removable sleeve which may be inserted for use with a 3-16 inch diameter shaft.

To attain greater volume and to eliminate distortion in audio frequency amplification, the Hardy Powerformer has been placed on the market. The circuit in these instruments is somewhat similar to that used in a well-known loud speaker using push-pull amplification, but they are not dependent in any way upon transformer coupling. The circuits used in the Powerformer include a high resistance of unvarying value, a fixed condenser selected after special tests for the particular duty, as well as a specially designed impedance winding which will force the tube to amplify to the limit of its specific range. These units are so assembled and sealed that the Powerformer will be protected under all possible conditions of use. The Powerformers are preferably used with 201A tubes, but operate with usually good results on UV199 up to the third stage. Either two or three stages of Powerformers may be used for average volume requirements. The number of tubes may be increased up to six or seven, depending on the tubes. The voltages build up rapidly from stage to stage and tubes of higher plate currents are required on each stage after the third.

For the Notebook.

A low voltage "A" battery usually results in weak signals.

A "C" battery is used in the audio amplifier circuit to minimize distortion and prevent excessive flow of "B" battery voltage.

Great care should be exercised to see that the "A" and "B" battery leads make firm contact. Resistance in these leads will often cause an audio squeal.

For a Substitute "Ground."

In some buildings radiators will serve as good ground connections in substitute for a cold water pipe. In the center of the handle which turns off the heat will be found a screw. The wire can be connected firmly under the screw, thus eliminating the use of a ground clamp and the use of solder.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

All Queries Must Be Accompanied by the Name and Address of the Writer.

Q. (1) Is metal ribbon better material for aerial construction than solid copper wire? (2) Will an insulated aerial wire work as well as one composed of bare wire? (3) Please show how a wave-trap can be connected to a crystal receiver. WM. W.

A. (1) Yes; due to the fact that more surface is presented than when solid copper wire is used. Stranded wire is also more efficient than solid wire, for the same reason. (2) Yes. (3) A wave-trap is not practical for use in connection with circuits other than those employing vacuum tubes.

Q. I have a three-tube reflex receiver and get stations within 600 miles on a loud-speaker and can hear stations all over the United States with headphones. Would it be possible to add an independent single stage of audio frequency amplification to this set, to be cut in with phone jack? Would it increase the range and volume enough to warrant making it? E. E. C.

A. Suggest two stages of radio frequency. This should give a coast-to-coast loud-speaker range under favorable atmospherical conditions.

Q. What is the proper ratio of audio frequency transformers to use in a two-stage amplifier for a neutrodyne set? K. C. P.

A. Six or nine to one in the first stage, three or five to one in second stage.

Q. What training is necessary to qualify for a radio broadcasting position and what is the salary? I am taking a correspondence course and am very anxious to find a position. Where could I apply for a position? A. W. B.

A. In order to operate a broadcast transmitter a radio operator's license must be taken out. This is only granted after the applicant passes the examination given by the Government at any one of the nine radio districts. It would be advisable to take a course at one of the eastern radio schools which specializes in training students for the examination. After the license is obtained some schools make an effort to locate jobs for their graduates. There is no fixed salary.

Q. (1) How is a loading coil connected? (2) Can a loop aerial be used with a regenerative set? If not, what is necessary to use a loop aerial with a regenerative set? (3) What is the best moderate priced loud speaker on the market? L. F.

A. (1) Disconnect the aerial from the set and connect it to one binding post of the loading-coil. From the other binding post of the loading coil attach a wire to the binding post of the set which originally was connected to the aerial. (2) Only for listening to local stations. For distance, one, two or three stages of radio frequency are required. (3) We do not supply information of this kind. The "best" instrument or piece of apparatus is entirely a matter of personal opinion. Consult dealers whose advertisements appear elsewhere on this page.

Q. Where is station WRAO and what is its transmitting wave length? E. S. W.

A. Radio Service Co., 1211 Hodiamont avenue, St. Louis. Wavelength, 360 meters.

Q. Please tell me what is wrong with my receiver. When I plug the headphone connector in the first stage of my two-step amplifier, signals are loud and clear, but in the second stage, there is only a loud hum. I use a UV-200 for detector and two "A" tubes as amplifiers. It is a regenerative receiver with a wave length range of 175-3000 meters.

A. Test your "B" batteries, although it is more than likely that the trouble may be traced to an open circuit. Inspect the jack of the second stage amplifier. Look over all connections from the first-stage jack to the jack of the second step.

Q. (1) Please advise what tubes may be used in a Magnavox three-stage power amplifier. I am particularly interested in tubes which consume a minimum of current and function with a plate voltage less than 100. (2) Have you had any experience with the new De Forest power amplifier tube which consumes .3 amperes? (3) What size and ratio transformer should be used for amplification between the receiver and a power amplifier. H. D. T.

A. The "A" type of 5-volt tubes which consume ¼ ampere should exactly serve the purpose. (2) We have conducted no experiments with the tube you mention. (3) 7 or 9-1 ratio in the first stage and 3 or 5-1 ratio in the second stage of a two-step amplifier.

For the Notebook.

A file is the best tool with which to clean a pipe of paint, gilt and corroded surface.

It does not require a technical education to operate a receiving set. A little patience and practice are all that is required.

Never mount transformers too close together. Close mountings often cause squealing and howling in the headphones of loud speaker.

A separate "B" battery, on the third step of radio frequency amplification, will often eliminate the squeal when using three stages.

In regenerative sets, begin tuning for the station with regeneration at zero, and when the station is heard increase regeneration until the signal is at its loudest.

Radiograms.

The American Radio Association, a new national organization, was recently formed in New York, designed to be for radio fans what the American Automobile Association is for motorists.

Four radiophone transmitting stations will be installed in Brazil for the purpose of broadcasting notices of general interest, concerts and conferences. The stations will be located in Bahia, Pernambuco, Sao Paulo and Bello Horizonte.

There are 21,967 radio transmitting stations of all kinds in the United States. This includes amateur stations, ship stations, transatlantic stations, broadcasting stations and all other kinds of stations transmitted.

The Illinois State Teachers' Association plans to bring the school children of the State into one class by radio. The association recently appropriated $10,000 to establish a central office, part of the duties of which will be to arrange for the radio lessons to be broadcast by a powerful station in Chicago. A number of schools are already equipped with receiving sets, and others will be installed before the lectures are sent out regularly. It is pointed out that this radio system will enable the State's children, sitting at their schoolroom desks, to hear lectures by statesmen, authors, artists and engineers visiting Illinois.

The velocity of radio waves is the same as light—186,000 miles a second—and this is equivalent to 300,000,000 meters a second.

FARMERS USE RADIO TO GET MARKET TIPS

Listening-In Enables Producers to Find Where Highest Prices Are Paid.

Most radio fans find that their radio sets pay dividends in entertainment and instruction but the farmer who tunes in stations sending out produce market reports is in a preferred position. The farmer, on occasion, may turn radio market information into cash and make such information pay him dividends on his set. One such farmer is reported by F. R. Cozzens, of Roxbury, Ohio, in the Southern Ruralist, recently:

John Weldon, a farmer of my vicinity, recently got a tip from the air which yielded him $19.60. The "tip" was an unexpected raise in the live stock market, coming at a time when Weldon was preparing to sell a shipment of hogs to a local buyer.

As a result, he got in touch with the city market and $19.60 was his profit over the local buyer's quotations, after all shipping expenses were paid.

This was not a streak of luck, however, for Weldon gets such tips frequently, and they are a part of his plan for making his radio pay its way.

"When I installed my outfit in 1922, I determined to get something from the air besides music," Weldon told me, recently. "I could receive reports from two large city markets, and a number of smaller ones; and to keep tab on these I bought a ledger.

"At the top of each blank page, I wrote down the city in which the market was located and names of the principal dealers therein, with their addresses. This book is kept on the table where the radio is located, and when I have something to market I get in touch with one of these cities, and write down quotations as I receive them. Then I 'tune-in' for another city, and get their prices. Afterward, I go over these reports and compare them.

"It is a simple matter then, to estimate distance, shipping cost, etc., and from this, I can select my market.

"Dealers in these cities are aware of my method, and I have made arrangements with them by letter to accommodate my shipments at any time. This not only applies to livestock, but to poultry, eggs and butter. The latter articles are shipped by parcel post the morning after the quotations are received.

"I have a wide range of markets to select from, where formerly I was compelled to depend upon a local buyer's quotations, or those in the newspaper, which were always two days late.

"And the radio offers another advantage: By getting weather reports and crop conditions from different parts of the country, I can guess pretty accurately the trend of the market.

"From the news reports, I learn beforehand about railroad strikes, freight tieups, grain pools, and many other conditions which are likely to affect the price of products grown on my farm. I have a ledger filled with information of this sort, and it has become a habit with me to keep it open for new 'tips' whenever an evening's program is broadcast.

"It is not difficult to make a radio pay dividends when rightly handled, and scarcely a week passes without my outfit yielding me something of value."

GOVERNMENT WILL NOT REGULATE PROGRAMS

Department of Commerce Not Responsible for Broadcast Programs, Says Hoover.

(Copyright, 1924.)

Secretary of Commerce Hoover, emperor of the ether, desires to warn the radio audience of America once more that the Department of Commerce in its regulation of the roads in the air cannot and will not attempt to regulate the programs sent out by broadcasting stations. The department's only concern is to see that there is no attempt to suppress free speech, no attempt to monopolize the wave lengths, and that the air above the United States shall be as free as the seas which sweep the shores.

It was stated recently that the Chicago office of the Department of Commerce was being bombarded by the radio fans. The mail there is nothing compared to the inflow in Washington at the head of Government. Some of the communications come from abroad. One man down in Havana has written Mr. Hoover bitterly complaining that he gets nothing but Protestant sermons from the United States on Sunday.

There are thousands of complaints against too much jazz in the musical programs, too much dance music, and, as the Germans complain, too little of Beethoven. Almost as many protests come in against attempts to "bore" the invisible audience with classical music. One writer said it was all wrong for a military band to give itself over to a whole reproduction of the score of "Faust." Some writers complain about the serious speeches and others about the frivolous ones. Some complaints even are leveled against the new gentry of the land, the Chesterfieldian announcers.

"Some of the writers complain about static," said Mr. Hoover, and all of them complain about interference.

Much of this interference comes, of course, from receiving sets which generate waves of their own. Mr. Hoover feels that this class of interference will be thoroughly asborbed in time and will no longer be a source of complaint. He sees no hope, however, of shutting off the other complaints which come pouring in, even if he is repeating the warning that the department is not responsible for the private programs and never, so long as he has any say in the matter, will ever offer any Government program of entertainment. For a long time William Jennings Bryan has been urging that the Goevrnment issue a newspaper and feels that he worked out a plan to make such a publication nonpartisan, or at least by-partisan. Mr. Hoover does not desire to undertake the work of "editing" a Government broadcasting program. So, for many months to come, if not for years, the Government will confine itself to time signals, weather reports and other useful but inane information.

A great many of the letters received at the Department of Commerce demand to know how in the name of all that is just and right the Government fixes up such crazy calls for broadcasting stations. It was claimed that some of the code words used in the Ned McLean Palm Beach telegrams recently unearthed looked more like the names of broadcasting stations than anything else in the world. Which was a way of saying the names seemed crazy to most of the folks who read them.

'COMMUNICATION' IS NEW COURSE AT YALE

First Lecture Delivered Before Students of Sheffield Scientific School.

One of the first lectures before the students of the Sheffield Scientific School in Yale's communication course, was on "Naval, National and International Communications," delivered by Commander D. C. Bingham, U. S. N., assistant chief of naval communications. The lecture was one of a course established by the electrical department, through the aid of Dr. Lee de Forest, for graduate and advance students.

Referring to the problems confronting a commander-in-chief in war, Commander Bingham said that naval officers likened them to those of diplomats and lawyers opposing each other. In all cases the parties opposed must meet and overcome the efforts of the others whose resources, intentions and strength are unknown. To do this, information is necessary, and this information is only secured through communications. Financial interests are continually striving through communication facilities to gather all the information available on the money market, he explained, and a similar method is employed by armies and fleets.

In the days of wooden fleets and short-range guns, an entire engagement could be fought under the eye of the Commander-in-Chief, whereas today, with hundreds of ships in the air, on the surface and beneath the sea, the Commander sees comparatively little, and, with smoke screens, he may not be able to see any of his units. "Thus victory may easily and probably will fall to him who has the better communications," he explained.

The navy recognized the value of radio in 1899, when Marconi came to New York with three radio sets to aid in reporting the yacht races between the Shamrock and the Columbia, the speaker recalled. Four naval officers observed the operation of the sets, and a short time later the battleship Massachusetts, the cruiser New York and the torpedo boat Porter were placed at the disposal of Mr. Marconi and an experimental shore station was established at Highland Lights.

Today the navy's communication system represents an investment of $15,000,000 and includes nine high-powered, long range stations, together with 71 medium and low powered stations, and 45 compass stations, operated by 70 officers and 1167 men.

Washington, Commander Bingham said, was the center of all governmental radio in this country. From there, the President could be in constant touch with all functions naval, military and diplomatic. The functions of army and navy communication services have been outlined as follows, he stated:

The navy's interest is essentially with ships at sea, overseas communications and with our possessions and the Canal, and along the coasts. The army, through the Signal Corps, maintains communication between military units in the interior of the country and in Alaska, and with such forces of the army as may operate ashore outside the continental United States.

Under the national phase of communications, the Commander mentioned the importance of daily communications on which time, news, foreign events, diplomacy and many things depended. Our outstanding national policy, never definitely declared, he believes is the desire of the people for the maximum of service rendered by

Department of Commerce Not Responsible for Broadcast Programs, Says Hoover.

(Copyright, 1924.)

Secretary of Commerce Hoover, emperor of the ether, desires to warn the radio audience of America once more that the Department of Commerce in its regulation of the roads in the air cannot and will not attempt to regulate the programs sent out by broadcasting stations. The department's only concern is to see that there is no attempt to suppress free speech, no attempt to monopolize the wave lengths, and that the air above the United States shall be as free as the seas which sweep the shores.

It was stated recently that the Chicago office of the Department of Commerce was being bombarded by the radio fans. The mail there is nothing compared to the inflow in Washington at the head of Government. Some of the communications come from abroad. One man down in Havana has written Mr. Hoover bitterly complaining that he gets nothing but Protestant sermons from the United States on Sunday.

There are thousands of complaints against too much jazz in the musical programs, too much dance music, and, as the Germans complain, too little of Beethoven. Almost as many protests come in against attempts to "bore" the invisible audience with classical music. One writer said it was all wrong for a military band to give itself over to a whole reproduction of the score of "Faust." Some writers complain about the serious speeches and others about the frivolous ones. Some complaints even are leveled against the new gentry of the land, the Chesterfieldian announcers.

"Some of the writers complain about static," said Mr. Hoover, and all of them complain about interference.

Much of this interference comes, of course, from receiving sets which generate waves of their own. Mr. Hoover feels that this class of interference will be thoroughly asborbed in time and will no longer be a source of complaint. He sees no hope, however, of shutting off the other complaints which come pouring in, even if he is repeating the warning that the department is not responsible for the private programs and never, so long as he has any say in the matter, will ever offer any Government program of entertainment. For a long time William Jennings Bryan has been urging that the Goevrnment issue a newspaper, and feels that he worked out a plan to make such a publication nonpartisan, or at least by-partisan. Mr. Hoover does not desire to undertake the work of "editing" a Government broadcasting program. So, for many months to come, if not for years, the Government will confine itself to time signals, weather reports and other useful but inane information.

A great many of the letters received at the Department of Commerce demand to know how in the name of all that is just and right the Government fixes up such crazy calls for broadcasting stations. It was claimed that some of the code words used in the Ned McLean Palm Beach telegrams recently unearthed looked more like the names of broadcasting stations than anything else in the world. Which was a way of saying the names seemed crazy to most of the folks who read them.

An Efficiency Tip.

Careful inspection of tube socket springs and binding posts before they are placed in the set will frequently save a lot of trouble later. If the springs do not make good contact to the tube prongs, it is hard to alter them after the socket is installed. If binding posts are loose and "go bad" while the set is being wired, it means a lot of delay to take out the sockets and tighten them.

Make Advances Gradually.

Before experimenting with every new hook-up that is published, an amateur should stick to the old set and try to make it as near perfect as possible. Go over the old set carefully for wire spacing, eliminate capacity effects by changing the wires to run at right angles, check up and fasten every connection, test out each instrument. The chances are that the set will be all that is desired. This perfecting process will teach lessons never to be forgotten. When the next set is undertaken, a better set will be the result.

Importance of Good Lead-In.

Always arrange for a good lead-in when putting up an aerial; never let it touch any metal. This means the cornice around the edge of the roof, the metal window screens, or weather strip, or any other metal. Even if it is insulated there will be a leakage here, and trouble will surely result. It usually manifests itself by constant whistling and inability to "clear up" a station altogether.

KSD TO BROADCAST RELIGIOUS SERVICES

"Tre Ore" and "The Seven Last Words" to Be Sent Out Good Friday.

Good Friday will be observed at Station KSD by the broadcasting of two solemn religious services, one from a Catholic church and the other from a Protestant church. Though set to different music the services will have the same basic subject, and for the most part the same words will be sung by the respective choirs.

The first of these will be the Three Hours' Agony, known in the church calendar as "Tre Ore," presented at the Church of St. Francis Xavier on Lindell and Grand boulevards and will begin at 12 noon. The service will last three hours and will be conducted by the Rev. J. J. O'Bryan, S. J., pastor of the church, and the Rev. W. J. Finan, S. J., of Loyola University of Chicago. Father O'Bryan will read the prayers and the Scripture and Father Finan will present the short discourses in which each of the seven last words spoken by Jesus on the Cross will be explained. The music of this service will be "The Seven Last Words" by Dubois and will be rendered by a chorus choir of 80 voices with Mrs. Frank Hawley, soprano; Lawrence Miller, tenor, and James Clark, baritone. George T. Devereux, professor of music at St. Louis University, will direct the choir. Other music which will be sung by the scholastic choir of St. Louis University in the sanctuary of the church will be under the direction of the Rev. A. S. Demichino, S. J., of St. Louis University.

The second service will take place at Christ Church (Episcopal) Cathedral on Locust and Thirteenth streets at 8 p. m. and, like that of the St. Francis Xavier Church, will be broadcast direct from the church. This will be music entirely. The Mercadante composition "The Seven Last Words of Jesus" will be presented by a male choir of 40 voices with a double quartet of soloists, chief of whom will be Chester Merton, tenor, and Lester Cash, basso. This service will be directed by Arthur Davis, organist and choir master at the Cathedral.

Station KSD will not broadcast any Easter music on Easter Sunday but will remain silent on that day.

A Suggestion.

Before winding a coil with white covered wire wash your hands and put some ordinary talcum powder on them. This will prevent the covering on the wire from becoming soiled from perspiration on the hands, and the coil will be more efficient electrically.

Storage Battery Lore.

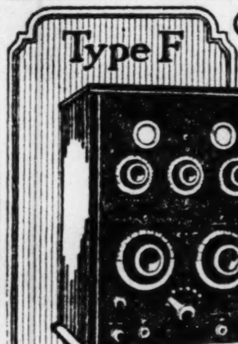
When charging a storage battery, it is always best to remove vent caps. This will allow the generated hydrogen to escape. This is not always necessary, however, if the battery is charged at a low rate, say three or four amperes an hour, because the chemical action will not take place so rapidly.

About Tubes.

There are no two tubes alike and for this reason, they should be shifted around until the proper combination is had. Sometimes one tube will work better in the first stage than it will in the second, and so on throughout the set. Try switching them around.

Importance of Direction Sheets.

Never throw away the instruction sheets or booklets that come with the set and tubes. Read all such material carefully. If the direction sheets are lost, write to the dealer or manufacturer for more. These sheets answer many of the questions which have been puzzling and preventing you from getting the best out of your set.



Type F

The Air-Way

Wonder Set of Radio

"Getting Pacific coast stations strong with loud speaker on type F," writes E. S. White, Lowell, Mich. "Heard concerts from Havana, Cuba; Fort Worth, Texas; Atlanta, on a loud speaker." Austin Rhemer writes from Chicago. W. E. Culver, Savannah, Ga., says, "I get stations from all over the country loud and clearly." "Picked up 72 stations—ten in Canada, and get them back any time I want them," writes Jas. Berne, Aberdeen, So. Dak. Like this hundreds certify the genuine quality and perfect performance of Air-Way—a radio set built to represent the highest quality, and offered at nominal and fair price.

Four Tube—(Loud Speaker Set)

Guaranteed Under Seal

This is not a "cheap" or "bargain" set. Only the finest quality instruments are used. Employs the reliable tuned radio frequency circuit with one step radio frequency, detector, and two steps of audio. Capable of coast to coast reception and use of any loud speaker to its full efficiency. Reproduces in loud, clear, melodious tone. Critical—selective. Recording position of controls for any station enables resetting at same position to bring station back. Quiet in operation, simple to tune. Furnished in beautiful Mahogany finished cabinet. The Coach is Exclusive to Hudson and Essex

The Coach is a Hudson-Essex invention. No other type and no other car gives closed car comforts at open car cost.

The Coach costs but little more than the open models of either Hudson or Essex. The extra cost of closed models on other cars is from $300 up, even on the lowest priced cars. More than 125,000 Coaches are in service. Sales exceed 3,000 every week. Everyone prefers a closed car. The Coach alone is the quality car within the reach of all. No wonder the Coach on Hudson and Essex is the world's largest selling six-cylinder closed car.

It Is the Car for Everyone

In two and one-half years the Coach has proved a staunchness and reliability never before associated with a closed car. In all service in every part of the world it satisfies the pride of ownership. It gives all the utility you get in any closed car. No one who knows will be content with anything less than closed car comforts, and the Coach alone gives those comforts at open car cost.

Hudson and Essex Are of one Quality

Both are the creations of the same engineers. They are built in the same shops by the same workmen under the same patents. There is no difference in quality of material or workmanship.

The price you want to pay for a car will decide whether it shall be a Hudson or Essex. The closed car advantages of the Coach and its price leave no other consideration.

The Evidence Detroit Gives

Sales leadership in Detroit is a far more important endorsement than its similar position elsewhere. For motor car values are better understood than anywhere else in the world.

More than 200,000 Detroit automobile workers know the inside of every automobile success. They appraise values as experts. They buy the cars they believe in.

For three successive months Hudson-Essex sales in Detroit and throughout Michigan have outnumbered any other makes with the exception of two widely known low-priced four-cylinder cars.

This unanswerable evidence is proof of what the most critical and best informed group of motor buyers in the world think of Hudson and Essex.

The cars they buy are the cars it is safe for you to buy.

Hudson and Essex Are of One Quality

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO BUYERS:

The remarkable value offered in Hudson and Essex is matched by the astonishingly low parts prices and the progressive service policy that keeps maintenance down to a minimum. Be sure and get parts price list from your dealer.

Wedding and Several Engagements Help Brighten Dull Week

Marriage of Miss Lillian Walsh to David Curlender of Calcutta, India, Among Them; Betrothals of Misses Hazel Down and Helen Wynn Announced.

A WEDDING or two, with a number of engagements, all of more or less social importance, served to alleviate the dullness last week. Lilies of the creamy Easter variety were a dominant note in the wedding last night of Miss Lillian Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Walsh of 5959 West Cabanne place, and David Curlender of Calcutta, India, which took place in the home of the bride's parents, the Rev. Robert Hall Atchison of St. George's Church officiating. Clusters of them combined with smilax gave a background for the bridal party in the drawing room and were used as a centerpiece on the reception table, and the bride, in her shimmering gown of silver brocade on white crepe, carried a loose arm bouquet of the same flowers. Quantities of old family rose point lace adorned the gown. There were cascades down one side, and a five-yard court train fashioned entirely of the lace and lined with silver cloth. She wore her tulle veil fastened beneath a lace coronet, and for her only jewelry a string of her mother's pearls. Miss Grace Pollard Walsh, her sister's maid of honor, was gowned in metallic cloth with a greenish tinge lent by underslips of green georgette. The bridesmaids, Misses Anita Page Weakley and Ruth Boulden, wore rose chiffon and carried roses to match, with silver slippers and hose. Long narrow trains adorned the long-waisted skirts. They wore pearls, the gift of the bride, wound high on their arms. Robert Pollard Walsh was best man, and Siantiago Lopez, groomsman.

The present plans of Mr. and Mrs. Curlender have not been made known, although they will depart soon for two years of travel in

Next Few Days to Be Filled With Plans For Little Season

Remainder of Lenten Period Takes on Appearance of a "Breathless Pause" Before an Exciting Event — Some Are Not Delaying Parties Until Easter.

SOCIETY will have a week of preparation before launching into the little social season, which begins at Easter and continues until midsummer heat ends all but the most informal entertaining and cool resorts prove the greatest attraction. Between its devotions during Holy week, however, there is the wardrobe to replenish, the Easter frills to add, invitation lists to make up and cards to send. The next few days might be termed a "breathless pause" before an exciting happening.

A few parties are not waiting for Easter. Tomorrow Mrs. Paul Bakewell Jr. will have a luncheon at the St. Louis Country Club in honor of Mrs. George Walton Connell of Chicago, who is visiting her mother, Mrs. John Morrison-Fuller of the Buckingham Hotel, and in the afternoon Mrs. Herbert Lawrence Parker will be hostess at a tea at her home in Washington terrace, when her daughter, Mrs. William Scott Snead of Montclair, N. J., and her future daughter-in-law, Miss Marie de Assern of New York, King Parker's fiancee, will share honors.

Mrs. George R. Wendling, whose parties are always particularly successful, is planning a dance for her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Leib of California, who will arrive here within a fortnight. And then there is a dinner dance, both Tuesday and Saturday evenings of next week, at Bellerive Country Club, when the members and their guests will celebrate the opening of the new rooms of the club house.

At the St. Louis Woman's Club, April 22, Mrs. Frank Low of Waterman avenue will give a farewell luncheon in honor of Miss Grace Bell and Mrs. J. W. Jacobs, who will sail May 21 for a four months' tour of Italy, France, Sicily and England.

Invitations will be out tomorrow for the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Niedringhaus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Niedringhaus, and Frank Overton Watts Jr. and festivities incident to the ceremony are being planned. Miss Madeleine Janes will have a bridge luncheon for the bride-elect Saturday at the Gatesworth, and Miss Audrey Wrape has arranged a similar affair.

Mrs. Dutro Plumb of Fairfield, Conn., and her small daughter, Mary Dutro, are visiting the former's mother, Mrs. Frederick C. Bonsack Sr., of the Forest Park Hotel. Mrs. Plumb was Miss Helen Bonsack. They arrived Wednesday, and will remain another week.

Miss Helen Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lockett Edwards of Kansas City, Mo., formerly of St. Louis, will arrive here Thursday and will visit her sister, Mrs. Charles Harold McCrea, 726 Kingsland avenue, for several days. Miss Mildred Edwards will be here next week to remain for the wedding of Miss Marjorie Livingston and William B. Robertson, when she will be bridesmaid. Mrs. Edwards is visiting Mr. and Mrs. McCrea and their infant daughter over this week-end.

Another visitor is Miss Polly Wyles of Highland Park, Ill., who is the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Dudley French, Lenox place. Miss Wyles' engagement to Dr. Anthony Bigelow Day was announced recently.

The national conference of the Junior League will be held in Denver, Col., May 7 to 9, inclusive. Mrs. Walter Fischel, president of the St. Louis chapter, will go as special delegate, with Mrs. Marion Clifford Blossom, Mrs. Robert Holland and Miss Annie Laurie Warmack, delegates, Miss Mary Denman Clark and Elizabeth Luyties plan to attend. The annual election of officers in the St. Louis branch will take place the middle of May.

Chancellor and Mrs. Frederic A. Hall have returned from a winter's sojourn in California, and have opened their home at 5842 Julian avenue.

Miss Clara Leete, who has been the guest for several weeks of Mrs. Guthrie McConnell, 4748 Westminster place, departed Friday night for Santa Fe, N. M., where she will be at La Casa Encantada for an indefinite period. Her sister, Miss Louisa Leete, has been for a month at Hotel Argyle, San Antonio, Tex. She has friends in San Antonio and will remain there for some weeks longer.

Miss Mary Christy Tiffany, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Tiffany of Hortense place, will entertain Miss Virginia Pratt of New York, a debutante there this season. She will arrive the last of the month for a fortnight.

Mrs. Lon V. Stephens of 5836 Cabanne avenue, and her niece, Mrs. Scott Heuer, have returned from a winter's stay in Palm Beach, Fla. Mrs. Stephens' sister, Mrs. C. E. Leonard of Boonville, Mo., accompanied her home and will be her guest for 10 days.

Miss Mary O'Fallon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. O'Fallon of Pershing avenue, will return home from Norfolk, Va., about May 1, accompanied by her aunt, Miss Ethel O'Fallon, whom she has visited, and Miss Julia Grandy of Norfolk, who will be her guest for several weeks. Miss O'Fallon will visit her sister, Mrs. C. Hunt Turner Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira E. Wight of the Kingsbury apartments have returned from a ranch near Tucson, Ariz. They will spend the summer at Estes Park, Colo., where they will have a cottage.

Juniors of St. Louis U. School of Medicine to Give Prom May 1

About 600 Persons Expected at Hotel Chase Affair — Faculty and Graduating Class to Be Guests of Honor.

THE patrons and students of St. Louis University School of Medicine are interested in the annual prom of the Junior Class, to be given this year the evening of May 1 at Hotel Chase. The faculty of the Medical School and its graduating class will be the honor guests, and they, with the other students and young women invited, will total almost 600. The custom of giving a Junior prom was inaugurated in 1850 at the old Union Club, and continued later at the Planters Hotel. The arrangements each year have become more elaborate, until it is now looked upon as one of the chief functions sponsored by the school.

The hosts and hostesses of the occasion will be Mr. and Mrs. Festus J. Wade, Dr. and Mrs. Hanau W. Loeb, Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Neilson, Dr. and Mrs. William L. Clapper, Maj. and Mrs. Val. E. Miltenberger, Dr. and Mrs. Irving H. Boemer, Dr. and Mrs. Don R. Joseph, Dr. and Mrs. William W. Graves, Dr. and Mrs. William Engelbach, Dr. William T. Coughlin, Dr. and Mrs. John L. Tierney, Dr. and Mrs. Fred W. Bailey, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Thompson, Dr. and Mrs. George Gellhorn, Dr. and Mrs. Horace E. Happel, Dr. and Mrs. William H. Vogt, Dr. and Mrs. Augustus G. Pohlman, Dr. and Mrs. Cyrus E. Burford, Dr. and Mrs. Frank J. Tainter, Dr. David H. Dolley, Dr. and Mrs. James F. McFadden, Dr. Daniel Schoemaker, Dr. and Mrs. Moyer S. Fleisher, Dr. and Mrs. John Auer, Dr. and Mrs. Edward A. Doisy, Dr. and Mrs. Fred W. Jones, Dr. and Mrs. Alphonse J. Raemdonck, Dr. and Mrs. Solomon A. Weintraub, Dr. and Mrs. Jacob E. Thomas, Dr. and Mrs. Alfred O. Shaklee, Dr. and Mrs. Albert Kuntz, Dr. and Mrs. Emmett P. North and Dr. and Mrs. Harvey S. McKay.

The annual luncheon of the Missouri Association for Occupational Therapy will be held at noon Monday, April 28, at the Hotel Statler, and the guest of honor and speaker will be Miss Jane Neil, well known educator of Chicago. The luncheon will be open to all interested, and among the hostesses will be Mmes. Elias Michael, G. O. Carpenter, S. L. Swarts, Isaac Morton, Thomas Akin, Arthur Rice, Max Kotany, Marion C. Blossom, William A. Stickney, George S. Levis, I. Kline, B. S. Lang, W. C. Wissmath, Albert Stix, Irvin Bettmann, Charles Ellis, P. A. Harris, Arthur Proetz, and Misses Geraldine Lermit, Eunice Smith and Carlota Glasgow.

WEDDINGS AND SEVERAL ENGAGEMENTS HELP BRIGHTEN DULL WEEK

Europe before going to London to make their home.

Announcement is made today of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Hazel Georgene Down, daughter of George L. Down of Waterman avenue, and William Warner of Philadelphia. The ceremony is set for 8:30 o'clock the evening of April 28 at the home of the bride's father. Although Mr. Warner has been in St. Louis a number of times in the past year or two, friends were not aware of an engagement. Miss Down is a graduate of Lenox Hall. Mr. Warner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Warner of Melrose Park, Philadelphia. He is an alumnus of the University of Pennsylvania, and a member of the Philadelphia Country Club and the Marion Cricket Club there.

The attendants at the ceremony will be Miss Marcella Down, who will be her sister's maid of honor, Harry P. Greibe Jr., of Philadelphia, best man, and Betty Jane Reinert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Reinert, flower girl. The Rev. Dr. Porter of the Third Baptist Churhc will officiate. Mr. and Mrs. Warner and their daughter, Miss Mildred, of Philadelphia, and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Harrington of Kansas City, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, will be in St. Louis for the ceremony. Dinner parties for the bridal pair will be given next week by Mr. and Mrs. George Dorrill and Mr. and Mrs. Reinert.

The betrothal of Miss Helen Lanier Wynn, daughter of Mrs. Laura Wynn of Huntsville, Ala., and Joseph O. Rand of Hotel Chase, has been known here. The wedding will take place May 15 in the First Methodist Church in Huntsville, and a party of St. Louis friends of the bridegroom will go South for the ceremony. Four St. Louis men will be in the wedding party—Glenn Rule, best man; and Messrs. Roy Kercheval, Harold Jolley and Blair Abbott, groomsmen.

Miss Wynn is a graduate of Buford College in Nashville, and the Washington College in Nashville. Mr. Rand is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Rand of Huntsville. He is a member of Bellerive, North Hills and Sunset Hill Country clubs and the City Club.

The weeks' news also brought the engagement of Miss Marion Lane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Lane of the Chester apartments, and Myles Hasgall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Hasgall of Hotel Chase. The news was told at an elaborate luncheon given by Miss Frances Bradshaw in honor of the bride-elect. Announcement was made Monday of the engagement of Miss Margaret Defiel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Defiel of Minneapolis, and William Dougherty Holmes Huttig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Huttig of Kansas City, and nephew of the late Charles H. Huttig of St. Louis.

Miss Eleanor Stanard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Stanard of Brentmoor, has chosen June 4 as the date of her wedding to Lansden McCandless, son of Dr. and Mrs. William A. McCandless. The ceremony will take place at the Stanard home at 5:30 o'clock. Mrs. Joseph Ramsey Brown, Mrs. Humphrey Gifford, Mrs. O'Neill Ryan Jr., Mrs. Arthur Kendall and Miss Katherine Hurley of Tacoma, Wash., will be the bride's attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lawrence Platt of 5671 Cates avenue announce the marriage of their Daughter, Miss Dorothy Dunlop Platt to Reid A. Burtnett on Thursday, April 10. The ceremony was performed at noon in the Church of the Ascension by the Rev. John S. Bunting in the presence of the immediate families. The couple were attended by Miss Florence Lucille Platt, sister of the bride, and Walter L. Crutcher of Springfield, Mo. After a short honeymoon they will be at home at 625 Fair Oaks avenue, Webster Groves.

The bride is a granddaughter of the late Henry S. Platt, founder of the firm of Platt & Thornbourgh. Mr. Burtnett is the son of Mrs. Luella N. Burtnett of Chicago, Ill. He is a graduate of the University of Illinois.

Miss Peyton Hawes, daughter of Congressman and Mrs. Harry B. Hawes of Vandeventer place, won an oil painting donated by Edmund H. Wuerpel at the jitney carnival given a week ago by the women of Washington University for the building fund being created by them to construct a women's building.

Mr. and Mrs. Sigmond Baer of 5314 Waterman avenue will leave soon for Atlantic City, where they will spend Easter Sunday and from there will go to New York.

Richard W. Shapleigh, with William G. Yantis and a party of friends, are cruising from New Orleans to New York. They will also visit in Atlantic City, returning home in three weeks. Mr. Shapleigh's daughter, Mrs. Leo de Smet Carton of 5257 Waterman avenue, received a radiogram from him yesterday sent from the steamer Creole.

M'ADOO DIFFERS WITH NEFF

Says Uninstructed Delegation in Texas Might Aid Reactionaries.

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 12.—William McAdoo, candidate for the Democratic nomination for President, in an address here yesterday took issue with Gov. Neff on the question of an instructed Texas delegation to the Democratic national convention. McAdoo expressed "profound regret" that the Governor favored an uninstructed delegation and declared that only by instructing its delegates could Texas obtain the nomination of a "progressive Democrat."

"I feel that Gov. Neff and I have the same objective in the fight we are making for progressive democracy," said Mr. McAdoo, "but I am convinced that the course he proposes might contribute to a victory of the reactionary and wet elements of the Democratic party."

Archbishop Zepliak at Riga.

LONDON, April 12.—Archbishop Zepliak, head of the Roman Catholic church in Russia, released from prison by the soviet authorities, arrived at Riga, Esthonia, yesterday in an exhausted condition, according to the correspondent of the Daily Mail. The prelate was in prison a year after his condemnation to death and subsequent reprieve on charges of resisting the bolshevik government.

Report Against Rail Extensions.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—A recommendation that the Okmulgee Northern Railway Co. be denied permission to build two extensions totaling 50 miles was made in a preliminary report today by the Interstate Commerce Commission examiners. The commission itself will make the final decision.

Kitten on the Keys.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

COTTONWOOD FALLS, Kan.—Chase County's latest ghost story comes from Elmdale. Between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning a piano in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alf Dean burst out in uproarious strains, awakening the members of the family, who were asleep upstairs. Cautiously, Dean proceeded down the stair steps while the rest of the family shuddered at the discords. Throwing his flashlight upon the piano, Dean saw the family cat prancing up and down on the keyboard.

You'll Get Rid of Blackheads Sure

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads—that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

You'll Get Rid of Blackheads Sure

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads—that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

PARTIES OF INTEREST ON ST. LOUIS SOCIAL CALENDAR

formally Saturday afternoon, April 12, in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Jerome J. Friede of Texarkana, Tex., who with her small daughter, Joan May, will visit her parents for a few weeks.

The Beta Phi Sorority gave a bridge party Saturday afternoon at the Gatesworth Hotel. Some of the hostesses for the occasion were Misses Edith Covington, Martha Temple, Gene La Mothe, Helen Griffin, Peggy Williamson, Esther Langan, Margaret Williams, Alma Swaghert, Jeanne Mullery and Arline Tallon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Schmitt of 6254 Goener avenue gave a surprise party for their daughter, Miss Margaret, Saturday night, April 5, at which the twentieth birthday of the honor guest was celebrated. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Weltz and their small son, Fred; Misses Rose Armstrong, Rose Plague, Virginia Allan, Mizzouri Fohrman, Catherine Nolan, and Messrs. Robert and Tony Hermann, Maurice Perrie, Ed Plague, Adrian Paillou, Fred Gutsenmaker, Roland Pierce, Fred Reis and George Bunsmann. The evening was spent in games and dancing. Luncheon was served at midnight.

Miss Carolina L. Young of 3008 Chippewa street was hostess at a luncheon on April 3 in honor of Mrs. Joe Eye and daughter, Dorothy, of Pittsburg, who are here on a visit. The guests were Mmes. George Meyer, John Faudi, M. Steibel, A. Drees, O. Schnach, F. Christman, William Prohel, Arthur Bergermayer, Mrs. George Stephens and daughter, Rosemary, and F. W. Webold.

A card party will be given for the benefit of St. John's Clinical Dispensary at the Gatesworth Hotel, Union and Lindell boulevards, Saturday, May 24, at 2 o'clock p. m. Reservations may be made by calling Bomont 2825.

A little April shower was given last Saturday afternoon for Miss Babe Costello of 5576 Pershing avenue by Mrs. A. Wallace Gifford of 4009 Lindell boulevard. Miss Costello's marriage to James A. Butler of Leclede avenue is to take placet his month. Those present were: Misses Pauline Costello of Alton, Ill.; Mabel Kuring, Cecelia Dilenheim, Margaret Marker, Anne Byrnes, Virginia Green and Mrs. Wesley H. Becker.

Mrs. C. L. Davis and her young daughter, Miss Attilie, have returned to the Gatesworth Hotel after a winter in Palm Beach and Miami, Fla. Mrs. Davis entertained for her daughter yesterday.

The Dorcas Sewing Circle of the Independent Evangelical Protestant Church, Fair and Margaretta avenues, will give a card party tomorrow afternoon in the Sunday School auditorium.

The wedding of Miss Leanore Rosenthal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rosenthal of 1720 South Broadway, and Max Katz of 7501 South Broadway took place last Sunday evening at B'Nai Amoona Temple, Rabbis Halpern and La Bell officiating. The bride wore a gown of white satin made on simple lines and embroidered in seed pearls and sequins. She carried lilies of the valley. Mrs. Joe Sherberg was matron of honor; Misses Rose Bornstein, Bessie Rosenthal, Cecilia Weiner, Fay Fischer, bridesmaids; Samuel Rosenthal, David Kornbloom, Eli Gross and A. F. Gross, groomsmen; Ben Katz, best man; Edward Gross and Irving Greenberg, ushers; Sol Goffstein and Martin Daniel Israel, train-bearers; Leonard Katz, ring bearer, and Sylvia Israel, flower girl. Gold vanity cases and gold pens were the gifts of the bride and bridegroom to their attendants, and the bride received a string of pearls from her husband. A wedding dinner for 400 guests followed the ceremony, after which dancing was indulged in. The couple have departed on an Eastern honeymoon trip, including Washington, New York and Niagara Falls. The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. S. Spillman, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Blowitz and Miss Sarah Blowitz of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Cox of 4533 Labadie avenue celebrated their golden wedding last week. Mr. Cox is 74 years of age and his wife is seven years his junior. Mr. and Mrs. Cox have raised nine children, of whom five survive: William Cox of Kansas City, Kan.; Mrs. Ella E. French of the Labadie avenue address, Margaret Cox and Angela Cox of 3916 Sullivan avenue, and Miss Laura Cox of Paris

VARIED ACTIVITIES OF CLUBS IN CITY AND SUBURBS

A special business meeting of the College Club for consideration of matters concerning the National A. A. U. W. will be held at the Club House Tuesday, April 15. Mrs. W. M. C. Bryan will be hostess for the afternoon. Mrs. E. G. Curtis, Mrs. Oliver Johnson, Mrs. Park White and Miss Lucile Hanna will assist.

A vocational opportunties tea at which the girls of the St. Louis high schools will be guests will be given by the Vocational Opportunities Committee on Wednesday, April 16, at 3:30 o'clock. During the afternoon Mrs. Nelson Codding will speak on "Social Work," Mrs. Paul Davidson on "Journalism," and Miss Gertrude Miller on "Interior Decorating." The hostess for the afternoon will be Mrs. Leo Loeb, who will have members of the committee as her assistants.

The special study group on the elementary curriculum will meet Wednesday at 4 o'clock in the committee room. Mrs. Franklin Miller will discuss the revision of the curriculum.

The St. Louis Study Club met Monday, March 24, at the Forest Park Hotel with Mrs. C. G. Petrie as hostess; Mrs. Cora M. Femmer presided. Current events were discussed by Mrs. G. C. Trawick. Two papers of the afternoon were given: "Theodore Dreiser—Is He the Great American Novelist?" by Mrs. E. W. Mangson, and a book review on "The Financier" by Mrs. O. J. Barwick. An open discussion followed.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Whitton, 5167 Cabanne avenue, Monday, April 14.

The Good Will Club held its meeting at the Claridge Hotel. The following program was given:

"Summary of Previous Program," Mrs. Otto Vossmeyer; "A Thought of the Day," Mrs. W. P. Pirie; "Famous Men of China," Mrs. Will Wissmath; "Famous Women of China," Mrs. E. H. Loffhagan, and the next meeting will be April 14.

The St. Louis Lindenwood College Club will meet Tuesday at 2 o'clock at the Claridge Hotel. The hostesses will be Mmes. Edgar Blankenmeister, O. K. Sanders, Joseph W. White, Lorraine Bernero, R. Humphrey of Webster Groves and Miss Laura Ellwanger. The program will be given by pupils of the Morse School of Expression. Nomination of officers will take place.

The Sorority Circle will meet at the studio, 933 Hamilton avenue, Thursday, April 17, at 2 o'clock. Dr. W. L. Nelson will lecture on "Selection and Training of Children for Adaptation to Vocations in Life." There will be a demonstration by a group of pupils from the Central Institute for the Deaf, directed by Dr. Goldstein. Friends of the club are invited.

The St. Louis Lonely Club will give a leap year party at Westminster Hall Friday evening.

The St. Louis Section, Council of Jewish Women, will hold its next meeting at Temple Israel, April 14 at 3:30 p. m. Dr. A. G. Pohlman, professor of pathology at St. Louis University, will speak on "How Can We Prevent Diseases?" The council will hold its second evening meeting of the season at Temple Shaare Emeth April 23, at 8 p. m. Martin Brumbaugh, former Governor of Pennsylvania, will speak on "How Can We Lessen Immorality?"

The St. Louis Chapter, U. D. C., met Monday at the Fairmount Hotel with Mmes. Edwin B. Sherzer, John C. Vaughn, W. N. McConklin and Frederick Vierling as hostesses. Committee reports were heard. Vocal solos were given by Mrs. John E. Stokes. Mrs. Rutherford Cravens gave several readings and Miss Martha Ottofy a piano solo. The Confederate veterans were guests and were taken for an automobile ride.

The bi-monthly meeting of Chapter C. K., P. E. O., was held April 5 at the home of Mrs. J. D. Rohbaugh, 5018 Cabanne avenue, with Mrs. L. D. Jones assisting hostess. Representatives from other chapters were guests. Mrs. J. T. Stinson read a paper entitled "Missouri's Great Men." Mrs. Ed Teucher and Mrs. E. F. Randall gave readings.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. S. H. West, 5806 Waterman avenue, April 16. A rummage sale will be held by the chapter April 19, for which donations should be sent to Mrs. B. P. Scott, 5511 Clemens avenue. A special model meeting and initiation service was held April 2, when Mrs. McCutcheon, State organizer and inspector, was present.

Clarence Stratton, of Cleveland, formerly of St. Louis, will be the guest of the Town Club Saturday, April 19, at luncheon. Mr. Stratton will speak, his theme being "Some Comments on Things Dramatic." He formerly was connected with the public schools of this city and was a member of the Artists' Guild and Players. He has written several one-act plays, and is the author of "Producing in Little Theaters."

The Delphi Delphian Chapter met last Monday at Community Center, with the president, Mrs. F. L. Weinert, in the chair, and all officers present. The subject for discussion was "The Social Life of Rome," text reports being given as follows: "The Roman Family," Mrs L. Melsheimer; "Houses," Mrs. Bertha Voit; "Apparel and Food."

The next meeting will be on April 21, at 10 a. m., at the Art Museum. After visiting the Egyptian exhibit, the regular program for the day will be taken up.

Mrs. A. W. Wilcutts will be hostess to the members of the Ensee Study Circle tomorrow at 1 o'clock. Mrs. O. T. Johnson will read a paper on "American Harbors" and Mrs. James R. Booth will discuss the "Origin of the Baconian Theory of the Shakspearean Plays." Current events will constittue the roll call.

Miriam Lodge, No. 17, U. O. T. S., held its hospitality day Tuesday afternoon at the Wednesday Club. The program was furnished by members of the Miriam choral and dramatic clubs, under the direction of Mrs. McAdams and Prof. John Bohn, respectively. Each member was allowed one guest. The next meeting will be held at Harburger Hall April 22 and election of officers will take place.

The current topics section of the Monday Club of Webster Groves was hostess to the entire membership of the club last Monday afternoon. The Rev. Dr. Bradley spoke on "The Changes in Living Conditions in Europe and America." Mrs. Frank Peterson, soprano, and Mrs. Kenneth Coggeshall, pianist, gave three selections.

The history and literature section of the club met the same day. At a business meeting it voted to join the Shakspearean State Association and Mrs. Ernest Eikhoff was chosen representative to that organization. The program consisted of the reading and discussion of Richard III, followed by a talk on the character of Richmond by Mrs. D. P. Moore.

Dr. Cora Johnstone Best will address the Town Club on Tuesday, April 15, at 7:15 p. m. Her subject will be "Unblazed Trails and Shining Peaks." Mrs. Best and her private pack team traveled over the remote region of Palliser Pass, in Southwestern British Columbia, down the old Indian trail leading from the plains in Central Alberta to the Columbia River. Her lecture will be illustrated with pictures. Dinner will be served at 6 o'clock.

The regular meeting of the Earnest Endeavor Club, F. W.' C., was held in Vandervoort's committee room April 7. Mrs. Gordan L. Davis presided. Yearly reports were given after which the following officers were elected for the coming year: Mrs. Gordon L. Davis, president; Mrs. John S. Willson, first vice president; Mrs. John D. Hayward, second vice president; Mrs. F. J. Sternberg, recording secretary; Mrs. George E. Cook, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. A. Grosskroutz, treasurer, and Mrs. R. L. Sexton, auditor.

Committee reports were given by Mrs. J. A. Sublette, Mrs. Sexton, Mrs. George E. Cook, Mrs. J. A. Hayward read a report for the Educational Committee on Food Values. Mrs. C. L. Davis, a member of the Committee of Fifteen, reported on the progress of the plans for the new women's club building.

The Uandi Literary Club held its last regular meeting of the season Thursday afternoon, at the Forest Park Hotel, with Mrs. Oliver Blackinton, Mrs. John S. Schweitzer and Mrs. Felix Goerlich as hostesses. The topic for the afternoon's study was "Our Possessions." Mrs. A. B. Horton read a paper on Alaska. Mrs. George Hodgman's paper, read by Mrs. Herbert Boettler, was on "Our Islands."

Mrs. George Gephart sang a group of songs and Mrs. F. A. Clifford led a discussion on English, its uses and abuses. Mrs. John S. Payne, president of the Eighth District, M. F. W. C., who was a guest, made a short talk. She is soon to leave St. Louis to live in San Francisco. The annual business meeting and luncheon of Uandi will be at the Missouri Athletic Association April 24.

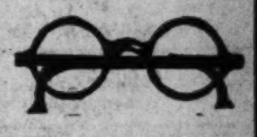
The Income Tax Is Abolished

This would be the most interesting and pleasing information that ever came from Washington, but unfortunately there is no more chance of such a thing happening than there is of people with defective vision being able to get along without glasses.

Dr. F. J. Guilbault

If you are suffering from eyestrain headaches, or from other annoyances of defective vision and fail to have your eyes tested, and get proper relief in the form of corrective glasses—you are simply kidding yourself. Sooner or later you will have to pay a heavy tax in the form of ill health, shattered nerve force and other equally disastrous conditions that are the inevitable penalties of neglected vision.



Twenty years' specialization, the highest degree of professional skill and a most conscientious attitude toward my life work, is your guarantee that the glasses which I furnish you will bring you complete relief from the evils of defective vision.

Eminently reasonably prices and thousands of satisfied clients are my two best advertisers.

See these lovely, low-priced woven rugs in the stores

WHAT is one to do? With several rugs to be bought, and only $25 or $35 to spend, must one be limited to inartistic floor coverings?

Indeed, no. Go to any of the better stores. Ask to see Kimlark Woven Rugs. They are lovely! Soft and smooth and pliant underfoot—beautiful in coloring—charming in design. They come in delightful patterns, suitable for every room in the house. You can even afford them for the porch.

They wear like iron; are easily cleaned; lie flat without curling or creeping; do not break when folded or twisted; are closely woven and free from harsh strands. And they are reversible, giving double the wear of ordinary rugs.

Dealers can show you Kimlark Woven Rugs. Or write for booklet and nearest dealer's name.

VARIED ACTIVITIES OF CLUBS IN CITY AND SUBURBS

Kline, president, met on April 3 at the home of Mrs. W. L. Mason, 5 Parkland place. Mrs. W. H. Silver was assisting hostess.

A program of readings was given by Miss Mary McIndoe and Miss Betsy Dee Mason, daughters of the hostess.

The second anniversary of the chapter will be observed with a luncheon at the Forest Park Hotel April 24. Mrs. A. C. Meyer is chairman of arrangements, assisted by Mrs. J. P. Higgins, Mrs. Geo. N. Martin, Mrs. John N. Lionberger, Mrs. J. B. Smythe, Mrs. E. G. Skillern and Mrs. O. S. Wilfley.

The Fortnightly Club of Kirkwood met at the home of Mrs. J. C. Hoester on Thursday afternoon, April 10. Mrs. William Conway read about "The Early Religion in the Ozarks," after which Mrs. Luther Armstrong gave a book review. Committee meetings were reported by the respective representatives.

The next meeting will be held April 24, at the home of Mrs. S. E. Jones. Miss Mary Lee will be assisting hostess.

The engagement of Miss Gertrude D. Gieselman, daughter of Mrs. Ida Gieselman of 6307 Isabella avenue, to Robert A. Eveson was announced Wednesday evening at a surprise birthday party given in her honor. The wedding will take place April 16. Miss Janice Smith played several selections on the saxophone, with the accompanying music by Miss Gieselman. The table was decorated in pink and white, with a rose centerpiece and individual sweet pea bouquets at each place. The guests were Misses Augusta Blanke, Tillie Earnstman, Lucille Keth, May Langenohl, Janice Smith, Mildred Keth, Ida Gieselman; Messrs. Clarence Keth and Tom Smith; Messrs. and Mmes. George Keth, W. Kerr, I. McClean and Stuart Gieselman and son.

Mrs. Jennie Marks of Fairfield, Ala., formerly o St. Louis, announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Vivian Marks, to Harold Herzberg of West Point, Ga. Mr. Herzberg is a graduate of Auburn University and a member of Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity. Miss Marks has spent much of her time for the past few years in Atlanta with her sister, Mrs. L. J. Kahn. Another sister, Mrs. D. Abrams, resides in the Georgian Court Apartments in St. Louis.

WALES SETS NEW STYLE FOR ENGLISH GOLFERS

Appears on Biarritz Links in Sweater Insted of Usual Coat.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, England, April 12.—One may safely surmise that British golfers will soon give up their custom of wearing coats while playing the ancient game and take up the American habit of substituting the less restrictive sweaters and jerseys.

The reson is this—the Prince of Wales has done it, and whatever he does is the thing that 'is done.' Heretofore he has always kept his coat on while playing golf and in consequence had almost everyone else doing the same, no matter what the weather.

This week there appeared in the newspapers photographs of the Prince golfing at Biarritz, in slacks and a sweater instead of the usual knickers and coat to match.

FEDERAL REPORT ON CONTROL OF WATERFRONT PROPERTIES

Document Prepared by Army Engineers for Protection of the Public.

A report on "Shore Control and Port Administration" has been published by the Chief of Engineers, U. S. Army, to give information for protection of the water front for the public.

The War Department's announcement states: "Recently there has been an increasing tendency toward public ownership and operation of water front properties, and the public is coming to a realization of the necessity of making the port an instrument of service to the people of the country as a whole, instead of merely an aggregation of the terminal properties of private corporations variously managed and operated."

Legal phases of port administration, jurisdiction, organization of administrative bodies and their duties and powers are presented in the report. It may be obtained for 30 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.

CHAMBERLAIN EXCLUDED

Taken From List of Ex-Senators Who Prosecuted Claims.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Secretary Work today excluded the name of former Senator George E. Chamberlain of Oregon from the list of ex-Senators submitted in response to the Norris resolution calling for the names of former members of Congress who have prosecuted claims before the Interior Department within two years after they left office.

The Secretary said he wished to correct the list, in view of a letter submitted by a member of Mr. Chamberlain's law firm showing that the former Senator did not join the partnership until after two years from the date of his retirement from Congress.

FRANCO - RUMANIAN PACT EXPECTED IN PARIS

This Is Likely to Be Outcome of Visit of Ferninand and Marie.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 12.—A Franco-Rumanian pact is regarded in authoritative circles to be a likely outcome of the visit of King Ferdinand and Queen Marie of Rumania which comes to a close this evening with an official dinner given by Premier Poincare at the Quai d'Orsay.

It is believed in these circles that Rumania will endeavor to obtain a French-written undertaking to support her in the defense of Bessarabia in event of an attack. France, on the other hand, is said to concede the treaty, if one is concluded, as a general defensive pact for the maintenance of the peace treaties.

Resolutions on Good Friday.

The Church Federation has adopted resolutions advocating voluntary observance of Good Friday (April 18), especially between noon and 3 p. m. The resolutions state, "We are prepared to join in a request to the heads of commercial enterprises that they provide an opportunity to their employes for the religious observance of these three hours so far as can be done in justice to business interests and deference to religious opinions."

G. P. KNOX, FORMER TEACHER HERE, DIES

His Resignation in 1920 Gave Impetus to Move for Higher Salaries.

George Platt Knox, dean of Denison University, Granville, O., whose resignation as Assistant Superintendent of Education in St. Louis in 1920, gave impetus to the movement which resulted in a 20 per cent increase of salaries under the Board of Education, died Friday of heart trouble.

Knox had been connected with St. Louis schools for 22 years. He was appointed a teacher in Central High School in 1898. In 1903 he was made principal of Garfield School and a year later became assistant principal at Yeatman, receiving the appointment as chief assistant to the Superintendent of Instruction in two years.

His resignation was followed the next day by that of E. V. D. Wallace, assistant principal of Cleveland and president of the High School Teachers' Association, who took a commercial position because of the low salary in his school position. Knox on March 20, 1920, gave out a statement calling the sitiuation a "distemper," and setting forth his reasons for saying it was ridiculous to force teachers out of the profession to make a living. In 15 days the increase was voted.

Knox became Superintendent of Education of the International Sunday School Association, with headquarters in Chicago. In St. Louis he had been dean of the Community Training School of Religious Workers. Later he was appointed professor of Christian education in the Baptist School at the Granville School, and last year was made dean.

He was 53 years old. Burial is to be at his old home, Ballston Spa, N. Y.

STATIONERY COMBINE ALLEGED IN FEDERAL TRADE COMPLAINT

St. Louis Association Included in List of Organizations Accused of Unfairness.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The National Association of Stationers and Manufacturers of the United States, with offices in Chicago; the Wholesale Stationers' Association of the United States, with offices in New York and 22 sectional stationers' associations are charged with unfair methods of competition in a complaint issued by the Federal Trade Commission today.

The organizations named virtually control the manufacture of stationery goods in the United States, the complaint charges, and alleges that they are in combination to stifle competition.

The following local and sectional associations are named as respondents in the complaint, with their officers and members:

Atlanta Stationers' Club, Baltimore Stationers' Association, Boston Stationers' Association, Buffalo Stationers' Club, Chicago Stationers' Association, Colorado Stationers' Association, Kansas Book Dealers' Association, Louisville Stamp and Stationery Club, Northwestern Stationers' Association, Omaha Stationers' Association, Pacific Northwest Stationers' Association, Philadelphia Stationers' Association, Pittsburg Stationers' Club, Richmond Stationers' Association, St. Louis Stationers' Association, Stationers' Association of California, Stationers' and Publishers' Board of Trade of New York, Stationers' Association of New York, Stationers' Association of New Orleans, Stationers' Club of Buffalo, Stationers' Association of Southern California and the Stationers' Club of Toledo.

FIRE DAMAGES AUTO PLANT

Enameling Building Blaze Causes $20,000 Loss.

Fire, resulting from spontaneous combustion, damaged the enameling plant of the Moon Motor Car Co., 4410 North Second street, $20,000, at 8:20 a. m. yesterday. The blaze was checked before it reached 10 barrels of gasoline housed nearby.

The building, which is of wood and hollow tile, was damaged about $10,000, and the equipment it contained was damaged a like amount. The estimates were made by C. W. Burst, vice president of the company.

BOY FREED BY COURT OF PERJURY CHARGE

Burglary Witness Had Been Indicted After Testifying at Trial Year Ago.

Peter Preston Anslyn of 3112 Fair avenue, 17 years old, finally went to trial yesterday before Circuit Judge Ossing on a charge of perjury, growing out of his testimony, at a trial last year, of a man accused of burglary of a house across the street from where he worked. He was discharged.

Circuit Judge Grimm, who was then sitting in the criminal branch of the Circuit Court and caused the youth's indictment, telephoned Judge Ossing that he was unable to attend the trial yesterday because of illness. In his absence the State, after several continuances, went to trial and introduced the testimony of the stenographer at the trial in question, who read the transcript of the testimony which brought about Anslyn's arrest.

On the night of Dec. 22, 1922, Anslyn, then 15 years old, working in a buggy shop, observed several youths ransacking the home of Mrs. Jeanette Schroeder, who lived across the street from his place of employment, at 2576 Palm street. As they emerged from the house he followed them and one of them struck him. About the same time Mrs. Schroeder came along and saw the disturbance. Subsequently John Hayden and Edward Martin were arrested.

At Hayden's trial, both Mrs. Schroeder and Anslyn testified they "thought" he was one of the burglars, but he was acquitted. At Martin's trial, both altered their testimony that they were not sure as to the identity of either, and Judge Grimm, in dismissing the jurors, remarked that "Here are two witnesses who undoubtedly have been tampered with." Mrs. Schroeder admitted she had been visited by a sister of Martin. Both she and Anslyn took the stand today and repeated their testimony that they were unable positively to identify the burglars.

NEW PAINT PUT ON BUILDING BY OPEN SHOP MEN SMEARED

Red and Yellow Facing Given Black Coat After Company Had Denied Union Request.

Painters, working on the old Moose club at Grand and Pine boulevards, to convert it into a used-car establishment, returned to work yesterday to find the red and yellow building smeared with black paint and an odor, hardly to be characterized as pleasant, in the air. The damage had been done by throwing electric light bulbs filled with black paint against the sides of the building. The offensive small was caused by light bulbs filled with ammonia valerinate broken on the side of the building.

Carl Methudy, in charge of Methudy & Page, the company remodeling the structure, stated that representatives of the painters' union had visited him yesterday to ask that only union men be employed. He stated that he had refused to change the open shop policy maintained by the company. The fresh paint was defaced some time after 6:30 p. m., after everyone had left. No witnesses to the act could be found.

Painters in St. Louis are on a strike and several attacks on nonunion painters have occurred.

OIL FILLING STATION FOR FOREST PARK U. CAMPUS

President of School Announces Sale of Part of the Track for That Purpose.

Few gasoline stations have ever occupied a position, with an educational background, such as that to be constructed in the near future on the campus of the Forest Park University for women at 5922 Clayton avenue. Mrs. Anna Sneed Cairns, president of the university, said yesterday that a portion of the campus facing on Clayton avenue had been sold and would be the site of a gasoline filling station.

A sign on the plot which has been sold, carries an announcement that the station will be located there.

The university has been located on its present site since 1891 and the building originally cost $63,000.

Mrs. Cairns declined to comment other than to say that the ground had been sold and that the filling station would be erected upon it.

"VANITIES" FIRST BIG REVUE TO BE BROADCAST

Earl Carroll's Musical Success Will Be Sent Out Direct From Theater Monday Night.

TEST INTERESTS ALL SHOW MANAGERS

First Act, With Its Many Varied Musical Numbers, Ideal for Radio Fans Throughout Country.

Through arrangement with Earl Carroll, producer of "Vanities" at the American Theater, Station KSD will broadcast the entire first act of that performance tomorrow night. The first act, chiefly music, song and comedy, has been broadcast in some of the large cities where "Vanities" has been produced since the production left his own theater in New York City. This is the first big revue to consent to radio broadcasting.

It is no secret to radio listeners that most theatrical producers have objected to radio on the ground that broadcasting is bound to interfere with paid attendance.

Those interested in radio, on the other hand, have contended that the appreciation of listeners finds expression at the box office later in the week. The present tour of "Vanities," therefore, is more or less of an experiment which is being closely watched by producers in the East.

So far, on the tour of "Vanities," the radio advocates have had the best of the argument. It is confidently expected that St. Louis fans will be no different from those in other cities.

Indeed, the broadcasting of 'Vanities" has brought happiness to thousands in the remotest corners of the earth who could never visit a theater.

The music and the comedy in this production are heard, appreciated and discussed for many a long day after the broadcasting from the big stations. Farmers living a lonely life in the farthest corners of the great Northwest or in the vast spaces along the Rio Grande are transported to the bright lights of the theater where they can enjoy the laughter and the applause of the smart audiences.

Brings Big Mail.

Since Earl Carroll hit upon the plan of broadcasting the first act of this musical revue, he has been the recipient of stacks of mail, telegrams and cablegrams. At least 300 letters a day reach the management of this attraction from all parts of the country, and the newspapers through which the broadcasting is usually effected are in receipt of countless testimonials to the enjoyment occasioned by broadcasting the show.

The greatest proof that broadcasting part of an attraction benefits the box office is the fact that Mr. Carroll's business has been nearly double that of any other big musical revue. Managers of theaters are beginning to realize this and are gradually beginning to get into step with the march of events.

People who have never dreamed of spending a dollar to see a big attraction, whose theatergoing limit has always been confined to the "movies," come to see the "Vanities" because the first act which has reached them through the air has aroused their enthusiasm.

According to advance notices, you can adjust your receiving set and listen in on any section of the "Vanities" without fear of being bored by not understanding what it is all about. There is no continuous story; there is no plot. The entire production is a revue de luxe, and no matter what fraction of it you tune in on you will find it a number in itself.

Among the thousands of letters which Mr. Carroll has received from radio fans throughout the country are many from ministers whose calling would not permit them to attend the theater, but who in the privacy of their studies have enjoyed the original and mirth-provoking comedy and the countless melodies.

Thousands of wounded and bedridden soldiers, who sacrificed so much for their country during the World War, and who are now hidden away in the many hospitals, are among the most appreciative of Mr. Carroll's audiences.

In addition to Peggy Joyce and her wealth of wonderful gowns and jewels, and the ever-amusing Joe Cook, the company has an abundance of supporting talent. Among these are Don Barclay, L. Barton Evans, Frank Leslie, Irene Ricardo, Marguerite Davies, Dorothy Knapp, Mlle. Renova, Harry Burns, Charles Senna, Charles Callahan, Carlena Diamond, Ami Revere, John Byam, Claire Elgin, Lota Cheeke, Cardinal Pears, Ruth Oswald, Al Clair, Thelma DeLorez, Betty Fitch, Vera King, Elsie Lombard, Renoff, Vaughn Hyde, Flo Gillingham, Portland Hoffa, Frank Blyler, Elsie Neal, Lucille Moore, Brooks Hall, Pat Patterson, and a veritable regiment of dazzling beauties.

WORK BEGINS TOMORROW ON CHRISTIAN HOSPITAL

Work will begin tomorrow morning upon the grading for the new Christian Hospital at Newstead and Carter avenues. It will be a four-story, reinforced concrete building with brick finish, and will overlook O'Fallon Park.

The project is financed by a fund campaign inaugurated last year, but not yet completed, which will culminate in a general canvas May 19 to 28.

The new hospital will have four times the capacity of the old one, substantially increasing the inadequate hospital facilities of St. Louis. This shortage is now most emphasized on the north side, where there is no adequate modern hospital at present.

New headquarters for the campaign have been opened at the southwest corner of Grand avenue and Palm street, opposite the hospital.

We know women, young in years and full of the zest of living, who are always depressed and unhappy because of a few gray hairs that Farr's Gray Hair Restorer would so easily and harmlessly bring back to their original natural color.

Farr's is no trouble at all to use—a few minutes in your own room is enough. It leaves the hair glossy, lustrous and soft; it is not sticky and will not rub off or stain the scalp; it is as harmless as so much water, and every bottle is sold with the positive guarantee that it cannot cause the slightest harm or annoyance to the hair or scalp.

BREAD

A NOVEL OF THE WOMAN in BUSINESS

By CHARLES G. NORRIS
Author of "Salt," "Brass," Etc.

The story of one of the thousands of American women who find themselves breadwinners first, with wifehood and motherhood relegated to second place. But man—and especially woman—does not live by bread alone.

The facing of this problem by the heroine of "Bread" will be approved by some, pitied by others and discussed by many.

ST. LOUIS—SIXTH CITY

Some one has said: "St. Louis is a city surrounded by the United States." True. It is also the leader of the entire world in eleven important industries, with the world's largest manufacturing plants for fifteen products and the greatest market in the United States for eighteen necessities of living.

With $87,000,000 voted for municipal development, $100,000,000 for new railroad facilities, and an additional $100,000,000 expansion program for public service utilities St. Louis, the logical distributing point for the Great Southwest—the Million-Mile Market—cannot help but develop steadily and substantially.

With this inevitable growth Real Estate values are bound to soar. The ultimate achievement of any city is in a measure based on the prosperity, health and happiness of its inhabitants. Home owning and wise investments make for the substantial character of the citizens of a community. These thoughts prompted the Post-Dispatch to launch St. Louis' First

HOME and INVESTMENT WEEK

8 DAYS—APRIL 20 to 27—8 DAYS

Here is a Big Idea in which everyone can share—which everyone can utilize to advantage in proportion to their vision.

During "Home and Investment Week" there will be placed on the market hundreds of homes, from vine-covered cottages to stately mansions; choice city and suburban home sites, where one can buy and build; investment property, improved and unimproved, which, if bought with care, is sure to earn substantial profits with constantly increasing value.

This, then, is your Week of Opportunity. If you and your wife have longed for a home of your very own, this month is the time to satisfy that longing; if you've dreamed of a plot of land where you could buy and build according to your individual ideas and income, make the selection during "Home and Investment Week".

St. Louis is destined to become a city of a million population. This means steadily increasing values both in city and suburban real estate. Land and well-located property in a growing community constantly increases in value. Opportunities for profitable Real Estate Investments are as great today as they were fifty years ago. All that you need is an open vision and an urge to own.

Wonderful Airings in a Lloyd

How fortunate are the babies who spend several hours every day in Lloyd Loom Carriages! They are content in the luxurious comfort which these deep-cushioned easy-riding carriages afford. And their mothers are happy in the knowledge that their babies have the prettiest carriages of them all.

Lloyd Carriages have a beauty that no other carriage can imitate—the beauty of a graceful bowl shape, sweeping curves and woven-in rolls. A patented spiral weaving process and the famous Lloyd Loom produce this different type of carriage. Woven from a single, continuous strand of finest wicker, it has no seams, corners or short ends of wicker to mar its beauty or detract from its strength. In addition, the remarkable speed of this weaving method cuts its cost amazingly. See this finer carriage at your dealer's. Look for the Lloyd name plate on the seat. Lloyd Loom Furniture and Doll Carriages, woven by the same spiral method, are on sale at leading dealers. Mail coupon for dealer's name.

'DON'T PARK' SIGN AT WADE RESIDENCE

Congestion of Autos About Home Keeps Guests' Machines From Driveway.

There is a neat little sign reading, "Please Don't Park Here" at the curb in front of the home of Festus J. Wade, president of the Mercantile Trust Co., 4532 Lindell boulevard. Motorists who go by the golden rule obey it, but those who choose to abide only by the traffic ordinance disregard it. That explains the appeal of Wade to the police to help keep his curb free of strangers' cars, but it doesn't explain how the police may proceed to help.

Parking difficulties, many persons have thought, have been confined chiefly to downtown and certain other districts, but haven't spread to the broad reaches of Lindell boulevard, where there are homes, apartments and clubs, but not stores and offices—least of all to the block in which the Wades reside.

The "congestion" there reached the point of saturation Thursday afternoon, when Mrs. Wade received friends and there was an affair of some sort at the St. Louis Woman's Club, next door at No. 4600. Machines of women who were at the club occupied the Wade curb and even blocked the Wade driveway. The Wade guests had to park on Taylor avenue and walk several hundred feet. Their hostess sent word to the club that she would ask the police to help if the space before her home was not cleared. The ultimatum brought immediate compliance.

The Wades have had trouble previously on the parking question. Before they moved in the house last September it had been vacant for some time and there was no hindrance to public use of the curb. Dwellers in the big apartment house adjoining on the east even got into the habit of parking in the driveway.

DETECTIVES FIND SADIE IN BROTHER'S CLOTHING

"Ach, Just Put Her Aside," Jake Will Call," Mother Tells Detectives.

Riding north in Eleventh street, near Branch street, at noon yesterday, Detectives Mathews and Buechert noticed a boy slouching along the sidewalk. The walker wore an ill-fitting brown suit and a cap pulled down over the head in the back.

"Walks like a girl," osbserved one detective.

"Maybe he is," the other ventured.

And so "he" was. When the girl in boy's clothing refused to answer any questions, they took her to police headquarters. A card in the pocket of the brown coat bore the name of Morris Berkowitz, a student at Central High School. Reporters telephoned his mother, Mrs. Anna Berkowitz, 4528 Cote Brilliante avenue.

"Yes, I got a daughter," Mrs. Berkowitz said. "Her name is Sadie and she's 12 years old, and she's always running away from home. Last night she went to bed, but this morning she was gone. My son's brown suit and cap were gone too. I don't know what to think of that girl. Maybe she's nervous."

"What do you want done with Sadie?"

"Ach, just put her aside. My husband, Jake, will be home soon and he'll drop down there for her."

Sadie's black hair is bobbed unevenly. She did it herself in order to wear her brother's cap. She has a capacity for remaining silent and would not tell the policemen why girls leave home in their brother's clothing.

NEW C. & A. TRAIN TO HAVE SMOKING ROOM FOR WOMEN

Compartment Won't Be Called That, However, General Agent Explains.

The million-dollar equipment of two new passenger trains to be put in service between St. Louis and Chicago about the middle of June by the Chicago & Alton Railroad will include observation cars with a compartment for women which will not be called a smoking room, but may be used for one.

D. M. McNamara, general agent of the passenger department in St. Louis, said it would be a lounge room, but intimated that it would be very modernly furnished. It will have access to a buffet—which, at its other end, will touch the men's smoking compartment—where cooling drinks and probably soda and seltzer may be obtained.

Besides the modern library car, each train will include three parlor cars larger than the ordinary Pullman; two chair cars, a combination baggage car and coach—with armchair seats—and a mail car. The trains probably will leave Chicago and St. Louis at noon, arriving at the other end of the trip at 7:50 p. m. or earlier. It has not been decided whether there will be an extra fare.

BILL MAKING SOUTHERN BONDS LEGAL IN NEW YORK PASSED

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 12.—The New York Legislature, in the closing hours of its session yesterday, passed the Davison bill, designed to make bonds of southern states, counties and municipalities legal investments for savings banks, provided they meet the requirements imposed on other similar bonds. The measure now is before Gov. Smith.

Under existing statutes no savings bank in the State may invest in bonds of any state, county or municipality which has defaulted either principal or interest since 1861.

Takes Off 41 Lbs. In Exactly 7 Weeks!

The lady in the picture is close to an ideal weight. Yet two months ago she was far too stout—was heavier by more than forty pounds! Mrs. Ella Carpenter, 2425 Carondelet St., New Orleans, explains how she reduced with such success:

"I had long wished for some means of reducing my 170 lbs. Being a business woman I had no time nor money to waste on fads; but two months ago I decided to try a method that somehow seemed sensible. The trial didn't cost anything, it required only a week—so I gave Wallace reducing records a chance and here is what happened:

"Easiest Thing I Ever Did"

"Fifteen minutes each evening I took the reducing movements—to music. It was uncommonly interesting; I felt better from the start. But I watched my weight, and that is what thrilled me—I lost 6¼ lbs. that first week. Naturally, I went on with it! The second week I lost 8 lbs. more.

"I didn't do a thing to supplement my course with Wallace—no Turkish Baths, no starving, nor patent foods or drugs—I just got thin to music as the offer said I would. It was delightfully easy. Today, my bathroom scale said 129—not bad for my 5 feet 5 inches!"

Reduce without punishment; without any "reduced look!" Proof that you can costs nothing. The trial is really free. Coupon brings the full first lesson—record and all—without payment now or on delivery.

Dull Spotted Teeth Bleached White Quick—Safe Way

To whiten dull, yellowish, stained teeth all you need now do is brush teeth with a few drops of mild, harmless liquid, then use a special paste—and watch stains disappear. This new method is called Bleachodent Combination. The liquid softens the stains—the paste only gently removes them, but prevents formation of new stains. Fine for removing green stains from children's teeth. No effect on enamel—the only ingredients are intended to act only on surface stains. Bleachodent Combination is the formula of a group of prominent dentists who used Bleachodent on their own teeth for four years with highly beneficial results before offering it to the public. Millions of teeth have been whitened this new safe way.

TY'S RAPID EXPANSION TO BE STRESSED IN "HOME AND INVESTMENT WEEK"

eek of April 20 to Be Dedicated to Acquisition of Residence and Investment Property in View of Further Growth.

By Berry Moore.

week beginning Sunday, il 20, is to be dedicated to the isition of real estate for homes for investment. It is to be laimed "Home and Investment k."

idea originated with the -Dispatch, which has been ing out in a series of adver- nts the advantages to be de- from home ownership and real estate investments. These rtisements are to be augment- n a generous scale the forth- ing week as a further espousal eal estate with a view to broad- the scope of activities in this d.

This is regarded as the psycho- al moment for investment in estate in St. Louis, which ap- ently is on the threshold of an nsive growth and which is des- d to occupy a commanding po- n by virture of its geographical antages.

he city has been characterized notable expansion ,in all lines ng the last year, notwithstand- adverse economic conditions, the outlook is inspiring, say rts.

Anticipating a prodigious growth, city has authorized an expen- re of $87,000,000 for municipal civic improvements, while the roads have announced an ap- priation of $100,000,000 for in- ased terminals, etc., in this dis- t. An extension of the city lim- also is proposed.

The effect of the expenditure of large a sum for physical im- ements of this character can- but result, competent observers in an improved real estate sit- on throughout the city.

d Looking Toward St. Louis.

ecently Ford representatives a survey of the district of h St. Louis is the center, os- sively with a view to establish- here an auxiliary plant on a e scale for the Ford Motor Co. Detroit. While the findings of mission are not known, it is erstood that a site on the East e in the vicinity of the Union tric Cahokia plant is being n serious consideration in this ection. Though this may be a e possibility, it is noteworthy indicating the potentialities of locality.

s are being taken of the 17- y hotel to be erected at the west corner of Eighth and St. les street. Tests for the foun- s are now being made pre- ory to beginning construction week.

e structure has been de- d by Preston Bradshaw, arch- and will cost $2,500,000, ac- ing to Bradshaw, who will head building syndicate. It will be ped with the Mercantile Trust Statler Hotel and Loew's e Theater, the latter being un- construction at the northeast er of Eighth street and Wash- on avenue.

Loew's State Theater is scheduled completion July 1, when it will ally be opened. It will repre- an investment, including the of approximately $3,000,000. ording to the Mercantile Trust , which promoted the building ject, and through which the was acquired.

Large Structures Planned.

Plans have been made for a host other large structures for the ness district, which have been rred by the abnormal cost of ruction. These include nota- hotel and office building pro- and other buildings of a char- of which the city is in urgent as a result of the prolonged ion in construction.

quiry was made yesterday ugh the Mercantile Trust Co. erning a prominent Twelfth t corner by interests with e hotel plans. The site is at- ting attention by reason of its ation in connection with the posed Twelfth street plaza.

YNOD TO SPEND $2,500,000 Here

More than $2,500,000 will be ex- ded within the next two years this city and in the county by Evangelical Lutheran Synod of ouri, Ohio and other states.

The general contract for the new oncordia Theological Seminary just been let to the Kellerman racting Co. as the lowest bid- . The plumbing contract has awarded to the H. M. Doerner bing Co. The plans for the new seminary were drawn in the Tudor-Gothic style by Day & Klauber of Philadelphia; H. H. Morrison of St. Louis has been engaged as engineer, and Charles Wehking Jr. will superintend the work for the local building committee. The work of excavating has been almost completed by the Fruin-Colnon Contracting Co.

Building operations will begin at once. The buildings will be of stone, part of which will be brought here from Colorado and from Perry County, Mo., where the synod's first theological seminary was erected in 1839. Local stone will be used for the bulk of the stone work.

The plans for the new seminary call for sufficient buildings to take care of 800 students; but for the present only the administration building, the auditorium, and the library will be built as designed for the completed group, while only sufficient lecture halls, dining halls and dormitories will be built to care for the 400 students. Twelve residences for the faculty will also be built at once. The present plans, including the equipment and the landscaping, will call for an expenditure of almost $2,500,000.

Concordia Publishing House, the printing plant of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Missouri, Ohio and other states, on South Jefferson avenue, has just let a contract to the Kellerman Contracting Co. for a new addition to its present plant, to cost approximately $325,000, including the building equipment. E. Seuel is the manager of the printing plant.

3 MORE DUPLEX HOMES FOR PASADENA SECTION

The Alfred Baker Realty Co. announces three more duplex buildings, each distinctive in design, for Pasadena, Webster, on Big Bend road and Salma avenue. One of these, architectural drawing of which appears elsewhere on this page, is being built for Fred F. Bixby, C. N. Wiley, builder.

This two-family stucco residence is divided so that each family has a complete two-story abode consisting of a large living room, dining room, sun parlor, veranda, breakfast nook, lavatory, butler's pantry and kitchen on first floor, and three bedrooms, combination salarium and sleeping porch, tile bath and cedar room on the second floor. Mr. Bixby will live in one side of this building, which is to be completed by Sept. 1, and will rent the other half.

The other two duplexes referred to are now under construction; one is being built by L. L. Livingston for his own account. It will have 12 rooms, two baths and many innovations. The other duplex is being erected on three large lots in the center of the tract for Alfred M. Baker, architect.

"HIGHLAND PARK" READY FOR MARKET IN 10 DAYS

Tony Hurleman announces that his new subdivision, "Highland Park," located at Watson boulevard, Southwest avenue and Arsenal street, will be ready for the market within 10 days. This subdivision is one of the highest points in the city. Grading and other improvements have been under way for some time. Three streets are improved.

FINEST BUILDING TYPES FOR ST. LOUIS Y. M. C. A.

Structures in Other Cities Considered by Body in Charge of $3,000,000 Campaign.

The finest Young Men's Christian Association buildings in other cities are being consirered by the committee in charge of the St. Louis Y. M. C. A. $3,000,000 campaign as types of the buildings to be provided here. The campaign is to open early in May.

Four new buildings are planned, the downtown building, at Sixteenth and Locust streets, to cost $1,425,000; the West Eld building, $450,000, in the neighborhaad of Delmar and Union boulevards; South Side, $400,000, near Carondelet Park; and Carondelet, $150,000.

Substantial additions are planned to the three existing buildings, the North Side, Railroad and Pine Street (negro) branches. These six buildings will make the service of the Y. M. C. A. accessible to young men and boys of all sections of the city.

Y. M. C. A. buildings, of accepted types, in four cities, are shown on this page, as indications of the character of structure that St. Louis may expect as a result of the pending campaign.

South Side Corner Sold.

Maurer-Ghio-Beffa Realty Co. reports the sale of the southwest corner of Park and Menard street, consisting of three stores and 12 flats, for Hanna Zarwit to a client of the company.

REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE TO HOLD ELECTION TUESDAY

John W. Gibson and John J. Dowling in Race for Presidency — Contest for Directors Also On.

The annual election of officers of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange is scheduled for next Tuesday, with John W. Gibson and John J. Dowling as rival candidates for the presidency. Gibson is now vice president of the exchange and has served as a director for several terms. Dowling was formerly secretary of the exchange and a vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges.

Gibson is sponsored by Joseph Hannauer and Dowling by A. R. Schollmeyer. Schollmeyer and Hannauer are former president of the exchange.

Though spirited, the contest is marked by friendly rivalry.

The candidates for directors are Charles Daly of Daly and McCabe, Julius Feydt Jr. of Yeckel, Feydt & Earickson, Edward M. Thornhill, E. D. Ruth Jr. of the Francis-Perry-Ruth Real Estate Co. and William F. Protzmann.

The holdover directors are W. W. Butte, W. E. Caulfield, Elmore Cave, Chester A. Dougherty, William L. Heckmann and William J. Holdoway.

W. W. Kay, the present executive secretary of the exchange, is scheduled for re-election by the board of directors. He is an organizer of wide experience, having been formerly identified in an important capacity with the Chamber of Commerce.

LOCUST STREET PROPERTY SOLD BY GRETHER COMPANY

John Grether & Co. reports having sold for the Patrick Haley estate to a client 3108-12 Locust street, consisting of old improvements and with lot 50 feet by 122 feet. The purchaser will improve this property in anticipation of its adjoining the new corner of Cardinal avenue, which is to be cut through at this point.

The company also reports having sold for Millard F. Watts and wife to a client a 6-room and basement dwelling at 3431 Lucas avenue. Changes in this property are being made preparatory to its being used for business purposes; also the bungalow of Joseph and Emily Bensinger at 4211 Lafayette avenue, which consists of six rooms, steam heat, garage, etc., together with lot 32x130.

MEASUREGRAPH BUILDING IS NEARLY COMPLETED

The new Measuregraph building at 4227 Forest Park boulevard, is nearly completed. It is a two-story brick and concrete building. The architects were Kennerly and Stiegemeyer, and the building was financed by the Edward K. Love Realty Co. The valuation of the property is about $110,000.

For additional Real Estate news, see Pages 15 and 16.

WOLF-POLLACK SELLS $40,000 APARTMENT

Six Family Building on Interdrive Avenue Purchased by Sam Kash.

Sam Kash has purchased, through the Wolf-Pollack Real Estate Co., a six-family apartment building at the southeast corner of Interdrive and Clemens avenue, known as 744 Interdrive avenue, University City. Each apartment has seven rooms.

The annual rentals approximate $7000. The consideration was about $40,000, and the grantor William Darr.

DICKMANN REALTY CO.'S REPORT OF BUILDING SALES

3106 Lawton avenue, a 16-room brick residence, was sold to a client of the Dickmann Real Estate Co. by Myrtle B. Herzog, represented by the Walter Jones Realty Co.

3122-24 Lackland, a flat consisting of three rooms, sold to Joseph Filipiak by Dickmann; 4123 Flad avenue, single 5 and 6-room flat, for Dr. W. C. Wilson to Laura E. Hazenstab; 3026 Marcus, single 4 and 5-room flat, for Edwin H. Corley to Herman J. Zipp; 3955 Ashland avenue, single 5 and 6-room flat, for Bertram C. Brennan to William T. Kelly; 7082 Lindenwood place, a store and flat, for Sophie V. Broadhead to Peter Stamm; southwest corner California and Accomac avenues, to Seb A. Kiernan.

HEDGLEIGH SUBDIVISION CONTRACT AWARDED

Fruin-Colnon Company to Do All Improvement Work of Tract.

The Fruin-Colnon Contracting Co., 6417 Columbia avenue, has been awarded the contract for the entire improvement work to be done on the Hedgleigh Park subdivison at Union boulevard and Natural Bridge road, according to Robert A. Burns, president of the Bush-Burns Realty Co.

Grading work already has been started and is being pushed so as to insure the completion of the work at an early date.

Locations on this tract already have been spoken for, but until the City Plan Commission approves the tenative plat, definite sales cannot be announced.

Because of the scarcity of available vacant ground for flat and small home building, the desire for the acquisition of lots in this subdivision has manifestly been greater and it is expected that the initial sale of land on the subdivision will be very great.

The interest manifested by larger builders of flats and bungalows in St. Louis has been augmented by the fact that a new high school and stadium will be located on this property, the land for which has been bought by the Board of Education and the architects are drawing up the plans.

COLONIAL DRUG COMPANY MOVES TO NEW LOCATION

A long term lease has been negotiated to the Colonial Drug Co. on the first floor storeroom at 1515-19 Pine street. This gives this company about 70,000 square feet of space and they will take immediate possession.

The company was organized about one and one-half years ago and this is the third move it has made, due to increasing business. The lease was made for John S. Swift Real Estate and Investment Co. by Martin and Breitt.

SCHOLLMEYER SELLING LOTS IN "UNIVERSITY TERRACE"

A. R. Schollmeyer Real Estate Co. announces that it is putting on a special clean-up sale of 25 lots in University City. These lots lie one block north of Delmar boulevard and east of the Hanley road, in what is known as "University Terrace."

These lots are being sold at a low price and on easy terms and are admirably situated for bungalows. Improvements have been completed. Frank Cole is in charge of the sale.

SALES OF APARTMENTS AND FLATS BY WENZLICK COMPANY

The Wenzlick Co. reports the following sales for the week:

Six Reasons Why Co-operative Owned Apartments Have Proved to Be Highly Successful

They eliminate, first—All loss from vacant apartments.

Second—All loss from uncollectable rents.

Third—All costs of excessive decorations.

Fourth—All repairs occasioned by the frequent shifting about of tenants.

Fifth—All expense of management such as agent's commissions, advertising charges, etc.

Sixth—All landlord's profit.

The difference between what you pay as a co-operative owner of an Apartment and what you would pay as a tenant of a like Apartment represents the profit to your investment.

Added to these economic reasons, the co-operative owner has the following advantages, denied the average tenant:

First—The sense of permanency of the home.

Second—The knowledge that he is getting exactly what he pays for and is paying exactly what it cost.

Third—The feeling that his neighbors are of a more substantial class, both morally and financially than those in the average building and, as he has a voice in this selection, that future purchasers will be of the same character.

We will not sell an apartment to anyone whom we do not feel would make a good neighbor. To this end we require unquestionable references from each purchaser.

Reservations are now being accepted in the most complete and up-to-date Apartment in St. Louis on this plan.

SOLUTION TO YOUR LIVING PROBLEM

New-type duplex homes—not stereotyped flats and apartments, but architecturally beautiful two-family residences are being built in Pasadena, West, on large, deep lots. The first of this original, distinctive type duplex dwelling in St. Louis is completed. Several others are under construction. Each of the two families in this home will have a spacious living room with real fireplace, sunroom, commodious dining room and kitchen on the first floor, and three bright, cheerful bedrooms and tile bath on the second floor. You can live in one side and let the income from the other half pay off your investment. We also will have duplex dwellings for rent—occupancy later in the Spring. Choice Pasadena building sites can still be purchased on easy terms, offering unequaled speculative and investment opportunity to a limited number quick buyers.

Investigate this today. Drive west on Big Bend road to Pasadena. Write or phone for particulars.

SUBURB'N PROP'Y FOR SALE

Webster Groves

IF YOU HAD TWO HOUSES
What would you do? The owners of the three houses described here have purchased other homes that better suit their needs. They each now have two houses on their hands, and each has decided that rather than rent, it is better to make the price of the former home such that it readily may be sold.

Which one fills your needs?

123 Portland terrace; large living room, sun room, dining room and kitchen on the first floor; 3 beautiful bedrooms, bath and wonderful glazed sleeping porch on the second floor; one room finished on third floor; hardwood floors and steam heat; white enamel woodwork; beautifully and artistically decorated throughout; house has fine basement; both the house and double garage have red tile roofs; attractive lot, 80x180; most desirable location in Webster; street made, with concrete curb and gutter; convenient to schools and transportation; asking $16,000.

413 Fairlawn av., just 2 blocks from schools and transportation; the house is in beautiful condition and thoroughly modern; living room, dining room, kitchen and den on the first floor; 3 nice bedrooms and large sleeping porch, 14x30, on the second floor; lot 50x175; garage and drive; asking only $9000; arrangements can be made to finance this deal for you; this is a most desirable property and should have the attention of the most conservative buyer.

PERFECT LITTLE HOME.
140 S. Gore av.; 6 rooms and bath, white enamel woodwork throughout; attractive decorations; hardwood floors, screened front porch; large lot, 60x263; garage and drive; chicken house; grapevines, shade trees and many rose bushes; 2 short blocks to Bristol School, cars, train and store section; we have been waiting for this listing for you. Who gets it? Phone Wilson at Webster 776 or Trembley at Webster 1581 today for appointment. TREMBLEY-WILSON R. E. AND LOANS CO., Trembley-Wilson Bldg., Webster Groves.

SMALL farms in winterless California. You can work a small farm with less capital investment; and in California you can work outdoors all the year. The State Land Board of California is offering choice 20-acre farms at Ballico, Merced County, small down payment, 36 years' time on balance. Ample water for irrigation; a small one-family farm, cutting out high labor costs, insures success. Equally good opportunity in other sections of the San Joaquin Valley, as well as Southern California, for the man of moderate means who wishes to get a home of his own. California is the richest State per capita in United States of America. Most of this wealth comes from the soil. No winter handicaps. Illustrated folders descriptive of California mailed on request. BARNES-CROSBY CO. GETS LEASE ON NEW QUARTERS

The Barnes-Crosby Co., one of St. Louis' largest engraving plants, will move July 1 to new quarters at the southeast corner of Twelfth and St. Charles. They will occupy the entire fourth floor which will give them 3000 more feet of working space than at their present quarters at Eleventh and Locust. The lease was made through Martin and Breitt.

The company has decided that, although they will not move their offices or cease operations at their present quarters until July, they will install complete equipment at their new location immediately. When the day of moving comes all that will be necessary will be for their staff of employes to walk half way round the block, where they will find a new plant ready for them. The Barnes-Crosby Co. is a pioneer in its line. Originally established as a branch of the Chicago house, the Barnes-Crosby Co. of Missouri has become a separate corporation, producing in its own plant and its own studios every branch of commercial art work, photography and photoengraving. All the advantages of the former relationship between the Barnes-Crosby Co. of Missouri and the Barnes-Crosby Co. of Chicago are still maintained through the retention, as officer and director of E. W. Houser, who is also president of the Barnes-Crosby Co. of Chicago. His nephew, V. C. Houser, is president of the St. Louis concern.

Come and See
GANNONDALE

A Beautiful New Community of Homes Invites You!

Fifty New Majestic Homes

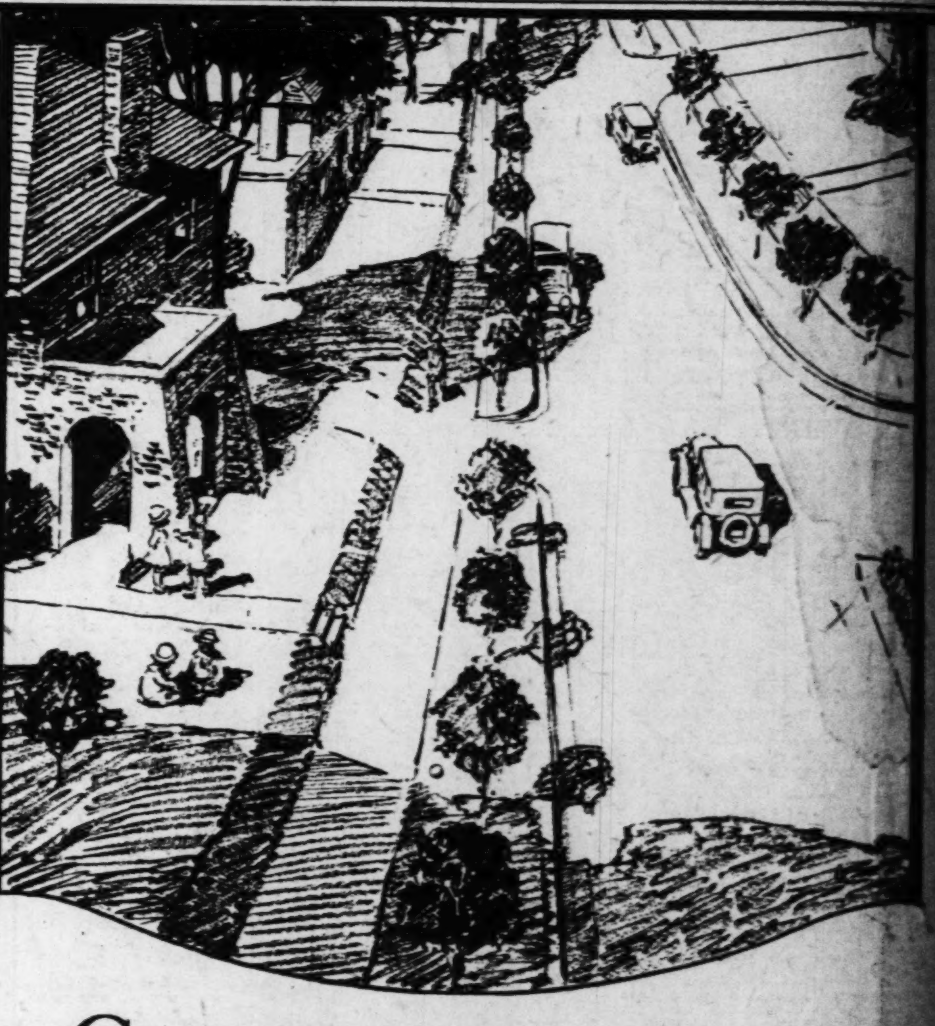
THE first fifty of the hundred new Majestic Homes to be built in Gannondale are near completion, some already completed. These homes are a striking demonstration of what the Majestic plan of home building means to the people of St. Louis.

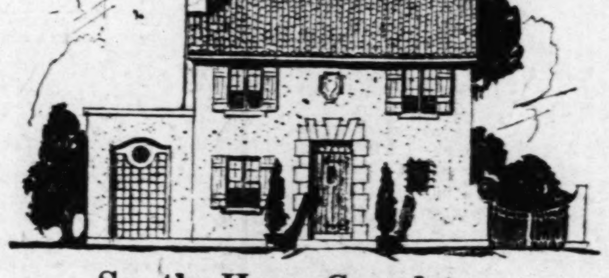
These homes, built in a short six months' time, were not built singly, but built as a group—a group scientifically determined to produce better homes, more beautiful homes, at a lowered cost.

This group building produced a threefold saving. First, the saving through the purchase of materials direct from producers in large units. Second, the greatest spread of overhead expense, financing, designing, engineering and supervision. Third, the big saving through continuous operation.

The Homes themselves show the success of the Majestic Plan.

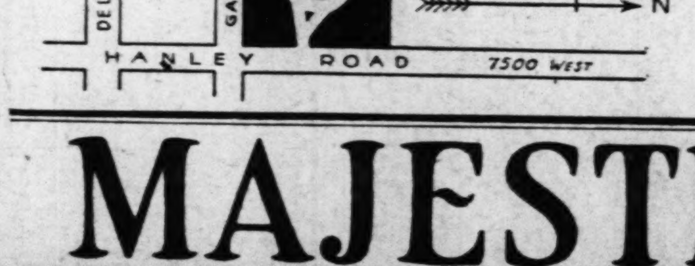
Come to Gannondale expecting to see in reality the home you have pictured in your dreams. Come to Gannondale with your expectations high.





See the Home Complete

ONE of these new Majestic Homes, the beautiful Spanish (Castilian) type pictured, has been completely decorated and furnished to show what home in a Majestic Home really is. We are expecting a visit from you, and in return assure you a pleasant half hour.



GANNONDALE
A Community Built Entire!

GANNONDALE, the beauty spot of the West End, lying just one block north of Delmar, between Hanley and the North and South roads, is a new community built entire. Before Fall it will be a completed community of a hundred homes, each home architecturally individual—but every home assuredly meeting the community standard. For the Majestic plan does not stop at the production of better homes at lowered cost, but, in a full realization that the community is as important as the individual home, meets the situation fully and completely by becoming the builder of communities.

The first fifty of the homes are ready for your inspection—the new Majestic community, Gannondale, invites you.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

N. D.—We do not know of any such correspondence school as mentioned in your query.

CHAS. C.—The first snowfall in 1923 was on Feb. 6, the amount being 2.1 inches.

COINS. — Take the coins to a dealer to determine their value. They are listed in the classified section of the city directory.

SOPHOMORE. — Consult the music shops listed in the directory regarding publishers and also the song in question.

MRS. R. S.—The book in question has not been published but will in the near future. Inquire of the book shops regarding it.

M. D. P.—Write to the Board of Children's Guardians, Municipal Courts Building, regarding the child.

M. S.—The block between Fourteenth and Fifteenth on Market will be destroyed for a part of the Memorial Plaza.

A CONSTANT READER.—Michael J. Kenefick was Clerk of the St. Louis Court of Criminal Correction in February, 1891. James R. Claiborne was the judge.

A. A. A.—The only record of the number of horses and mules in use in the city of St. Louis are the Assessor's record for taxation purposes. These records show: 9183 horses and 1680 mules.

A SUBSCRIBER.—The following are several luncheon menus: (1) Grilled sardines, baked apples with cream rolls, sponge cake and cocoa. (2) Creamed chicken, celery, rolls, grapes and apples, tea. (3) Lamb croquettes, dressed lettuce, baking powder biscuits, ginger bread, cheese and tea. (4) Oyster stew, oyster crackers or dry toast, pickles, cream whips and lady fingers.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

A READER.—A chauffeur's license is necessary, even though you own the truck yourself.

C. B. L.—One license plate, for use on the rear of the car, is issued by the State of Kansas.

A. A.—He cannot hold your furniture. You should ask him either to cancel your lease or to let you sublet the apartment.

J. B.—Your grandchildren and your half-sister's grandchildren can intermarry, as they are not first cousins.

I. O. U.—Inquire of the British Consulate, in the Granite Building, regarding your great grandfather's estate. Tell them all the facts.

LEASE.—Unless there was some agreement to the contrary, the building belongs to the landlord when the lease terminates, and the tenant would have no right to wreck it.

B. A.—It is expected that payment of the Missouri soldiers' bonus will be completed within the next 90 days. The Bonus Commission, Jefferson City, Mo., makes the payments.

JOHN DOE.—If the other party to the contract knew that you were signing it merely as agent for "Doe Manufacturing Co.," then he cannot hold you personally liable on the contract. If he sues you, consult a lawyer.

ANXIOUS.—If the fences are division fences, they should be maintained jointly by the adjoining owners. If they are not, then each fence should be maintained by the person on whose land it is. You could not compel the adjoining owner to build a fence.

A TENANT—No special notice of an increase in rent is necessary, but you do not have to pay the increase unless you agree to do so. However, if you refuse to pay it, the landlord can give you one month's written notice to vacate, if he wants to do that.

STEADY READER—You can obtain a duplicate copy of your discharge by writing to the Adjutant General of the Army, Washington, D. C. Applications for the Illinois bonus must be filed before next January. You should, however, get your application in as soon as possible.

M. J.—Probably if you remarried without obtaining a divorce, you would not be guilty of bigamy, but your marriage would not be legal if your first husband should turn up later. It would therefore be advisable for you to obtain a divorce before remarrying.

ANXIOUS.—If there was an actual, mutual marital agreement, followed by living together as man and wife, before the 1921 law took effect, then there was a common law marriage and the parties will have to be divorced before either of them can legally marry again. But unless there was such an agreement, there was no common law marriage, and either party can marry without a divorce being obtained.

DAILY READER—If the defrauded heir was a minor during part of the time, or if there were other special circumstances, she might be able to sue even after this lapse of time. She should consult a lawyer. We do not know where the lawyer's papers could be found after his death. Possibly he had a partner or someone who shared his office with him, who might know.

FLORENCE—Applications for the blind persons' pensions are now being received and it is expected that payments will be made shortly. The pension is $25 per month. Application for the pension can be made at room 326, Metropolitan Bldg., Grand boulevard and Olive street. The Blind Pension Law was originally passed in 1921, but this law was repealed and a new law, which is now in force, was passed and was approved on April 2, 1923.

D. W. L.—The administrator would have to file an accounting or settlement in court, and have it approved by the Court, before the estate was closed. We have not space to describe the duties of an administrator in Illinois, but suggest that you refer to Hubbell's Legal Directory, "Laws of Illinois," page 216, at th Public Library here or consult an Illinois lawyer if you have any question of importance in mind. There are various differences in the procedure of administration in Illinois and in Indiana. See Hubbell's Legal Directory.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

ANXIOUS ONE. — Repeat question, enclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

X. Y. Z. — Your question will have to be more explicit. Enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

MISS M. C.—Repeat your question enclosing stamped, addressed envelope. We do not publish physicians names.

ORPHAN M.—If the man is now in good health we can see no impediment to marriage. He may be entirely recovered from an affection of five years ago and very likely is if he now appears in perfect health.

CONSTIPATION—(1) A cramp in any muscle is due to irritation, generally due to excess action or undue strain. (2) Bran does contain starch. (3) Sugar does not contain starch, but starch may be converted into sugar. (4) Send stamped addressed envelope requesting diet list for constipation.

E. G. B.—Any cause which weakens the wall of a vein causes varicose veins, generally it is some impediment to the return of the blood through the vein. If the condition is not too marked an elastic support, such as an elastic stocking, will take care of the condition, otherwise a surgical operation is necessary.

S.—A well established case of palsy is not curable by medicines. Treatment is by tonics and general hygienic measures. Cases have improved under iodide of potassium and arsenic. Hyoscin has been recommended, 1-20 to 1-12 grain of the muriate hypodermically. Also atropin, 1-100 to 1-60 grain by the mouth or hypodermically. Sea bathing, massage, fresh air and out of door life and electricity are also beneficial.

A READER. — Blackheads is a disorder of the sebaceous glands of the skin, characterized by yellowish or whitish pin-head sized elevations, containing in their centers blackish points. Very often the black points appear upon the unchanged skin. The disease is observed on the face, neck, chest and back chiefly. The affection, though comparatively trifling, is often extremely annoying to those affected. It is due in part to idiosyncrasy, in part to a general sluggish performance, not only of the functions of the skin but also those of the whole body. Those affected are apt to suffer from dyspepsia and with constipation and in young women anemia and menstrual irregularities often exist. It is pre-eminently a disease of puberty, patients being almost invariably young men and women. Local treatment in some cases suffices to relieve the condition. Frequent bathing with hot water will aid in the process of removal. Stimulating ointments, especially those containing sulphur, are useful, as the following: Precipitated sulphur, 1 drachm; rose water ointment, 1 ounce. Make into an ointment and rub into the affected surface at night. Another excellent preparation is as follows: Vinegar, 2 drachms; glycerin, 3 drachms; kalolini, 4 drachms. This forms a soft paste, to be spread on the surface at night and, if possible, in the morning. If applied on the face, the eyes should be kept shut, on account of the pungency of the vinegar. It dislodges the plugs satisfactorily, and they should be gently expressed, care being taken not to use much force for fear of inflaming the skin. In very obstinate cases the X-ray, carefully applied, will cure. A tonic internal treatment is sometimes called for.

She is gone, but in our memory she will always live.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, BROTHERS AND SISTERS AND FRIENDS.

For 12 long years and more we've mourned for mother dear,
And as the time speeds swiftly o'er we miss her more each year.
In loving remembrance of my dear mother, Katherine Bachmann, who departed this life April 9, 1912.
MRS. MAURICE J. CASSIDY.

In memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Addie Latal, who passed away on April 13, 1922.
Watch and wait for us, dear mother, for we know it can't be long Till we are again united in the land of sun and song.
Sadly missed by her FAMILY.

In loving remembrance of our dear mother, Catherine Meyer, who departed from us, April 15, 1923:
Time rolls on and will not stay
What grief we felt since that sad day;
With one so loving, kind and true
How hard it was to part with you?
Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Katherine Meyer, who passed away April 15, 1923.

DAUGHTER AND SONS.

In loving memory of our dear mother, mother-in-law and grandmother, Barbar Specht, who departed this life two years ago, April 7, 1922:
A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we love is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
THE BEREAVED FAMILY.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear daughter, Ivy Johns (nee Schild), who departed this life on April 12, 1919.
At home in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of rest so fair,
Some day, some time, when our task is done,
With joy we shall meet her there.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS AND SISTER.

In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Rosalima Konvicka, who departed this life April 13, 1923.
She bade no one a last farewell,
Said goodby to none,
Her loving heart had ceased to beat
Before we knew she was gone;
Her cheery smile and kindly way
Are pleasing to recall,
She had a kind word for each one,
And died beloved by all.
Sadly missed by her daughter and granddaughter.
MRS. A. KIRGIN AND VIOLA KIRGIN.

In loving memory of my husband, John Rainey, who passed away the sixteenth day of April, 1922.
Days of sadness often come over us,
Tears of sorrow often flow;
Love shall always keep you near us,
Though you left us two years ago.
Never shall you be forgotten,
Never from our memory fade,
Loving hearts shall always linger
Around the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN. (c)

In memory of our dear mother, Rose Berviller (nee Huber), who departed this life two years ago, April 9, 1922.
Gone, dear mother, gone forever,
How we miss your loving face,
But you left us to remember,
None can fill your place.
Never shall you be forgotten,
Never from our memory fade;
Loving hearts will always linger,
Around the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by
BERVILLER FAMILY.

In loving memory of our dear son, Raymond Katz, who departed this life April 14, 1920.
Days of sadness oft come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow.
Love shall always keep you near us,
Though you left four years ago.
Never shall you be forgotten;
Never from our memory fade,
Loving hearts shall always linger,
Round the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by mother and father and all those who loved him.

In loving memory of my dear mother and grandmother, Augusta Roehrs, who departed this life one year ago, April 14, 1923.
What is home without a mother?
All the things a world may send,
For when we lost our dear mother,
We lost our dearest friend.
She was the crown of patience,
Throughout the years she struggled on,
And those hands at rest forever
Are the hands that made our home.
Sadly missed by
DAUGHTER AND GRANDDAUGHTER.

In loving memory of our dear parents, Wilhelmina Lerbe, who departed this life March 11, 1922, and John Lerbe, April 11, 1922.
Yes, gone, dear parents, but not forgotten;
In the light of God we see you, each night
as we lie down;
We hear your voice as when on earth
And see each smile and frown.
And when we are called to join you,
We pray the Lord to let us go
As peaceful and as brave as you.
Sadly missed by their CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

Truth in Advertising

The value of advertising is a direct ratio to the amount of READER-CONFIDENCE it possesses. That is entirely founded on its quality of TRUTH.

The National Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers and the Better Business Bureau and the Advertising Club of St. Louis, in all of which the Post-Dispatch holds membership, aim to eliminate fraudulent and misleading advertising. This newspaper will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement which does not conform to the highest standards of honesty. (c6)

OPPORTUNITY.

Are you looking to increase your income and at the same time get into an organization where the salesmen of today will have the opportunity of being the sales and branch managers of tomorrow? If so, whether you are an experienced salesman or not, here is your opportunity. We are a local manufacturer, in business for many years, making an article that has already established itself. We are now organizing our own sales force to cover St. Louis territory.

Those men who make a success of our proposition will be promoted to branch managers just as soon as they prove themselves capable.

In justice to yourself, whether you join us or not, investigate this proposition; the only requirements are honesty, neatness and a willingness to work. If you want to get out of the rut, call at The All-Metal Shop, 5 N. Grand bl., and see sales manager.

Read About This Beautiful Dodge Coupe
Four-pass. De Luxe model, with 5 cord tires, velour interior, clean as a pin, has a special platform rear spring, which costs $50, and it makes the Dodge run like a Packard; refinished in dark blue, cream wheels, many extras and oh! such a quiet-running motor; just try it on the hills, and you be the judge; worth $750. Yahlem says $575 and that's why we are so busy.
YAHLEM, 1035 N. Grand.
Open evenings.

'23 DODGE COUPE
$690
BUSINESS MAN'S COUPE
Are they popular? We never get enough Dodge coupes. They sell like hot cakes. Because the world knows that they are reliable. There isn't a dealer in St. Louis who can come within $100 of Yahlem's price on this model. Hundreds came too late last Sunday and were disappointed as the biggest bargains were gone before noon. We are going to sell 50 cars today and we are ready for the crowds. Any terms takes one.

JEWETT SEDAN $795

Yahlem must be crazy to sell such a beautiful sedan for the price of a Ford. We know this car is worth a whole lot more money than we're asking for it, but we want to convince the people of St. Louis that Yahlem makes less profit than any dealer in the world. That's why we sold over 1500 cars last year. You'll have to act quick if you want it. You know that bargains like this are grabbed up in a hurry. Any terms or trade.

GIVING IT AWAY

The world-famous Silent Knight touring needs no introduction. Stand one foot away from this car, and we'll start the motor; you will never know it's running. Other dealers ask $900 for a car of this kind because it's almost new. The upholstering is firm and solid cord tires, enameled hood and fenders. Oh, it's a dream. Don't read this ad too long if you want a Willys-Knight. Come down and bring a deposit. If you come too late for this bargain we have 200 other cars.

Why You Should Buy Your Used Car From Us

We are very careful—yet reasonably liberal—in our Used Car trade—in allowances on new Hupmobiles. Prices on new Hupmobiles are not made with the idea of allowing for excessive trade-in prices, therefore cars accepted are not overpriced.

Our greatest business asset is our good reputation and our Used Cars are sold with that thought in mind. All repair work is done in our own shops and at a minimum cost, which makes possible reasonable prices on high quality Used Cars.

Honest value and dependability are a permanent factor in our success and we will not deviate from that rule, because we know that old satisfied customers mean more than quantity sales.

For variety you cannot find a more complete stock in St. Louis. What make do you prefer? See our car first.

POLITICAL FEUD BRINGS $100 TO PHOTOGRAPHERS

Georgia Republicans Make Rough Remarks—Picture at White House Needed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—A new high price for a picture as evidence was established at the White House today when John L. Phillips, Republican State chairman of Georgia, gave $100 to White House photographers for snapping him at the executive offices.

Every four years there is a fight over Republican delegates in Georgia. The Phillips slate is opposed by one drawn by Henry Lincoln Johnson, negro, Republican national committeeman. Phillips told at the White House today of the recent convention of the Johnson following in Atlanta, at which Johnson is said to have made a speech describing his association with the administration and saying Phillips had been cast off by President Coolidge. He offered $100, it was said, to anyone who could prove that Phillips had been at the White House since Coolidge became President.

Phillips today declared he would give $100 to charity or some other purpose if he could call Johnson on that statement. Several photographers snapped his picture and told him they were having their annual banquet next week. He immediately gave them a $100 bill to cover the expenses.

FREED OF MURDER AS INSANE, WOULD QUIT SANITARIUM

Hammie Shane, Who Killed Mrs. Alaway, Seeks Release on Habeas Corpus Writ.

An order was issued yesterday by the Court of Appeals directing the superintendent of the City Sanitarium to produce Hammie Shane in court tomorrow, to show cause, if any, why he should not be released from that institution on a writ of habeas corpus. Shane was committed to the sanitarium March 1 by the Circuit Court after a jury had acquitted him of murder, on the ground that he was insane at the time the act was committed.

Shane was tried for the murder of Mrs. Helen Alaway, who, with her husband, Seid, was found shot to death in an apartment over their saloon, 1929 Hickory street, June 16 last. Shane, a cousin of Alaway, testified that he lived with the couple, and that he killed Mrs. Alaway while trying to wrest a pistol from her after she had fatally shot her husband. An alienist testified that Shane was mentally unbalanced as the result of epilepsy.

It is alleged in the habeas corpus suit that the Court's commitment of Shane was illegal and further that the question of his sanity should have been decided by a jury following his acquittal. The petition further states that Shane was sane at the time of the trial in January and is sane now.

JOHN B. HENKLE APPOINTED STRAUS & CO. HEAD HERE

Financial Man Says Firm Expects Large Development in St. Louis During 1924.

Appointment of John B. Henkle as resident manager of the St. Louis office, in the Boatmen's Bank Building, was announced today by S. W. Straus & Co., investment bankers.

Henkle is well-known in local financial circles, having been formerly St. Louis representative for Lee Higginson & Co., of Boston, and later, manager for the National City Co., of New York, where he continued for six years in establishing their office and handling their business in this city.

"Our company's program calls for loaning millions of dollars more during the next year in St. Louis," said Henkle, "providing that construction projects which will measure up to requirements are presented. We have the utmost faith in the development and future prosperity of this city."

EGANITE'S BODY AT PRISON UNCLAIME

Messages to Colbeck Telling Jerry Conley's Death Remain Unanswered.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispa

JEFFERSON CITY, April 12.— Penitentiary authorities tonight received no response to tele sent to members of the Egan of St. Louis, seeking a claimant the body of Jerry Conley, 41 old, reputed Egan gangster, died in the prison hospital day of injuries suffered last day when he fell 30 feet from roof of the prison building.

Conley, alias Tom McPherson was serving a 15-year from Bollinger County, from 8, 1922, for burglary and larc

Telegrams were sent to Colbeck, political leader of Egans, when Conley was dying, following his death another sage was sent to Colbeck regarding disposition of the body. No answer had been received tonight, officers said.

Conley was one of the 30 victs in the Missouri penitentiary who received Christmas gifts of each from Colbeck last Christmas The Egan leader brought for Eganites, or their who were in the Missouri prison his tour of Christmas cheer. Colbeck, according to statements made here, took $1200 to at Joliet, Ill.; $800 to others Chester, Ill.; and $1400 for others at Marion, Ind.

At the time he was injured Conley was working on the roof of of the prison buildings repairing some guttering. He suffered fracture of one leg and internal injuries.

Prison officers also are attempting to get in touch with Conley's wife, said to reside in Cairo, Ill. the body is not claimed it probably will be turned over to a medical college, or buried in a potter's field here, it was stated.

JUNIOR PLAYERS APPLAUDED IN "TAMING OF THE SHREW"

Local Talent Shows Marked Ability in Interpretation of Shakspearean Play.

The immortal shrew was tamed Friday night by the Junior Players, roundly, resoundingly and to the apparent satisfaction of audience which comfortably filled the Little Theater of the Artists Guild. The performance was repeated yesterday afternoon.

As always, when a shrew is tamed, the suspicion arose that in putting on the guise of gentleness she was really the real victor, and assuredly the Katherine of 12-year old Pauline Parker was a winner. She met very near her match in acting as well as in matrimony, however, in the Petruchio—a genuine swashbuckler—of Victor Woerheide.

Every one of the 300-year-old but ever new lines seemed to go over; the scene where Petruchio sends his famished bride supperless to bed was interrupted with applause. The engaging Bianca of Virginia Ascher, the prodigiously senile Gremio of Florence and the wittily presented Grumio of Bill Rabenberg stood out in a smooth-working cast. It may be noted that the program legend "by William Shakspeare," was more than usually justified by the text.

DRY CHIEF ASKED TO NAME GIRL STUDENTS HE ACCUSE

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 12.— Green Miller, divisional prohibition chief, and the Louisville Board of Education, today reported a deadlock over the accusation attributed to Miller that Louisville high school girls have been cutting classes and using their automobiles in the business of rum running. Edward Gottschalk, president of the board, called upon Miller to name those he charged with the offense.

Miller indicated that the names had been given to him in confidence and that his object merely was to warn all women and girls who might be rum running that they would be treated as offenders.

The Board of Education declared this explanation was unsatisfactory and insisted that he make a definite statement that the charges "were not founded on facts known to him," or give the names of the girls.

River Board to Meet Here.

The Mississippi River Commission will meet here for its annual high water inspection trip on board the steamer Mississippi Monday, April 21. EGANITE'S BODY AT PRISON UNCLAIMED Messages to Colbeck Telling of Jerry Conley's Death Remain Unanswered.

SALESMAN GETS 18 MONTHS FOR MANN ACT VIOLATION

S. A. Franklin, at Liberty Two Years, Admits Taking Belleville Woman to Los Angeles.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 12.—After two years of liberty that cost him $1000 cash and made him live the hounded life of a fugitive from justice, Samuel A. Franklin will now serve 18 months in Leavenworth penitentiary for his admitted violation of the Mann act.

Franklin pleaded guilty to bringing Mrs. Anna Reitle from Belleville, Ill., to Los Angeles in April, 1921. The plea was entered before Federal Judge James, Friday, by Franklin's attorney, David G. Traylor.

Franklin, a salesman, was originally arrested at Pasadena. He forfeited a bond of $1000 and disappeared. Three weeks ago he was rearrested at Hartford, Conn. While being brought to Los Angeles, he made two efforts to escape, one time leaping from the train.

In view of Franklin's previous efforts to elude the law and of his apparent docility in pleading guilty, unusual precautions will be taken to guard him on the trip to Leavenworth.

13 MORE HELD IN KU KLUX RIOT; TOTAL ARRESTS NOW 40

Residents of Lilly (Pa.) Committed to Jail in Connection With Murder and Disorders Last Saturday.

By the Associated Press.

EBENSBURG, Pa., April 12.—Total arrests on charge of murder and riot growing out of the fatal disorders last Saturday at Lilly between townspeople and visiting Ku Klux Klansmen were increased to 40 tonight when 13 residents of Lilly were committed to the Cambria County jail. Twenty-seven men, said to be Klansmen, had previously been committed to jail.

Each of the 13 men waived a preliminary hearing before a Justice of the Peace at Cresson and was held for court action. The hearing will be held Monday upon application for a writ of habeas corpus. Ten of the men were at liberty on bail on charges of inciting to riot, when rearrested.

Twenty-six alleged klansmen were arrested the night of the riot and were denied applications for a writ of habeas corpus by the Cambria County Court. The twenty-seventh man was arrested yesterday.

Sodom and Gomorrah, Wicked Cities of Bible, Now Buried Under Mud

Dr. Melvin Grove Kyle, Returning From Exploration, Expresses Belief That They Are Inaccessible Even to Divers.

Sodom and Gomorrah, the wicked Cities of the Plain, whose destruction by fire and brimstone is narrated in the nineteenth chapter of Genesis, are now buried in mud and water beyond the power of man to find them. Such is the conclusion of the Rev. Dr. Melvin Grove Kyle, president of Xenia Theological Seminary, University City, and head of the Xenia Expedition, now returning from explorations in the Dead Sea region of Palestine.

"Some have talked about divers, to recover something from the cities beneath the Dead Sea," Dr. Kyle writes in a letter to the Post-Dispatch. "But divers work in waters on a good bottom. The rushing waters of the little rivers, bringing down the alluvial soil for centuries, have been constantly filling the bottom of the shallow water with soft mud. In that mud no diver could work. The Lord, in his devastating providence, blasted these cities, and then in merciful care covered their shame from view in mud and water, and there they will remain until the judgment day, and there we leave them."

As was told in the Post-Dispatch April 1, Dr. Kyle and his fellow-explorers concur in the judgment of earlier investigators, that the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah were buried beneath the rising waters of the Dead Sea, either at the time of their destruction or later.

Discussing more in detail the work done and the conclusions reached by the expedition, Dr. Kyle, in his later letter, says:

"We never fully understand a discovery until he know just where it fits in and how. The Xenia expedition did not find anything so sensational as Tutankhamen's tomb, but we found things which, when fitted into their proper setting, are of much more value than more startling discoveries.

Civilization of the Time of Lot.

"To begin at the beginning, it is now known that there was here a Canaanite civilization of the early Bronze Age, the twentieth century B. C., the time of Abraham and Lot and of Sodom. The beautiful pottery which we found in the graves opened by the Arab treasure hunters puts this beyond question. The High Place, with its Canaanite accessories of worship, the stone circle and the standing stones are more spectacular and curious, but the pottery determines the age of the civilization as certainly as Limoges or Dolton ware determines a period in modern ceramics.

"This was really a pre-Moabite civilization, for Lot was the father of Moab. This is a necessary first link in the evidence we desire, for the Bible represents just such a civilization as being here in the days of Sodom and Gomorrah. Moreover, there follows just here one of those expressive silences in Bible history.

"The destruction of the Cities of the Plain put out that civilization as suddenly and completely as one snuffs out a candle. Never again is any mention made, or hint given or implied, of a civilization in this plain after the Lord destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah. The place was blasted. This is exactly what our researches have revealed. Nowhere does that civilization appear again. It has disappeared as completely from the plain as from Bible history. Thus, what seemed only negative evidence becomes positive evidence on this subject. The next civilization that appears is Byzantine, comes more than 2000 years later.

Sea Formerly at Lower Level.

"The submerged forest which we saw brings out a second fact of which there are many evidences—the fact that the sea has been at a lower level in the past than at present. The mile of forest on each side of the shore means that the sea only came up to the inner edge of the land on which the forest stood within 100 years past. A long time ago the geologists showed that the sea had not always been at the same low level as now; that there were, in fact, at least 15 different levels higher than the present level. Why, then, not also a still lower level than the present one? This natural presumption is clearly shown to have been a fact, by these submerged forests."

Dr. Kyle proceeds to tell of the changes in the conformation of the Dead Sea, visible to him since he first saw it 32 years ago, and says that in that period the sea has risen eight feet at least, covering an island where parties from Jerusalem used to hold picnics. He also disputes a theory of Prof. Huntington, of the Yale expedition, that the sea in the days of Abraham was not lower, but 70 feet higher, than it now is. If this were true, he says, the sea would have had no shore at some points, but would have been beating against the mountains.

"The problem of nature at the Dead Sea, that has no level, is to maintain an equilibrium between inflow and evaporation. If the evaporating surface is increased, the level of the sea falls; if it be decreased, it rises until it can run over the edge somewhere and then ceases to rise. When the sea extended to Beth Hoglah on the north and had thus, at its upper end, about one-seventh more evaporating space, the lower level then must have left this plain at the lower (south) end of the sea almost, if not quite, a dry plain. Such was its condition in Abraham's time."

In the days of Abraham and of Sodom's prosperity, he continues, the plain was fertile and well irrigated. The cause of the great change which placed the plain below the salt waters, he traces to the inflow of the Jordan, and continues:

"We have known for a long time, from the geologists, that this was a burned-out region of petroleum and asphalt. A great stratum of rock salt also underlies the western side of this overflowed plain. This salt is mixed with marl and sulphur. We picked up pieces of purse suplhur along the shore, grim reminders of the great tragedy which geologists, as well as the Bible, say took place here.

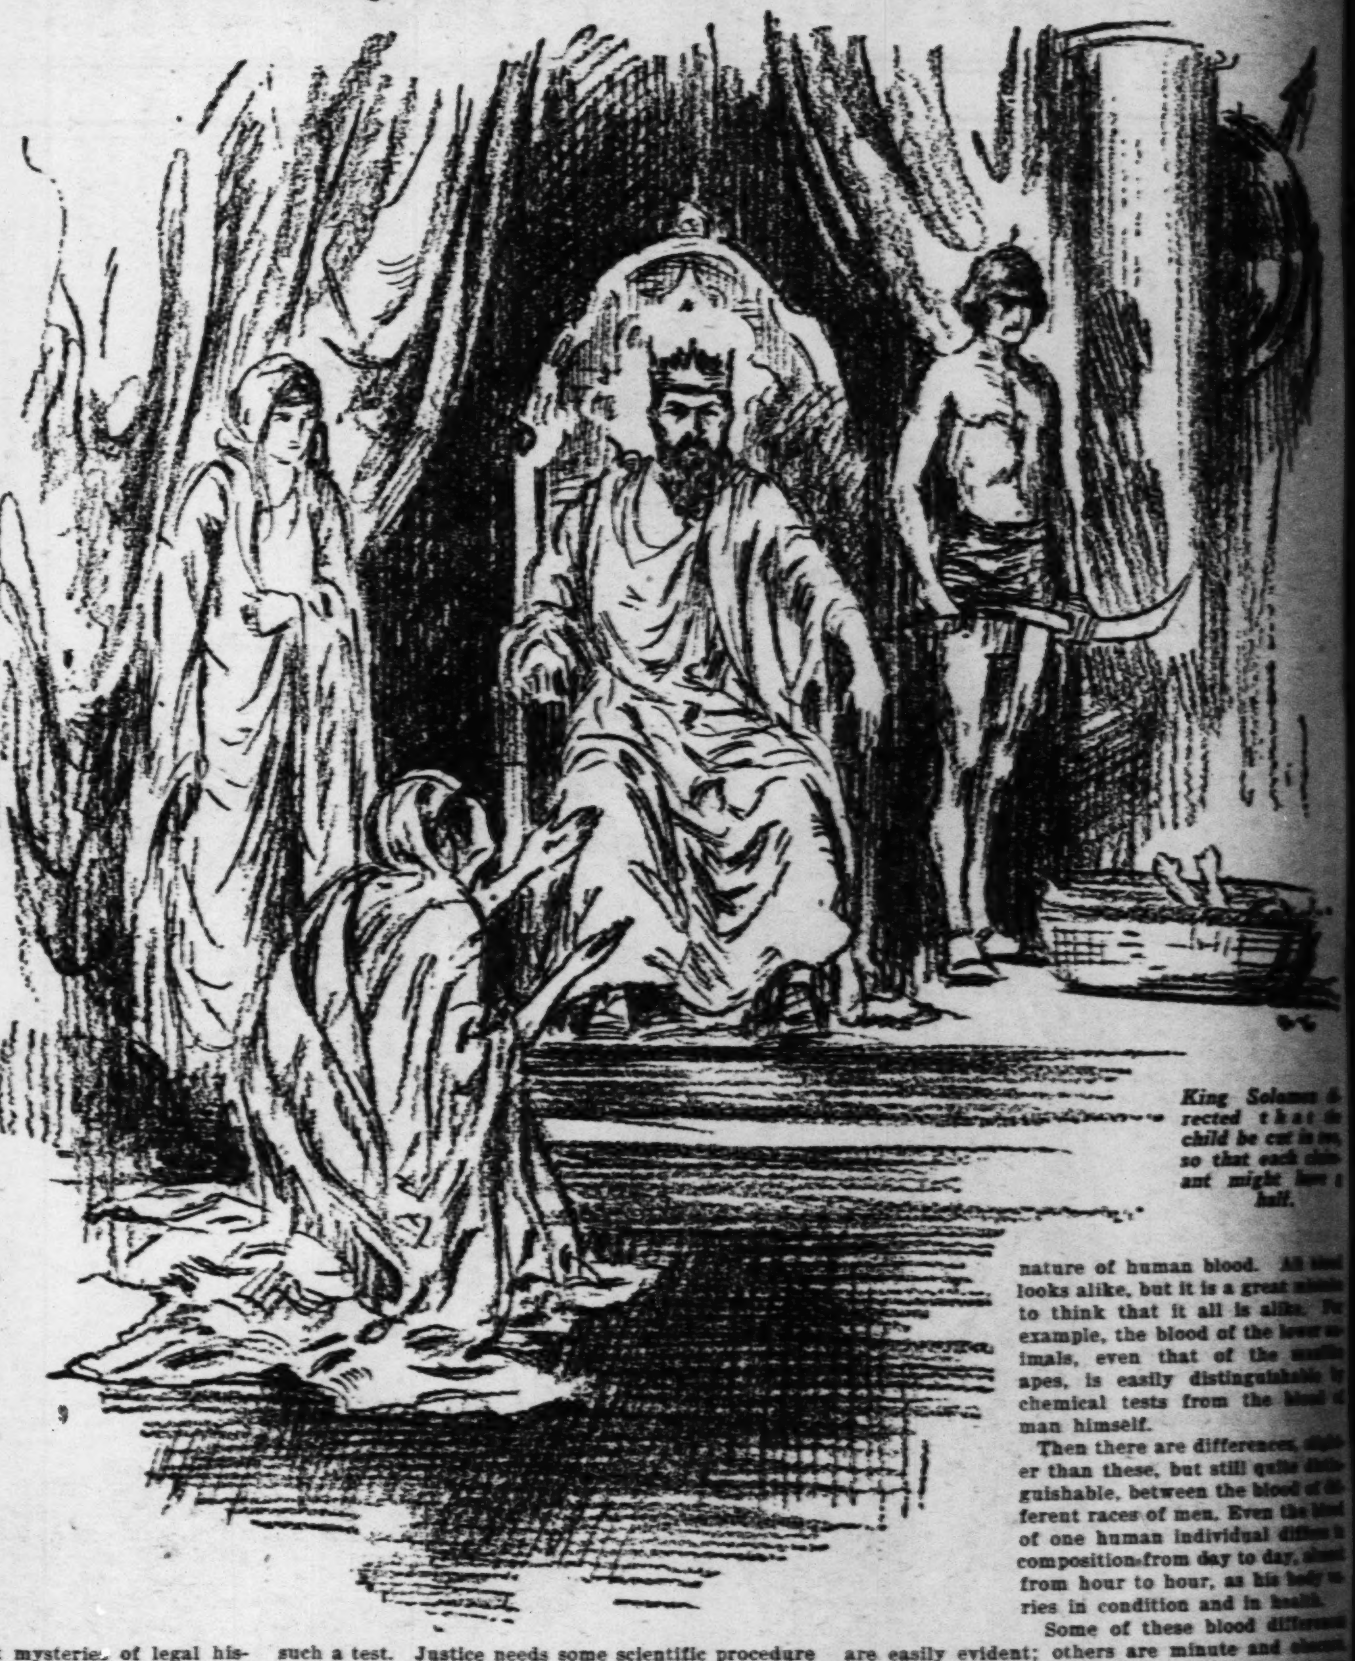
Disputed Parentage, Science and the Blood Test

Research has disclosed many interesting new facts about human blood—It is a complex and marvelous mixture, containing hundreds of separate substances, and even now samples from most individuals fall into one of four "types"—There is little doubt but that the peculiarities of a person's blood are inherited—And that such a test can be devised to fix parentage "begins to seem probable," writes scientist :: ::

By E. E. FREE, PH. D.
Fellow of American Association for the Advancement of Science



King Solomon directed that the child be cut in two, so that each claimant might have a half.

CONFRONTED with two women who claimed the same child, King Solomon employed a method that was simplicity itself. He directed, you remember, that the child should be cut in two so that each claimant might have a half. Thereupon the real mother spoke up and the King got what he was after, namely, the truth.

But ever since that time these cases of disputed parentage have been puzzling Judges and clogging the judicial machinery of mankind. Some of the deepest mysteries of legal history, some of the blackest crimes and boldest frauds, have turned on this recurring question: "Who were the parents of this child?"

For example, the most famous trial that was ever held in Scotland, that little country so astonishingly prolific in famous trials, was a case of this kind. Though this trial happened in 1762, its familiar title, "the Douglas case," is still known to every lawyer, and the case itself is still cited in the courts. A fame of similar endurance attends the parentage case of James Annesley, who was (or perhaps was not) the son of Lady Altham. This case set all Ireland at fisticuffs for years and was responsible for three full-sized riots and nobody knows how many cracked heads and split shillalahs.

And in England they had the notorious case of the Tichborne claimant, an Australian butcher, who pretended to be the missing Sir Roger Tichborne, and very nearly convinced everybody that he was telling the truth.

In the United States we have had the venomous Stillman divorce trial, a case still green in the memory of newspaper readers and which derived much of its bitterness as well as its legal importance from the disputed parentage of Baby Guy. And as this article is written there is on trial in New York City another remarkable divorce action, the Harris case, that turns upon another problem of disputed parentage, this time the parentage of the wife.

In all these cases, as in other thousands that have helped to clutter up our courts, what was needed was a modern Solomon. An unmistakable test of parentage would have settled all disputes at once. No service that the scientific criminologist could render to the world would be greater than the discovery of such a test. Justice needs some scientific procedure that will determine with certainty whether a specified child is or is not the offspring of a specified parent.

Unfortunately the criminologists have been loath to commit themselves in such cases. It is notorious that resemblances in face or figure are a poor guide. Many children fail to show the slightest resemblance either to the father or the mother.

On the other hand, many striking resemblances occur between persons not related at all, as witness that astonishing coincidence in the Leavenworth Penitentiary, where the two negroes, each named Will West, were practically indistinguishable in appearance, though they were entirely unrelated.

Nor do one's fingerprints, definite as they are for personal identification, offer the slightest aid in unraveling the puzzles of parentage or of family relationship. The cause of the human fingerprint patterns is unknown, but, however produced, they certainly are not inherited. Indeed, there is seldom even a general resemblance between the prints of father and of son.

No, a scientific test of parentage must go much deeper than these superficial evidences like face or form or fingerprints. It must go deeper, even, than the mental characteristics that we call "family traits," for there are many children in whom these traits fail to appear.

Can such a test be devised? It begins to seem probable that it can. The clew comes from recent scientific work on blood tests, especially from the painstaking researches of a brilliant Norwegian specialist, Dr. A. Jervell.

Dr. Jervell has been numbered for years among the little group of scientists working on the exact nature of human blood. All blood looks alike, but it is a great mistake to think that it all is alike. For example, the blood of the lower animals, even that of the manlike apes, is easily distinguishable by chemical tests from the blood of man himself.

Then there are differences, slighter than these, but still quite distinguishable, between the blood of different races of men. Even the blood of one human individual differs in composition from day to day, almost from hour to hour, as his body varies in condition and in health.

Some of these blood differences are easily evident; others are minute and obscure. It is like the differences in beverages. Anyone can tell the difference between tea and coffee. Most people can tell good coffee from bad coffee, or coffee with cream in it from coffee that contains only milk. These are the greater differences, the more obvious ones. They are like the greater differences in blood, differences that any scientist can detect, as, for example, the difference between human blood and the blood of a horse.

But there are individuals called "coffee tasters," men who make it their business to taste coffee and determine its quality. These men acquire such skill that they can distinguish differences which you or I cannot perceive at all. They can taste a cup of our familiar breakfast beverage and tell us with a high degree of certainty just what blend of coffee berries was used in making it, just what part of the world each of these berries came from, just how they were roasted and ground and just how the liquid decoction of them was made.

This is expert knowledge, and the same kind of skill and information is being accumulated gradually by the experts in blood. They are learning to distinguish with certainty between varieties of blood that seem alike to all ordinary scientific tests.

Some of these blood differences have been applied in medical practice. For example, it has been found that most individuals of the white race fall into one of four blood classes, or "types." Physicians call these Type I, Type II, Type III and Type IV. Some of these types will mix successfully, others will not, and this fact has found important application, for example, in the surgical operation of blood transfusion. If the surgeon happens to

"THRILLS!" exclaimed the little man who was special correspondent of the Daily Meteor. "They just don't happen for me any longer."

"You must have had an interesting life!" I suggested, doubtfully.

"Not at all. Revolutions and earthquakes are as commonplace to me as bus rides to you."

"Are you expecting either, in Damascus, just at the moment?" I queried in as respectful a tone as I could assume.

"Good Lord, no! The most we can hope for is a massacre." The colorless eyes looked at me without the least twinkle to belie their seriousness. "This hotel has a steel door which they can let down like a portcullis, so you'll be perfectly safe."

I smiled over the fragment of conversation as I went upstairs to my overfurnished room, where three couches covered with carpets and a plethora of inlaid tables gave the impression of a warehouse. From the windows, set so high in the wall that I had to climb on one of the beds to look out of them, the city seemed painted in silver amidst the indigo of her apricot gardens.

The moonlight was so clear that I went to sleep dreaming I was sailing on a white, still sea. Suddenly a storm arose and I was deafened by the roar of the waves.

I woke in the hot, stuffy room, but thought I was still dreaming, for clamor echoed all around me. At first I could not understand where it came from. Then, as the tumult grew more insistent, I climbed up on the pillows and tried to force open the hermetically sealed windows. The darkness outside was opaque—it seemed to have a curiously stifling quality and I wondered what time the moon had set.

Waves of sound beat against my ears. There was something familiar about the intermittent crackling. In a flash I was back in France, bent over the wheel of an ambulance which eddied between the blurred headlights. "Rifle fire!" I exclaimed, and my heart missed a beat with excitement.

Light sprang up in the neighboring houses across one of the seven rivers, figures hurried to and fro with torches. Pantomimic humanity gesticulated against illuminated windows. There was a stir in the streets. Doors banged in the hotel which, in this year of war, had long been deserted except by Arab and Kurd, Jew, Druse and Armenian. Above the spitting musketry came another ominous sound—the deep-toned roar of a crowd unleased.

"Marshall must be enjoying himself," I thought, and wondered if I could turn on my light or whether I should at once become a target for whoever was conducting the massacre. From far away came the sound of Maxims and I wondered which side the soldiers were taking and who were the victims. In a town which had become the refuge for the tag-ends of a score of races, where the most fanatical religions of the world were each at the throat of the other, there was infinite opportunity for violence.

I was just wondering if I could climb up on the window sill when a stray bullet shattered the glass, and at the same moment my door crashed open. The light went up to reveal the oddest figure! For a second I did not recognize my journalist acquaintance. The little man was garbed in pajamas much too large for him, his hair was ruffled into a wisp which stood upright and his feet were thrust into huge heelless slippers which flapped as he walked. Over one arm hung something dusty and full of holes. An army revolver, which appeared likely to go off at any moment, wavered in the other hand.

"Get up at once," ordered my visitor. "There's a general rising in the town. Fugitives are pouring into the hotel in the hopes that it'll be bullet proof. There's a mass of Levantines down below, gibbering with panic. They'll have to shut the steel door I told you about or there won't be room to breathe."

A violent crash came from below.

"That's it now. . . . For God's sake, be quick. What are you waiting for?"

I looked at the curious figure in front of me, while my mind raced over the various possibilities of escape. If there was going to be slaughter, it would be thickest in the crowded hall below, where probably every malefactor, justly afraid of his doom, had by this time taken refuge.

"If I'm going to be killed," I temporized, hoping that my little joke would steady the hand which held the revolver, "I would much rather die neatly and comfortably in bed."

"Nonsense! Quite impossible!" retorted Marshall. "You're not going to be killed. I came here to save you, but I can't waste all my time arguing with you."

The clamor was coming nearer. There were wild shouts and bursts of song outside. Torchlight flared across the ceiling, paling the electricity. The journalist was evidently torn between his sense of duty to a lone countrywoman and the professional instincts which urged him to profit by the experience. He turned to the door, tripping over the dusty stuff he carried.

"What on earth have you got there?" I called after him, realizing at last the whole incongruity of the picture.

"I believe it's a genuine Ispahan," Marshall replied, with dignity. "I spent a fortnight bargaining for it and I'm not going to have it looted."

And then the light went out. It seemed as if someone had extinguished it at the door. I crouched, immobile, at the head of the couch, afraid to move on account of the broken glass which strewed the sheets. Marshall swung round and fired through the opening. There was a faint cry and another shot came from the revolver.

This was too much for my nerves! With set teeth I slipped down between the bed and the wall, cutting myself badly as I did so. The blood ran into my mouth and the warm salt taste steadied me. How silly, with bullets flying over one's head, to get hurt by a broken window. There was no danger, I told myself sternly, if only one kept one's head. In pitch darkness I heard Marshall kick the door shut and a little clicking sound indicated that he was reloading.

At last curiosity conquered my sense of discretion. Cautiously I crept from my hiding place and began fumbling for matches.

"What are you doing?" came Marshall's voice, unusually staccato.

"Don't move," I urged. "For heaven's sake keep still." I had to shout to make myself heard above the sudden roar outside. I shivered in my chiffon nightgown and groped for something to cover it.

A tiny flame spurted and, between us, we found and lit a tallow dip. Gazing at my smeared, blood-stained face above its flicker, Marshall suddenly regained his nerve. "Stay here," he said. "I'll go and reconnoiter."

As soon as the slither of his heelless slippers had faded down the passage, I flung myself on the door and locked it. Then, shaking with excitement, and cold, I dragged the heaviest piece of furniture against it and piled others on top. From this temporary pyramid I managed to crawl to a post of vantage on the nearest windowsill.

The night was strangely dark and oppressive. The lights had disappeared from the surrounding houses and I could hardly distinguish the blur of the Rosita Forbes, in a recent photograph.

There was a wilder cry from the very heart of the mob and it was as if a solitary figure had been vomited from the maw of some great beast. For a second I saw the torn robes, the bound limbs, above a mass of upturned faces—then, I understood. There was a horrid jerk and the human bundle swung out like a puppet dancing on a string.

A Thief Who Stole $41,000, Was Captured, Escaped and Never Punished

This extraordinary case began with the disappearance of a money package sent by New York bank to express office for shipment to Washington—Nearly two years elapsed before arrest of the guilty man, who had fled to British Honduras—The stratagem which Robert Pinkerton devised to take him into custody, and the final outcome as to the criminal and the stolen bills—Some features of the affair never were explained :: :: ::

By CLEVELAND MOFFETT.

LATE in the afternoon of Friday, May 4, 1888, two messengers left the American Exchange National Bank, at the northeast corner of Cedar street and Broadway, New York City, and started down the busy thoroughfare for the office of the Adams Express Co., a few blocks distant.

They carried between them, each holding one of the handles, a valise made of canvas and leather, in which had just been placed, in the presence of the paying teller, a package containing $41,000 in greenbacks, to be transmitted to the United States Treasury in Washington for redemption.

Although the messengers—Edward S. Crawford and old "Dominie" Earle—were among the bank's most trusted employes, their honesty being considered above suspicion, they were nevertheless followed at a short distance by Bank Detective McDougal, an old-time police detective, whose snow-white beard and ancient style of dress had long made him a personage of note on Broadway.

Detective McDougal followed the messengers, not because he had any fear that they were planning a robbery, but because it is an imperative rule of all great banking institutions that the transfer of large sums of money, even for very short distances, shall be watched over with the most scrupulous care.

The messengers walked on through the hurrying crowd, keeping on the east sidewalk as far as Wall street, where they turned across and continued their way on the west sidewalk as far as the Adams Express Co.'s building, which stood at 59 Broadway. Having seen them safely inside the building the detective turned back to the bank, where his services were required in other matters.

Passing down a large room strewn with boxes and packages ready for shipment, the two messengers turned to the right and ascended the winding stairs that in those days led to the money department on the second floor. No one paid much attention to them, as at this busy hour bank messengers were arriving and departing every few minutes. Still, some of the clerks remembered afterward, or thought they did, that the old man, Earle, ascended the stairs more slowly than his more active companion, who went ahead, carrying the valise alone.

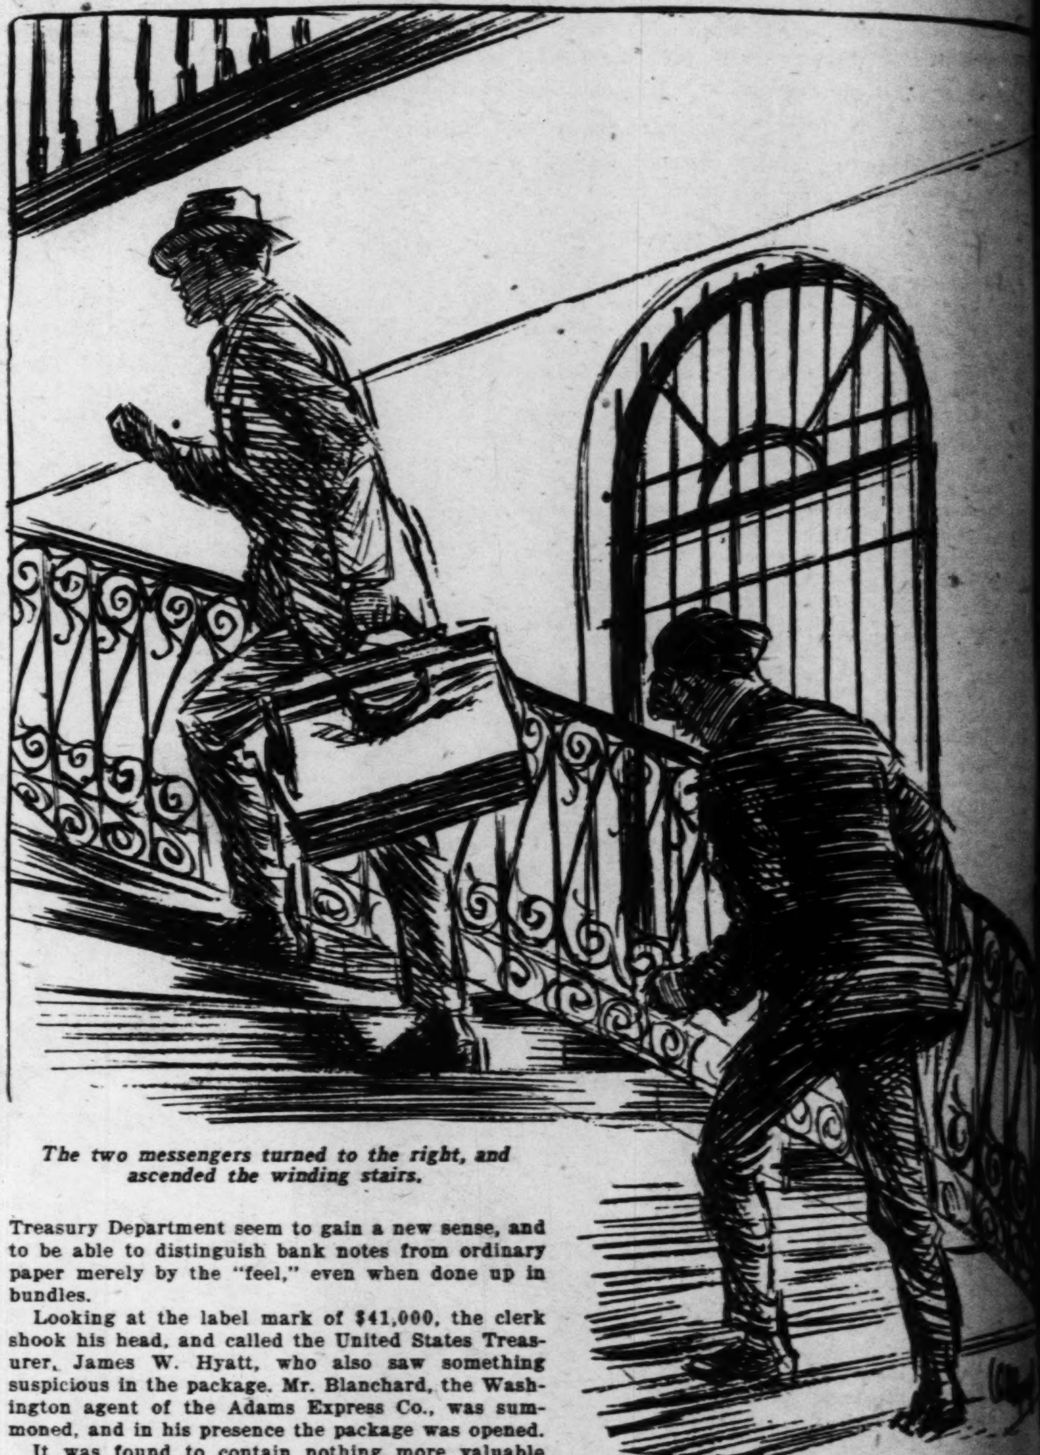
Both messengers, however, were present at the receiving window of the money department when the package was taken from the valise and handed to the clerk, who gave a receipt for it in the usual form: "Received from the American Exchange Bank one package marked as containing $41,000, for transfer to Washington"; or, at least, so far as has ever been proved, both messengers were present when the package was handed in.

The two messengers, having performed their duty, went away, Earle hurrying to the ferry to catch a train out into New Jersey, where he lived, and Crawford returning to the bank with the empty valise. The valuable package had meantime been ranged behind the heavily wired grating along with dozens of others, some of them containing much larger sums.

The $41,000 package, after a brief delay, was locked in one of the small portable safes, a score of which were always lying about in readiness, and was lowered to the basement, where it was loaded on one of the company's wagons.

The wagon was then driven to Jersey City, guarded by the messenger in charge, his assistant and the driver, all three men being armed, and was safely placed aboard the night express for Washington. It was the company's rule that the messenger who started with a through safe traveled with it to its destination, though he had to make a journey of a thousand miles.

The next morning, when the package from the American Exchange Bank was delivered in Washington, the experienced Treasury clerk who received it perceived at once, from the condition of the package, that something was wrong. Employes of the Treasury Department seem to gain a new sense, and to be able to distinguish bank notes from ordinary paper merely by the "feel," even when done up in bundles.



The two messengers turned to the right, and ascended the winding stairs.

Looking at the label mark of $41,000, the clerk shook his head, and called the United States Treasurer, James W. Hyatt, who also saw something suspicious in the package. Mr. Blanchard, the Washington agent of the Adams Express Co., was summoned, and in his presence the package was opened.

It was found to contain nothing more valuable than slips of brown straw paper, the coarse variety then used by butchers in wrapping up meat, neatly cut to the size of bank notes. The $41,000 were missing.

The robbery was discovered at the Treasury in Washington on Saturday morning. The news was telegraphed to New York immediately, and on Saturday afternoon anxious councils were held by the officials of the American Exchange Bank and the Adams Express Co. Inspector Byrnes was notified; the Pinkerton agency was notified; and urgent dispatches were sent to Mr. John Hoey, president of the express company, and to Robert Pinkerton, who were both out of town, that their presence was required immediately in New York.

Meanwhile, everyone who had had any connection with the stolen package—the paying teller of the bank, the other bank clerks, the messengers, Detective McDougal, the receiving clerks of the Adams Express Co. and the express messenger—was closely examined. Where and how the $41,000 had been stolen was important to learn, not only in itself, but also to fix responsibility for the sum lost as between the bank and the express company.

An examination of the bogus package disclosed some points of significance. Ordinarily, when bank notes are done up for shipment by an experienced clerk, the bills are pressed together as tightly as possible in small bundles, which are secured with elastic bands, and then wrapped snugly in strong paper, until the whole makes a package almost as hard as a board.

Around this package the clerk knots strong twine, melts a drop of sealing wax over each knot, and stamps it with the bank's seal. The finished package thus presents a neat and trim appearance. But in the present instance the package received at the Treasury was loosely and slovenly wrapped, and the seals seemed to have been put on either in great haste or by an inexperienced hand.

Moreover, the label must have been cut [illegible] stolen package and pasted on the other, [illegible] brown paper of a previous wrapping showed [illegible] in a margin running around the label. The [illegible] on the package read:

"$41,000.

"United States Treasurer,

"Washington, D. C."

All this was printed, except the figures "41,[illegible] even the dollar sign. The figures were in the [illegible] ing of Mr. Watson, the paying teller of the [illegible] whose business it was to oversee the [illegible] money. His initials were also marked on the [illegible] with the date of the sending; so that on [illegible] the label Mr. Watson himself was positive [illegible] genuine.

All this made it tolerably clear that the [illegible] had not been committed at the bank before the [illegible] age was intrusted to the two messengers; [illegible] bank clerk would have made up so clumsy a [illegible] and the paying teller himself, had he [illegible] to the crime, would not have cut the [illegible] by himself from the genuine package [illegible] on the bogus one; he would simply have [illegible] out another label, thus lessening the chances [illegible] tection.

Furthermore, it was shown by testimony [illegible] ing the short time between the sealing up [illegible] package in the paying teller's department [illegible] delivery to Dominie Earle, who took it first, [illegible] constantly under the observation of half a [illegible] bank employes; so that the work of cutting [illegible] label and pasting it on the bogus package [illegible] scarcely have been accomplished then without [illegible] tion.

Earle and Crawford, the bank messengers, [illegible] submitted to repeated examinations; but their [illegible] ments threw no light upon the mystery. [illegible] persistently to the same story, which was that [illegible] had loosed his hold on the handle of the [illegible] the moment they left the bank until they had delivered the package through the window of the express company's money department.

Accepting these statements as true, it was impossible that the package had been tampered with in this part of its journey; while the assumption that they were not true implied, apparently, a collusion between the two messengers, which was highly improbable, since Dominie Earle had been a servant of the bank for 35 years, and had never in that long term failed in his duty or done anything to arouse distrust.

As for Crawford, who was, indeed, a new man, it was plain that if the Dominie told the truth, and had really kept his hold on the valise handle all the way to the express company's window, his companion, honest or dishonest, would have had no opportunity to cut off the label, paste it on the bogus package and make the substitution.

Finally came the theory that the money package had been stolen while in the care of the express company. In considering this possibility it became necessary to know exactly what had happened to the package from the moment it was taken through the window of the money department up to the time of its delivery at the Treasury.

Two or three hours may have elapsed between the receipt of the package and the shipment of the safe, but during this time the package was constantly in view of five or six clerks in the money department, and, unless they were all in collusion, it could scarcely have been stolen by anyone there.

As for the express messenger who accompanied the safe on the wagon to the train, and then on the train to Washington, and then on another wagon to the Treasury building, his innocence seemed clearly established, since the safe had been locked and sealed, according to custom, before its delivery to him, and showed no signs of having been tampered with when opened in Washington the following morning by another representative of the express company.

One important fact stood out plain and incontrovertible: That a responsible clerk in the money department of the Adams Express Co. had receipted for a package supposed to contain $41,000 intrusted to the company by the bank. This threw the responsibility on the company, at least until it could be shown that the package as delivered contained brown paper, and not bank notes. In accordance with their usual policy, the Adams people paid over to the American Exchange Bank the sum of $41,000, and said no more about it. But their silence did not mean inactivity.

Hastening to New York in response to the telegram sent him, Robert Pinkerton examined the evidence already collected by his representative, and then himself questioned all persons in any way concerned in the handling of the money. Mr. Pinkerton, after his investigation, was not so sure as some persons were that the package had been stolen by employes of the express company. He inclined rather to the opinion that, in the rush of business in the express office, the false package, badly made up though it was, might have been passed by one of the clerks.

This conclusion turned his suspicions first toward the two bank messengers. Of these he was not long in deciding Dominie Earle to be, in all probability, innocent. While he had known of instances where old men, after years of unimpeachable life, had suddenly turned to crime, he knew such cases to be infrequent, and he decided that Earle's was not one of them. Of the innocence of the other messenger, Crawford, he was not so sure. He began a careful study of his record.

Edward Sturgis Crawford at this time was about 27 years old, a man of medium height, a decided blond, with large blue eyes, and of a rather effeminate type. He went scrupulously dressed, had white hands, with carefully manuicured nails, parted his hair in the middle, and altogether was somewhat of a dandy.

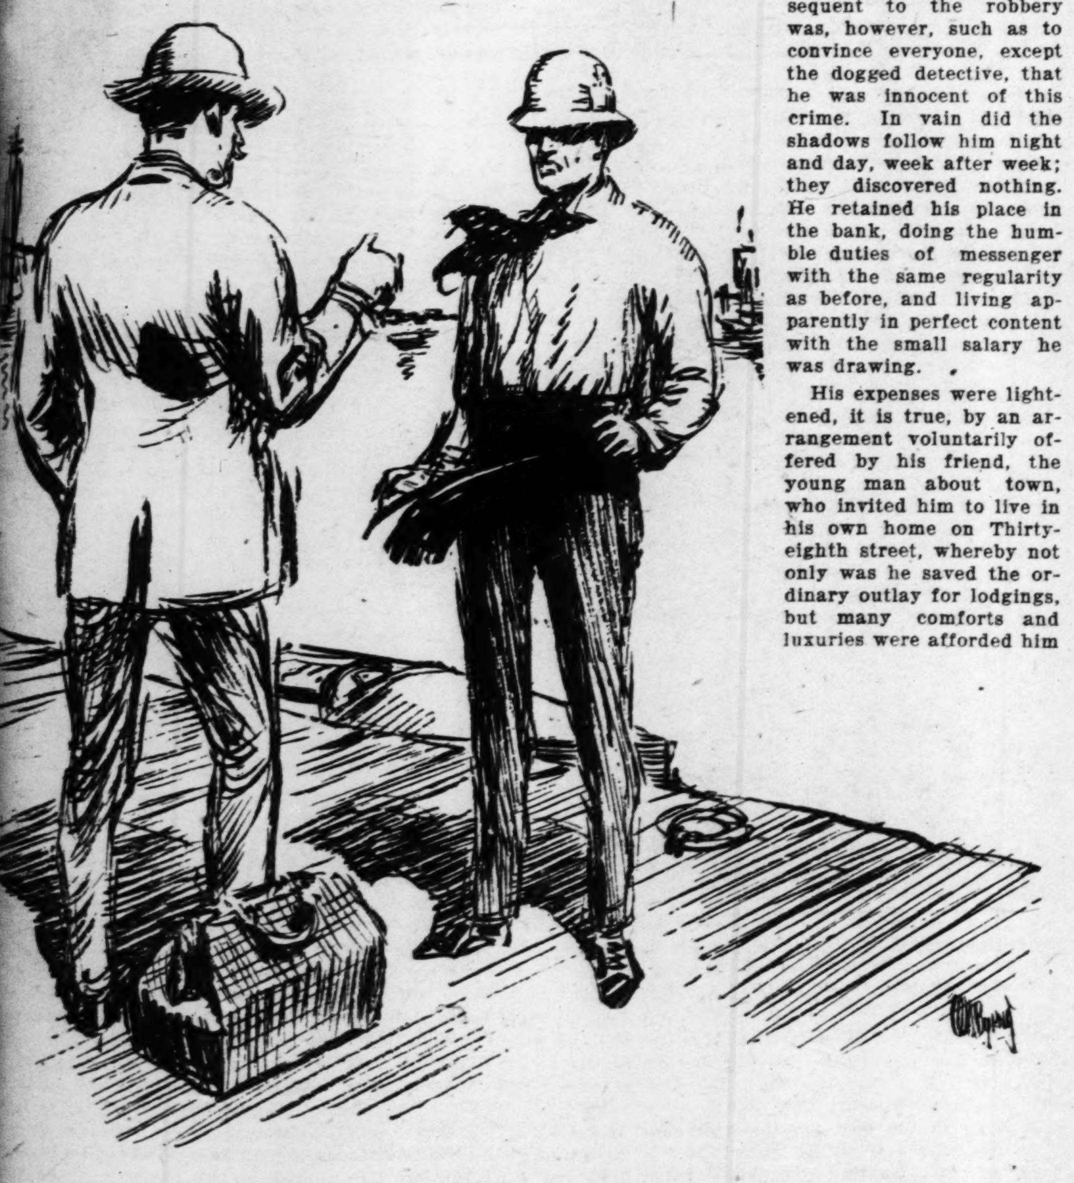
He had entered the bank on the recommendation of a wealthy New Yorker, a young man about town, who, strange to say, had made Crawford's acquaintance and, indeed, struck up quite a friendship with him, while the latter was serving in the humble capacity of conductor on a Broadway car. This was about a year before the time of the robbery.

Thus far Crawford had attended to his work satisfactorily, doing nothing to arouse suspicion, unless it was indulging a tendency to extravagance in dress. His salary was but $42 a month, and yet he permitted himself such luxuries as silk underclothes, fine patent-leather shoes and other apparel to correspond.

Pushing back further into Crawford's record, Mr. Pinkerton learned that he had grown up in the town of Hancock, N. Y., where he had been accused of stealing $60 of his employer and afterward of perpetrating a fraud upon an insurance company. Putting all these facts together, Mr. Pinkerton decided that, in spite of a perfectly self-possessed manner and the good opinion of his employers, Crawford would stand further watching.

His general conduct subsequent to the robbery was, however, such as to convince everyone, except the dogged detective, that he was innocent of this crime. In vain did the shadows follow him night and day, week after week; they discovered nothing. He retained his place in the bank, doing the humble duties of messenger with the same regularity as before, and living apparently in perfect content with the small salary he was drawing.

His expenses were lightened, it is true, by an arrangement voluntarily offered by his friend, the young man about town, who invited him to live in his own home on Thirty-eighth street, whereby not only was he saved the ordinary outlay for lodgings, but many comforts and luxuries were afforded him that would otherwise have been beyond his reach.



"I don't remember you," said Crawford; but his face went white.

Thus three months went by, with no result; then four, five, six months; and, finally, all but a year. Then suddenly, in April, 1889, Crawford took his departure for Central America, giving out to his friends that he was going there to assume the management of a banana plantation of 60,000 acres, owned by his wealthy friend and benefactor.

Before Crawford sailed, however, the shadows had informed Mr. Pinkerton of Crawford's intention, and asked instructions. Should they arrest the man before he took flight, or should they let him go?

"We'll let him go," said Mr. Pinkerton, with a grim smile; "only we'll have someone go with him."

The Pinkerton representative employed to shadow Crawford on the voyage sent word, by the first mail after their arrival in Central America, that the young man had rarely left his stateroom, and that whenever forced to do so had employed a colored servant to stand on guard so that no one could go inside.

Nothing more occurred, however, to justify the suspicion against Crawford until the early part of 1890, when the persistent efforts of the detectives were rewarded by an important discovery. It was then that Robert Pinkerton learned that Robert Crawford had told a deliberate lie when examined before the bank officials in regard to his family relations in New York. He had stated that his only relative in New York was a brother, Marvin Crawford, who was then driving a street car on the Bleecker street line.

Now it came to the knowledge of Mr. Pinkerton that Crawford had in the city three married aunts and several cousins. The reason for Crawford's having concealed this fact was presently brought to light through the testimony of one of the aunts, who, having been induced to speak, not without difficulty, stated that on Sunday, May 6, 1888, two days after the robbery, her nephew had called at her house and given her a package which he said contained gloves, and which he wished her to keep for him.

It was about this time that the papers contained the first news of the robbery, and, her suspicions having been aroused, she picked a hole in the paper covering large enough to let her see that there was money inside. Somewhat disturbed, she took the package to her husband, who opened it and found that it contained $2000 in bank notes. Realizing the importance of this discovery, the husband told his wife that when Crawford came back to claim the package she should refer him to him, which she did.

Some days later, on learning from his aunt that she had spoken to her husband about the package, Crawford became greatly excited, and told her she had made a dreadful mistake. A stormy scene followed with his uncle, in which the latter positively refused to render him the money until he was satisfied that Crawford was its rightful possessor. A few days later Crawford's young friend, the man about town, called on the uncle and stated that the money in the package belonged to him and must be surrendered. The uncle was still obdurate; and when Crawford and his friend became violent in manner, he remarked meaningly that if they made any more trouble he would deliver the package of money to the Adams Express Co. and let the company decide to whom it belonged. This brought the angry claimants to their senses, and Crawford's friend left the house and never returned.

Finally, Crawford's uncle compromised the contention by giving his nephew $500 out of the two thousand and retaining the balance himself, in payment, one must suppose, for his silence. At any rate, he kept the $1500, and also a receipt in Crawford's handwriting for the $500 paid to him.

Other members of the family recalled the fact that a few days after the robbery Crawford had left in his aunt's storeroom a valise, which he had subsequently called for and taken away. None of them had seen the contents of the valise, but they remembered that Crawford, on the second visit, had remained alone in the storeroom for quite a time, perhaps 20 minutes, and after his departure they found there a rubber band like those used at the bank.

The detectives also discovered that on May 15, 1888, 11 days after the robbery, Crawford had rented a safety deposit box at a bank in the Fifth Avenue Hotel Building, under the name of Eugene Holt. On May 18 he had exchanged this box for a larger one. During the following months he made several visits to the box, but for what purpose was not known.

On presenting this accumulated evidence to the Adams Express Co., along with his own deductions, Robert Pinkerton was not long in convincing his employers that the situation required in Central America the presence of some more adroit detective than had yet been sent there.

The difficulty of the case was heightened by the fact that Crawford had established himself in British Honduras, and that the extradition treaty between the United States and England did not then,

AT 15 SHE IS AMERICA'S CHAMPION FARM GIRL

Peggy Keith of Virginia wins first place among 600,000 boys and girls, in competition under auspices of the U. S. Department of Agriculture — So, at Uncle Sam's expense, her exhibit of ponies, pigs, poultry, dairy cows, beeves, canned fruit and vegetables, together with specimens of her corn, potatoes and other crops, was sent to the Springfield (Mass.) Fair—Details of her remarkable record :: ::

By ROBERT H. MOULTON.

"PEGGY KEITH of Warrenton, Va., has been proclaimed by the United States Department of Agriculture "America's most distinguished farm girl." As the title was won in competition with some 600,000 other boys and girls, members of agricultural clubs in all parts of the United States, the little Virginia miss certainly has reason to be proud of the recognition accorded her by Uncle Sam.

The story of Peggy runs back to the time when she was 8 years old—she is now 15. At the earlier age she became interested in the club work carried on among farm boys and girls in her county as a part of the co-operative extension work of the United States Department of Agriculture and the state agricultural colleges, and grew her first crop of potatoes. She did all the work. The following year, enthusiastic over the agricultural college work, Peggy prepared the land and planted one acre of corn in competition with other club members of her county. She would have gotten a good crop, but, unfortunately, cattle broke into the field and destroyed most of the standing corn. Nothing daunted by this experience, Peggy grew another acre of corn the following season and harvested 75 bushels from her prize-winning plot.

When 11, Peggy joined the canning club in her county, grew a tenth of an acre of tomatoes and pickled 24 quarts of green tomatoes. She learned to can fruits and vegetables so successfully that for two years she canned fruits and vegetables which she exhibited at the local county fair, winning the majority of the awards in these classes.

Peggy's success in the canning line prompted her to engage in poultry and baby beef production. Starting with one setting of eggs, she developed in four years a flock of standard-bred Langshans and 50 Rhode Island Reds which not only furnish the eggs and poultry for the Keith family table but bring Peggy a tidy income each year. In 1919 she fed two Shorthorn baby beeves with such success that the animals sold for top prices. The following year she fed a Hereford beef calf which made the astonishing gain of 400 pounds during the feeding period and won first place at the Richmond (Va.) State Fair.

About this time Peggy attended a four-day short course in agriculture at the Virginia State Agricultural College and learned the essentials of livestock judging. As a result of this training she was chosen as a member of the judging team that represented her county at the next State fair. The following season she was given a place on the team selected to represent Virginia at the international livestock judging contest held at Atlanta, Ga. As a member of this team she was trained to judge beef cattle, hogs, dairy cattle and sheep, visiting many of the best livestock farms in Virginia during the training period. There were 50 boys in the big judging match at Atlanta. Peggy was the only girl. Yet it was in a large measure due to her work that the Virginia team took second place. Since that time Peggy has helped her father and mother in the selection of all beef and dairy cattle for the Keith farm.

During all these years Peggy's mother had been developing a dairy herd as a source of farm income and Peggy, becoming interested in the work, took the money she had earned as a result of her club activities and purchased a pure-bred Guernsey cow. She now has besides the cow a yearling heifer, a heifer calf and a yearling bull, all pure-bred Guernsies, and has become a partner with her mother in the dairy herd of 75 cows on the Keith farm.

Peggy is a stickler for scientific methods of dairying, as well as in other branches of agriculture and the Keith herd has become famous for the health of its animals and the purity of its products. Peggy has learned that the milk consuming public is demanding better milk every year, and that the only way dairymen can make their business grow is to provide that better milk. Therefore she sees to it that the barns housing the Keith dairy cows are maintained in the best possible condition and that every animal is kept scrupulously clean at all times. Plenty of clean bedding is provided fresh daily and each cow is regularly clipped around the flanks and udders, a practice which Peggy was quick to see kept filth from attaching itself to the animals and so prevented both the filth and long hairs from dropping into the milk at milking time. The result of this care is that every cow in the Keith herd has the appearance of having been groomed for exhibition purposes. It pays, too, says Peggy.

With this pure-bred Guernsey bull, Peggy Keith has won many blue ribbons and beaten some of the biggest breeders in the United States.

Peggy Keith, "America's most distinguished farm girl," and one of her Shetland ponies.

Not content with her success in club work, Peggy, who has always been fond of horses and is an expert horsewoman, decided in 1921 that there might be some money in raising ponies. Today she has a herd of 20 ponies which she is raising and breaking for the Shetland pony trade. Incidentally, Peggy aided in the organization of the first pony club in America and was the first president of that unique association.

In all, Peggy has won 25 silver cups, several hundred dollars in cash prizes and almost a hundred blue ribbons at horse shows and agricultural fairs where she has exhibited her championship stock. As a reward for winning the girls' farming championship of America, Peggy and her exhibit of ponies, pigs, poultry, dairy cows, beeves, canned fruit and vegetables and specimens of corn, potatoes and other crops which the young girl has raised, went to the Eastern State Fair at Springfield, Mass., last fall at Uncle Sam's expense.

With this remarkable record in club work and with the background of the 550-acre farm on which she lives in the thoroughbred horse region of Virginia, Peggy Keith, at 15, is a splendid example of the encouragement and training which the United States Department of Agriculture is giving to more than half a million boys and girls every year through co-operative extension work in agriculture and home economics, and through which it [illegible] the adoption of better farming practices.

NO THYROID GLANDS, FEW BRAINS

THE importance of the thyroid gland and the adjoining parathyroid glands of the neck to the development of the nervous system was illustrated at a recent meeting of the American Philosophical Society by Dr. Frederick S. [illegible] of the Wistar Institute of Anatomy and Biology. Young rats which were deprived of these glands, the absence of which in human beings causes [illegible], showed a noticeable lack of development of the brain and spinal cord.

In the case of female rats the growth of the brain attained to only 3.4 per cent of normal, while male rats managed to acquire 34 per cent of a normal brain. There was a similar but not so great a reduction in the weight of the spinal cord, and the growth of the body was also adversely affected. Excision of the parathyroid glands alone led to a similar result, but the results were not so extreme.

The Comedy Kid

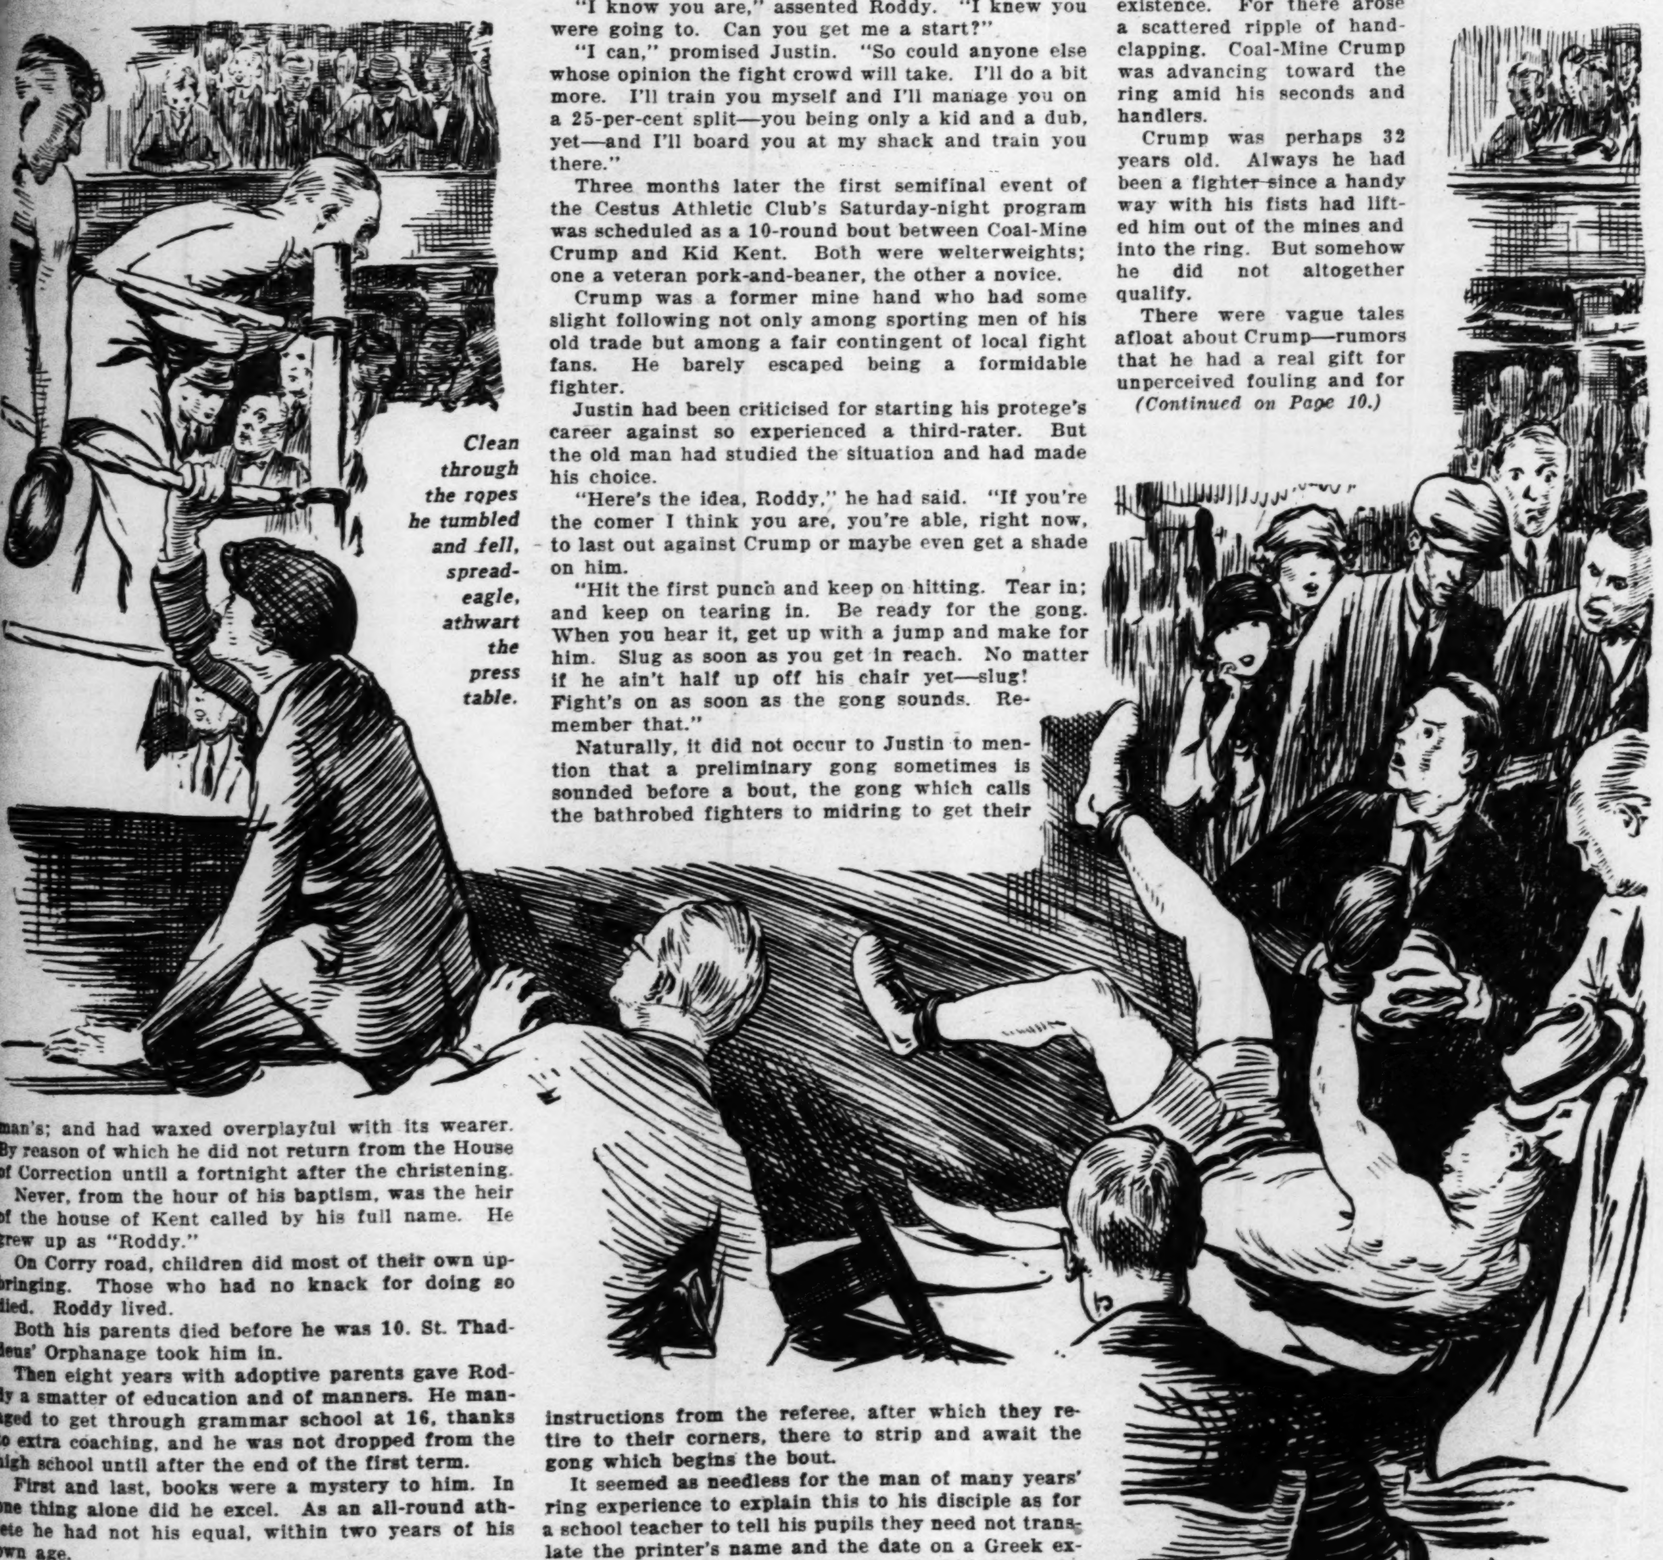
by Albert Payson Terhune

CORRY ROAD was on the other side of the railroad tracks. The least undesirable section of Corry road was farthest from the tracks. No. 1-A Corry road was so near the right of way that its occupants could tell, in their sleep, whether the 12:37 was burning hard or soft coal. In No. 1-A Corry road was born Roderick VicAlpine Dhu Kent.

His father was Essex English and his mother was Chicago Yankee. But his mother had received as a wedding gift, from the family for whom she worked, an ornate and flaringly illustrated copy of "Lady of the Lake."

Much of it she did not understand. But she thrilled to the soul at one of its full-page illustrations—the drawing of a darkly magnificent and pantless man with a brandished sword and a scowling brow. The pictured man, she learned from caption and context, was Roderick VicAlpine Dhu; oftener referred to, during the rhymed narrative's course, as Roderick Dhu.

Wherefore, when a lustily squalling son arrived in the Kent household, some months later, his mother had him christened Roderick VicAlpine Dhu Kent. She had her way in the naming of her first and only child. This because her husband was barred, temporarily, from objecting. While following too zealously the example of the stag at eve, he had mistaken a policeman's uniform for a brakeman's; and had waxed overplayful with its wearer. By reason of which he did not return from the House of Correction until a fortnight after the christening.



Clean through the ropes he tumbled and fell, spread-eagle, athwart the press table.

Never, from the hour of his baptism, was the heir of the house of Kent called by his full name. He grew up as "Roddy."

On Corry road, children did most of their own upbringing. Those who had no knack for doing so died. Roddy lived.

Both his parents died before he was 10. St. Thaddeus' Orphanage took him in.

Then eight years with adoptive parents gave Roddy a smatter of education and of manners. He managed to get through grammar school at 16, thanks to extra coaching, and he was not dropped from the high school until after the end of the first term.

First and last, books were a mystery to him. In one thing alone did he excel. As an all-round athlete he had not his equal, within two years of his own age.

Old Justin, the former pugilist, who had charge of the high school gym, eyed him, from the start, as a horseman might regard some future Derby winner. He insisted on teaching the stocky and pug-nosed lad to box and to wrestle; and he all but wept with joy at Kent's progress.

Two years later, Justin received a visit, after hours, from Roddy.

"I've left home," reported the youth. "I mean, it's left me. The old gentleman died last month. They've figured out his estate. He'd lost quite a lot. There's just enough left to keep the old lady going. If I stayed on, there'd be only a meal and a half a day for each of us and about half enough money for everything else she's got to have. So I've lit out. I figured she'd feel better that way—you know—thinking I was making a get-away from a sinking ship—than if she thought I was going hungry out in the tall grass so she can get three squares. I wrote a rotten note and I skipped. Gimme a job, won't you; or try to get me one, somewheres?"

It was a long speech for the taciturn Roddy Kent. And old Justin let pass a longer interval of silence before he answered.

"At any line of work that fits in with your home raising," said he, "you'd be worth about 9 cents a week, in United States money."

He paused. Roddy's level little eyes did not flinch. The heavy young face was impassive.

"Just the same," pursued Justin, "you done a decent thing when you dived off the raft that wasn't big enough to hold you and the old dame. And you done a decenter thing when you left her sore at you instead of sad for you. I'm giving you credit for that."

The boy frowned, making as though to interrupt. But old Justin went on:

"There's only one man's size job you could make good at. I'm talking about the ring."

"I know you are," assented Roddy. "I knew you were going to. Can you get me a start?"

"I can," promised Justin. "So could anyone else whose opinion the fight crowd will take. I'll do a bit more. I'll train you myself and I'll manage you on a 25-per-cent split—you being only a kid and a dub, yet—and I'll board you at my shack and train you there."

Three months later the first semifinal event of the Cestus Athletic Club's Saturday-night program was scheduled as a 10-round bout between Coal-Mine Crump and Kid Kent. Both were welterweights; one a veteran pork-and-beaner, the other a novice.

Crump was a former mine hand who had some slight following not only among sporting men of his old trade but among a fair contingent of local fight fans. He barely escaped being a formidable fighter.

Justin had been criticised for starting his protege's career against so experienced a third-rater. But the old man had studied the situation and had made his choice.

"Here's the idea, Roddy," he had said. "If you're the comer I think you are, you're able, right now, to last out against Crump or maybe even get a shade on him.

"Hit the first punch and keep on hitting. Tear in; and keep on tearing in. Be ready for the gong. When you hear it, get up with a jump and make for him. Slug as soon as you get in reach. No matter if he ain't half up off his chair yet—slug! Fight's on as soon as the gong sounds. Remember that."

Naturally, it did not occur to Justin to mention that a preliminary gong sometimes is sounded before a bout, the gong which calls the bathrobed fighters to midring to get their instructions from the referee, after which they retire to their corners, there to strip and await the gong which begins the bout.

It seemed as needless for the man of many years' ring experience to explain this to his disciple as for a school teacher to tell his pupils they need not translate the printer's name and the date on a Greek examination paper. To Justin, as to all of his kind, the term "gong" meant only the bell which opened and closed a round.

The second preliminary at the Cestus Athletic Club on Roddy's debut night was ending as Roddy Kent sat beside Justin in an empty ringside box swathed in his bathrobe, and watched the featherweight slapping match drag itself to a close. Then, at Justin's command, he climbed up into one of the ring's newly vacated corners. Not a handclap greeted him. Novices and unknowns and dark horses were no novelty to that crowd. Instead of growing nervous at the wait, he fell to rehearsing Justin's myriad wise instructions and warnings. This done, his gaze roved again over the sprinkling of onlookers below and above the ring and came to a brief and puzzled rest upon two women who sat in the second row behind the boxes. To be accurate, it was merely the younger of the two.

She was a girl of about his own age; well-set up, neat, capable looking, comely with youth's freshness, but with no claim to classic beauty. She was sitting beside a woman perhaps 10 years her senior; a woman of evident and almost aggressive respectability.

Kent recognized the girl at once, though the recognition sent no thrill through him. She was Mary Bonnell, who had gone to high school with him. The two had never been overwell acquainted with each other. Indeed, they might never have met had not Roddy chanced to thrash a trackside lad whom he caught snowballing her on the way to school. But soon thereafter Kent had left high school and the acquaintance had lapsed.

Nor did he waste a second thought on her now except to wonder vaguely why nice girls should go to prizefights. Their eyes met. Mary bowed slightly, without smiling. Roddy ducked his head in response. Then he forgot her existence. For there arose a scattered ripple of handclapping. Coal-Mine Crump was advancing toward the ring amid his seconds and handlers.

Crump was perhaps 32 years old. Always he had been a fighter since a handy way with his fists had lifted him out of the mines and into the ring. But somehow he did not altogether qualify.

There were vague tales afloat about Crump—rumors that he had a real gift for unperceived fouling and for

A new way of carrying passengers is to be tried out in England where 80 coaches will be operated by matic system on a line more than one and one-third miles long•— A continuously rotating spiral, in trench between the rails, will move the cars, which have no crews — Speed of 18 to 20 miles an hour, on the main line, is slowed down so that they creep past the stations at only 2 miles an hour — Railway is being built now as feature of the British Empire Exhibition :: :: ::

A RAILWAY which requires neither “drivers” nor “guards,” as the British call their engineers and conductors, and the cars of which never come to a halt, even at the passenger stations—such is the “never-stop” railway, attracting much attention in Great Britain just now.

There is nobody aboard the cars except passengers. And should there chance to be no travelers using a certain car, it travels along just the same, empty, but adhering to its regular schedule.

One is reminded at once of the escalators, or moving stairways, seen in some of the larger stores, or occasionally installed for the convenience of patrons of elevated lines or subways. But this new project is a far more complicated and interesting thing than the escalator.

An experimental railway of the “never-stop” type recently was completed in Southend, England, and one upon a larger and practical scale will be among the most striking and useful features of the forthcoming British Empire Exhibition at Wembley.

Already, enthusiasts are predicting that the “never-stop” railway eventually may solve the problem of handling passenger traffic in great cities. Certainly, it seems to eliminate the danger of one train or car crashing into another, even though running close together, and to dispense with a large number of operating employes.

On the other hand, the “never-stop” system apparently can be used only with a strictly private right of way, such as elevated tracks or subway, or with a surface line sufficiently depressed below the level of other traffic so that crossings are eliminated by bridges.

For a distinctive feature of the “never-stop” cars is that they keep going. And it would be asking too much of the other traffic for it to avoid interfering with the “never-stop” cars. Any kind of a parade, no matter how solemn, which crossed their rails would have to be interrupted. Police patrols, ambulances, even fire department apparatus, would have to adapt themselves to the measured progress of the “never-stop” cars.

But under conditions where other traffic need not be heeded, the “never-stop” railway offers many interesting possibilities. And how successfully it will operate, when actually put to work, as it will be at Wembley, is regarded as a matter of much importance.

The theory upon which the new system has been devised is simple enough. Have you ever twirled the nut upon the threaded end of a bolt? The nut then has two motions. It turns round and round about the bolt, and at the same time it goes backward or forward, compelled by the threads.

In place of the thread which makes the nut travel along its bolt in one direction or another, depending on which way it follows the thread, the “never-stop” railway substitutes a continuous spiral. The spiral is mounted on a steadily revolving tube. Hence the spiral itself rotates. And the “never-stop” car is fitted underneath with rollers which project down into the concrete-walled trench containing the rotating spiral. These rollers engage the spiral. As the latter rotates it pushes forward the rollers, and the car to which the rollers are attached.

Several questions at once suggest themselves. Since the distinctive feature of the cars is that they never stop, how do passengers go aboard them, and alight at the end of their journey? How does a train of “never-stop” cars manage to get around a curve? How are the necessary bearings or supports for the tube installed, without breaking the continuity of the spiral on which the motion of the cars depends?

Answers to these queries can be obtained from the Wembley project, where a railway 7200 feet long is being built. This is more than one and one-third miles. There will be 80 cars, each with seats for 18 passengers and standing room for 12 more, if required. There will be six or seven stations. And the promoters declare that, with a maximum use of the equipment, 15,833 passengers will pass any one point in an hour.

Upon the main, high-speed sections of the railway the cars will be spaced 160 feet apart, and a speed of 18 or even 20 miles an hour will be maintained. Obviously, people cannot jump onto cars which are moving at a speed of 18 miles an hour, nor can they jump off. But the tube on which the spiral is mounted rotates at the same speed throughout.

The solution of this difficulty is ingenious. The tube and the spiral make the same number of revolutions—176 per minute—at the passenger stations that they do on the main line. So the speed of the individual cars is regulated by varying the distance between the loops of the spiral.

Where the spiral is closed up, as on the portion of tube next to a passenger station, a car moves slowly. As the same car leaves the station, the spiral gradually opens out, increasing the car's speed. And where the spiral is fully opened out, on the main high-speed sections of the line, the car travels at the maximum rate.

For a concrete illustration: if the loops of the spiral are so spaced that a car advances eight feet with each revolution of the spiral, and there are 176 revolutions a minute, then the car is moving at the rate of 1408 feet a minute, or 16 miles an hour. But if the spiral at a passenger station has been “closed up” so that a car advances only one foot with each revolution, then the car is moving at the rate of only 176 feet a minute, or two miles an hour.

In the same way, a car decreases its speed approaching stations, and increases speed leaving them.

Even women, children and aged persons, it is believed, will have no difficulty in going aboard the cars or leaving them, as the cars creep slowly past the station platforms. The cars are entirely open on the platform side. And provision made against bumps, jerks and disagreeable vibrations includes springs in connection with the driving rollers (which engage with the spiral) and the mounting of each roller's steel surface upon a rubber ring.

The cast-steel body of the car is equipped with four flangeless wheels, running upon flat rails, or “wheel tracks,” in the English phrase. To keep the wheels upon their “wheel tracks” a guide rail, midway between them, is necessary. Rubber-tired “guide rollers,” extending downward from of the car, follow the guide rail, and keep upon its “wheel tracks.”

The way in which a single car will travel around a curve, unless by its own after leaving the end of the spiral on the section of the line, has not been disclosed. for a train of three or four cars, a plan has evolved by the “never-stop” engineers.

Briefly, a curve between two stretches of line will be negotiated as follows: As the car of a train passes from the straight the line, its driving rollers come to the rotating spiral and lose contact with it. The car now has no propelling power of its own the driving rollers of the cars behind it engaged with the spiral, and these cars first car forward. The same thing happens second car passes beyond the end of the the third car.

But by this time the leading car has the curve, is on a straight section of the and its driving rollers are now in contact other spiral. Thus the leading car not only own propulsion again, but can help to pull still on the spiral-less curve.

Hence, the leading cars of a train might be tact with one spiral, the rear cars in contact a different spiral and the cars between on the front and rear of the train for power. all spirals rotating at the same rate of speed would seem to be no objection to this part of scheme.

The “never-stop” railway as planned will its power from electric motors, each making revolutions per minute and developing horsepower. These motors are connected by tion gearing with the tube which bears the The Embley project, whose scope already has indicated, calls for six or seven passenger with corresponding motors totaling only horsepower.

The problem presented by the bearings necessary to support the spiral-carrying tube by overlapping the ends of adjacent spirals setting them apart. This is rendered possible preserving the continuity of the spiral as a whole the fact that the driving rollers of a car travel around the tube. The rollers merely along parallel to the top of the tube, and which are set apart far enough to clear the underneath the tube but the ends of which suffice for practically uninterrupted contact the rollers and the adjacent portions of spiral.

The revolutionary plan for the “never-stop” way was devised by William Yorath Lewis, of the Institution of Mechanical Engineers, and Adkins. The extremely high carrying claimed for it depends upon the whole line filled with cars continuously in motion. “rush hours” the railway as a whole can be up by increasing the number of revolutions per minute by the spiral. In this manner, claimed, a rate of 20 miles an hour on the speed sections of the railway can be attained.

How it is proposed in England to operate a railway without engines, and even without conductors on the cars. The system is to be entirely an automatic one, the propulsion of passenger coaches being effected by means of a continuously rotating spiral which pushes them forward. The diagram below illustrates the manner in which, through varying the distances between loops of the rotating spiral, the cars will attain their maximum speed on the main line, and will move very slowly past the platform at a railway station. The spiral, of course, rotates at just the same speed throughout its entire length. The spacing of the loops regulates the speed of the cars.

He arranged his afternoon road work to end always in precisely the same place and at the same time. His luck did the rest.

selling fights and for "laying down" at precisely the moment when certain heavy backers of his opponent had prophesied he would. Nothing was proved. But he seemed to be semiperpetually in funds—a condition not common to a pork-and-beaner of his limited chances.

Up through the ropes, now, Coal-Mine Crump made his lazy way. He glanced around the house. He caught sight of Mary Bonnell and the woman with her. He grinned at them. Mary waved her hand gayly in reply. The older woman smiled maternally. Crump turned from them, bobbed his head in recognition of the mild applause, sneered chillingly at the interested Roddy, then sat down on the stool his officious handlers put in place in his corner.

The two sets of gloves were inspected and drawn on. Ensued a moment's pause while the referee strode majestically to mid-ring. He signaled the timekeeper to strike the handgong, which should call the fighters to him for instructions.

Before the clangorous note had chance to echo to the farthest reaches of the building Roddy Kent was out of his seat and darting across the canvas with the formidable speed of an express train. Past the wondering referee he flashed just as Crump was rising gracefully from his stool.

An instant later, Kent's pistonlike fist was crashing into the wholly unprepared jaw of the newly arisen Crump.

Roddy was obeying old Justin's orders to the letter. At the clang of the gong he had gone violently into action. Similarly, he had hit the first blow. But he could not follow the advice to "keep on tearing in." There was nothing left to tear into.

Crump, hands at sides, was taking his first forward step toward the beckoning referee as Kent's fist landed. The blow was backed by Roddy's flying momentum and it had all Roddy's 140-odd pounds and whalebone muscle behind it.

Coal-Mine Crump shot backward as from a mule-kick. Clean through the ropes he tumbled and fell, spread-eagle, athwart the press table. The entire audience was on its feet, yelling, gesticulating, milling. Seconds and handlers piled into the ring. The dumfounded Roddy stared about him, wondering at the insanity caused by his initial punch as a professional fighter. He had a fleeting glimpse of Mary Bonnell, standing with clenched hands and widely incredulous eyes, and of the older woman fairly jumping up and down in wrath. Then the referee and seconds and Justin had hemmed him in, and his ears were deafened by a babel of undistinguishable language.

Out of the ruck of it, presently, he gleaned that he was assailed right furiously for what he had done. And he babbled to the scandalized Justin:

"You told me to! You said to sail in at the sound of the gong and to land the first punch. I"——

The clamor broke out afresh on this excuse. The announcer advanced to the ropes and waved both arms to the racketing spectators.

"Ladies and gentlemen!" he bawled, "Kid Kent's manager told him to start hitting as soon as he heard the gong. He didn't say which gong. The Kid never saw a fight before. So when the prelim gong sounded he got busy. That's how it happened."

Anger-reddened faces twisted into laughter. From all over the house came a ragged guffaw of appreciation.

Next morning, on the front page—not on the sporting page, mind you—appeared a story whose gist the Associated Press had already sent to the ends of the continent.

"Son!" exulted Justin, "it's the making of you. That yarn will be in the mouth of every fight fan in the State. It'll do more to make you known and make folks come to see you fight than if you'd scored six knockouts on better men than Coal-Mine Crump. I won't have to go begging and wheedling to make the Cestus hardboilers give you your next chance. Don't go looking like you was spanked! It's the biggest lump of luck that a beginner ever run into. A fool for luck, like the feller said. I'll go down and have a chat with 'em as soon as they're awake enough to have read the papers."

He did. He came home at noon glorified.

"Talk about luck!" he crowed. "They near kissed me. Whatcha think? You're to be signed up to meet Alabaster Mayo, four weeks from last night! Get that! Alabaster Mayo. The coon that's in line to meet the welter champ of the Middle West. And you've got a fight on with him! Luck! Of course, the matchmaker chap thinks it's a set-up for the coon. He counts on this noospaper dope to bring out a crowd to see you. You pack the wallop. Why, everybody I met has read about last night! But I seem to be the only one who saw all you put into that smash you landed on him. Hand Alabaster a few of those and you'll cut through to that yellow streak I've always said he has."

When Roddy Kent came home from his afternoon's road work that day, he avoided the livelier streets. He dreaded to meet any friend. In spite of this, or because of it, he rounded a corner to find himself face to face with Mary Bonnell.

The girl made as though to pass him without speaking. But, urged by a queer impulse that was too sudden to resist, Kent stopped timidly in front of her.

"I'm sorry you were there to see me make a fool of myself," he blurted. "It wasn't my fault. I didn't know about"——

"Yes," she interposed, frigidly. "I heard what the announcer said. I read the paper this morning."

"If you'll come again to see me fight," he stammered, driven on by that same odd impulse he could not define nor curb, "I'll be doing better by that time, and I won't make such a monkey of myself. I'm—I'm signing up to fight Alabaster Mayo four weeks from last night," he finished in sorry pride.

The tidings did not seem to impress her.

"Yes," she answered, "I heard you were. But it isn't likely I'll be there. I don't care for fights. They are brutal and—and"——

"You heard about it?" he repeated, too much confused by this statement to take in the rest of her words. "Why, it wasn't settled till late this morning."

"A friend of Harry's dropped in a few minutes ago," she explained, coldly, "to ask about his poor shoulder. He told"——

"Who's Harry?"

"My brother-in-law. My sister's husband. Didn't you know?"

"No. I don't know even yet. Is he in the fight game?"

"His fighting name is 'Coal-Mine,'" said Mary. "'Coal-Mine' Crump. He is my brother-in-law. That's why Sis and I were there last evening. We hardly ever go to the Cestus unless Harry is fighting. He"——

She paused, struck by the blank look on his ruddy face.

"Gee!" he faltered. "And you saw me land that crack on his jaw! No wonder you froze me! Say, I'm awfully sorry, Mary. Honest, I am!"

She sought to maintain her frigid bearing. But there was something so unhappy, so childishly contrite in the man's aspect that her heart softened. She frowned in self-disapproval and forced herself to speak with added rebuke.

"It means more than a joke to Harry and to us all," she said. "It means more than a wrenched shoulder to him, too. The shoulder will be all well in a week. And the joke advertises him a little. But—he needed that fight badly. It was the first one he's been able to get in ever so long. And he had all the expenses on Sis' illness to pay. He counted on the money he'd get from last night. I suppose the newspapers think it's a lovely joke. But it means hard times to all of us till he can get another match."

That night, after an hour of earnest effort at thought, Roddy Kent amazed his manager by suggesting:

"Say! Why not get a return match for Crump and me? You said I'd be in demand for a while, now. Why not see his manager about"——

"Glory be!!" snorted Justin, goggle-eyed with astonishment. "The ivory mine gets to work, sometimes, just like reg'lar folks' brains! And I never thought of it! It's a pip! That's what it is. How'd you ever happen to hit on that, sonny?"

"I—I just kind of"——

"And you was dead right!" approved Justin.

"First fight you knock him out two minutes before the round's to begin. That got him sore. You're sore, too, 'count of the guying and joshing you got in the papers. Both of you wants to get back at t'other. A reg'lar ol' grudge fight. The kind that brings in the gate."

"He's—he's kind of—kind of hard up, isn't he?" asked Roddy, with elaborate carelessness. "A fight with a good gate is likely to help put him on his feet, I should think."

"He sure needs it!" assented Justin. "Lately, there's been funny cracks made about him and how he got some of the cash he always used to be flashing. Promoters have been leary of putting him on. Now, go to bed. You're due to start training tomorrow for Alabaster Mayo."

If it was something akin to chance that made Roddy encounter Mary Bonnell three times the next week on her way to or from the grocery, th kinship belonged in the poor- category. For he arranged his noon road work to end always cisely the same place and at the time. His luck did the rest.

Her voice shook. A note of grief and anxiety ripped its way to Roddy Kent's soul. The pang of it started his wontedly dormant brain to working. When a stupid man's brain begins to work, there is as much peril as when a plowhorse runs away or when a staid milk cow turns vicious.

"I—I wouldn't get too much het up over it," Kent said, slowly, after a long pause. "Maybe it'll—maybe it'll be all right."

Coal-Mine Crump was waxing old for the prize ring and he was going back steadily. No one knew it better than did he. And from the punch he had received from the novice as well as from the reports he had gleaned of the lad's training, he realized the newcomer was almost certainly too good for him.

It was true, as Mary had said, that he had been straining his feeble credit by wholesale borrowing. But Crump had lied in telling his wife he was betting the borrowed cash on himself.

He was betting every dollar of it, through commissioners, for Roddy Kent to win in the second round. On the strength of this plan, Crump had been able to borrow freely from friends who ordinarily would not have lent him a cent. He and they were placing their bets at the best obtainable odds. Already enough money had been placed to bring the odds undesirably low, and more than to cover the difference between 25 and 75 per cent of the modest purse.

He was not new to schemes like this, and had a genuine talent for them.

The pang-born thought that had entered Roddy's brain blossomed there. It bore its fruit in the second round of his bout with Crump, at the Cestus Athletic Club, four weeks later.

This time Mary and her sister were in a ringside box. But Roddy paid scant heed to them. He paid less heed to the hefty welcome of the crowd.

From the outset of the first round he fought with little of his former aggressiveness. With true fighter instinct he realized that this oldster was no match for him and that he could probably end the battle whenever he might choose to.

After the first round Justin took him severely to task, as Kent had foreseen, for his lack of aggression. In seeming obedience to his manager's orders, he started the second round in his wonted hurricane style, boring savagely in.

He drove Crump before him in a short-arm rally that set the spectators wild. He slammed him to the ropes. He held him flattened there with a volley of lightning-quick blows.

The referee, of course, interfered as fast as he could get to the spot of carnage. He sought to thrust Roddy back. But Kent, apparently, had lost his head with rage and ignored the shove and the bellowed admonition.

Crump dipped gracefully to one knee, preparatory to kneeling over in well rehearsed unconsciousness. As he did so, Kent flashed past the protestingly scandalized referee and struck him lightly but resoundingly on the chest.

From all over the noisily daft house went up a gasp that was more a groan. The young fool had thrown away the fight when it was all his. In his battle mania he had so far forgotten every rule of the ring as to resist the referee and then to strike a man who was down. Truly, Kent's slow thinking had been done to some purpose!

As soon as he had landed the foul blow he seemed to come to himself. For he stepped back, under the sharp urgence of the referee's shove. He stood there, quiescent, moveless, while the house hissed and roared. His work was done. It had all come out precisely as he had planned it. He had not dared trust his powers—or lack of powers—as an actor, by staging a fake knockout with himself as its victim. Thus, he had lost the fight by the most palpable sort of foul. And, somehow, he had done it very convincingly. Yes, when a stupid man's brain begins to work, there is much peril.

Coal-Mine Crump did not sink limply to the floor as he had planned and then turn convulsively over on his face. He knelt as he was. He could not bring himself to speak or to stir. He was sick with horror. Before him lay ruin and pennilessness. He had wagered every cent he had in the world and much more borrowed cash that he would be knocked out in this round. And, lo! he had won the fight on a foul! He was ruined.

Most cheerfully he could have murdered the young idiot who had made his beautiful plan miscarry. He could have murdered him and then cut him into dice.

Then, on the instant, his crafty brain began to work. That noisily light tap on the chest—assuredly that was not the blow of a rage-maddened athlete. Something was queer! The thought cleared his head.

The referee had caught Crump's right glove and was lifting it aloft in token of victory. Coal-Mine leaped to his feet. "Hold on!" he yelled, his voice carrying shrilly to every corner of the place. "Hold on, Mr. Referee. He didn't land on me while I was down! That was my own glove swatting his as he led for me. I wasn't fouled. Besides, while he was rushing me across the ring I fouled him twice. It was such close quarters you couldn't see it. He was between me and you. I lost my head and hit him twice 'way below the belt. I'm man enough to confess it. I won't take a vict'ry I didn't earn! He didn't foul me! He only tried to. I fouled him!"

Glumly, through the resumed uproar, the referee stared from the falsely confessed fouler to the flabbergasted Kent. Then, with sharp abruptness, he turned to the audience.

"Ladies and gentlemen!" he thundered, taking refuge in Rocap's immortal formula, "I was asked to referee a contest. This is no contest. I don't know just what it is," he added, on his own account. "But whatever it is, it's off. So are all bets. I thank you."

He stalked out of the ring, leaving the fighters to follow as they might.

"The Comedy Kid" was the Chronicle's nickname for Roddy Kent next morning in calling attention to the bur lesque phases which had accompanie each of his three fights. The name stuck. So did his following, which ever thereafter thronged whatever clubhouse he chanced to fight in, avid, even after scores of disappointments, to witness another front page comedy scene. Kent was a made man.

"I don't know what ails Harry!" lamented Mary Bonnell, next afternoon, as she and Roddy began their walk. "He seemed to like you so much! And, ever since last night, he says such perfectly awful things about you! Why, he told me if I ever spoke to you again he wouldn't let me stay another day in his house."

"The blazes he did!" grunted the sympathetic Roddy, blankly. "What did you say to that?"

"I'm—I'm here, aren't I?" she made answer, so low he scarce could believe he heard.

"That means you can't keep on living in his house?"

"I suppose so. He"——

"Say!" shouted Kent, smitten by the first sound and brilliant idea of all his brief life. "Say, let's go house-hunting, then? Hey? How about it? Hurroo! Come on!"

as it does now, provide for the surrender of criminals guilty of such offenses as that which Crawford was believed to have committed. Crawford could be arrested, therefore, only by being gotten into another country by some clever maneuver.

The man best capable of carrying out such a maneuver was Robert Pinkerton himself; and, accordingly, the express company, despite the very considerable expense involved, and fully aware that the result must be uncertain, authorized Mr. Pinkerton to go personally in pursuit of Crawford.

Mr. Pinkerton arrived in Balize, the capital of British Honduras, on Feb. 17, 1890, nearly two years after the date of the robbery. There he learned that Crawford's plantation was about 90 miles down the coast, a little back of Punta Gorda. Punta Gorda lies near the line separating British Honduras from Guatemala, about 100 miles from Spanish Honduras, or Honduras proper, directly across the Gulf of Honduras.

from the very start. People were dying about him every day of yellow fever, and when he started for Punta Gorda on a little steamer, the engineer came aboard looking as yellow as saffron, and immediately fell ill, so that he had to be taken ashore. Then the engine broke down several times on the voyage, and the heat was insufferable.

As the boat steamed slowly into Punta Gorda it passed a small steam craft loaded with bananas. "Look," said one of the passengers to Mr. Pinkerton, not aware of the nature of Mr. Pinkerton's mission, "there goes Crawford's launch now."

Landing at once, the detective waited for the launch to come to shore, which it presently did. The first man to come off was Marvin Crawford, whom Mr. Pinkerton recognized from a description, although he had never seen him. Then he saw Edward Crawford step off, dressed smartly in a white helmet hat, a red sash, a fine plaited linen shirt, blue trousers and patent-leather shoes. Mr. Pinkerton approached and held out his hand.

"I don't remember you," said Crawford; but his face went white.

"You used to know me in New York when I examined you before the bank officials," said the detective, pleasantly.

Crawford smiled in a sickly way and said: "Oh, yes; I remember you now."

Mr. Pinkerton explained that he had traveled 5000 miles to talk with him about the stolen money package. Crawford expressed a willingness to furnish any information he could and invited Mr. Pinkerton to go up to his plantation, where they could talk the matter over more comfortably. Seeing that his best course was to humor Crawford, Mr. Pinkerton consented, though realizing that he thus put himself in Crawford's power. They went aboard Crawford's launch and steamed up the river, a very narrow, winding stream, arched quite over through most of its length by the thick tropical foliage.

Mr. Pinkerton remained at the plantation for 48 hours. On the second day he had a long interview with Crawford, questioning him in the greatest detail as to his connection with the robbery. Crawford persisted in denying that he had had any connection with it, or had any knowledge as to what had become of the stolen money.

Argue as he would, Mr. Pinkerton could not beat down the stubbornness of his denials. All direct approaches failing, at last he tried indirection. He spoke of Burke, the absconding State Treasurer of Louisiana, who, along with a number of other law breakers, had fled to Central America.

"Burke had a level head, hadn't he?" said he.

"How do you mean?" asked Crawford.

"Why, in going to Spanish Honduras. You know the United States has no extradition treaty there under which we could bring back a man who has absconded for embezzlement or grand larceny. Burke is as safe there as if he owned the whole country."

"Is that so?" said Crawford, looking significantly at his brother, Marvin, who was present.

"Yes," said Mr. Pinkerton, "it is. I only wish the fellow would come up here into British Honduras; then we might do something to him."

Here the subject was dropped.

Next Mr. Pinkerton exhibited to Crawford a sealed letter written by James G. Blaine and addressed to the Chief Magistrate of British Honduras, pointing to the seals of the State Department to assure Crawford of the letter's genuineness, and hinting mysteriously at the use he proposed making of this document and at the probable effect that would follow its delivery.

With this the interview closed, and Mr. Pinkerton announced his intention of going back to Punta Gorda. Crawford had practically told him to do his worst, and he had not concealed his intention of doing it. Nevertheless, their relations continued outwardly pleasant, and Mr. Pinkerton was treated with the hospitality that is usual in tropical countries.

Toward evening of the second day Crawford and his brother got the launch ready and took Mr. Pinkerton down the river back to Punta Gorda, where they said goodby. At parting Crawford made a brave show of treating the whole matter lightly.

"I may see you in New York in a couple of months," he said to the detective as they shook hands.

"If you see me in New York," said Mr. Pinkerton, "you will see yourself under arrest."

On landing, Mr. Pinkerton proceeded, with all the obviousness possible, to call at the house of the British Magistrate, which was so situated that Crawford from the launch could not fail to see him enter. This seems to have confirmed the impression he had been striving to create, that British Honduras, though in truth a perfect refuge for a criminal like Crawford, was none.

Crawford, apparently thoroughly frightened, and thinking he had not an hour to lose, steamed back in all haste to his plantation, gathered together, as subsequently appeared, his money and other valuables, and then, under cover of night, dropped down the river again, put out to sea forthwith, and crossed the Bay of Honduras to Puerto Cortes, in Spanish Honduras, the country of all Central America in which Mr. Pinkerton preferred to have him.

In short, Mr. Pinkerton's stratagem had worked perfectly.

Mr. Pinkerton's reason for wishing to get Crawford into Spanish Honduras was not because the treaty arrangements were more favorable there than in British Honduras, but because the Pinkerton agency enjoyed unusual personal relations with the Honduras Government. Several years before, when President Bogram had in contemplation the federation of Central American states under one government, he had applied to the Pinkerton agency for reliable detectives for secret service work.

In consequence of this the present head of the Honduras secret force was no other than a former Pinkerton employe who had been recommended by the New York office to the Honduras Government, and upon whom Mr. Pinkerton knew he could rely absolutely. Another man equally disposed to favor him was Mr. Bert Cecil, a member of the Cabinet, and at the head of the telegraph service, and thus in a position to render most valuable service in the apprehension of Crawford.

As soon as Mr. Pinkerton learned of Crawford's flight, he hurried in pursuit, crossing the bay to Livingston, in Guatemala.

Soon after landing Mr. Pinkerton suffered an attack of fever and being warned by the doctors to return to a northern latitude, he got the Government machinery in motion for the apprehension of Crawford, had photographs of the former bank messenger spread broadcast through the country, and then, having cabled the New York bureau to send responsible detectives to take his place, he sailed for New Orleans.

Mr. Pinkerton was succeeded in Central America by Detective George H. Hotchkiss, one of the best men in the country, who arrived in Balize on March 18. A telegram from Pinkerton's former employe, now chief of the secret police in Honduras, informed him that Crawford had been seen in San Pedro, Spanish Honduras, on the previous Saturday and was being closely pursued by Spanish soldiers accompanied by Pinkerton men. Hotchkiss sailed at once for Puerto Cortes, where he learned from the American Vice Consul, Dr. Ruez, that Crawford had left San Pedro hastily the previous Monday night.

On further investigation the detective discovered that a San Francisco bully and former prizefighter, "Mike" Neiland, had called at Crawford's boarding house on Monday, and warned him that detectives were pursuing him from Puerto Cortes on a handcar. Neiland had pretended to be Crawford's friend, and said he would keep him out of the hands of the detectives. Crawford, very much frightened, grabbed up some of his luggage and left the house with Neiland.

It was generally believed that Neiland had designs on Crawford's money, and would not hesitate to kill him, if need were, in order to get it.

Hotchkiss immediately requested Mr. Bert Cecil, at Tegucigalpa, the capital, to cover all telegraphic points, and, if possible, have Crawford and his companion arrested on some trivial charge. The day after he reached San Pedro, on March 22, he received a telegram saying that Crawford and Neiland had been arrested and taken before the Governor at Santa Barbara. They had been searched and about $32,000 had been found on Crawford's person.

The money was in old and worn bills that in every way resembled those in the stolen package. Whether they were the identical bills or not it was impossible to say, as the bank had not recorded the numbers.

On receipt of this news, Hotchkiss, accompanied by Jack Hall, a guide, set out across the country for Santa Barbara. The journey was accomplished, but only after the most terrible suffering and many privations and dangers. Moreover, the fever got its deadly clutches upon Detective Hotchkiss; and when he had finally dragged himself into Santa Barbara, he cabled the New York office: "Crawford and money held for extradition. Am sick. Cannot remain. Coming on steamer Tuesday. My associate takes charge."

Before sailing for New Orleans Detective Hotchkiss had an interview with Crawford, in the presence of the Spanish officials, and obtained from him a written confession of his guilt.

While admitting that he had been a party to the robbery, the absconder tried to lessen his own crime by declaring that the plan to plunder the bank had been suggested to him by two men, named Brown and Bowen, whom he had met accidentally on a railway train in New York, and with whom he had afterward become very friendly.

These men had taken him to Brown's house on Thirty-eighth street, somewhere between Eighth and Ninth avenues (Crawford could not locate the place more precisely), and introduced him to a fine-looking woman, presented as Mrs. Brown, who was also in the conspiracy. They told him that he was earning very little money for a man in such a responsible position, and that he might easily make a fortune if he would put his interests in their hands and be guided by their advice.

He claimed that on the day of the robbery one of his fellow conspirators, Bowen, followed behind himself and Earle after they had entered the Adams express office, and managed to substitute the bogus package for the real one while the two messengers were going up the stairs. He did not make this attempt until he saw the bank detective, McDougal, turn back up Broadway.

Crawford said that he managed it so as to precede Earle in going up the stairs, which gave Bowen, who was standing at the first turn, in the shadow, an opportunity to open the satchel and quickly make the substitution.

He had no idea what had become of these people since he left America, having had no further communication with them. None of the alleged conspirators were ever found, and they were believed to have been purely mythical.

After the capture Crawford vainly tried to bribe the guards to let him escape, offering them as much as $10,000. When the large package was opened it was found to contain bundles of bills sewed together with black thread, and with about a dozen rubber bands wrapped around them, and a stout covering of buckskin under the oiled paper.

The money amounted to $32,500, all in United States bills—fives, tens, twenties, fifties and hundreds, but mostly fives. Ultimately the money was returned to the American Exchange Bank.

The Government of Honduras consented, thanks to their friendly relations with the Pinkertons, to deliver Crawford over to one of the representatives of the agency, and Supt. E. S. Gaylor, who had meantime replaced Detective Hotchkiss, took him in charge. A guard of Spanish soldiers brought the prisoner to Puerto Cortes, where he was placed in a hotel pending his transfer to a vessel sailing for the United States.

Supt. Gaylor was present to see that everything was managed properly, and he was seconded in his oversight by the former Pinkerton employe, the head of the secret police in Honduras. The final arrangements had been made, the Government had taken advantage of a law authorizing the expulsion of "pernicious foreigners" in order to get rid of Crawford.

The superintendent had actually taken passage for himself and Crawford, and selected berths, on an American vessel that was to sail on the morning of May 2, 1890; but the night before Crawford made his escape from the hotel, going without the money, which remained in the detective's keeping.

How he escaped always remained a matter of conjecture. The hotel stood on the water's edge, and from a balcony to which Crawford had access he may have managed to spring down to a wall built on piles. From there he may have reached the hotel yard at the back, and escaped over one of the picket fences that separated the hotel from the adjoining property.

There is also a possibility that the Spanish soldiers were bribed; but this has never been proved, and is scarcely probable, as Crawford at the time of his escape had not more than $75 in Honduras bills in his possession.

During the following days and weeks untiring efforts were made to recapture him. The swamps were searched for miles, and soldiers were sent out in all directions. Mr. Gaylor believed that Crawford succeeded in making his escape into Guatemala, which was only 30 miles distant. He was undoubtedly assisted in his escape by the fact that people in the surrounding region sympathized strongly with him and would have done anything in their power to conceal him from his pursuers. At any rate, the man was never recaptured.

For several years after Crawford's escape he was left undisturbed in Central America, where he was frequently seen by people who knew him, and where he seemed to be thriving. Eventually he and his brother engaged in business on one of the islands in the Mosquito reservation of Nicaragua, where they were regarded as dangerous men by the Government, likely to incite revolution.

So strong was this feeling on the part of the Nicaraguan officials that advances were made to the United States Government to have Crawford surrendered, the Nicaraguan officials declaring that they would gladly give him up if a demand for his extradition was made by the proper authorities in Washington. For some reason the demand was never made.

Immediately after Crawford had made confession, the American Exchange Bank, realizing that there was no longer any doubt that the robbery was committed by one of its employes, voluntarily refunded to the Adams Express Co. the $41,000 that had previously been paid to it by the company, together with interest thereon for two years, and a large part of the expenses.

Mr. Pinkerton's theory of the way in which this robbery was committed was that Crawford had an accomplice who had previously prepared the bogus package, and who, by previous appointment, was standing on the stairs in the express office when the two messengers arrived. It was always a question in Mr. Pinkerton's mind whether the old man, Dominie Earle, told the exact truth in his testimony before the bank officials.

Not that he suspected Earle of having been implicated in the crime, but he wondered whether Earle might not have been simply negligent to the extent of

New Self-Massaging Belt Reduces Waist—Easily!

Produces same results as an expert masseur, but far quicker, easier and less expensive. Substitutes good solid, normal tissue for that bulky, useless, disfiguring fat, yet does it so gently that you hardly know it is there.

SCIENCE has found a delightfully easy way to quickly remove fat and obtain a normal waistline — without straining your heart with violent gymnastics or weakening your system by starving.

Formerly those who wished to reduce without dieting or strenuous exercise had to go to a professional masseur. His method effectively dislodged the fat and brought about the desired reduction. But it was expensive and time-consuming, and so few could take advantage of it.

Remarkable New Invention

But now a wonderful new invention brings this same effective method within the reach of all. The Weil Scientific Reducing Belt uses the same massage principle, acting by means of its specially prepared and scientifically fitted rubber. It is so constructed that as you wear it, every breath you take and every movement you make imparts a constant gentle massage to every inch of the abdomen. Working for you this way every second, day and night, it reduces much more rapidly than ordinary massage, saving both time and money.

Actually Removes Fat

It does not merely draw in your waist and make you appear thinner. It actually takes off the fat. Within a few weeks you find 4 to 6 inches gone from your waistline. At the same time all your stomach disorders, constipation, backaches and shortness of breath disappear, as the sagging internal organs are put back in normal place. Man or woman, you are filled with a wonderful new energy and both look and feel 10 to 15 years younger.

SITTING—As shown here every move of your body, walking, climbing stairs — merely breathing as you SIT—causes the Weil Belt to gently massage your abdomen. It is working for you every second, reducing, even as you sit at your desk.

WALKING—If you totaled the number of steps you take every day—at the office, on the street or in your home, the result would surprise you. Walking with the Weil Belt on creates a longitudinal massage that is very effective in reducing. You will be surprised to see how rapidly the excess flesh goes away.

CLIMBING—Your daily trips up and down stairs, wearing the belt, are wonderfully effective in reducing.

The Weil Belt is used by hundreds of professional athletes and jockeys because it not only reduces quickly but at the same time preserves their strength. Highly endorsed for its healthful principles by physicians everywhere. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money back without question.

HEARING RESTORED OFTEN IN 24 HOURS

Amazing Results Secured in One Day By Use of Virex, Formerly Known as Rattle Snake Oil.

Deafness and Head Noises need not be dreaded any longer since the discovery of a widely known physician. Now it is possible for some of the most obstinate cases of deafness to be relieved in a day's time by the application of a prescription formerly known as Rattle Snake Oil. This treatment is meeting with wide success all over the country.

Mr. D. Dey, a Nebraska resident, 67 years old, says, "I have used the treatment for only two weeks and my hearing is restored perfectly. The relief was almost instantaneous and now the head noises have disappeared. My catarrh, a case of many years' standing, is improving wonderfully."

Mr. Ben Jackson, who lives in Indiana, says, "Before I used Virex I could hear nothing. After ten days I could hear my watch tick."

Angeline Johnson, a Mississippi resident, had been stone deaf for eighteen years. She says; "Virex has stopped my head noises and I can hear the train whistle 3½ miles away."

Roy Fisher, Iowa man, says, "I hadn't heard a watch tick for eleven years—now I can lay my watch on the table and hear it plainly."

Mr. W. A. Lumpkin, of Oklahoma, says, "After being deaf 38 years, I used your treatment only a few days and hear fairly well."

Mr. Anthony Chapman, of Michigan, says, "The terrible head noises have stopped entirely and my hearing is practically back to normal."

Deaf Baby Now Hears.

Mrs. Ola Valentine, of Arkansas, says, "My little boy, now 5 years old, had been deaf since about 4 months of age. Now he hears very well and is learning to talk."

Mr. Mather Pelleys says, "My young son, deaf for years, has used Virex for only three days and he hears almost as well as ever before."

Such amazing reports come from all over this country and Canada. The prescription, which is known as Virex, is easily used at home and seems to work like magic in its rapidity on people of all ages.

So confident are we that Virex will restore your hearing quickly, and to introduce this remarkable treatment to a million more sufferers, we will send a large $2.00 treatment for only $1.00 on ten days' free trial. If the results are not satisfactory the treatment costs nothing.

Send no money—just your name and address to the Dale Laboratories, 417 Gateway Station, Kansas City, Mo., and the treatment will be mailed at once. Use it according to the simple directions. If at the end of 10 days your hearing is not relieved, your head noises gone entirely, just send it back and your money will be refunded without question. This offer is fully guaranteed, so write today and give this wonderful compound a trial.

leaving Crawford in sole possession of the valise at some time after they entered the office. There is no doubt that Earle was very anxious to catch a 4 o'clock train at one of the New Jersey ferries, in order to get home early. He may, in his haste, have allowed Crawford to go upstairs with the valise unaccompanied.

This would explain how Crawford found opportunity to open the valise and make substitution of the bogus for the genuine package. Assuming that the accomplice was standing at a turn of the stairs, which were winding and rather dusky, it is perfectly conceivable that such change of packages might have been effected with scarcely a moment's delay.

But consenting that Earle told the exact truth, he admitted that he lingered behind Crawford a little in ascending the stairs, and in so doing he may have furnished opportunity for substitution. An old man going up rather steep stairs naturally bends his head forward to relieve ascent, and in such position he might fail to see what a man close in front of him was doing. The trouble with this theory is that it supposes the label on the bogus package to have been a forgery.

There was still another theory suggested by Mr. Pinkerton to account for the presence of the bogus money package in the valise when the two messengers reached the counter of the receiving department. It was that Crawford's confederate had provided himself with a second valise, similar in all respects to the one used by the bank, and that in this had been placed the bogus package with a forged label, making the substitution a matter of merely changing valises, which could have been accomplished in a second.

It was also suggested that Crawford might have managed the whole scheme himself, by having prepared a valise like the one he carried daily, arranged with two compartments, in one of which he put the genuine package received from the paying teller at the bank, while out of the other compartment was taken at the express office a bogus package previously placed there. What makes it more reasonable to suppose that Crawford accomplished the theft single-handed is the fact that when arrested in Honduras the bulk of the stolen money was found on his person, while it was known that, in addition to the $32,000 then recovered, he had previously spent considerable sums in various ways.

His voyage, for instance, must have been expensive; and it was found that he had given, at various times, to members of his family sums ranging from twenty to fifty dollars. This would have left out of the original $41,000 a very meager remuneration for a confederate.

Perhaps the most reasonable explanation of the robbery lies in the assumption that Dominie Earle, honest but simple-minded, did not go upstairs at all with Crawford, but left him at the foot of the stairs, influenced by his eagerness to get home. Granting this supposition, what would have been easier than for Crawford, left alone at the foot of the stairs, to have turned back with the valise and gone into the back room of some neighboring saloon, or other convenient place, where he could manipulate the label and substitute the bogus package?

The sum of all these theories is, however, that, in spite of the fact that the author of the robbery was known and the bulk of the money was recovered, the manner of the robbery is to this day a mystery.

crowd, which swelled over the bridge into the square beyond. It was a concentrated, immobile throng, which watched with eagerness that belied its physical detachment.

It was scarcely 10 minutes since Marshall had burst into the room, and the firing was violent but spasmodic. There was certainly no organized battle, but I could distinguish clearly the rattle of Maxims coming from the direction of the barracks. For a few minutes I clung to the window bars, puzzled at the inertia of the crowd.

Then, with appalling suddenness, the street was alive with gesticulating figures. The passion of the mob seemed to scorch me as I swayed above them. In the midst of a seething chaos, one poor wisp of humanity struggled. For an instant its beard and its turban eddied above the savage hands which clutched it, flung it about, dragged it down.

"Dog of an infidel!" The words were screeched by a youth who foamed at the mouth, and with a roar the crowd followed his lead, till it seemed as if even the stones of the houses echoed the insult.

A few yards away there was a signpost, and towards this surged the mob, but it was a minute or two before my brain took in what was going to happen. The flaring torches made the whole scene unreal and it seemed to me that the whole crowd writhed and howled round what looked devilishly like a gallows! The arm of the post stretched back against the flames and I saw something like a snake slip up and over it.

There was a wilder cry from the very heart of the mob and it was as if a solitary figure had been vomited from the maw of some great beast. For a second I saw the torn robes, the bound limbs, above a mass of upturned faces—then, I understood. There was a horrid jerk and the human bundle swung out like a puppet dancing on a string.

* * * * *

Persistent knocking forced its way into my brain, amorphous with dreams and horror. Marshall's voice hailed me. I tore open the door and stared amazed at a figure which looked as if it had been polished to the epitome of colorless perfection. A cool voice remarked: "I thought you might like some coffee. The hotel is rather disarranged this morning."

"Disarranged?" I stuttered. "Is anyone left alive?"

The special correspondent smiled. "What a lot of emotion you waste," he said. "Of course, everyone is alive, except a miserable money lender, whom the crowd hanged in a cheerful desire to get some of its own back."

I shivered as I remembered the last horror of the night. "But the massacre? I don't understand."

"There was no massacre. It was an eclipse and the Arabs thought it was a whale which was eating the moon. It would certainly be a great disaster if there were no moon for the night-traveling caravans, so everybody started firing at the sky to kill the monster.

"The whole town got drunk with noise and they wasted six months' ammunition on the sky. A few bullets went wild, but nobody was hurt and no damage done and, eventually, you see, the whale was killed, for the moon appeared again, safe and sound!"

"Nobody was hurt?" I repeated, parrotlike, my eyes fixed on an ink spot, for I was wondering how much paper "an eyewitness" had wasted before he discovered the explanation of the night's turmoil.

"Oh, no, nobody was hurt except the money lender, who was doubtless in need of a hanging."

into your veins some blood that is not of the proper type to mix with your own blood, the mixture will curdle in your body, with uncomfortable or even fatal results. The scientists say that the immiscible kinds of blood "agglutinate" each other, which means merely that they form a multitude of tiny lumps or clots, as sour cream does when you pour it into coffee or as milk and vinegar do when mixed.

Other blood differences are used to detect disease; still others to follow the course of recovery from an illness or to test one's probable susceptibility to specified diseases or to unfavorable climates.

covered that blood is no mere variety of water, a little thicker and redder than ordinary. It is a complex and marvelous mixture, containing hundreds, perhaps thousands, of separate substances. Some of these substances are familiar chemicals, like sugar or salt or lime or iodine. Others are new substances which no chemist has ever found anywhere else and whose properties and constitution we still understand but dimly, if at all.

Now, it has occurred to many scientists that if blood is so complicated a thing as all this there ought to be blood differences between individuals. Your blood and my blood may be just as distinct and recognizable as are our fingerprints or our faces. All that we need to put these differences to practical use would be some way of analyzing and classifying blood, as the detectives analyze and classify fingerprints.

Furthermore, these individual blood differences might be inherited. Even though you fail to acquire completely either the features or characters of your parents, it may be that you do inherit their blood. You see what this would mean. It would be a scientific substitute for Solomon; it would give us the long-sought infallible test of parenthood.

Dr. Jervell, off there in Norway, determined to test this possibility practically. He selected a number of healthy families and took blood samples from both parents and children. In each instance he determined the type of the blood; whether I, II, III or IV. Where possible he investigated still smaller individual differences between two blood samples that proved to be of the same general type.

His results, recently published in Christiania, are most promising. He finds, for example, that if both parents have blood of Type I, the children will have blood of this same type. A child whose blood belongs to either of the other types, II, III or IV, must have had, therefore, at least one parent whose blood was of one of these types.

There are other regularities and probabilities that seem evident in the data. There is now little doubt that the peculiarities of one's blood are inherited in some fashion, though the exact rules that govern this inheritance are still unknown and may prove to be quite complicated.

As yet, neither Dr. Jervell nor any other criminologist would be willing to take these rules and data into court as valid evidence in a trial. Our knowledge of them has not gone far enough for that. It is in the same stage now as was the world's knowledge (and use) of America when Columbus had just come back and reported that it was there.

Dr. Jervell has reported that these facts about blood are there. Now it is for the scientific world to explore them and put them to use; to make out of them, perhaps, a scientific detector of paternity, a modern substitute for King Solomon's sword.

O, SEE TROUBLE CHINA BOY HAS FOR MAKING RADIO TALK NICE

By W. H. JAMES.

DEAR EDITOR which broadcasts much intelligence, if any:

Would like to ask two or six questions which you don't have to answer unless you know. My cousin has made me nice radio sit with rejector tube and two stages of simplification at which it is nice to look, but not to listen. Is all many noises but are not unanimous. All I have picked up so far is ear ache.

My uncle on mother's side he say maybe so would be better if I put in neutral informer, but I think not so, because is too many all kinds informers now which make loud noise which don't mean anything.

Night before Wednesday I put on earmuffs and turn all many dials to various points of compass and thought I heard something like soprano singer in distance or maybe in distress. But, no, it was not such. It was family cat which crawled in radio sit and received very bad shock between B battery and very able condenser. I write in my little book to show I have received Station CAT. Is not very nice music which is made by family cat, but is best kind I have got up to twenty minutes after Friday, which is present time.

After much reflection my cousin he say maybe it would be better if I had reflex sit. Have tried same also and it has not made ear harness any more comfortable. As far as I have got a radio sit is nice place for spending quiet evening. Ear blinkers keep out all noises, so is possible to mediate on Confucius, Magnum Johnson and inkum tacks.

My partner for business, which gets most of it, he say maybe I am not well grounded, which I cannot see how it is because I have been completely through Canton Business College. Anyway he tie wire to family wash boiler and bury it in back yard. Has not sprouted yet, so is impossible to tell how it will come out, if at all. Then, maybe so, say wise neighbor, is something the matter with my Aunt Anna. I tell him I have no such aunt, but he say she is on roof, at which I am much surprised. So he go up on roof.

When he come down is many all kind laughs. I ask him why so much merry hee hee and he say maybe would be better if my Aunt Anna should be made out of copper wire instead of string. Maybe so would, maybe so not. I will try this and let you know by post card or letter.

In the mean time my radio sit is fit for nothing only to make foolish noise. Hoping you are the same,

CHINA BOY.

Revising the Idea of a "Dead" Moon

SCIENTISTS have long assumed that the moon is a dead world, absolutely burnt out by its former volcanic fires. It has been believed, even, that the moon did not possess any atmosphere or any substitute for it.

Perhaps this has all been wrong. Prof. William H. Pickering, one of the most distinguished American astronomers, and head of the observatory maintained by Harvard University at Mandeville, Jamaica, has observed lunar phenomena which seem to be explainable only on the assumption that there exist on the moon something analogous to air and something else that can only be described as vegetation.

Not for many years has there been an astronomic discovery so full of interest for everybody as are the recent announcements made by Dr. Pickering with regard to these remarkable observations.

The major markings on the moon, those which form what we call the "man" or the "lady" in the moon, are well known to be due to great mountain ranges and volcanoes separated by broad, flat plains. These markings are permanent; at least they have been unchanged since astronomers began to observe the moon at all.

But on careful and long-continued study of certain of the lunar plains Prof. Pickering noticed that the smaller markings on it, the faintly visible streaks and blotches, some of them only a few hundred yards across, were not constant. They change as the sun rises in the lunar morning. They change again as it begins to set in the lunar afternoon.

One characteristic kind of change is the movement of the dark streaks bodily as the sun moves, as though vegetation was wilting or springing up with a change in the elevation of the sun. Other changes look like sudden snowstorms or mists. Still others resemble the spreading of water, or the drying out of water-soaked ground.

It is very unlikely, of course, that these changes represent anything exactly like the growth or disappearance of terrestrial vegetation, or the spread and disappearance of what we know as water. The surface of the moon is probably far too cold at night and far too hot when sunlit to mimic with any exactness the features of the earth.

But something is going on up there; something very interesting and possibly very important.

—a Trial Bottle

A shampoo that eliminates rinsing; one that enables you to wash your hair in 10 minutes and do it up perfectly 15 minutes after, seems unbelievable. Doubt it if you like, but try it! We offer a trial bottle free. One bottle to a family, while 5,000 bottles last.

Since you have nothing to lose make a test of this remarkable shampoo. The coupon brings you a trial bottle free and postpaid. Requests for trial bottles filled in the order received.

Sounds Incredible, We Know

Many women will doubt all this, we know. It seems so impossible. Many will question the non-rinsing idea. So we say: "Don't accept our word for a thing. See for yourself. Accept a trial bottle free and let your own hair tell you the story."

New Life to Hair

How It Works

You take 4 teaspoonsful of Cleero and mix it with a glass of warm water. Then apply to your hair, working it in with the fingers. Immediately it makes a snow-white foam. (Not the usual alkaline lather).

The action of this foam loosens the dirt, dust, hardened scalp oil, etc., from the scalp and hair. The accumulations, dissolved in the foam, turn it gray. Then you simply wipe off the foam with your hands or with a towel.

You repeat the application two or three times, until the lather remains pure white. That means your scalp and hair are absolutely clean.

The Volatile Action Carries Off the Dirt

To the benefit of your hair, no rinsing is necessary. For Cleero contains no alkaline soap or other harmful ingredient to be washed out of your hair. Nothing to harm your hair or to make it gummy. The volatile action of Cleero takes the place of rinsing.

Every bit of dust, grease and dandruff is loosened from scalp and hair and rolled to the top of the foam. When you wipe off the foam, all the dirt comes with it.

This seems strange, we realize. But one trial of Cleero will convince you. Your scalp is whiter than you've ever seen. And your hair as clean, sweet and fresh as spring flowers.

Note the Difference in Your Hair

Cleero is Oh, so convenient! Hair shampooed in 10 minutes. Perfectly dry and ready for dressing in 15 minutes more.

But more important, Cleero is beneficial to your hair. After a Cleero shampoo your hair gleams with new life and sparkle, with new richness of lustre.

A big reason for this is that you don't rinse with Cleero.

Rinsing has been the evil in shampooing. Because of the alkali and other minerals in water. Alkali and other minerals in water devitalize the hair, make it dull and brittle. It has exactly the same effect as an alkaline soap shampoo. With Cleero, the harmful rinsing becomes a thing of the past.

20 Years in Use

Cleero is comparatively new to America. But the formula has been in use nearly a quarter century in Europe by the fashionable hairdressers. So its merit is already established. Anyone may accept it with full confidence.

Only recently offered the American public, Cleero already has wide vogue. It may be had at almost any toilet counter. But lest there be any doubt as to its extraordinary qualities, we offer a test bottle free. (While 5,000 bottles last).

If only out of curiosity, make a test of this unique shampoo. See the convenience of it, and the wonderful difference in your hair.

The coupon brings you a trial bottle, free and postpaid. Clip it now lest you forget.

This little Pomeranian, Eastney Fine Gold, owned by Mrs. Nat Goldstein, won highest honors at the show, beating out all dogs, big or little.

Bubbles, winner of first prize for Gordon setters, and his owner, Miss Alice Kuesel.

The Pomeranian on the lap of her mistress, Mrs. Thelma McLoney, daughter of Mrs. Nat Goldstein, was adjudged the best female dog at the show. Her name is Honey Dew Powder Puff.

H. E. Heiden's smooth fox terrier, Heiden's Self Return, was adjudged best of his breed.

At left is Imported Nanking Rhino. At right Siss-see-San. Mrs Leo Dahl is seen holding these Pekinese pets.

First prize for Russian wolfhounds went to Juanova II, owned by Mrs. J. Donald Roberts.

E. Westerman's English bulldog, Sam, took first prize in his breed.

Both Miss Jerry San Souchi and Four-o'-Spades are smiling broadly because the latter was adjudged the best of the St. Bernards. Andy Hawn owns this winner.

The rug shown in this picture is an ancient Persian prayer rug. It is said to be at least 600 years old, and its money value is $200,000.

Join the summer migration to Seattle and "The Charmed Land"

Snow-capped mountains, great stretches of primeval forests, hundreds of lakes, surf of the Pacific, the largest and most scenic inland sea on the continent, thousands of miles of wonderful highways with paved roads diverging from the prosperous, interesting, hospitable cities and every out-of-doors sport you have ever enjoyed—with additional recreations peculiar to this region—make this the Summer Playground Supreme.

This is the sportsman's paradise. You can fill your creel quickly. Salt water, lake and stream fishing is unmatched. There are trout streams almost without number.

Automobiles, small steamers, suburban and steam lines, make these streams, lakes and salt-water fishing spots quickly accessible at a most nominal cost.

Cool and invigorating summer days—the average being 61 degrees—are followed by restful sleep under blankets every night. Cold, sparkling mountain water always. There are no flies, no mosquitoes, no ground pests, violent wind or rainstorms. Winter, too, is mild as the Japanese trade winds bring warmth. Flowers bloom out of doors Thanksgiving and Christmas. Snow is a rarity. There is abundant health in Seattle, America's healthiest city.

No vacation, or home land affords so much of interest and benefit at so modest an expense. Excellent accommodations everywhere and no "tourist" charges.

The Hospitality Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce will help plan your vacation upon arrival. Seattle is a picturesque, bustling, metropolitan "Out-West" city. Enjoy new experiences, scenes and people, a new world to our friends in the Middle West. Write Chamber of Commerce, 916 Arctic Building, Seattle, Washington, for free 36-page illustrated "Charmed Land" booklet, it can be obtained at the Promotion Department of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

THE DANGER LINE

Before retiring always protect your teeth against Acid Decay at THE DANGER LINE

WHILE you sleep, most of your body is building up, regaining health and strength. But in the mouth, during the long hours of night, the relentless enemies of your teeth do their most serious damage.

These enemies are acids, formed by the decomposition of tiny food particles left after eating. By day, the freer flow of saliva helps to wash acids away. But at night, unless the teeth are carefully brushed and these acids counteracted, they destroy the surface of the enamel, causing Acid Decay.

Especially at The Danger Line

The Danger Line is just at the edge of the gums. Food particles accumulate here and irritate the gums, causing them to recede and to expose the soft, bony underpart of the teeth.

Acids eat into this soft tooth structure readily. Decay begins and extends under the gum margins. The gums become infected, and abscesses and pyorrhea frequently develop. Poisons from these conditions find their way into your body, often causing rheumatism, heart-disease and lowered physical vitality.

You should prevent this relentless progress of Acid Decay on your teeth by using Squibb's Dental Cream, made with Squibb's Milk of Magnesia.

Milk of magnesia, for generations, has been prescribed by dentists and physicians as the best agent for counteracting mouth acidity. It leaves a protective deposit of magnesia at The Danger Line and other inaccessible places, which neutralizes acids as they are formed.

Brings out beauty

In addition to protecting the teeth from acids, Squibb's Dental Cream also removes "tooth tarnish" or stains and cleans and polishes the teeth beautifully. It relieves the sensitiveness of acid-eroded teeth and is soothing to the gums.

Squibb's Dental Cream is the only dentifrice which combines all these advantages. Begin to use it to-day. If your druggist cannot supply you, mail us the coupon with ten cents for a generous trial size tube.

Lingette
Everybody thinks it's silk

The Fabric of Beauty and Strength

CONSIDER all the uses for which Lingette is so admirably adapted, and it will not surprise you that many million yards of this fine fabric have already been sold. It is as popular for men's wear as for lingerie and children's clothes.

Lingette is unique in that it combines the beauty, shimmer and caressing softness of silk, with cotton's sturdy resistance to long wear and frequent washing.

Women who once have used Lingette know that it is worth their while to take care and buy only the genuine fabric — with the name Lingette on the selvage, or in the label on the made-up garment.

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.
Simply get an ounce of Othine from any druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful, clear complexion.
Be sure to ask for the double-strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

She is No Longer Fat

She found a way to reduce her fat. It was a way far more pleasant than dieting or exercising would have been. This new way allowed her to eat foods without danger of becoming fat again.

She found Marmola Prescription Tablets. They aid the digestive system to obtain the full nutriment of food. They help Nature to turn food into muscle, bone and sinew instead of fat.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are made from the famous Marmola prescription. Thousands have found that these handy tablets give complete relief from obesity. And when the accumulation of fat is checked, reduction to normal, healthy weight soon follows.

All good drug stores the world over sell Marmola Prescription Tablets at one dollar a box. Ask your druggist for them, or order direct and they will be sent in plain wrapper, postpaid.

DRIVER KILLED BY CONSTABLE AFTER AUTO STRIKES GIRL

Deputy John Cosmidys Says He Shot Thomas Ruane, 21, at Wellston When Latter Failed to Stop.

Thomas Ruane, 21 years old, of 5610 St. Louis avenue was shot and killed by a Deputy Constable in Wellston last evening, after his automobile had struck a girl.

The deputy declared Ruane was speeding on the wrong side of the street and tried to escape afterwards, but a witness told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that Ruane had been driving at a moderate speed on the right side of the street and appeared to be stopping afterwards.

Miss Mary Walsh, 16, a department store clerk, of 5833A Theodosia avenue, and another girl, on their way to church, started to cross Easton avenue in front of a moving picture theater at No. 6272 at 7:45 p. m. Ruane was driving west. There were many persons on the street, this being a business district just west of the Wellston car loop at the city limits.

Constable's Version.

John Cosmidys of 6201 Wells avenue, who has been a deputy of Constable Stanton of Central Township for two months, was among those standing in front of the theater. His version of how he shot and killed Ruane was related to a Post-Dispatch reporter today, as follows:

"A Ford sedan, with two men in it, came west on the right side of the street, at about 30 miles an hour. It pulled over to the left and hit Miss Walsh. Then the driver gave it gas and turned north in Kienlen avenue, which is right there. I ran after it and fired one shot when the car was a good many yards away and hit Ruane, who was driving. The other fellow, riding with Ruane, was intoxicated and he got away from me while I was looking after Ruane."

John Church, 22, of 6123A Plymouth avenue, who was standing at the corner of Kienlein and Easton avenues, gave a different version. He said:

"A Ford touring car came west at moderate speed. The girl with Miss Walsh ran to the north curb and wasn't struck. Miss Walsh hesitated and the driver swerved to the left to try to miss her, but he didn't succeed. There was another car in his way and it looked like he turned into Kienlein trying to dodge it, and then it looked like he started to stop his car. But the deputy ran up and shot him before he stopped. Then they left him lying on the sidewalk half an hour, arguing over whether he could be taken to the city hospital or not. I didn't see any one in the car but the driver."

Bullet Entered Back.

Policemen, sent to Wellston to investigate the shooting, were informed that Deputy Constable Cosmidys fired shots over the top of Ruane's car, then fired two shots directly at it, which conflicts with the Deputy's statement that he fired one shot.

They were told by Dr. Chester A. Poe of Wellston who treated Ruane at first, that Ruane appeared to him to be intoxicated. A city hospital physician said he smelled liquor on Ruane's breath. At the hospital Ruane was unconscious till he died at 2:10 a. m. A bullet had entered his back, penetrated his left lung and emerged through the chest.

Ruane's parents said that he left home in his Ford touring car at 7:20 o'clock last night, 25 minutes before the accident, accompanied by another young man, whom he intended to leave some place. The parents said they did not know who this man was. Ruane has been a player on the Puritan O soccer team.

At Constable Stanton's office today it was said nothing was known about delay in taking Ruane to the hospital, but that Deputy Cosmidys had gone at once for a physician, after the shooting.

At Miss Walsh's home today it was said she was suffering severe internal pains and that the extent of her injuries was not known. Externally, she suffered numerous lacerations.
